Qualify For Supplemental Income Pay

Persons who aren't quite able to make ends meet may qualify for supplemental security income payments, according to William Phalen, manager of the Grand Forks social security district.

These payments are available to people in need who are 65 or older, blind or disabled. If they don't have much property or savings and their income is low they may qualify. A single person can have $1,500 in savings or other property of value and couple can have $2,250. Most homes and cars don't count against this limit, nor do household goods and personal effects. The monthly payment amount has been raised so some people whose monthly income was too high before may qualify now.

Those who think they might be eligible or know of someone who might qualify, may call the social security office in Crookston at 281-4892. Phalen said most social security matters can be handled by telephone.

$600,000 For Roseau River Project Given

U.S. Senate has approved a $600,000 appropriation for the Roseau river project, according to Senator Walter F. Mondale.

"I am particularly pleased about this action because the President had not requested any funds for this project in 1976," Mondale said of the action.

"The senate action almost insures that this project will continue on schedule because it complements action already taken by the House of Representatives."

The senator also said that he and Rep. Bob Bergland would continue to work very closely with the army corps of engineers to prevent any delays in the start-up construction on the project. "The absence of adequate water management controls has caused millions of dollars of destruction to productive agricultural land and to county and township roads and bridges," he said.

"In fact, using the corps of engineers' own estimates, more than $4.5 million in flood damages have occurred since 1960," he added. "This represents just about half of the total construction costs of this project and further delays in its construction would subject the Roseau community and its area farmers to further unnecessary losses."

Mondale also commended Rep. Bergland for "single-handedly getting the appropriation in the public works bill passed by the House earlier this year."

Senior Meals Weekly Menu

Monday, Dec. 15: Hot turkey sandwich; sage dressing; canned tomatoes; white combination salad; sour cream apple square with whipped cream.

Tuesday, Dec. 16: Meat ball rice bake; apple ring garnish; fried parsnips; molded vegetable salad; mixed fruit with whipped cream and cherry.

Wednesday, Dec. 17: Roast beef au jus; oven browned potato; green beans au gratin; cottage cheese salad; strawberry delight.

Thursday, Dec. 18: Torsk with lemon butter; escalloped potatoes; beets; pineapple cherry salad; chocolate cake pudding with whipped cream.

Friday, Dec. 19: Beef stew with mixed vegetables; baking powder biscuit; tropical ambrosia salad; mint patty.

Bread, butter, milk, coffee and tea served with all meals.

On Friday a birthday party will be held for any senior citizen with a birthday in November or December. Birthday cake will be served in their honor at 2 p.m.

NEWEST ADDITION to the Pennington pioneer village in Thief River Falls will be the Asphult Lutheran church, now being placed on location after being moved here from east of Oklee. Moving is being done by Leonard Thompson of Karlstad for the Pennington county historical society. This photo was taken as the church moved along SAR 3 east of St. Hilaire. At the direction of the state highway department, it was moved from St. Hilaire on highway 32 after 1 a.m. today.

SWCD Meeting Adopts Four Resolutions

Proper land use and more intensive efforts to control soil erosion were among the primary concerns of the nearly 300 persons who attended the 39th annual convention of the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts at Marshall last week.

Resolutions passed by the convention included:

—A request that the Minnesota legislature call upon the experience and technical knowledge of the state's 92 soil and water conservation districts in planning land use policies for the state. The districts would like to be consulted before any comprehensive land use legislation is passed.

—Encouragement of state legislation and financial support to accelerate the soil survey of Minnesota.

—Support of state legislation which would give soil and water conservation districts authority in defining the state's public waters and which would compensate landowners for their wetlands which are declared public waters.

—Encouragement of legislation whereby the state would finance half of the local costs of controlling erosion and sedimentation in areas where it would have public benefit. Such funding was available from the state during the last biennium.

Soil and water conservation districts are organized under state law to direct conservation work within their boundaries. In cooperation with the soil conservation service and other agencies, the districts assist landowners to manage their land and conserve their resources.

Propose New Driver License Regulations

A public hearing concerning the adoption of standardized rules which will govern the administration of driver licensing laws will be held at 1 p.m. on December 16 in Room B9A, Highway building, St. Paul.

According to Kenneth Dirkzwager, director of driver licensing, the proposed regulations will serve to formalize standard operating procedures now in use by driver license evaluators. Adopting these procedures in regulation form will insure that actions applied to drivers convicted of violations will be uniform throughout the state and will apply equally to all such drivers.

Among the actions to be established as regulation would be the following:

—Conviction for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs would draw varying consequences depending on past offenses and their frequency. A second offense in four years, for example, would dictate a minimum 90-day revocation of a person's driver license. A third offense in three years would net a minimum one year revocation and further denial of driving privileges until the person convicted satisfactorily completes an alcohol rehabilitation program.

—Any conviction for a driving under the influence charge which involves "grievous bodily injury" or the death of any person would call for an additional 60-day revocation.

—Convictions for "alcohol-related" offenses—those in which there is evidence that the driver had been drinking—will also receive varying standardized actions under the proposed regulations. Two "alcohol-related" convictions in a period of three years, for example, would net the offender a 90-day suspension of his driving privileges. Prior convictions and frequency of arrest again will dictate varying measures including license suspension for up to one year as well as the requirement that an alcohol rehabilitation program be completed.

—A person convicted of non-compliance with Minnesota's No-Fault insurance act (requiring insurance coverage for vehicles operated in the state), would have his license revoked for not less than 30 days on the first offense. A second offense would draw a minimum 60-day revocation. A third offense would dictate a minimum six-month revocation, and fourth and subsequent convictions would result in one year revocations.

Where no conviction for the insurance offense is recorded but evidence indicates that a person has committed a violation of the No-Fault insurance act, driving privileges can be suspended rather than revoked for the same periods dictated for convictions.

—Habitual violators will be subject to resultant consequences relating to the number of convictions accumulated during set periods. For example, two convictions for violations relating to licensing, ownership or operation of a vehicle within a year may result in the suspension of the driver's license for not less than 30 days. Three offenses within a year may dictate suspension for not less than 60 days. Five separate offenses on five separate occasions within a year may result in a one-year suspension—as would eight or more offenses within a five-year period.

The proposed regulations also include driver license actions relative to juvenile offenders, persons involved in auto theft, the commission of a felony in which a vehicle is used, involvement in fatal collisions in which criminal negligence is proven and leaving the scene of an accident. Set procedures are also established for driving after revocation, suspension or cancellation of the driver's license as well as for various violations such as false application for a license, allowing a license to be used by another person, not having a license in possession and violation of license restrictions.

Complete copies of the proposed rules are available and may be obtained by writing to the Department of public safety, 210A highway bldg., St. Paul, 55155. Statements or written briefs may be submitted concerning this matter without appearing at the hearing.

1975 Federal Income Tax Break Coming

Everyone who pays federal income tax this year has at least one tax break coming. And it doesn't matter whether the taxpayer files a long Form 1040, or short Form 1040A, or how much the taxpayer earns.

The break is the personal exemption tax credit. Effective for only 1975, the credit amounts to $30 for each regular exemption to which the taxpayer is entitled. However, individuals who claim additional exemptions because they are blind or are 65 years old or over, may only claim one $30 credit for themselves.

How does the credit work? Take a family with three children, for instance. Mr. and Mrs. Brown. They file a joint return. When completing their return, the Browns will count two exemptions for themselves, and one for each of their children, for a total of five exemptions. They will multiply the $30 credit per exemption by five to come up with the $150 total credit that they'll write on the front of their tax return and subtract from their tax.

The new credit does not affect the $750 allowed for each exemption when figuring taxable income. For example, the Browns will still multiply the $750 by five and subtract $3,750 from their income.

There's information on the personal exemption tax credit in the instructions for both the 1040 and 1040A tax packages.

Taxpayers who have questions about the personal exemption tax credit or other tax matters can visit local IRS offices or call toll free 800-652-9062.

Copies of free IRS publications may be obtained by using the convenient order blank contained in your tax package.

Slow down and live.

Today's Drug Abuse Costs U.S. Billions

Though few people in this area have ever met a heroin addict, most know that it costs a goodly sum to maintain a "habit." But how many know that narcotic addiction and other drug abuse cost American society $10 billion each year?

That is a conservative estimate of the annual cost of drug abuse to the nation arrived at by the Special action office for drug abuse prevention, in the executive office of the President.

Health costs, including emergency room and general hospital care for drug users, account for almost $200 million.

Productivity losses of $1.5 billion are attributed to absenteeism, illness, unemployment, and consequent loss of earnings among addicted workers.

In the criminal justice system, the proportion of police salaries and legal, court, and correctional institution costs devoted to drug-related crime and addict offenders is estimated at $620 million.

Property losses make up the largest single cost category. Addicts who steal to get money to buy heroin almost invariably dispose of the stolen property through "fences," who pay them, at most, one-third of the property's value. Thus an addict who spends $50 a day on heroin must steal $150 worth of goods to pay for a single day's dosage. The annual total, a cost which comes directly out of someone else's pocketbook: $6.3 billion.

Treatment and rehabilitation programs, drug traffic control, and Government and private efforts in drug abuse prevention and education cost approximately $1.1 billion each year.

The financial burden imposed by drug abuse on welfare, insurance, and public health services still cannot be measured.

Nor does an annual social cost in dollars reflect the tragic expense in human suffering which can be attributed to addiction: men and women who are captives of a drug and outcasts in society, their families disrupted and often permanently scarred, and their communities troubled by a disease that strikes as brutally at the spirit as it does at the purse.

Through its nationwide research, training, treatment and education programs, the National institute on drug abuse, a part of the Alcohol, drug abuse, and mental health administration, is seeking to develop and put to work new knowledge about addiction and drug abuse and how to prevent them, and to make treatment services available to those persons who have drug problems so that both the human and economic costs can be reduced.

Information on varied aspects of drug abuse may be obtained by writing to the National clearinghouse for drug abuse information, box 1908, Rockville, Md. 20850 or contact the Northwestern Mental health center, Crookston at 281-3940.

NEWEST ADDITION to the Pennington pioneer village in Thief River Falls will be the Asphult Lutheran church, now being placed on location after being moved here from east of Oklee. Moving is being done by Leonard Thompson of Karlstad for the Pennington county historical society. This photo was taken as the church moved along SAR 3 east of St. Hilaire. At the direction of the state highway department, it was moved from St. Hilaire on highway 32 after 1 a.m. today.

SWCD Meeting Adopts Four Resolutions

Proper land use and more intensive efforts to control soil erosion were among the primary concerns of the nearly 300 persons who attended the 39th annual convention of the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts at Marshall last week.

Resolutions passed by the convention included:

—A request that the Minnesota legislature call upon the experience and technical knowledge of the state's 92 soil and water conservation districts in planning land use policies for the state. The districts would like to be consulted before any comprehensive land use legislation is passed.

—Encouragement of state legislation and financial support to accelerate the soil survey of Minnesota.

—Support of state legislation which would give soil and water conservation districts authority in defining the state's public waters and which would compensate landowners for their wetlands which are declared public waters.

—Encouragement of legislation whereby the state would finance half of the local costs of controlling erosion and sedimentation in areas where it would have public benefit. Such funding was available from the state during the last biennium.

Soil and water conservation districts are organized under state law to direct conservation work within their boundaries. In cooperation with the soil conservation service and other agencies, the districts assist landowners to manage their land and conserve their resources.

Propose New Driver License Regulations

A public hearing concerning the adoption of standardized rules which will govern the administration of driver licensing laws will be held at 1 p.m. on December 16 in Room B9A, Highway building, St. Paul.

According to Kenneth Dirkzwager, director of driver licensing, the proposed regulations will serve to formalize standard operating procedures now in use by driver license evaluators. Adopting these procedures in regulation form will insure that actions applied to drivers convicted of violations will be uniform throughout the state and will apply equally to all such drivers.

Among the actions to be established as regulation would be the following:

—Conviction for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs would draw varying consequences depending on past offenses and their frequency. A second offense in four years, for example, would dictate a minimum 90-day revocation of a person's driver license. A third offense in three years would net a minimum one year revocation and further denial of driving privileges until the person convicted satisfactorily completes an alcohol rehabilitation program.

—Any conviction for a driving under the influence charge which involves "grievous bodily injury" or the death of any person would call for an additional 60-day revocation.

—Convictions for "alcohol-related" offenses—those in which there is evidence that the driver had been drinking—will also receive varying standardized actions under the proposed regulations. Two "alcohol-related" convictions in a period of three years, for example, would net the offender a 90-day suspension of his driving privileges. Prior convictions and frequency of arrest again will dictate varying measures including license suspension for up to one year as well as the requirement that an alcohol rehabilitation program be completed.

—A person convicted of non-compliance with Minnesota's No-Fault insurance act (requiring insurance coverage for vehicles operated in the state), would have his license revoked for not less than 30 days on the first offense. A second offense would draw a minimum 60-day revocation. A third offense would dictate a minimum six-month revocation, and fourth and subsequent convictions would result in one year revocations.

Where no conviction for the insurance offense is recorded but evidence indicates that a person has committed a violation of the No-Fault insurance act, driving privileges can be suspended rather than revoked for the same periods dictated for convictions.

—Habitual violators will be subject to resultant consequences relating to the number of convictions accumulated during set periods. For example, two convictions for violations relating to licensing, ownership or operation of a vehicle within a year may result in the suspension of the driver's license for not less than 30 days. Three offenses within a year may dictate suspension for not less than 60 days. Five separate offenses on five separate occasions within a year may result in a one-year suspension—as would eight or more offenses within a five-year period.

The proposed regulations also include driver license actions relative to juvenile offenders, persons involved in auto theft, the commission of a felony in which a vehicle is used, involvement in fatal collisions in which criminal negligence is proven and leaving the scene of an accident. Set procedures are also established for driving after revocation, suspension or cancellation of the driver's license as well as for various violations such as false application for a license, allowing a license to be used by another person, not having a license in possession and violation of license restrictions.

Complete copies of the proposed rules are available and may be obtained by writing to the Department of public safety, 210A highway bldg., St. Paul, 55155. Statements or written briefs may be submitted concerning this matter without appearing at the hearing.

1975 Federal Income Tax Break Coming

Everyone who pays federal income tax this year has at least one tax break coming. And it doesn't matter whether the taxpayer files a long Form 1040, or short Form 1040A, or how much the taxpayer earns.

The break is the personal exemption tax credit. Effective for only 1975, the credit amounts to $30 for each regular exemption to which the taxpayer is entitled. However, individuals who claim additional exemptions because they are blind or are 65 years old or over, may only claim one $30 credit for themselves.

How does the credit work? Take a family with three children, for instance, Mr. and Mrs. Brown. They file a joint return. When completing their return, the Browns will count two exemptions for themselves, and one for each of their children, for a total of five exemptions. They will multiply the $30 credit per exemption by five to come up with the $150 total credit that they'll write on the front of their tax return and subtract from their tax.

The new credit does not affect the $750 allowed for each exemption when figuring taxable income. For example, the Browns will still multiply the $750 by five and subtract $3,750 from their income.

There's information on the personal exemption tax credit in the instructions for both the 1040 and 1040A tax packages.

Taxpayers who have questions about the personal exemption tax credit or other tax matters can visit local IRS offices or call toll free 800-652-9062.

Copies of free IRS publications may be obtained by using the convenient order blank contained in your tax package.

Slow down and live.

Today's Drug Abuse Costs U.S. Billions

Though few people in this area have ever met a heroin addict, most know that it costs a goodly sum to maintain a "habit." But how many know that narcotic addiction and other drug abuse cost American society $10 billion each year?

That is a conservative estimate of the annual cost of drug abuse to the nation arrived at by the Special action office for drug abuse prevention, in the executive office of the President.

Health costs, including emergency room and general hospital care for drug users, account for almost $200 million.

Productivity losses of $1.5 billion are attributed to absenteeism, illness, unemployment, and consequent loss of earnings among addicted workers.

In the criminal justice system, the proportion of police salaries and legal, court, and correctional institution costs devoted to drug-related crime and addict offenders is estimated at $620 million.

Property losses make up the largest single cost category. Addicts who steal to get money to buy heroin almost invariably dispose of the stolen property through "fences," who pay them, at most, one-third of the property's value. Thus an addict who spends $50 a day on heroin must steal $150 worth of goods to pay for a single day's dosage. The annual total, a cost which comes directly out of someone else's pocketbook: $6.3 billion.

Treatment and rehabilitation programs, drug traffic control, and Government and private efforts in drug abuse prevention and education cost approximately $1.1 billion each year.

The financial burden imposed by drug abuse on welfare, insurance, and public health services still cannot be measured.

Nor does an annual social cost in dollars reflect the tragic expense in human suffering which can be attributed to addiction: men and women who are captives of a drug and outcasts in society, their families disrupted and often permanently scarred, and their communities troubled by a disease that strikes as brutally at the spirit as it does at the purse.

Through its nationwide research, training, treatment and education programs, the National institute on drug abuse, a part of the Alcohol, drug abuse, and mental health administration, is seeking to develop and put to work new knowledge about addiction and drug abuse and how to prevent them, and to make treatment services available to those persons who have drug problems so that both the human and economic costs can be reduced.

Information on varied aspects of drug abuse may be obtained by writing to the National clearinghouse for drug abuse information, box 1908, Rockville, Md. 20850 or contact the Northwestern Mental health center, Crookston at 281-3940.

ALL-AMERICAN DESSERTS

If Americans were asked to pick their favorite course at dinner, dessert would probably win first place—especially if the children could vote.

The early American settlers also loved desserts and devised some interesting concoctions reflecting their various ethnic backgrounds and existing conditions in the New World.

Strawberries grew wild in American soil and the first batch of the season frequently was used to make strawberry shortcake, the most classic of American desserts. Our ancestors would spoon them, crushed and sugared, onto warm biscuits that had been broken open, buttered and closed again. Then they would pour thick cream over the shortcake to soak into the biscuit and mingle with the butter and strawberry juice.

Boston cream pie is another traditional American dessert. It is a plain cake in glamorous dress, lavished with a rich pudding filling and luscious chocolate frosting. According to legend, this cake that is called a pie originated at Boston's famous Parker House Restaurant.

Shown here are updated versions of these traditional desserts using another All-American favorite—Planters Cocktail Peanuts. Peanut Strawberry Shortcake and Boston Cream Pie with Peanuts are sure to please you and your fellow Americans when served for dessert.

PEANUT STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup coarsely chopped Planters Cocktail Peanuts
Margarine
4 shortcake biscuits, warmed and split
Sweetened whipped cream
Chopped Planters Cocktail Peanuts

Combine strawberries and sugar. Let set 1 hour, stirring once or twice. Stir in 1/2 cup Planters Cocktail Peanuts.

Lightly spread margarine on each biscuit half. Spoon about 1/4 cup strawberry mixture onto bottom half of each biscuit. Replace tops of biscuits. Top each with about 1/4 cup strawberry mixture. Garnish with whipped cream and chopped Planters Cocktail Peanuts. Makes 4 servings.

BOSTON CREAM PIE WITH PEANUTS

3/4 cup cold milk
1/2 cup heavy cream
1 package instant banana cream pudding
1/4 cup finely chopped Planters Cocktail Peanuts
1 (9-inch) cake layer, baked, cooled and split
2 tablespoons margarine
1 square (1-ounce) unsweetened chocolate
2/3 cup unsifted confectioner's sugar
2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon boiling water
Chopped Planters Cocktail Peanuts

Pour milk and heavy cream into mixing bowl. Add pudding and slowly beat with egg beater for 2 minutes. Mix in 1/4 cup finely chopped Planters Cocktail Peanuts.

Place bottom half of cake layer on serving dish; top with banana-nut filling. Let set 5 minutes, then top with remaining half of layer.

Melt together margarine and unsweetened chocolate. Stir in confectioner's sugar and boiling water. Beat well until blended. Pour over cake. Garnish top with chopped peanuts. Chill at least 1 hour before serving. Makes one 9-inch cake.

Viking Covenant Ladies Aid Christmas Party

The Viking Covenant ladies aid held their annual Christmas party Sunday evening, December 7th at the church. The program was held in the church sanctuary, which was lighted by the decorated Christmas tree and candles. Mrs. Halward Anderson, chairwoman of the ladies aid extended welcome to all and led the audience in the singing of "Hark The Harold Angels Sing". The program was then turned over to the chairman of the church, Clarence Tangquist and the men of the church gave the following program: six-year-old Jason Tangquist sang as a solo "When I was But a Child What Christmas Meant to Me." He was accompanied on the guitar by Diane Anderson. The Christmas story was read as scripture by Halward Anderson who also led in prayer. David Waterworth sang as a solo "Let There Be Peace On Earth." with Ann Hanson accompanying him on the piano. A trumpet duet was rendered by Randy Skjerven and Jon Hanson playing "Silent Night" with Steven Hjelle at the piano followed by a duet by Virgil Hjelle and son Steven who sang "Star of the East" accompanied by Mrs. Virgil Hjelle. A Christmas reading was given by Tom Price. Danny Olson sang as a solo, "The Babe in the Manger". Rev. Bruce Kallenberg, pastor of the church, brought a Christmas message. Steven Hjelle and David Waterworth sang as a duet "Oh Holy Night" with Ann Hanson at the piano. The offering which was taken will be sent to the Wisconsin rural missions. Closing remarks were made by Mrs. Halward Anderson and the table grace was sung by the audience.

A lovely Christmas luncheon was served in the lower auditorium which was furnished by the ladies of the church and served by the young men. Seated at the head of the beautiful decorated table was Mrs. Bruce Kallenberg who poured. Randy Skjerven served the punch. The usual exchange of Christmas cards concluded the evening's festivities.

Mrs. Allan Johnson left for her home in Minneapolis Thursday after being a house guest at the home of her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Malberg for a few days.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS
WHO'S DOING WHAT • WHERE THEY ARE

Land Where Business Is Ten Times As Good

During the past 25 years, Mexico's gross national product (GNP) has increased more than 10 times. From 5 billion dollars in 1950, the GNP rose to 65 billion dollars in 1975, giving Mexico the 18th largest GNP in the world.

This data is from a study released by Bank of America showing that Mexico has achieved an economic growth equalled by few nations in the past 25 years. Despite problems brought on by "a turbulent world economic situation," Mexico has sustained an annual average growth rate of approximately 7%, the report stated.

As an example of the country's economic transformation, in 1950 the manufacturing industry represented 17% of the GNP, followed by agriculture with 15%. By 1974 industry contributed 23% of the GNP while agriculture had declined to 6%.

"These figures explain the reason for the rapid economic growth of Mexico during the past 25 years," the study stated, adding that in 1974, 62% of the country's exports consisted of manufactured products as compared with only 13.5% a quarter of a century ago.

The study predicted that Mexico will continue its sustained industrial growth rate because of the expansion and diversification programs now underway in the industrial sectors.

The study concluded: "These could result in doubling industrial output before the end of 1980."

A GOOD NEIGHBOR YOU CAN ASK ABOUT IRA.

What is IRA?

- IRA is an individual retirement account now allowed by the Internal Revenue Service.
- It allows you to deposit money into IRA and receive a tax deduction.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ABOUT IRA

Who Is Eligible?
Everyone who does not have a pension plan.

How Much Can I Deposit?
You can save up to $1,500 or 15% of your earned income, whichever is less, each year. You can save weekly, monthly, or yearly. There is still time to save in 1975 so you can take your tax deductions!

When Can I Take My IRA Retirement?
At age 59½ you can start receiving retirement payments. You MUST start when you reach age 70½.

Are My IRA Retirement Payments Taxable?
Yes, your IRA retirement payment is included in your ordinary income and taxed at the time you receive it. At that time, you will probably be in a lower tax bracket and thus achieve greater savings.

How About the Annual Interest?
The annual interest is not taxed until withdrawn.

What If I Need The Money?
You can withdraw if necessary, but then your account will be taxed as ordinary income. Also, the total amount is subject to a 10% penalty tax.

Can I Borrow Against My IRA?
No. This action is treated the same as an early withdrawal and your money is subject to the same taxation.

What Do I Do To Start My IRA?
We have people ready to serve you right now. They can answer any questions, and help you set up your retirement program.

A good neighbor you can bank on.

STRANDQUIST

Strandquist Senior Citizens

It was a mild day Dec. 4 when the Senior citizens held their weekly get together at the Legion. There were 22 registering that day. Visitors were Mrs. Rogus and Mrs. Laurence Kuznia of Stephen, Roger Iverson, Anne Bernhardsen, Mrs. Bonita Kozmierczak, Jaunity, and Jeffrey, Joyce Storeby, Marlene Sorenson, Caroline Hohn, Kevin Nelson, Jennifer Sherlock and Marion Doigre.

Making a quilt top was the big project for the day. A mattress for a doll crib was completed. Some clothes hangers were covered with crocheted covers, a new project was started. Inga brought a childs ball as a sample, and pieces were cut to sew together to make similiar balls. To prove the kids go for them little Jeff Kozmierczak enjoyed playing with the sample ball for awhile.

Polly and Ella put up the Christmas tree and with some help from our Stephen visitors the tree was soon trimmed. So now its beginning to look a lot like Christmas at our center.

Mildred read the treasurers report for November. Ella gave a door prize that Mildred won and Oscar Johnson won the prize Irene gave.

We signed and sent off two get well cards. One to Ed Carlson who is hospitalized at Karlstad and one to Clarence Borsvold who is at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.

Ella Thun was hostess.

Irene reporting

Little Chad Brekke is home again after spending a few days at Karlstad hospital.

IT'S FOR YOU

When someone says, "It's for you," our minds begin to buzz with questions. Who is it? What do they want? Good News? Bad News? Work? Pleasure?

It's for you! Commanding words that summon our immediate attention. And those words apply as well to the Church as they do to a telephone call.

The Church is for you! Its services of worship, its program of religious education, its comforting ministration in time of spiritual crisis . . . all for you!

And the Church has a vital message — good news for a discouraged world. It has a glorious work before it — a happy fellowship for men, women and children of noble purpose.

The Church deserves your support. It's for you!

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

At first glance, you may be opposed to President Ford's desire to eliminate or weaken government regulation of business.

After all, opinion polls show that many people favor more government regulation rather than less.

So, what is he talking about? First of all, he is not talking about completely doing away with all government control over business. Obviously, it is necessary for government to insure that our economy operates in some kind of orderly fashion. If there were no rules at all, there would be anarchy and, of course, our system would collapse. Even our Constitution specifies that government shall have the duty to "regulate commerce".

The real problem is that our regulatory system has grown like Topsy over the years without too much relationship to our economy.

For example, intricate regulatory machinery was set up for the railroads, which might have been needed in the days of the "robber barons." Many of the restrictions written then no longer make any sense. President Ford wants to reform these regulations which, he says, will result in great savings for consumers and also save about 70,000 barrels of oil each day.

He also wants to reform the rules for airlines and truckers. In trucking, for example, there are rules that sometimes require that trucks go empty or take long detours to places where they have no pickups or deliveries.

You have recently seen a rash of lower fares on the airlines which have won government approval but isn't it interesting that they and some other industries, must get federal approval to charge you less?

You, as a consumer, pay for every bit of government regulation of business. The Ford Administration calculates that it costs each family around $2,000 a year. He also estimates that fair trade laws costs consumers $2 billion a year.

And all the government regulation, of course, is accompanied by a vast amount of paperwork. As of last June, the number of federal forms which business must fill out totaled 5,146 separate types. Obviously, it takes a lot of time and money for business to do that work. The money has to come from the prices it charges you.

At the same time, government keeps putting in new regulations. There is no doubt that some of them are needed, but there is no doubt either that some of them cost more than they are worth. Congress recognized one instance of this last year when it did away with the law requiring that automobiles couldn't be started unless the seatbelts were fastened. If you bought a car equipped with that mechanism, you paid for it.

Sure, big government may need to watch over us to some extent. But as President Ford has commented, "The government big enough to give us everything we want is a government big enough to take from us everything we have".

Persuasion Is Affected By Many Factors

by Maureen Smith
U of M Writer

Let's say you have a great idea, but you need to convince the people you work with to put it into action. When you meet to discuss it with your two colleagues, where should you sit?

You're a member of a group trying to solve a problem. One of the people in the group has a tendency to talk too much and say too little. How do you shut him up without hurting his feelings?

You're giving a talk in front of some people, but no one seems to be listening. What can you do to get people to join in? Move the chairs around?

Some of the answers may seem easy. Some may not. All are examples that Louis Mahigel uses when he talks about nonverbal communication in an academic setting.

Mahigel is executive director of the University of Minnesota Law school's legal advocacy project, a program to train paralegals to represent prisoners at disciplinary hearings within penal institutions.

His Ph. D. is in communication, and he uses this background both in his university job and in seminars and advice he offers on such nonverbal elements of communication as context (where a meeting is held), furniture and seating arrangements, kinesics (body motion as communication), proxemics (space or distance as a form of communication) and dress.

If two people are getting together to discuss a problem, Mahigel said, the place they meet may determine the resolution of the problem. Certain settings give a psychological advantage to one participant or the other.

"Let's say I'm the chairman of a department and another chairman and I share a common problem. The other person wants to solve the problem one way and I want to solve it another way," he said.

"If I invite the other person to come to my office, the problem will probably be resolved in my favor. This is my territory. An analagous situation is if I invite you to my home. As a guest, you will defer."

But maybe the other chairman is wise to the territorial advantages of meeting in one's own office and will decline such an invitation. Then, Mahigel said, "I can invite the other person to lunch. The restaurant that I choose is now crucial."

The advantage will go to the person who is familiar with the restaurant and is greeted by the host or hostess. A neutral place for a meeting might be a conference room, or a restaurant that is well-known to both parties.

The purpose of a meeting is always important in choosing the place, he said. "There are times when you wouldn't want a person to come into your office." An advantage of going to the other person's office is that "you can control when you leave." If the purpose is to collect information and not take too much time, a visit to the other person's office might be best. "There are ways of terminating an interview even in your own office, but you risk offending the person," Mahigel said.

Where people sit in a meeting can make a lot of difference, according to Mahigel. "If we want to maximize interaction, the best way to arrange the chairs would be in a circle, with all chairs the same size."

Arrangement of chairs also can help a group leader handle overtalkers and undertalkers, Mahigel said. In a circle, the overtalkers should be placed to the leader's immediate left and right. In a classroom with desks arranged in straight rows, the teacher should ask an overtalker to sit in one of the end seats in the front row.

Why? Because it is in these spots that the overtalkers will least often be in the leader's direct line of vision. And avoiding eye contact is one of the most effective ways of discouraging someone from speaking, Mahigel said.

In a small meeting, Mahigel said, avoiding eye contact will keep the overtalkers quiet for the first few minutes. "But after four or five minutes, one of the overtalkers will speak up."

With the overtalkers seated to the leader's immediate left and right, the leader can simply reach out and touch the person who is talking. "A touch will stop just about anyone. Once you stop an overtalker, you should quickly summarize whatever it is the overtalker has been saying. Usually it will take five or six seconds to summarize what's taken an overtalker five or six minutes to say."

A sample summary: "I think what you're saying is that you totally disagree with the procedural change that was introduced in the department last week. Is that right?"

A question put to an overtlaker, Mahigel said, should be close-ended—the kind that almost demands a yes or no response. An undertalker can then be drawn into the discussion with an open-ended question, for example: "How do you feel about that?"

A confirmed undertalker might still answer with a close-ended response: "Fine." Then a second open-ended auestion might be needed: "What exactly is it that you like about that?"

What about the person who wants to sell an idea to two colleagues? Mahigel recommends that the persuader arrange a meeting at a rectangular table and choose the head of the table for himself or herself. The two "persuadees" should be placed side by side, he said.

The head of the table is the position of authority. But the persuader will lose some of the advantage if one persuadee is on his left and the other on his right. As he talks to one, he will lose eye contact with the other. And the two persuadees sitting across from each other will be free to send eye signals back and forth.

Someone adept at reading nonverbal cues can make all kinds of discoveries. Mahigel has even used his knowledge to pick out undercover agents posing as college students.

Recently, Mahigel noticed two young men in typical student garb. He took a second look and decided they were law enforcement officers. On checking, he said, "I found out they were narcs."

What was the giveaway? They were standing with legs apart and arms folded in front of their chests—a typical law enforcement stance.

There's a good reason that law enforcement officers fold their arms over their chests, Mahigel said. When they're in uniform, the equipment on their belts keeps them from putting their hands in their pockets and makes it uncomfortable for them to have their hands at their sides. Habits formed while in uniform continue when the officers are in civilian clothes.

Like those officers, we all send out signals whether we want to or not. Mahigel's aim is to teach more people to use nonverbal cues to their own advantage.

Deborah Raffin thinks she has found true love with David Janssen, a world-famous novelist who hides a shameful secret, in "Jacqueline Susann's Once Is Not Enough." The film stars Kirk Douglas, Alexis Smith, George Hamilton, Melina Mercouri, Gary Conway and Brenda Vaccaro. The music is by Henry Mancini. Opens Sun. Dec. 14 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

Native Americans Join Bicentennial

"Why should I participate in your Bicentennial? What have my people got to celebrate?"

These are two questions which have often been asked in the past of John W. Warner, administrator of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA). They were most recently repeated from many in an audience of over 1,200 in Portland, Ore., when Warner addressed the annual Congress of American Indians.

Warner in recent months has been able to answer those questions more and more to the satisfaction of native American critics of the Bicentennial. He has personally visited several tribal leaders and has been the guest of six Indian nations.

Warner tells native Americans, "The Bicentennial belongs equally to each and every American. It provides a unique opportunity for the first Americans to draw national attention to their contributions to the growth and progress of the United States. Most importantly, it is a time to look ahead; to profit from mistakes made in the past and work to improve the quality of life of all native Americans in the years ahead."

Responding to Warner's invitation, 26 Indian tribes and nations to date have joined the ARBA sponsored national Bicentennial communities program which requires active planning and participation in the Bicentennial.

Native Americans are represented on the official advisory council, which guides Warner in ethnic, racial and native American Bicentennial efforts. They are also represented on the independent Bicentennial ethnic-racial council which is working with the ARBA to explore ways and means to stimulate and gain support for specific projects and programs around the country.

The ARBA has established an office of native American programs which is located in Denver to be more accessible to the Indian tribes and reservations of the West.

Headed by Wayne Chattin, a Blackfeet Indian, the year-old office has concentrated on developing contracts with tribal leaders to make them aware of the office's availability and functions. Chattin is assisted by Emma Lee, a Sioux.

One of its main concerns is to work with native American groups in seeking funding for Bicentennial activities, particularly where federal grant money is involved.

Funding assistance for native American Bicentennial projects is being made available through several grant programs initiated by the ARBA.

Fifty-four of the 98 recently announced job-impact grants went to projects planned by Indian communities with both appropriated and non-appropriated grant funds provided by the ARBA, through its primary grant program.

A recent report compiled by the Denver office reveals the wide variety of Bicentennial projects and programs being carried out by participating nations and tribes.

A major thrust of the programs seems to be toward promoting better communications among tribes and generally seeking better understanding with others.

On many reservations, cultural Heritage houses are being planned to preserve this native history through artifacts, oral histories, exhibits, films and so on.

Pow-wows have traditionally served as a forum to meet and discuss issues and they will be abundant during the Bicentennial.

The Crow Indian reservation in Montana will host a national gathering of tribes for a week-long pow-wow in 1976 to improve inter-tribal understanding and communications among the 800,000 American Indians in the United States.

The Rocky Boy Indian reservation elementary school in Montana is sponsoring Bicentennial acitivities which include displays of bi-cultural books, games, stories, "great words," and a dictionary of Crow Words.

The Seminole nation of Oklahoma is planning a museum and library to house priceless objects of cultural heritage of their ancestors, written materials and recordings of the language, legends and folk tales of Seminole history.

The Navajo nation in Window Rock, Ariz., is finishing a heritage center complex which will house artifacts, films and exhibitions highlighting the native culture and tradition of the Navajo people.

The Mid-American All Indian center in Wichita, Kans., will house a variety of activities focusing on the traditional culture and contemporary life style of the Native American. Visitors will learn about Indian dwellings, the democratic governing process of America's first settlers, Indian poetry and Native American foods.

In Alaska, the Ilingit Haida council is renovating a tribal and community house and the Anse Tribal council is carving two 30-foot totem poles.

Non-Indian groups are also making special Bicentennial efforts to promote mutual understanding and appreciation.

The Smithsonian Institution is preparing a 20-volume set summarizing the prehistory, history and changing cultures of all Indian groups north of Mexico, which will become the standard reference on North American Indian history and anthropology.

The National Park service has several projects relating to Indian heritage and culture. An 80-frame filmstrip, "American Indian Removal," will depict the movement from eastern states to western reservations. "Indian Pride on the Move" is a traveling Indian arts exhibit which will begin touring the country in early 1976.

A documentary film of Indian archaeological, historical and cultural material is being produced in the state of Washington and will be available through libraries, schools and public presentations.

In Shawnee Mission, Kans., an instructional television series on the state will include a segment entitled "The Indian Tribes of the State of Kansas."

A major exhibition, "2,000 Years of American Indian Art," comprised of 600-700 art objects, will open at the Hayward Gallery in London next October. The exhibition is being presented in cooperation with the Arts council of Great Britain.

Present and future problems, in lifestyle and social needs, are also major considerations in Native American Bicentennial programs and projects.

The Mid-America All Indian center in Wichita will also serve as an urban social center providing medical services, clothing, food and shelter.

Denver is building a complex for individuals and families from reservations who seek to make a life in that city's urban community.

In Arizona, the Gila River Indian community is developing a fairground and park.

In California, the Mission Band of Indians of Campo community is building a gymnasium, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe, a nursing home. In Michigan the Saginaw Chippewa tribe is improving a baseball diamond and campgrounds.

And at the Wind River Indian Reservation in Wyoming, the Bicentennial program includes a water and sewer project.

These programs are illustrative of Native American participation in the Bicentennial under two of the three nationwide themes established by the ARBA: Heritage '76 and Horizons '76.

Festivals and rodeos will abound as many tribes and nations join their fellow Americans in celebrating the traditions of our people, our diversity, the vitality of our culture, our hospitality and the American scene under the Festival USA theme.

When he addressed the Congress of American Indians in Portland, Ore., Warner also expressed his belief that the Bicentennial is proving to be a positive force in the life of the Indian people and is beginning to open effective channels of communications for better understanding.

Stressing, however, that much more could be done, he said: "I would hope that Native Americans who so far have elected not to participate in the Bicentennial commemoration will realize that much good is being accomplished by this Bicentennial effort. We need their participation."

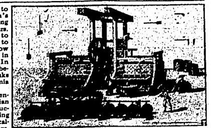
THEN and NOW!



DOUBLE-ACTION WINE PRESS—Invented by mechanical-minded Abbe Legros in the 13th century, it can be worked by one man, crushing grapes and siphoning juice into barrels.

Wine-making seems to have been one of man's earliest occupations, going back at least 12,000 years. European peasants used to jump into vats of grapes to press out the juice, but now most grapes are crushed in mechanical presses. In America, wine-making began when Franciscan monks planted grapes in California around 1769.

Little more than a century later, in 1881, Italian Swiss Colony began producing wines to satisfy changing consumer tastes. Historically, the winery has been rewarded with high honors for its wines in international competitions and resounding praise from consumers in the marketplace.

With this in mind, the Colony announces the introduction of a new line of varietal (named after grapes) wines—Chenin Blanc, French Colombard, Barbera, Ruby Cabernet and the first popularly priced magnum of Cabernet Sauvignon to be offered to the American wine consumer.

Available in both fifths and magnums, the new wines will be bottled in the Colony's traditional screw cap containers in keeping with the Colony's traditional emphasis on consumer value.

"Our intent," says John A. Powers, president and chief executive officer, "is to make the best of California's new varietal plantings available at the most economical price possible. Our Cabernet Sauvignon, for instance, will sell for approximately $2.99 for the magnum (the equivalent of two standard fifths), a price far below any other Cabernet on the market. Fifths will sell for about $1.69."

The Colony Cabernet Sauvignon, describes winemaker Bob Rife, is produced predominantly from Cabernet Sauvignon grapes, principally from the North Coast Counties of California (the prime Cabernet wine growing area of the state).

"The Cabernet Sauvignon which we are offering under the Colony label," says Rife, "is the result of months of trial blending by our winemaking team. Our goal with Cabernet, as with the other varietals, was to make the best possible wine at a reasonable price to the consumer."

"Too often," Powers says, "wineries wait too long to pass along the advantages of increased plantings and large harvests to the consumer. We all know that the last two years have produced extremely large vintages in California and the 1975 crush is expected to be even larger."

Because all Cabernet Sauvignon wines need some aging prior to bottling, the first year's availability will be restricted until proper aging can be obtained for the more recent wines. However, it is expected that the quantities of the Barbera, Ruby Cabernet, French Colombard and Chenin Blanc will be sufficient because of large base plantings and relatively quick maturation of wines made from these grapes.

The addition of the five new Colony varietal wines will make seven in the line, Zinfandel and Grenache Rose have been popular Italian Swiss Colony wines for decades.

Italian Swiss Colony also produces full lines of generic (named after European districts) table and dessert wines. All are available nationally in fifths, half gallons and gallons.

GOOD NEWS FOR WINE LOVERS—New line of varietal wines offered to consumer at economical prices.

Update On Monopoly

There is a bit of ironic truth in this editorial which we saw in a recent issue of the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock:

Monopoly may still be the world's largest-selling game, but it is out of date.

Children used to learn the complexities of high finance by playing Monopoly, but today some kids get an annual allowance larger than the $1,500 every player receives from the bank to start the game. Inflation has made the once-huge sums exchanged in the course of a game seem like pocket money. A good bicycle costs more than the Reading Railroad. The total value of all the property on the board wouldn't be enough to keep you off welfare.

Thus, the game needs some realistic revision. Paying income tax is far too easy; all you have to do is pay 10 per cent or $200. A player landing on Income Tax should be given a thick complicated form to fill out and not be allowed to move until he does so. For each turn he misses he should have to pay a big fine for late payment.

Anyone dumb enough to buy 1 of the 4 railroads should automatically lose the game. It's common knowledge that all railroads are bankrupt and can only lose money for their owners.

The Electric Company and Water Works should be two of the most lucrative investments a player can make. The owners should have the option of doubling the rates three times during a game, whenever they feel it will be of most benefit to them.

Landing on Go To Jail should not mean that you have to sit idly by in the slammer and then return to Go. There should be a new pile of cards to choose from. One card could allow a player to remain free on bail while he awaits trial, giving him five or 10 more turns around the board. Another would allow him to plead guilty to a lesser charge and pay a modest fine. A third could have the charges against him dismissed altogether because of improper procedures, and so forth.

A player should be allowed to go bankrupt at least once and then reenter the game with all his debts wiped out.

Pennsylvania Avenue should be the hottest property on the board. Any player buying it should be allowed to take by eminent domain property on each of the other three sides, even if they are already owned— at list price.

All these changes may make Monopoly a bit more complicated but life isn't so simple either, and that's the biggest game of all.

State Should Pay

Following editorial is from the Glenwood Tribune:

To no one's surprise, Minnesota's once healthy unemployment compensation fund has gone "in the red" due to increased unemployment, and the action of the last legislature in increasing jobless benefits from a maximum of $85 per week to $116.

At the first of the year, the unemployment compensation fund was $95 million. Today, there is a balance of only $16.1 million and that includes an emergency loan of $24 million from the federal government.

The unemployment compensation fund is paid solely by the employer, and currently amounts to a maximum of $55.80 per employee.

Emmet J. Cushing, the commissioner of Employment Services in the state, has come up with a "simple" solution to solve the problem . . . sock it to the businesses of the state.

Cushing plans to increase the yearly contributions from $100 million a year to $215 million, or well over double. Cushing's proposal would hike that minimum contribution per employee from $55.80 to a whopping $149.60.

We think the increase is prohibitive, and discriminatory against the business community of the state, which is already hit harder by taxes than businesses in the other 49 states.

No one denies that the fund must be increased, but the burden of that sizeable an increase shouldn't be foisted on one segment of the economy. Rather, the burden should be shared by the entire state.

In the long range, an increase of this size levied strictly on business would deter many employers from hiring additional people since if those people had to be released from their jobs for one reason or another, their experience rating would climb. The total contribution would increase not two times but perhaps three and four times. It would cause most employers to think twice before adding any more employees.

We deplore the "sock business" attitude of many government officials, including Cushing. If the persecution of the business community continues at its present pace, many of them will be forced out of business, and the jobless benefits due their employees will be shifted to the few that remain, necessitating a still further rate hike.

The fair solution to the dilemna is to have the state as a whole share the burden with business. Minnesota has lost too many businesses to other states because of high taxation. This would be just another nail in the coffin.

Contagious Divorce?

Following editorial appeared some time ago in the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock:

If you want to stay married, keep away from couples who are quarreling and breaking up, a prominent psychiatrist advises.

"Divorce is catching—it's as contagious as measles," Dr. Berthold Schwartz told the National Enquirer. "I've seen whole blocks of married couples fall victim to divorce fever."

"It works on the domino principle. One bad marriage knocks down the not-so-bad marriage closest to it, and this effect continues down the line of friends until even those couples who thought they are pretty well suited find they're quarreling, unhappy and heading for their lawyers."

Dr. Schwartz, who is consultant to the Essex County Hospital Center in New Jersey and counsels married couples extensively explained why divorce fever can be caught so readily:

"Even the best of marriages have latent problems which can be stirred up ane distorted into major difficulties when they're exposed to a climate of others' marital unhappiness. In many cases I've witnessed, this has been the most important reason a marriage has failed. The couple got caught up in a fad called divorce."

How to avoid the contagion? Dr. Schwartz offered the following tips:

1. When married frnends start quarreling in your presence, refuse to take sides.

A wife finds it easy to take sides with another wife," Dr. Schwartz explained, "and a husband will often take up another husband's point of view. The first thing you know, another couple's quarrel becomes your own."

2. If a married friend asks your advice on a marital problem, decline tactfully.

It is too easy to identify with that friend and his problems, and start to focus on similar imperfections in your own marriage and life. The me-too' syndrome takes over."

3. Don't fall for the single-life-is-wonderful" propoganda put out by those recently divorced.

If single life were so marvelous for the divorced, why do three-fourths of all divorced men and two-thirds of all divorced women, remarry so quickly? It's because they're lonely, beset by guilts, and having problems with their children, their finances and their social lives. Meanwhile, because misery loves company, they'll pretend otherwise."

4. No matter how long you've been married, don't assume you're immune to divorce fever.

The longer you've been married, the more susceptible you might be to divorce if some of your close friends split up.

Those married 20 years or so are often beginning to wonder whether time is running out for them. Suddenly, divorce becomes an intriguing option.

The only real defense against divorce fever is to separate yourself physically and emotionally from couples who are having marital problems," Dr. Schwartz emphasized.

Borrowed Nonsense

A bride-to-be was showing a friend a list of guests to be invited to her wedding. After reading the names, the friend looked puzzled.

"Something the matter?" asked the bride-to-be?

"Well, said the friend, "it seems odd that you've only listed married couples."

"Oh, that was Billy's idea. I'm sure you'll agree it's clever—he says that if we invite only married couples, all the presents will be clear profit."

There was an old woman who lived in a shoe. She had so many children her welfare check came to $8,472.

A man and his wife visiting a posh resort hotel, phoned room service one night for a pack of cards and the bellhop made 52 trips.

Overheard: "She waited so long for her ship to come in, her pier collapsed."

Congress passed it –
The President signed it –

The new law providing for a tax deduction of up to $1,500.

Retirement plans, once considered luxuries, are now necessities. Recognizing this need, Congress passed the "Pension Reform Act." One of its provisions ends discrimination against 40 million Americans who, until now, were excluded from receiving special tax treatment while saving for their retirement.

If you are one of the estimated 40 million people qualified, you may contribute up to 15% of your compensation — to a maximum of $1,500 a year — and deduct this from your gross income on your IRS Tax Return.

Under this law you can reduce your income tax now, this year, and every year until retirement age, and increase your retirement income, for life if you choose.

We Pay Up To
IRA individual retirement accounts
7 1/2% INTEREST on your I.R.A. accounts, depending on the amount on deposit.

You must make your I.R.A. arrangements BEFORE Dec. 31, 1975, to qualify for 1975.

- Individual Retirement Accounts are tax deductible.
- Retirment Plan Earnings Accumulate Tax Free.
- Retirement Income is Taxed as Received, usually when you're in a lower tax bracket.

Franklin Boys' Sports Teams Into Seasons

Approximately 71 boys are involved in the Franklin middle school 1975-76 winter season interscholastic sports programs, it was revealed this week according to information supplied by Franklin athletic director Bob Jury.

Franklin offers wintertime interscholastic programs for boys in swimming, wrestling and basketball. There are 28 sixth, seventh and eighth grade swimmers; 21 sixth, seventh and eighth grade wrestlers; and 28 eighth grade basketball players.

There is also an intramural basketball program for boys in the sixth and seventh grades.

Season play has already started for all three teams. The swimmers have already met Fosston, the wrestlers have tangled with Greenbush and the basketball team has played both East Grand Forks and Roseau.

The rest of the swim team schedule includes 4:30 p.m. home meets Thurs., Jan. 8, against Bemidji; and Tues., Jan. 20, against International Falls. Road trips are planned Tues., Dec. 16, at Bemidji; Fri., Jan. 16, at Fosston; Thurs., Feb. 5, at Fosston; and Sat., Feb. 14, at Fergus Falls.

Remaining 4 p.m. home wrestling meets are scheduled Fri., Dec. 12, against Warren; Fri., Jan. 9, Warren; Tues., Jan. 13, Crookston; and Thurs., Jan. 22, Newfolden. Road matches are planned Tues., Dec. 16, at Newfolden; Thurs., Dec. 18, at Crookston; Mon., Jan. 26, at Greenbush; and Sat., Jan. 31, at East Grand Forks.

Home basketball games still on the agenda include Mon., Dec. 15, Bemidji, 4:30 p.m.; Sat., Jan. 10, Roseau, 1:30 p.m.; Tues., Jan. 27, Newfolden, 5:30 p.m. Thurs., Feb. 12, Crookston, 4 p.m.; and Thurs., Feb. 19, Warren, 5 p.m. Road games include Thurs., Dec. 18, at Crookston; Tues., Jan. 13, at East Grand Forks; Tues., Jan. 20, at Bemidji; Sat., Jan. 31, at Warren; and Mon., Feb. 9, at Newfolden.

New Face In Focus: Warm, Vibrant, Totally Feminine!

Hemlines may slip and slide but headlines are holding their own — making more exciting news than ever! Now that fashion's gone soft and sexy, even accessories have turned into face glamorizers — with exotic macrame necklaces, brilliant scarves to wrap heads, and saucy little berets. And make-up too, must trip to a whole new fashion lilt, say the Cover Girl Make-up experts. Goodbye to washed out complexions and fade away mouths. Today's muted colors and fluid fabrics provide a beautiful backdrop for the warm and vibrant face of fall. And the mouth is the feature in focus — warm, gleaming, alive with radiant color.

This fall the mouth shines a new way — thanks to Cover Girl's new shiny LipSlicks, six transparent tones of tawny color with the most marvelous sheer shine. You'll love the way LipSlicks look on your lips — the radiant color glides on sleekly and stays dewy-fresh and glowing for hours. And LipSlicks unique see-through formula is enriched with five protective moisturizers (even sesame oil!) to help guard lips against dryness, and keep them smooth and moist. For a fuller, rounder mouth, try this Cover Girl Make-up trick with your favorite LipSlick shade. Apply the color out to the corners of the upper lip. Now "cut off" corners of the lower lip. (This brings the mouth into sharper focus and helps to make it look even more alluring).

But the beauty of LipSlicks doesn't stop at the mouth. For an 'all day, all over glow apply Cover Girl LipSlick high on the cheekbones and blend, blend color to the temples, over the forehead and down the throat. Great Cheekshines!

Cover Girl's face of fall '75 starts with softly polished skin—seen through SuperSheer, the light little liquid foundation that evens out imperfections and adds the barest tint of beigy color without ever showing it's there.

Eyes speak softly, yet eloquently, outlined with the romantic candlelit shades of Cover Girl 9-Hour Eye Polish. Not just another eye shadow — it's a whole new and excitingly different kind of liquid eye color that clings. Any one of six gleamy shades serves as both shadow and liner — gives eyes a built in glow that always looks fresh-buffed. And yes, it lasts 9 hours (maybe more!) without-ever smudging, flaking or fading.

There's no doubt, fall's new softer fashions make your face your most important accessory — so make it fresh and glowing and prettier than ever with Cover Girl Make-up. You'll be glad you did!

QUICK CHOCOLATE COOKIES

Chocolate Toffee Crescent Bars was a prize winning recipe in a national baking contest. These confection-like bar cookies topped with caramel, nuts and chocolate will be a winner in your collection of favorite recipes, too. Equally good to serve to guests or as a family dessert, they are super-quick to make, because the flaky crust is refrigerated crescent roll dough.

CHOCOLATE TOFFEE CRESCENT BARS

8-oz. can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
2/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2/3 cup butter or margarine
1 to 1 1/2 cups nut halves or chopped nuts
6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces

Preheat oven to 375°. Separate crescent dough into two large rectangles. Place in ungreased 15 x 10-inch jelly roll pan. Gently press dough to cover bottom of pan; seal perforations. In small saucepan, combine brown sugar and butter; boil 1 minute. Pour evenly over dough. Sprinkle with nuts. Bake 14 to 18 minutes, until golden brown. Remove from oven; immediately sprinkle with chocolate pieces. Slightly swirl pieces as they melt, leaving some pieces partially melted or whole. (Do not spread evenly; leave a mottled appearance.) Cool; cut into 36 to 48 bars.

Scientist Says Nature Causes Air Pollution

Nature pollutes the air.

In some wilderness areas such as Voyageur's national park, ozone levels—for brief periods of time—are as high as those reached in the Twin Cities, says a Minnesota researcher, Sagar V. Krupa.

Ozone molecules—triple atoms of oxygen—form when certain chemicals, called terpenes, of evergreens are exposed to sunlight in the presence of nitrogen dioxide. Nitrogen dioxide is a natural product of what scientists call nature's "nitrification process."

"Ozone is generated over urban areas when sunlight feeds energy to certain chemical reactions", says University of Minnesota plant pathologist Krupa.

Ideal atmospheric concentrations for such photoreactions occur over the Twin Cities between roughly 2 and 7 p.m.

"For example, on March 16, 1975 over downtown St. Paul, ozone concentrations ranged between 0.09 to 0.10 parts per million at that time period."

The US environmental protection agency's primary and secondary air quality standards relate to average concentrations of a given pollutant throughout a given period of time. The primary standards pertain to human health. The secondary standards pertain to plant health.

For example, for living plants the national seconday standard for ozone in the air is 0.08 parts per million (average) per one hour once a year per locality.

Understanding interactions of natural and human-caused pollution remains a challenge of scientists.

"UM's Department of pant pathology," says Krupa, "has a monitoring program to evaluate air pollutant concentrations in remote areas which are being increasingly influenced by man, such as Lake Kabetogama in northern Minnesota where summer averages of ozone concentrations per hour have varied between 0.02 and 0.035 parts per million.

"But these concentrations are generally considered to be background levels.

"Sometimes ozone concentrations over a 20 minute period reach as high as 0.08 ppm," reports the UM scientist in the latest issue (volume 31, number 3) of Minnesota Science, magazine of the UM Agricultural experiment station.

Miss USA, One of the Christmas Seal People

Summer Bartholomew, Miss USA, uses Christmas Seals to decorate her holiday packages. For the first time, the 1975 Christmas Seals reproduce paintings by children from each state and territory. "Christmas Seal contributions help to protect the children of America from lung disease," says Summer. "It's a matter of life and breath."

Sulfur Dioxide Air Pollution Getting Worse

Sulfur dioxide is a growing air pollution problem, warns a University of Minnesota scientist.

Francis A. Wood, head of UM's Department of plant pathology, predicts that sulfur dioxide pollution of the air will be a problem as late as 2000 A.D.

"Between now and then the situation will definitely get worse," warns Wood. "This is expecially true of sources related to the generation of electricity."

Sulfur dioxide is the second most important atmospheric contaminant of living plants, says Sagar V. Krupa, another UM plant pathologist.

"For example, at certain locations southeast of the Twin Cities, the national secondary standard for sulfur dioxide was exceeded 100 per cent of the monitored time during 1973.

"There is little, if any, evidence of reduction of such pollution."

Usually the impact of sulfur dioxide on vegetation is local compared to ozone, the number one air pollutant enemy of plants, according to a report by Krupa, released this fall in "Minnesota Science," magazine of UM's Agricultural experiment station.

Sulfur dioxide damage to plants is generally restricted to about a 50 mile radius around the source, says the UM scientist.

Typical symptoms of injury include death of the leaf tissue between the veins in plants such as birch and big-leafed aster or a creeping death of the needles in conifers, says Krupa. The creeping death starts at the tips of needles and spreads downward.

"More recently," says the UM researcher, "there has been world concern about acid rain. Acid rain forms when sulfur dioxide in the air is converted to sulfuric acid. The acid falls, dissolved in rain.

"Of the new problems originating with the advent of modern pollution-control devices on automobiles, sulfuric acid mist is considered to be a threat to vegetation."

Plants sensitive to sulfur dioxide pollution include alfalfa, aster, bean, birch, oats, soybean, sunflower, and wheat.

Sources of the pollutant include combustion of fuel, petroleum and natural gas industries, and ore smelting and refining processes.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

On Friday morning, July 11, 1975, Alexy Ysarkov took his own life. He tried by this drastic means to tell us something. What he had to say is no different from what martyrs and other great men have said through the ages. While most people would be unable to display such ultimate desperation, his dramatic suicide is worthy of our careful attention.

The setting for this event took place earlier in 1975 in Washington, D.C. Christians and historians alike were deeply disturbed by the way President Ford treated Alexander Solzhenitsyn. You may remember that when Solzhenitsyn came to Washington, D.C., he was ignored by President Ford. Solzhenitsyn is the famous Russian author who was exiled from Soviet Russia because he believed in freedom. He very clearly pictured the Soviet system as a massive slave enterprise.

The following information comes from an article written in "Human Events," November 29, 1975, by Denni H. Dunn. Yusarkov was a famous Russian painter. He looked at the slavery called life in the Soviet Union and regarded Solzhenitsyn as a symbol of freedom. He had met with the author only once and that was in a park to avoid the ears of the secret police. The author's last statement to him was, "Remember this, Alexy, you can never fully know yourself until you fully know freedom."

On the day Alexy took his own life, he had carefully written a letter to President Ford and instructed his wife to get it into the hands of an American tourist. This was done and the letter in its original form was delivered to the White House July 21, 1975. Another reason he took his life was that the police were closing in on him because of a painting he had made. This painting pictured the Statue of Liberty with an imaginative likeness of Solzhenitsyn on it.

The letter is too long to be quoted in its entirety, but the pathetic contents should be headlines in every paper in the United States. His hopes were destroyed by the lack of understanding of the main show going on in the world. He felt sure that when our President had a chance to listen in detail to Solzhenitsyn, things would change, but that was not supposed to be. His despair reached the point of hopelessness when Radio Free Europe sent out the message that the President refused to see the author because there was some question concerning his mental stability.

I will quote only a few parts from the letter to President Ford: "Are there so few Americans still genuinely hostile to communism that you can afford to write them off and give away their votes to your political opponents? And was not your nation born of patriots, driven on at every turn by an absolute, unqualified dedication to the idea of human freedom? Oh, Mr. President, I must rage, rage against the dying of the light! . . . yet I see now there is no hope. No hope at all!"

Although I do not agree that there is no hope, I see no great political movement in opposition to detente in its present form. I see no glimmer of truth in this matter from the organized church and no special encouragement from our school system. Only a ground swell of an awakened public will keep this man's cries from eternal silence. The Old Testament has a special word for this time as we approach our bi-centennial. Jer. 5:30-31: "An appalling and horrible thing has happened in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests rule at their direction; my people love to have it so, but what will you do when the end comes?"

℞ CAN SANTA MAKE IT THIS YEAR?

With air pollution at an all-time high, there is some doubt whether Santa Claus will be able to make his annual trip this year.

Upper respiratory diseases attack older folks much more frequently and as you know, Mr. Claus is getting on in years. It has also been said that Santa has a touch of asthma which can easily be triggered when flying over some of those smog-ridden larger cities.

Let's all become pollution fighters this year. It will help all of us to stay healthier and will also keep those reindeer flying.

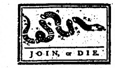
The POWER of PRINT in AMERICAN HISTORY 1776-1976

PROPAGANDA FOR THE REVOLUTION

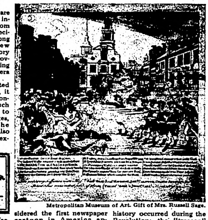
This article is adapted from a program of historical monographs created by the St. Regis Paper Company in an effort to rededicate our heritage and renew our pride in our country's achievements.

Political revolutions are neither spontaneous nor inevitable. They result from problems, forces and decisions working over long periods of time. In few periods of American history has the power of print proven so effective in molding public opinion as in the era of the Revolution.

When Parliament enacted the Stamp Act in 1765, it touched off a rash of condemnatory writing; so much so, Britain was forced to repeal the act. Other taxes, brought about by the Townshend Acts, were also written off the books—except the tax on tea.



Some of the most effective propaganda, however, appears to have been created by Paul Revere. Though best known for his midnight ride, he was also an accomplished copperplate engraver and by far the most famous of all his engravings was "The Boston Massacre." This consummate piece of inflammatory art and writing depicts the Redcoats deliberately firing on a defenseless crowd, perpetuating the legend of the "massacre." This tragic confrontation, more riot than massacre, occurred on the night of March 5, 1770. Five civilians were killed, including Crispus Attucks, the first black casualty of the American Revolution.



Metropolitan Museum of Art. Gift of Mrs. Russell Sage.

What is generally considered the first newspaper cartoon in America appeared in 1754 and again 20 years later. It was Benjamin Franklin's device of a disjointed snake, representing the colonies, with the legend "Join or Die."

But the piece of writing with perhaps the most impact was the pamphlet published by Thomas Paine entitled Common Sense. It went into several translations and sold 120,000 copies within three months. Nothing in the Revolution's period and perhaps nothing written in America since, has enjoyed more instantaneous and comparable influence. Within six months of its printing, the Declaration of Independence was signed.

One of the most traumatic events in all American history occurred during the Revolution: the "treason" of Benedict Arnold. In the 1780 issue of the Continental Almanac, a representation of his hanging in effigy was printed. The drawing dramatically conveyed the need for steadfast allegiance to the Patriot cause and made Arnold's name a symbol of special infamy ever since.

If powerful propaganda was being fashioned to achieve independence, it was also serving to preserve the new nation and mold a national character.

Without question, buying a home is the most expensive purchase a consumer makes. It is also a complicated purchase. To make the right choice of a home, you must be willing to spend considerable time and effort.

Before you ever begin to look at houses, you should make some decisions about how big a house you want, what features it should have and how much money you can afford to spend.

After you have made these initial decisions, the actual job of househunting can begin. It is almost always to your advantage to use the services of real estate agents. After you describe to them the sort of house you are interested in and how much you can spend, they can save you a lot of wasted time by showing you only houses that fit your description. There is no reason to confine yourself to a single real estate agent.

It is particularly important to get a house looked over by qualified experts. These include an electrician, a roofer, a furnace expert and a termite inspector. Try to see the house during or after a heavy rain.

If you are buying a new home or decide to have one built, you need to make certain of the reliability of the contractor. If the house is in a development, talk to others who are already in houses there. If the house is not a part of a development, ask the contractor for the names of those for whom he has recently completed houses; contact these persons.

After finding a house or deciding to build one, the next step is to find the mortgage money to finance it. You should shop around for the mortgage just as you have for the house. Ask whether you qualify for a VA or FHA mortgage. These do not require as large a down payment although they take longer to get.

Make certain before you give an agent or seller any deposit on a house, or sign a contract to have a house built that the agreement you sign contains a clause allowing you to get your deposit money back if you cannot obtain a satisfactory mortgage.

The final step in buying a house is the settlement or closing. It is at this point that you receive the deed for the property, sign several documents and pay a number of charges that you are responsible for that have to be paid on this occasion.

The federal government has passed a law that, among other things, requires the lender to give you a disclosure statement containing estimates of all closing charges at least 12 days in advance of the settlement date. In addition, you should ask the lending institution to give you a copy of the booklet "Settlement Costs and You: A Guide for Homebuyers."

One last thing: Consult your attorney before signing any papers in your house purchase.

If you have any questions, you may contact the Attorney General's office by writing to the Consumer Protection Division, 102 State capitol building, St. Paul, Mn. 55155.

care for 60 hungry kids

PORRIDGE is an old-fashioned word for a bowl of hot cereal. In other countries where many millions are starving CARE's Porridge is a kind of gruel rich in nutrition. Kids are fed in pre-school programs, nutrition centers and primary schools. Just one serving won't help anybody, we know that. So here's the good news: CARE gives a bowl of porridge to sixty kids every single day for a whole month on your behalf for just $10. That's something basic!

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kirshman, (Laural Hagen) Orofino, Idaho spent ten days at the Ralph Hagen home and visiting other relatives and friends in the area.

Mrs. Eugene Polansky visited on Wednesday at the Tim Bernstein home.

Tim and Kim Loven, Grand Forks, Mrs. Ingeborg Loven and Roger, were Thanksgiving day dinner guests at the Otto Hagen home.

Arlyne Johnson of Concordia college, Moorhead, spent Thanksgiving vacation at the Art Johnson home.

Visitors during the week at the Chealie Ruud home were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shager, Neala and Dorian, Stillwater, Mrs. Alan Gessner and Sara, Minneapolis, Mrs. Tim Howard of Warren, John Shager, Roy Ruud, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lunsetter.

Mrs. Olga Engevik and David, were Monday supper guests at the Harvey Ebbighausen home in Thief River Falls and later visited at the Glen Espe home at Newfolden.

Thanksgiving day dinner guests at the Lyle Blahauvietz home were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Blahauvietz and Scott, Pipestone, Elvis Erickson, Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ravendalen, Merlin, Milo and Mark, Roosevelt, Pastor Robert Hemppainen, Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tieman, Goodridge, Jrsa Ingalls.

Friday Olaf Aune, Grygla visited at the Juel Aune home.

Tim and Kim Loven, Grand Forks, spent Thanksgiving vacation at the home of Mrs. Ingeborg Loven and Roger.

Miss Jean Anderson, Bemidji, spent a week at the Roy Anderson home.

Peter Aune, Mr. and Mrs. Chealie Ruud helped the Wayne Ruud's at Karlstad move on Saturday.

Several out of town people attended the funeral for Almer Shager. They were the following: Cindy Yates, Glencoe, Mrs. Eddie Rood, Gary Rood, Stephen, Mrs. Laurence Oberg, Argyle, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Gessel, Mrs. Agda Sletten, Gerald Landmark, Bagley, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Severson of Clearbrook.

Saturday evening Ruth Micheals visited at the Juel Aune home.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Blahauvietz, Pipestone, spent a few days at the Lyle Blahauvietz home and came to get Scott who had spent a week with his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Loven and Tim of Grand Forks were Thursday overnight guests at the Ingeborg Loven home.

Miss Sally Anderson, Memphis, Tenn., flew home on Friday to be with her parents the Roy Andersons for two weeks.

Mrs. Delmar Hagen and Larry visited Tuesday evening at the Ingeborg Loven home.

Wednesday evening visitors at the Peter Aune home were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ruud, Micheal and Monica of Karlstad.

Friday evening Mrs. Ingeborg Loven and Roger visited at the Lyle Blahauvietz home.

Sunday Mrs. Ingeborg Loven and Roger took Kim Loven to the Paul Saurdiff home at Grygla so she could return home with the Paul Saurdiff's Jr. to her home at Grand Forks.

Elma Aune spent Thanksgiving vacation at the Jerry Stranberg home at Hibbing.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Stangfield recently returned from a trip to Detroit, Mich.

Miss Jamie Kenner, spent quarter break from Moorhead state with her parents the Raymond Kenners.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Blahauvietz visited on Tuesday evening at the Roy Anderson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jesme, Middle River, visited Monday evening at the Ingeborg Loven home.

Social News

A large number of relatives and friends gathered on Sunday, Nov. 30, at the Roy Anderson home to help them celebrate their 25th silver wedding anniversary. Decorations were carried out in yellow and white, Mrs. Anderson had a yellow rose corsage, and Mr. Anderson a yellow rose boutoniere.

For the reception the serving table was centered with three hearts, pillars on top followed with a single heart on top, decorated in yellow and white, Mrs. Edwin Lund baked and decorated the beautiful cake. Cutting the cake was Mrs. Leo Orpen, Mrs. Edwin Strong, Alverado, poured coffee. Assisting at the reception was Mrs. Peter Aune, Mrs. Leo Orpen and their daughters Mrs. Eugene Olmstead, Sally, Memphis, Tenn., Jean of Bemidji and Paggy.

Unable to come was the bride's sister who was the bridesmaid 25 years ago, Annie Foss of St. Cloud, the best man was present, Leo Orpen.

Those attending from out of town were Mrs. Jerry Heggeresten and girls, Mrs. Alex Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bubb and sons, Alvarado, Mr. and Mrs. Ingvold Borreson and Karla, Strathcona, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Borreson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Olmstead, Badger, Sally Anderson, Memphis, Tenn., and Jean Anderson, Bemidji and several from Gatzke and the surrounding area.

SILVERTON . . .

Saturday afternoon and supper guest at the Ole Lerol home was Melvin Molden. Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Harold Harder and Mr. and Mrs. Orlin Lerol were coffee guests there. Earl Erickson also was a caller and coffee guest during the week.

Mrs. Ardchie Ptacek accompanied Mr and Mrs. Nels Holmberg of Thief River Falls to Warren on Tuesday where they attended the auction sale of Mrs. Carl Johnson.

Supper guests Sunday at the Harold Dupree Sr. home were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dupree, Matt and Ryan and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Ostby and Ricky.

Lloyd and Nordeen Urdahl were evening visitors Wednesday at the Archie Ptacek home.

Weekend guests at the Martin Hanson home were Scott Anderson and Scott McConkey of Bemidji who are students at Oak Hills Bible Institute.

Mrs. Ole Lerol attended a bridal shower Saturday afternoon for Laurie Stigen at the Ernest Stigen home in Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Benhard Wold attended the Christmas program Sunday evening at the Baptist church in Thief River Falls.

What Will It Take?

30 More Bushels Of Corn In 10 Years

How to squeeze more bushels of corn out of each acre. That's a tough question that has production specialists sharpening their pencils. And it has crop scientists taking a hard look at what they can do to the ear-producing plant to enhance its productivity.

Since the advent of hybridization, corn yields have increased at an average rate of two to three bushels per acre each year. USDA officials are proud to graph this 45-degree curve. But this unprecedented efficiency by American farmers has some food forecasters worried about corn yields 10 years from now.

Can we feed increasing numbers of people if corn yields level off? How long can the magic two to three bushel increase in yield last? Will farmers average 200 bushels per acre by 1985? And what type of hybrids will farmers be planting to get these bigger yields?

Some of these considerations were discussed by Dr. Basil Tsotsis, director of corn research for DeKalb AgResearch, Inc. And it appears the two to three bushel increase in corn production should continue for at least the next 10 years—provided farmers and crop scientists do everything right.

"Higher yielding hybrids are on the way," he says. "We're confident we can continue to make hybrid combinations available, which are significantly better than those farmers are planting today. The new hybrids will encourage farmers to beef up management skills, too.

"Corn breeding today is based on the unique theory of heterosis," Tsotsis explains. "It means that when we cross two parent lines together in order to make a new hybrid combination, we're looking for a certain amount of yield kick."

From a corn breeding standpoint, Tsotsis views the new higher yielding hybrids coming from two areas of plant science: (1) development programs which search for good source populations which can be used to makeup new hybrids, and (2) updating current technology about corn physiology.

"At DeKalb, we're increasingly optimistic about higher yielding hybrids of the future," the corn breeder explains.

Increase Yields 10 to 15%

Source populations contain huge reservoirs of genes—complex units in cells which determine heredity. Plant breeders call source populations the starting point in corn breeding because they're used to develop inbred lines which eventually become the parents of future hybrid combinations.

"One of the most important observations we've made is that a hybrid which displays high levels of hybrid vigor results from crossing inbreds derived from unrelated source populations," Tsotsis explains. "In other words, the more different the parents, the better odds for yield advantage.

"The key to higher yielding hybrids is the present work seed companies are doing to develop source populations with vast genetic diversity.

"We have quite a collection of varieties grown by farmers in Mexico and Central America—areas regarded as the major centers for corn origin; these varieties represent survivors of the ravages of natural selection and should have a major bearing on future corn improvement work," he says.

For long-term gains in productivity, scientists must seek a broader range of alternatives for the plant to produce grain, gather sunlight and utilize water and nutrients.

"It's going to take a real update in crop technology to come up with dramatic yield increases," Tsotsis points out. "But we feel we are in a position to make a significant contribution to boosting corn yields."

Corn yields have increased at an average rate of 2 to 3 bushels per acre each year, but some food forecasters are worried about corn yields in the future.

Here's a run-down of additional technology behind those green stalks with single-ears that could contribute to dramatic new breakthroughs:

- Multiple-eared corns.
- More efficient use of fertilizers.
- Increasing drought and insect resistance.
- Corn that produces seed in tassels instead of ears.
- Higher quality protein and starch levels in grain.

Unknown Variables

From a genetic viewpoint, it appears there'll be a steady flow of higher yielding hybrids each year. And that's good news to any corn farmer. But planting the right hybrid is only the first big step in corn production. There are many more factors that enter into the efficiency scheme—weather, adequate fertilizer supplies, disease or insect problems. Only time will tell what 1985 yields will be. However, corn researchers say average per acre yields can continue to increase . . . if.

State's Queen Of Beef Is Red Lake Falls Girl

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Minnesota's 1976 Queen of Beef is right at home in her new kingdom. Karen Skala of Red Lake Falls, who also carries the Northwest Beef Princess title which she won last summer, plans on farming and is preparing for that life by studying diversified agriculture at the University of Minnesota at Crookston.

Twenty-year-old Karen won the state title December 5 at the annual meeting of the Minnesota Beef Producers association and auxiliary—the Minnesota CowBelles—held in Duluth. In winning over three other regional candidates, she succeeds Patty Broden of Fertile as the official good will representative of the state's beef producers. Miss Broden was also a winner of the Northwest Beef Princess title, so Karen's win brings the state title to northwest Minnesota for the second consecutive year.

Winner of the regional title on June 29 at Red Lake Falls, Karen was sponsored in the state contest by the Northwest Stockmen's association and CowBelles. The latter group is in charge of the beef princess program. All candidates must be daughters of beef farmers and are judged on personality, personal appearance and speaking ability. Karen spoke on the sale and promotion of beef.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Skala of Red Lake Falls and Mrs. Vincent J. Lyons of Chehalis, Wash., Karen grew up on the Skala farm which is just a whoop and a holler from the city of Red Lake Falls. The 1,050-acre farm has been in the Skala family for four generations—or will be when Karen and her twin sister Kathleen join their father in its operation. It isn't that the girls are unfamiliar with farming. They know the business from pitchfork to paycheck. They drive tractors, help with the haying, keep an eye on the beef cow herd (part of which is theirs) and handle some of the other chores—whenever they're not in school learning more about the business of agriculture.

Karen's diversified agriculture program—which will lead to a two-year degree when she graduates—includes studies on field and forage crops, principles of farm management and science courses related to agriculture. Kathleen's studies in farm business tend more toward light horse management, since the sisters would like to get into the business of raising horses. Karen and Kathleen have three horses now and plan on acquiring another yearling soon. Their tastes tend toward the Arabian breed, and their present horses have Arabian and Quarterhorse backgrounds. The 1,050-acre farm gives them room for riding horses and its location along the Red Lake river provides some scenic territory for riding. Most of the farm's woodland is pastured and about 700 acres is open and used for small grain and row crop production.

QUEEN OF BEEF for the state of Minnesota is Karen Skala, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Skala of Red Lake Falls. Reigning as Northwest Beef Princess after winning the regional title in Red Lake Falls last June, she was selected for the state honor December 5 at the state beef producers association annual meeting in Duluth. She hopes to join her father and sister in farming and to raise horses.

3 Hurt In TRF Collision Thur. On Highway 59

A collision on highway 59 Thursday resulted in injuries to three Thief River Falls residents and the totaling of two vehicles.

At 5:30 p.m., LeRoy Westerlund was traveling south on highway 59 and Kevin Olson, driving a pickup, was entering the highway from the E and B car wash driveway when the vehicles collided.

Westerlund was taken to Northwestern hospital for treatment of forehead lacerations. He was listed in satisfactory condition, and released Friday evening.

Asta Westerlund, a passenger in her husband's car, was treated and released, as was Kevin Olson.

K. Christensen Places In Crop Judging Events

Kent Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Christensen of Thief River Falls, was one of four students from the University of Minnesota technical college-Crookston who participated in crops judging contests at Kansas City and Chicago recently. Christensen is a sophomore crop production major.

The team traveled to Kansas City for the American Royal Intercollegiate crops contest, and to Chicago for the intercollegiate crops contest. UMC was the only two-year school represented, and was in competition against teams from four year colleges and universities.

In Kansas City, Christensen placed sixth in grain grading, third in seed analysis and seventh overall. The team placed fifth overall, and was second in seed analysis, third in grain grading and seventh in identification.

At Chicago, Christensen placed second in grain grading, third in identification and seventh overall. The team again placed fifth overall at Chicago.

SWCD Requests At Co. Board Meeting

Two requests by the Pennington soil and water conservation district board were among the items considered by the Pennington county board of commissioners in a meeting Tuesday in the county courthouse.

The district board, for its 1976 budget, requested a county appropriation in excess of $13,500, a considerable increase from the 1974 appropriation of $4,000. The commissioners referred the request back to the soil conservation district for reconsideration.

Leonard Skaar, district board representative, proposed county participation in the resource conservation and development association, operating out of Crookston. The commissioners concerned about the prospect of becoming involved in another level of government, took the request under advisement.

In other matters, auditor C. W. Rodekuhr was instructed to prepare an application for HUD community development funds, in hopes of obtaining federal monies for the county plan to develop a new stationary landfill site in Pennington county. In accordance with HUD guidelines, two public hearings to invite citizen community development input will be held. The first will be held December 29 at 1:30 p.m. in the Goodridge city hall, and the second is scheduled Dec. 30 at 1:30 p.m. in the county courthouse first floor meeting room.

County treasurer Ellsworth Jorgenson discussed problems in preparing the county tax statements for 1976. It now appears the statements will not be ready by the first of January because the county's 1976 property valuations have not been received, and, due to additional information required on the '76 statements, it will take a longer period of time to prepare them than in previous years. Rodekuhr believes an extra clerk will have to be hired to assist in completion of the work.

The commissioners concurred with the acceptance of low bid for the Pennington avenue (airport road) improvements project. A total of $116,251 in county state aid highway funds will be contributed to finance a portion of the project cost.

Clifford Olson, owner of Kife's cafe, was granted a 1976 3.2 beer license and a county liquor license. Other 3.2 beer licenses were approved for Carpenter's and the Highlanding store.

An appropriation of $150 was approved for the OEO committee in Oklee to be paid as expense funds to the committee member from Pennington county in 1976.

Proposal Is Given By Welfare Union

Substantial increases in salaries and benefits are called for in the first contract proposal submitted to the Pennington county welfare board by the newly-unionized county social services department employees. The department personnel voted to join the American federation of state, county and municipal employees, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO, last summer. Harold Schmidt of Fergus Falls, union representative for county local 1353, sent the proposed contract to Gary Erickson, county social services director, December 2. Schmidt requested that the first negotiating session be held January 13. Erickson agreed, subject to the approval of the welfare board.

Erickson said the board has no intention of agreeing to the contract in its present form since this would represent a very large additional cost to the taxpayers.

The pay plan listed in the union proposal lists a one step raise in the salary schedule for professional staff and support personnel from plan A to plan B, and a two-step hike in the schedule for clerical personnel from plan A to plan C. The normal work day for an employee would be 7½ hours and the normal work week 37½ hours.

A substantial change in the vacation schedule has been proposed. The social services department currently allows employees with up to five years of service 12 vacation days a year, and with those between five and 10 years of employment 15 vacation days a year. To these benefits the proposed union contract would add a schedule of 18 vacation days for between 10 and 15 years, 21 days for between 15 and 20 years and 24 days for over 20 years. In the area of sick leave, the present social services arrangement allows one sick leave day per month, accumulative to a total of 100 days. The union contract proposes that upon reaching the accumulated 100 days, one-half day per month would be added for use after the 100 days of accumulated sick leave have been exhausted, and one-half day would be added to the vacation schedule. For each three-month period without use of a sick leave day, an employee would be given a "bonus" day which would be added to his

Sheep Grower Meeting Wed. At Karlstad

A meeting on sheep production and management for sheep producers in northwest Minnesota is scheduled for Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Town and Country cafe at Karlstad. University of Minnesota extension specialists Robert Jacobs, Robert Jordan and Raymond Solac will discuss health care, reproduction and feeding the ewe flock. Dr. Harvey Windels of the Northwest experiment station will report on sheep management and nutrition research.

There will be a question and answer period included in the program.

School Board Meets Tonight

Thief River Falls board of education will meet tonight (Monday) at 8 p.m. in the library of Mark Twain elementary school. The session will follow a 5:30 p.m. dinner meeting at Lon's cafe at which the architect for the proposed vocational-technical institute addition will make his initial report to the board.

Borings Show Load Capacity For Beet Plant

Preliminary indications are that soils in two Pennington county areas are suitable to carry the load of a sugar beet plant, according to Terry Madson, Thief River Falls city planner. Madson's statement is based on preliminary reports from deep soil borings taken in the two areas last week by Twin City Testing company. As a cooperative venture by Pennington county, the city of Thief River Falls and Jobs Incorporated, five borings were taken in the St. Hilaire area and three in the Hazel area. Four samples were also taken by the company in Red Lake county at the same time.

Final report from the company is expected in a week or two, Madson said. Early indications are that suitable soils were found at the 15 to 20 foot depth at the Hazel site and 30 to 35 feet at the St. Hilaire site. The tests were to determine load bearing capacity of the soil, with beet storage silos being the heaviest potential use in the future.

Madson added that local officials cooperated with Red Lake county officials in contracting jointly for the exploratory soil work. Local participating agencies have provided $1,500 each for studies and site options.

EDGAR HETTEEN, founder of Arctic Enterprises and presently an officer of the corporation, has been elected president of a newly-formed Coalition of Minnesota Snowmobile organizations (CMSO). The CMSO was formed in Duluth recently to act as the voice of the nearly one million snowmobilers in Minnesota's 87 counties.

Hetteen Chairs State Coalition

Edgar Hetteen of Thief River Falls is chairman of a newly organized coalition of state snowmobile interests titled the coalition of Minnesota snowmobile organizations (CMSO). The organization is expected to be the voice of nearly one million snowmobilers in the 87 Minnesota counties.

In a report on the need for the formation of the CMSO, Hetteen, the founder of Arctic Enterprises, said that one of every four Minnesota citizens is a snowmobiler, that nearly 63 per cent of all snowmobiles produced in the United States are manufactured in Minnesota and that snowmobilers pay in excess of $9 million annually to the state in snowmobile-related fees and taxes.

He added that despite these facts, "governments at some level are acceding to pressures of extreme preservationists to limit, ban, restrict, curtail, or over-regulate the major winter sport of one quarter of the

Gillespie And Stengrim Vows Spoken At Argyle

Shirley Ann Gillespie and Glen Rolland Stengrim exchanged marriage vows recently at the Alma Lutheran church in Argyle. Rev. Hans Floan officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Ivan Melvie of Holt and Frank Gillespie of Thief River Falls. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stengrim of Warren.

Linda Olson of Thief River Falls, a friend of the bride, presented a medley of piano selections as the guests were ushered in by Orris Stengrim, brother of the groom, and Jerry Parnham, a friend of the bride, both of Thief River Falls. For the processional, she played "If," which was sung by Bruce Parnham of this city, a brother-in-law of the bride, after the wedding party assembled at the altar. During the ceremony, Bernie Netteland, a friend of the bride, sang "You and I". The recessional was "Lara's Theme." Mary Ann Carlson of Grand Forks, N.D., a friend of the bride, distributed the wedding programs.

The candlelight ceremony featured the centennial theme with baskets of straw flowers at the altar.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her family. She was attired in a floor-length gown of candlelight ivory fashioned with an A-line ruffle that flowed back into a self train. Crocheted lace graced the front of the bodice, trimmed the full sheer sleeves and accented the empire waistline. Matching lace complemented the cuffs, high neckline and edged her elbow-length veil. For sentiment, she wore at her neckline an antique cameo brooch, a gift from her aunt Anna Dean of Rapid City, S.D. She carried a bridal bouquet of apricot roses, white carnations and babies' breath, with natural wheat accents.

Ronda Nelson of Dilworth, a friend of the bride, was personal attendant.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Susie Parnham. Serving as attendants were Sherry Netteland of Thief River Falls, Sue Helm of Newfolden and Marcene Ness of Thief River Falls. All are friends of the bride. Their gowns, in centennial fashion, were of a cotton blend print featuring a small brown stripe and apricot flowers on a cream background. An inlay of cream colored eyelet enhanced the bodices. The full, floor-length skirts were nipped at the waistline by self-belts that tied in back. To complete their attire, the attendants wore centennial bonnets, tied with large bows at the chin; and they carried large country baskets filled with straw flowers and wheat.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl, Carol Stengrim, a niece of the groom.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Roy Stengrim. Groomsmen were Lloyd Dufault of Chisholm, Arlyn Stengrim of Warren and Marvin Stengrim of Grafton, N.D. The ring bearer was Jimmy Parnham, a nephew of the bride. The groom was attired in a brown tuxedo with an ivory ruffled shirt and an apricot rose and natural wheat boutonniere. The attendants and ring bearer wore similar tuxedos accented with apricot shirts. Their boutonnieres were of natural wheat.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Melvie selected a floor-length gown of black polyester jersey with yellow rosebud print, topped by a cardigan jacket of the same print. Her accessories were in yellow. The mother of the groom wore a blue floor-length gown complemented by a matching jacket. Both wore triple carnation corsages.

Special guests at the wedding were Mrs. Holterman Olson and Mrs. Agnes Israelson of Thief River Falls, grandmothers of the bride, and Gina Haug of Grafton, N.D., aunt of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Serving as host and hostess were Mr and Mrs. Edwin Haug of Grafton. At the guest book was Patti Saustad, a friend of the bride.

Centering the serving table was a pedestal Lady Windemere, spice and white wedding cake, baked and decorated by Doris Bagaas of Argyle. The cake, iced in white and decorated with apricot rosebuds and sugar doves, was topped by a glass, hand-blown water fountain with doves and bells, a gift from the bride's sister. Cutting and serving the cake were Jeane Bentfield of Elk River, aunt of the bride and Jean Edgar of Thief River Falls, sister of the groom.

At the coffee service were Helen Jankoski and Martha Olson of Warren, aunts of the groom. Sheila and Richard Collins of Moorhead served the punch.

Waitresses were Nancy Sisler of Hallock and Bonnie Nelson of Thief River Falls. Mary Norum of Grand Forks and LeMae Ryba of Middle River presided at the gift table.

A dance at El Ceretos in St. Hilaire followed the reception. The evening prior to the ceremony, the parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at Newfolden.

Following a week's wedding trip in the Black Hills of St. Dakota, the couple is at home at 911-18th street South, in Moorhead. Both are employed in Fargo, N.D. Photo, Filmore Cooper, Grand Forks.

Valerie Ethel Wiseth Weds Wesley Brekke

Faith Lutheran church of Goodridge was the scene of the recent candlelight wedding of Miss Valerie Ethel Wiseth and Wesley Brekke.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wiseth of Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Brekke of Trail.

Rev. Bruce Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Debbie Heideman, a cousin of the groom, was the organist, playing the traditional wedding marches, and together with David Heideman sang, "Wedding Song," and "We Gave Ourselves to One Another." Serving as their accompanist was Cindy Hendrickson, a cousin of the groom. Following the lighting of the unity candle, signifying the couple's lives totally uniting as one, Esther Benson sang "The Lord's Prayer" while the bride and groom knelt at the altar.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white organza gown fashioned with a fitted bodice, bishop sleeves, and a full skirt that flowed back into a chapel-length train. Venise lace outlined the slit V-neckline, graced the front of the bodice, trimmed the sleeves and encircled the skirt. A lace Camelot headpiece held her triple-tiered chapel-length veil. She carried a cascade of orange daisies, mums and babies' breath. For sentiment, the bride also carried out the old, new, borrowed and blue tradition.

The bride's personal attendant was Sharon Bergerson, a friend.

Matron of honor was Lana Nelson, a cousin of the bride. Other attendants were Connie Smeby, Marilyn Sundrud, friends of the bride, and Vicki Hughes, sister of the bride. The matron of honor wore an empire fashioned gown featuring an orange, floor-length skirt with a coordinating floral print bodice, accented by orange sleeves. Similar gowns, only in orange floral print, were worn by the bridesmaids. Each attendant carried a bouquet of orange daisy mums and babies' breath with matching ribbon streamers, corresponding with the orange daisy mums they wore in their hair. Their leaf pins were gifts from the bride.

Wearing attire, similar to the matron of honor, and carrying a white basket filled with orange daisy mums and babies' breath, was the flower girl, Karen Syverson, a cousin of the groom.

Wayne Brekke attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Myles Hemney, a friend of the groom, Vance Wiseth, brother of the bride, and Jim Sundrud, a friend of the groom. All wore dark brown tuxedos with brown velvet lapels and velvet bow ties. Their ruffled shirts were orange, corresponding with their boutonnieres. The same attire was worn by the ring bearer, Scott Groven, a cousin of the bride. He carried the rings on a pillow made of the same fabric and lace as the bride's gown.

Ushers were El Rio Wishard, Chester Smeby and Brad Nelson, friends of the groom. Lighting the candles before the processional were Kurt Wiseth, brother of the bride, and Jeff Brekke, brother of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wiseth wore a turquoise gown complemented by a lace embroidered floor-length coat. A similar ensemble, only in beige, was worn by the mother of the groom. Both wore identical corsages of yellow daisy mums.

Special guests at the ceremony were the bride's grandparents: Mrs. Signe Evenson and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson.

A reception in the school gymnasium followed the ceremony. Serving as host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, uncle and aunt of the bride. Cousins of the bride, Mrs. Aldon Hyland and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Wiseth, registered the guests and served the punch.

A four-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, graced the serving table. The cake was iced in white, decorated with clusters of orange mums, and topped with the same bride and groom ornament that had previously topped the wedding cake for the bride's parents. Mrs. Bette Olson of Minnetonka, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Norris Brekke, aunt of the groom, cut and served the cake. Presiding at the coffee service were Mrs. Jean Groven and Mrs. Ruby Heideman, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively.

Gift bearers were Judy Wiseth, cousin of the bride, and Michell Voxland, cousin of the groom. Waitresses were JoAnn Olson, Jody Wiseth, cousins of the bride, and Gail Syverson and Nancy Hendrickson, cousins of the groom.

Following the reception, relatives and close friends gathered at the bride's parental home for the viewing of the gifts and a 6:30 supper with hostess Mrs. Theresa Radniecki and Mrs. Juel Chervestad pouring coffee. Later in the evening, an old-fashioned dance was held at the farm with music provided by Elmer Rustin of Oklee.

The groom's dinner was held the evening prior to the wedding at the Arcady Inn at Oklee with approximately 40 guests attending.

For traveling on the wedding trip to the Black Hills and the Yellowstone area, the bride wore a green and peach pantsuit.

The couple is now at home on a farm near Trail. The bride is employed by the Gonvick bank; and the groom is engaged in farming and trucking.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

by Ellen M. Spray

Some things just don't add up. According to the news media, teachers' organizations across the country are demanding more money; school boards (composed mostly of parents) are trying to hold down expenses by granting a less raise than demanded; and statisticians are issuing reports that the college entrance exam marks have dropped drastically and that the reading ability of children in Minnesota has reached an all-time low.

Maybe the following story will illustrate a point.

This past year, Mary Kantspell and Micheal Kareless were united in mariage in a candel ceremonie at the Bethesta Luthern church in Minneapolis. Susan Wilson resided at the organ and the bride's brother, Tom, was candel liter. Soloist James Olson sang "The Lord's Parer" as the couple nelted at the alter. Boquets of gladyolas and candele operas formed the chancel setting. The bride was escorded down the isle and given in marriage by her parnets as the organest played the traditional wedding march. She was bueatifully attired in a floor-lenth gown of white creape styled in umpire fashion with pablum on the back. Creating back interest was a long train with fitted shear sleaves appliequed with lace and cequence trim. A rinestone teara held her sholder vail of bridal alusion. She carried a cresent bokay of gladiollas. Matron of honor was Miss Ann Neverbeen Married. She wore a penafor gown of white daisey flowers on a orchid back round. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Olson, wore similar otfits.

The groom and his attendance wore brown truxcedoes with green crekered shirts. Pinned on the lapels of their tuxoe was a orang corsage.

The mother of the bride wore a sleevless, floor-length pink gown with a rounded yolk and long full sleaves. Her corsage was an orked.

A reseption followed the seremony. Serving the luncion were the ladies of the church. The bride's aunt cut and served the three-teared wedding cake, ised in white and topped with a minechur bride and groom.

After a honeymoon to an undisclosed distinction, the bride and groom is at home in an apartemant in this city.

This isn't written with the idea of being humorous but rather to show that somewhere along the line, something is wrong. The misspelled words are just a part of the list of words that has crossed my desk in the last few years. There is something wrong when college graduates don't know the difference in the use of alter and altar, yoke and yolk, tiered and teared; and peplum and pablum, a baby food.

Parents are concerned. They are alarmed that their children aren't being taught to spell, to work simple mathematical problems or given penmanship training. Parents aren't happy with statistics that show that their children aren't receiving the proper training. Conscientious teachers deserve a raise, but raising the wages of teachers who aren't concerned with the welfare of the students won't help the situation.

Today's recipe is a favorite in the Perry Omdahl family.

Red Velvet Cake

½ cup shortening
1½ cups white sugar
2 eggs, beaten
2 oz. red food color
1½ tablespoons cocoa
1 cup buttermilk
2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon vinegar

Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten eggs, food color and cocoa. Beat well, alternate buttermilk and flour sifted with salt. Add vanilla. Last, add soda stirred into the vinegar. Blend well. Pour into three 8 or 9" layer cake pans which have been greased and floured well. Bake at 350 degrees about 25 minutes. When cool frost with the following:

Measure 5 level tablespoons flour into medium mixer bowl. Add 1 cup boiling hot milk, beating as you pour. Cool. Beat in 1 cup powdered sugar, ½ lb. butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Continue beating until of right spreading consistency.

The Perry Omdahls reside in Thief River Falls with their children, Ritchie and Corey. Mrs. Omdahl is employed at the Times and her husband is employed by Witcher construction as a brick layer.

Clara Olson Is Honored On Her 80th Birthday

Miss Clara Olson was guest of honor at an open house recently at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Olson, rural Thief River Falls. The open house was in observance of Miss Olson's 80th birthday, which was November 21.

Hostesses were members of the Helperette group, a sewing club which she helped to organize in 1918 and which was active for almost 50 years.

In addition to being a charter member of the Helperette group, Miss Olson has been active in church work, homemakers groups and garden clubs.

Approximately 85 relatives and friends attended the open house with Mrs. Vivian McCrum, a sister, pouring. Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Olson's former teacher, Mrs. Albert Swenson and her husband of Hallock, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Waller and Mrs. Eldon Johnson, also of Hallock, Mrs. Adeline Lindquist of Crookston, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wiggins and girls and Mrs. Agnes Markus of Bemidji and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Messelt of Fertile.

Centering the serving table was a birthday cake, a gift from Mrs. McCrum. Adding a festive air to the occasion was a floral arrangement from nieces and nephews, Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Danville, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCrum of Los Angeles, Calif.; and a bouquet of red roses from Mr. and Mrs. William Heineman of Minneapolis. Her corsage was a gift from her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Olson.

Miss Olson received a large number of gifts from those attending as well as from relatives and friends who were unable to be present.

MARRIAGE VOWS were exchanged November 14 at the First Congregational church of Moorhead by Peggy Lynn Pantekoek and Donald Allen Johnson. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pantekoek of Pipestone and Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Johnson of Thief River Falls. Attendants were Muriel Lindback of New Munich and Dale Olson of Thief River Falls. The Johnsons are at home at 712 South 10th Street in Moorhead.

Wash. School Has Christmas Program Thurs.

On Thursday, Washington elementary school will present it's annual Christmas program at 1:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium. The program is directed by Mrs. Pat Beauchane and the accompanist is Mrs. Frances Johnson. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Grade one will tell the Christmas story by singing "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Away in a Manger," "The Friendly Beasts," and "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

Santa's workshop will be portrayed by grade two. The elves will be busy with tricycles, wooden soldiers, tops, and teddy bears with appropriate songs being sung for each toy.

Grade three will sing about "Mister Santa," "Up on the Housetop", "Jolly Old St. Nicholas", and "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" as Santa makes his annual stop at Washington school. Grade three will also show a favorite winter past-time as they build "Frosty, the Snowman."

Grade four and kindergarten will decorate a living Christmas tree while singing "The Christmas Tree With Candles Glowing," "The Angel on the Christmas Tree," "Gather Around the Christmas Tree," and "You Take the High Branch."

Introducing each section of the program will be grade five. Their selections will include "Angels We Have Heard on High," "Christmas Chopsticks", "Deck the Halls", "O Christmas Tree", and "White Christmas".

The Washington school P.T.A. will be serving coffee after the program.

Newfolden's School Yule Concerts Set

Instead of the traditional joint Christmas concert of Newfolden elementary and high school music departments, this year for the first time the groups will perform in separate concerts.

Wednesday at 8 p.m. the elementary students under the direction of Tony Ricci will perform. The cadet band, directed by Miss Judy Ahlf, will also play. High school choruses will perform on Thursday at 8 p.m. They will also be under the direction of Tony Ricci.

Both concerts will be held in the Newfolden elementary gym and everyone is urged to attend.

Soo Line Votes $1.20 Per Share Stock Dividend

A dividend of $1.20 per share on the capital stock of Soo Line Railroad company was declared recently by the company's board of directors meeting in Minneapolis.

The dividend will be paid Jan. 28, 1976 to holders of record Jan. 9, 1976.

Soo's board of directors has not established a fixed dividend rate for the company's common stock. The board, however, considers the matter of dividends at its regular June and December meetings.

During 1975, Soo Line paid dividends of $2 per share in January and $1.15 per share in July. The company has 2,531,818 shares of its one class of stock outstanding.

Instructor At Convention

Terry Lemer, instructor at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute, attended the 69th American vocational annual convention in Anaheim, Calif.

The convention opened officially on December 6, with the first general session. More than 650 individual meetings in various areas of vocational education were held between December 6 and 10. Theme of this year's convention was "Reaching Out Through Vocational Education." Approximately 7,500 vocational education teachers and administrators from all over the United States attended.

TV Series On Marriage Set Jan. 6-Mar. 30

Some of the common concerns and processes in marriage will be discussed during a series of 12 television programs on educational television January 6 through March 30.

The programs will be broadcast from 10:30 to 11:30 p.m. Tuesdays on KFME-Channel 13, Fargo, KFGE-Channel 2, Grand Forks, and in associated communities carrying cable television.

The series, "Living Married," is based on the premise that if marriage is to be a vital, satisfying, growth-producing experience, a great deal of determination, commitment, time, energy and skill must be expended.

The program format will include dialogues between a married couple and a psychologist, psychiatrist, marriage counselor or social worker responding to a half-hour taped program. Viewers will have the opportunity to phone-in questions during the program.

Persons may wish to view the programs as individuals, with their spouses or in groups with a qualified resource person on hand to deal with specific questions which may arise.

An orientation program suggesting possible use in viewing the series will be broadcast at 7:30 p.m. December 30.

Program titles are "The Many Meanings," "In the Time of Change," "Two Selves Together," "Designing Our Own Style," "I Am Woman, I Am Man," "Hard Spots Little Things," "Disagreeing Agreeably," "We Cannot not Communicate," "Have I Given You a Valentine Lately," "The Place of Sex," "The Art of Intimacy" and "The Choice Is Ours."

A "Viewer's Guide," which amplifies the television series, may be obtained for $1 from participating cooperative extension county agents' offices or by writing "Living Married," North Dakota State university, box 5016, 210 Ceres hall, University station, Fargo. Checks may be made payable to the North Dakota Cooperative extension service.

For information regarding college credit for the series contact the Division of continuing studies, NDSU, or the Department of Independent study, 27 Wesbrook hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, 55455.

Additional information is available from Milan Christianson, family life specialist, N.D. cooperative extension service, 210 Ceres hall, or call 237-7251.

"Living Married," is produced with partial support from a grant from the extension service, USDA, by the cooperative extension services of Iowa state university, NDSU, South Dakota state university, University of Minnesota and University of Wisconsin. The participant discussion portion of the programs is funded through a grant from Steiger Tractor, Inc., of Fargo. The series is being presented through a cooperative effort with the Southeast Regional mental health and retardation center, Fargo.

Apart from farming, Karen's interests tend toward outdoor activities such as skiing and snowmobiling. Timberlane ski area is located on their farm and she takes advantage of it every chance she gets. She also likes fishing, did a little deer hunting on the farm this fall and works part time at the community co-op store. When marooned indoors she works on macrame and ceramics projects which she learned to do in high school and has followed up with evening courses.

The Skala farm now has about 100 head of cattle, including about 50 head of beef cows, mostly Hereford and Angus. A couple of years ago the herd numbered closer to 150 cows, but bangs disease suddenly appeared and the Skalas had to dispose of the herd. They are now in the process of building it up again.

In addition to her twin sister, Karen has two brothers, Joe of Fergus Falls and Gene of Washburn, N.D. Gene, who teaches school in Washburn, comes back to the farm during the summer to help with the field work and haying.

Giving Karen moral support at the state beef princess contest were her sister and a close friend, Linda Knott. Kathleen was in Washington during the regional competition and so was not available to be a contestant. She questions whether or not she would have wanted to be in the same contest as Karen. "People think we should compete against each other," Kathleen said. "I think it's better for one to compete and the other to help and encourage her." An idea of Karen's familiarity with farm work can be received from an incident while this interview was being made. Karen's mother asked to move this writer's car which had been left in the driveway. I asked if she knew how to drive a car with a four-speed transmission.

"You know, Mon," Karen said. "It's just like a truck."

Isn't that just like a farm girl?

Hetteen Heads Coalition On Snowmobiling

citizens of the state."

The CMSO has passed a resolution opposing the imminent ban on snowmobiling in the boundary waters canoe area, and other resolutions calling for expansion of snowmobiling opportunities in the Superior and Chippewa national forests, Voyageurs national park and state parks and forests.

The organization also supports an increase in the unrefunded snowmobile gasoline taxes dedicated to trail development from three-eighths of one per cent to three-quarters of one per cent in order to add about one million dollars annually to the gas tax contribution for the state's recreational trail development fund, and that snowmobile noise levels be regulated to not more than 73 decibels on the "A" scale at 50 feet when measured at the normal operating mode of the snowmobile.

Founding members of the coalition, which held its first meeting in Duluth last month, include the Duluth area association of snowmobile clubs, the international snowmobile association, the Minnesota association of snowmobilers, the snowmobile safety and certification committee, inc., and Arctic Enterprises, Bombardier corporation and Scorpion, Inc. The snowmobile safety and certification committee, which initiated the founding meeting, will act as organization secretariat.

Welfare Union First Proposal Is Received

Instead of the present social services department policy of allowing time off for funerals to be deducted from sick leave, each employee would be allowed up to five working days with pay for deaths in the immediate family. One day of funeral leave would be available for the death of a relative outside the immediate family, or a personal friend, and if more than five days is required, the extra days would be deducted from sick leave.

Other provisions in the contract proposal which Erickson believes the board will have particular objection to include: An employee qualified for a position open in the office and whose name is on the merit system register, county or state, shall be hired if the employee seeks the position; the board must agree to permit the negotiating or grievance committee to appear at all negotiating or grievance meetings with the board in negotiations or disputes without the loss of pay; employees would be reimbursed for at least one college course a year they take pertaining to their employment, and attendance at three to four workshops or seminar meetings per year, which do not include training sessions called by the DPW; and the social service department would pay the cost of a dental insurance plan.

Area Students Student Teach Through BSU

According to Dr. James Tillman, director of Bemidji state university student teaching, three area students are student teaching in various schools during the winter months.

Gloria Ross of Thief River Falls is student teaching special education at Central elementary school in Bemidji; Barbara Rondorf, also of Thief River Falls, is student teaching German at Brainerd senior high school; and Mary Michaud of Red Lake Falls is student teaching English and special education at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

The student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

North Central Boardings Up 14% In Nov.

North Central airlines in Thief River Falls showed an increase of 14 per cent in passengers boarding planes during the month of November as compared to figures for the same period last year. This was an increase from 667 to 762 passengers. Passengers arriving at the local airport showed a five and one-half per cent drop from 726 to 685 during November in comparison to last year.

North Central airlines as a whole set new company records for November by carrying 353,910 passengers and flying 81.7 million passenger miles.

Both records were four per cent higher than November 1974, when 338,920 passengers flew 78.3 million passenger miles. For the last five consecutive months, passenger traffic has increased over 1974. Cargo ton miles dropped four per cent from 993,643 to 952,165, due largely to the suspension of air express service early in the month.

Through the first 11 months of 1975, North Central carried 4.1 million passengers and flew 967 million passenger miles. These totals are within one per cent of 1974, when the fuel shortage in the early part of the year prompted many people to fly rather than drive. Cargo ton miles are off 10 per cent at 10.5 million.

Operationally, the airline completed 98.7 per cent of the 28.6 million scheduled miles through November of this year, and 84 per cent of its 204,682 scheduled arrivals were on time.

Changes Made In Explosive User Permits

Explosive user permits, required by law of anyone who desires to possess explosives in the state, must be obtained from local law enforcement authorities rather than fire officials as of Jan. 1, 1976, the Minnesota department of public safety announced recently.

Due to a law change by the 1975 Legislature, the responsibility for issuing the permits has been transferred from fire departments to local sheriffs or chiefs of police throughout the state, and thus no fire department may now issue the required permit.

However, all users of explosives are still required to notify fire officials of their storage location so that appropriate action may be taken in case of a fire in the area.

NFO Products Sale Supports Kidney Fund

An NFO truck will be in Thief River Falls Thursday to offer beef products and cheese for sale to city residents, with funds going to the kidney foundation to support the donor program.

The truck will be parked in the municipal lot at the corner of Knight avenue and Third street from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Urged To Keep Paths Clear To Mail Boxes

Cooperation of rural and suburban postal customers in helping to keep approaches to mail boxes clear during the coming winter months has been requested by postmaster Art Buringrud.

Postal customers are responsible for keeping approaches to their mail boxes clear of snow and other obstructions that would make mail delivery difficult or impossible. People should be aware that failure to clear paths to mailboxes promptly after heavy snows may temporarily prevent carriers from making deliveries. Customers will be contacted if they have an obstructed mail box.

Rural route carriers will make every reasonable effort to serve the greatest number of customers during severe weather, but service on foot to serve rural mailboxes is not permitted. Also when state highway or local authorities consider road travel hazardous, postal service may be curtailed until the inclement weather is over.

Postmaster Buringrud urged anyone with a question on winter weather road conditions and mail service to contact the Thief River Falls post office.

Tips Given For Holiday Plant Care

Too little light, too high temperatures and improper watering usually cause failure in caring for Christmas gift plants, says Jane P. McKinnon, University of Minnesota extension horticulturist.

Poinsettias are grown in a greenhouse where the night temperatures usually are cool, light is ample and the air is moist. When these plants are brought into a dry house where the light is poor and the temperatures are maintained for comfort without consideration for plants, results are bound to be disappointing.

Poinsettias require bright light and should be kept away from drafts. A temperature between 65 and 70 is ideal, but avoid temperatures below 60 and above 75. Keep the plants well watered, but do not overwater. Some of the newer, long-lasting varieties can be kept attractive all winter, Mrs. McKinnon says.

'76 Countdown In Knox School Yule Program

"Countdown to '76" will be the theme of the Christmas musical to be presented Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Knox elementary school under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne Harger.

Fourth and fifth grades will open the program by singing "Let There Be Peace on Earth", followed by the first grade and educable mentally retarded representing Colonial children in their portrayal of Christmas 1776. Fourth and fifth grades will sing choruses throughout the program.

Second graders will represent Yankee Doodle toys from the Christmas 1776 theme. Kindergarten students will represent an old-fashioned 1876 Christmas with their numbers and the third grade will present a space age Christmas for 1975. Fifth grade interpretive choir will join in "Silent Night" and the audience will sing with the students "God Bless America" and "Joy to the World."

Agriculture Dep't. Supports Elm Removal

Minnesota department of agriculture has adopted a new formula for supporting local government programs that subsidize homeowners for removing dead elms from private property.

The state will now pay up to 50 per cent of the cost of local programs for removing the trees, says Jon Wefald, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture.

In the past the state subsidized a portion of the removal cost. The new formula simply pays up to 50 per cent of the local budget for such purposes, leaving each community the option of how much it pays to the homeowner for tree removal costs.

This new financial formula greatly simplifies the procedures required for local participation in the state disease control program.

John Tollefson Services Held At Crookston

John Tollefson, 83, of Crookston died there on Saturday, December 6, in a nursing home.

Funeral services for John Tollefson were held Tuesday at 2 p.m., at the Stenshoel Funeral chapel with Rev. James Hanson officiating. The flag presentation was made by the Beltrami American Legion post. Interment was in the Oakdale cemetery.

Pallbearers were nephews Russell, Bert, Dwain, Paul, Raymond and Roger Tollefson.

John Tollefson was born Sept. 10, 1892 at Calumet, Mich., to Ole and Gunvor Tollefson. He moved to Minnesota in 1898 with his parents who settled in Scandia township, rural Beltrami. There he lived and farmed the family farm until 1965. Since 1972, he had made his home in Crookston.

He was a veteran of World War I, serving in the U.S. Army in France and Belgium. He never married.

Surviving are two brothers: Tinus Tollefson of Crookston and Albert of Beltrami; a sister, Mrs. Sophie Schultz of Apopka, Fla., several nieces and nephews and a number of cousins residing in the Thief River Falls and Goodridge area.

He was preceded in death by his parents, one brother and three sisters.

Geo. Offerdahl Dies Saturday; Rites Tuesday

George Offerdahl, 71, of Thief River Falls died unexpectedly Saturday afternoon.

Funeral services for George Offerdahl will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church with Rev. Lloyd Berger officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body will repose at Green Funeral home from Tuesday afternoon until Wednesday noon and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services. A complete obituary will be in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Services Today For Mrs. Marie Melhouse, 85

Mrs. Marie Melhouse, 85, of Crookston, sister of Mrs. Josie Johnson of Thief River Falls, died early Friday morning at a Crookston nursing home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Marie Melhouse were held today (Monday) at 10 a.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in Crookston. Rev. James Hanson officiated. Interment was in the Oakdale cemetery at Crookston with the Houske Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Melhouse, the former Marie Oistad, was born Feb. 1, 1890 in Becker county to Amund and Gurrie Oistad. She was united in marriage to Andrew Melhouse in 1907 at Fosston. Since 1931, she had made her home at Crookston. Prior to moving to Crookston, she had resided in the Fosston area.

She is survived by one son, Martin Melhouse of Crookston; three daughters: Mrs. Mabel Swanson of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. Larry (Adeline) Fontaine and Mrs. Emerald Taylor, both of Crookston; 16 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren; and her sister, Mrs. Josie Johnson of Thief River Falls.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in 1931; a son and two daughters.

"Northland community college is proud of the accomplishments of these students in academic excellence," stated president Alex Easton.

Bicentennial Youth Writing Contest Slated

Nearly 3,000 educators in elementary and high schools all over the Manitoba, Minnesota, North and South Dakota Red River Valley, this week, will receive information kits concerning the 12th annual Red River historical writing contest.

The contest is sponsored by the history departments of the University of Winnipeg, Concordia college, North Dakota state university and the Red River Valley historical society.

Bertha Rustvold, who was long-time chairman of the social studies department at Moorhead senior high school, in a recent letter pertaining to the contest stated, "The spirit of '76' should inspire all educators to promote school participation in the nationwide American bicentennial observance with special emphasis upon the quality of life in the Red River Valley."

Active involvement of youth in the Bicentennial-centennial is the major way the event will have a significant and lasting impact on young people.

RRVHS officers state that "there is no better way of moving our students from passive, bored by-standers to active, dynamic participants in the Bicentennial than by their going out and digging into the regional, local and family foundations of all we have, right here at home. And then by pulling it all together into a major, written paper, a paper which will become a part of the permanent written heritage of Red River country, they will pay their personal tribute to the Bicentennial.

In addition, this historical writing contest serves two additional purposes: It encourages original historical research among students all over the region, thus sharpening their own interest in their heritage; and it obtains from the hundreds of manuscripts acquired through the contest each year, invaluable and otherwise unobtainable family histories, histories of pioneers, journals, letters, etc.

Additional details concerning the contest can be obtained by writing to Red River historical society, Mineard Hall, North Dakota state university Fargo, N.D. 58102.

Bergland Backs "Put Up Or Close Up" Bill

Minnesota's 7th district congressman Bob Bergland last week co-sponsored legislation that would abolish nine federal regulatory agencies—"unless they can demonstrate to Congress and the President that their activities are in the public's best interest."

In effect, Bergland said, "the bill shifts the burden of defending their performance, and justifying their continued existence, to the regulatory agencies themselves."

The bill calls for the automatic end, next year, of the Civil aeronautics board; the Federal communications commission; the Federal trade commission; the federal maritime commission; the Consumer products safety commission; the Federal power commission; the Interstate commerce commission; the Security exchange commission; and the Nuclear regulatory commission unless they prove they are still needed.

Under the legislation, an agency could be retained if (1) they prove that their work is essential; (2) a Presidential or Congressional investigation demonstrates their usefulness; or (3) Congress passes a resolution reversing the automatic elimination of a specific regulatory agency.

Unless a need to continue operation is proven by any new agencies created after this bill, they would automatically be eliminated after 15 years of operation.

The bill, nicknamed the Regulatory self-destruct act, also provides for the transfer of essential agency functions to other departments once a commission has been dissolved. As an example, Bergland said: "If the Consumer product safety commission cannot demonstrate the public need for an office with full regulatory agency status, another government organization would obviously have to assume responsibility for keeping unsafe items off of the market."

Concluding, Bergland said: "Too many federal regulatory agencies have been given unquestioned powers to require reports and enforce unexplained regulations. Let them prove and justify their requirements or go out of business."

FU Challenges Remarks About Milk Pricing

Contention that "dairy marketing orders and farmer cooperatives cost consumers $500 million a year" is labeled a deliberate effort to deceive the public and discredit cooperatives, according to Cy Carpenter, Minnesota Farmers Union president.

Carpenter challenged Tanya Roberts, special consultant to the president's wage and price stability council, who issued the report, to come to Minnesota and find out the truth.

Roberts issued the report to a special conference on milk pricing sponsored by the community nutrition institute held in Washington, D.C. She said, in part, that federal milk marketing orders, coupled with the alleged monopoly power of some milk cooperatives, results in milk prices at least 22 per cent higher than they would be without government controls.

In issuing the challenge, by telegram, Carpenter stated, "This effort is an ill-veiled attempt by the Ford administration to disrupt agriculture for political gain."

"This kind of erroneous statement is damaging to consumers, especially. They are misled into thinking prices are really higher than they should be. A realistic assessment would show that dairy farmers haven't been in a profit-making situation for the past year. Those prices are not high. We urge her to come to Minnesota to find out the truth."

Issuance of this report follows the statement by secretary of agriculture Earl Butz that he will recommend to the President he veto the proposed 85 per cent parity price and quarterly adjustment bill designed to benefit dairy producers. The bill is now being considered by Congress.

"This combination of attacks serves neither consumers nor farmers, but could only benefit the ends of this administration," Carpenter said.

"The attitude being expressed by the administration toward dairy producers would signal the death of too many family-farm operations. This is the same pattern the administration has followed in supporting the infamous "Flannigan Report" which would have U.S. grain shipped to Europe and European dairy products imported to meet the needs of U.S. consumers. Under such an arrangement, consumers would be more dependent on European imports and dairy products from overseas could well bring about another OPEC situation like we have with oil," Carpenter said.

House Passes Tax Cuts And Tax Reforms

U.S. House of Representatives recently passed legislation extending for another year tax cuts for individuals and limiting the tax loophole available to the very rich.

Although he said the bill "fell short of my expectations," Minnesota's 7th district congressman Bob Bergland called the legislation "more good than bad" and supported it along with several strengthening amendments.

Bergland said the bill was made more acceptable by an amendment establishing a minimum of a 14 per cent tax on the incomes of the very rich. "The amendment is aimed at the estimated 120,000 millionaires in this country who now pay no taxes," Bergland said.

He also supported an amendment eliminating a section of the bill that reportedly would have allowed one Texas millionaire to receive a $15 million tax refund; and another amendment placing a 30 per cent tax on income made in the United States by foreign investors.

Bergland estimated that these amendments would bring an additional $706 million in tax revenues next year.

Bergland expressed disappointment that the bill did not go further but conceded: "Much of the country is still suffering from an economic recession and I expect this was about as much tax reform as the economy could handle."

Hilgenberg Is Chairman For Cancer Crusade

Playing with the Minnesota Vikings has given Wally Hilgenberg an appreciation of being on a winning team. This year, in addition to his gridiron duties, Hilgenberg will be honorary chairman of the April crusade team of the American Cancer society's Minnesota division.

"We're fielding 65,000 players throughout the state to pass out educational materials and receive donations to continue to fight against cancer," Hilgenberg said. "Last year, Minnesota led the nation by having the largest percentage increase (11.4 per cent) of the 22 divisions which raised more than a million dollars. That's Superbowl performance, and we're going to top it this year."

Mrs. Joyce Behrens, Fergus Falls, has been appointed residential chairman for the state-wide crusade, according to an announcement by Irvin Lerner, M.D., Minnesota division president. Mrs. Behrens has served as Ottertail county public information chairman and as president of the Ottertail county unit. She has served two terms on the Minnesota division board.

Goal of the 1976 crusade is $1,500,000. The Society's 65,000 volunteers will be calling on homes and businesses to distribute more than 1.5 million leaflets emphasizing the cancer's seven warning signals. Cancer is one of the most curable diseases, if caught in time. You must be alert to the warning signals of cancer and go immediately to your doctor if one of the signals develops.

Minnesota has maintained its position among the American Cancer society "Million Dollar Division" by surpassing the million dollar mark every year since 1971.

If Christmas Tree Is Fresh, It's More Safe

Christmas trees can be safe if they are fresh and owners observe prudent safety precautions, says Marvin Smith, extension forester at the University of Minnesota.

How can you, the average buyer, spot a fresh tree? You can't measure moisture, but try these tests:

(1) Run a finger down a branch. The needle should adhere to each twig.

(2) Bend a few needles. If they break, the tree is not fresh.

(3) Shake or bounce a tree lightly on the ground. If only a few green needles drop off, the tree is fresh and with proper care should maintain its freshness during the holidays.

(4) Fresh trees have moist, sticky stumps.

After purchasing a tree, store it outside in the shade or in an unheated garage, Smith suggests. When bringing the tree inside, cut the butt about an inch above the original cut. Keep the tree standing in water or in a bucket of wet sand during the entire period the tree is in the house and add a pint to a quart of water to the stand or bucket every day, Smith adds. Sprinkling water on the branches and needles before decorating the tree will help retain freshness.

Be certain the tree is well supported and away from heat sources, he warns. That means fireplaces, radiators, electric heaters, televisions, lighted candles, and frayed electrical wiring. Do not overload electric circuits and avoid placing electric toys directly under the tree. When decorating, make sure there are no exposed wires or broken sockets on the lights.

"With these simple steps, there is virtually no prospect that a natural tree will become a fire hazard in any home," Smith says. "Fresh Christmas trees will not sustain a flame and will burn only if it dries out as the result of sustained high heat such as might result when something else in the room burns and then transfers the flame to the tree," he adds.

"Too often the Christmas tree is made the implied culprit in home fires during the holiday season. Statistically, the Christmas tree's involvement in a home fire is very small when compared to matches, smoking materials or spontaneous combustion. When viewed objectively, the natural Christmas tree has an enviable home safety record," Smith says.

NORTH DAKOTA
MINNESOTA
No new power plants

Is this the way it will be ten years from now?

North Dakota and Minnesota could be facing "brownouts" or even blackouts in just ten years from now.

The demands for electricity are increasing each year as are other energy requirements. At the present time, area power plants are keeping up with today's electrical requirements by generating power through the use of lignite, a fuel in plentiful supply.

By using lignite to generate electricity, it allows limited supply fuels like gas and oil to be used in other vital areas, such as food production and transportation.

But there is the immediate danger of proposed amendments to the existing clean air act. If they are adopted, the building of additional needed power plants in our area would be impossible. The demand for electricity would then far outstrip the production. Brownouts and blackouts could happen here!

We cannot wait for 10 years to see what would happen. The time for action is now.

Something To Think About

The recent Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce "Chamber Comment" publication contained an item of general interest which we print as follows:

A report dated in August 1975, reporting retail gross sales during 1974 reveals that Pennington county had retail sales of $102,451,000 during 1974. These figures are based on sales and use tax paid on retail sales during that period. The report is compiled by the department of economic development and the department of revenue for the state.

Since this figure includes all retail sales in Pennington county (Thief River Falls, Goodridge, St. Hilaire) an estimate must be made to secure Thief River Falls business. A conservative figure for Thief River Falls would be approximately $85,000,000.

The report does include a breakdown by categories, but in compiling a figure for Thief River Falls we must consider that apparel and grocery stores do not as a rule collect sales taxes, except on special items.

Stop and think seriously what these figures mean to Thief River Falls and their merchants. This is a tremendous amount of retail sales.

Are we wrong when we say that Thief River Falls is the most progressive community in northwest Minnesota?

Do we appreciate that this means that our trade territory must like the service and merchandise we have to offer?

Comparative figures show that Polk county (Crookston, East Grand Forks, Fisher, Mentor, Erskine, Fosston and many other small communities) had retail sales of $100,142,000, compared to our sales of $102,451,000.

Are we doing all we can to show the buyers in our trade territory that we appreciate their business . . . are we doing everything we can to be sure we will continue to enjoy this excellent business?

It's something to think about!!!

Royal Runaround

Following editorial is from the Wall Street Journal:

Only six months on the job, California Governor Edmund Brown Jr. is already turning into a first class spoilsport. First he declined to move into the governor's mansion, then he put the kobosh on the practice of giving state officials attache cases paid for out of the state treasury, now he is waging war against bureaucratese.

"I don't sign anything I don't understand," the governor announced recently. And to add insult to insult, he declared: "I don't want anything written in state government that isn't intelligible. The government belongs to the people and if the people can't understand it, forget it."

We wonder if the governor realizes the broader implications of his latest crusade. Doesn't he know that brides cover up their disasters with ketchup, architects with ivy and bureaucrats with jargon? Hasn't he any feeling for those civil servants who have devoted so much of their professional life raising obscurantism to an art form? Doesn't he worry that the domino effects of his campaign against gobbledygook in government could also undermine public confidence in the law and education—or at least in those lawyers and progressive educators who have successfully fought the good fight against clarity?

Why, political survival itself is at stake, since the very foundation of politics is a blend of imprecision and equivocation. How else can the Compleat Politician solemnly promise to raise government benefits across-the-board and at the same time keep a lid on taxes? How else can candidates inveigh against big spenders even as they slice a little off the federal pork barrel for their own constituency?

The National Observer recently reported that several weeks after a citizen complained about delayed mail, the British post office informed him that "after a thorough examination, we are able to establish that the late arrival of your mail was due to delay in transit." Do tell! Oh well, if that explanation didn't shed an awful lot of light on the immediate cause of the citizen's complaint, at least he didn't have to wade through several pages of bureaucratese before it dawned on him that no answer would be forthcoming. Moreover, the official British response may not have been exactly illuminating, but even a royal runaround is easier to take when the language is intelligible.

Following is from the San Francisco Examiner and Chronicle:

Plumas county wants to cut out welfare.

But maybe we should ask why the people of Plumas County are in a mood to kick somebody. Judging from the mail, overwhelmingly favorable, that has poured into the courthouse at Quincy, the rebellion hatched there is symptomatic of an attitude that extends far beyond the Plumas county line.

In part it's all the emotions that we compress into the phrase "welfare chiselers," an honest resentment of being played for suckers and a less honest desire to dodge the collection plate.

This is the least admirable ingredient in the kick-somebody attitude and, I suspect, not the main one.

For that let's switch to Sacramento and listen to the state bureaucrats scream that Plumas county damn well won't be allowed to cut out welfare.

Why not? Because that would disqualify the whole state from getting close to what is really bugging the people of Plumas county. They are sick and tired of having Washington and its errand boy, Sacramento, run their lives for them.

It used to be you could go for months without crossing paths with the guver'mint. For the first 12 years of my life my only contact with the U.S. was when I bought a stamp at the post office. Looking back, those were the best 12 years.

Nowadays when you get up in the morning there is this yo-yo from HEW or HUD or UMPT or UGH looking over your shoulder, telling you which shoe to tie first.

And if you tie the wrong one, he cuts off your federal handout.

Ah, that's the big whip. If your state doesn't adopt a 55 m.p.h. speed limit, it loses its federal highway funds. If your school has too many blue-eyed kids, it loses its federal education grant. And if anyone anywhere dares to say welfare is a fraud, wham-bang, there's no welfare money for anybody.

Pretty soon you resent doing even those things you know are good for you because Washington, that big nagging mother, says you must.

Even Gov. Brown feels the urge to rebel. At the same time he was telling Plumas county it couldn't cut out welfare, he was threatening to tell Washington to take its Safe Streets money and stick it.

Americans worry about a dictatorship of the right or left, neither of which is likely to happen. What we are courting is a distatorship of the do-gooders.

Already we are surrounded by federal fanatics who believe they have a Congress-given right to tell us how to live our lives and spend our money because, they can clearly see, they know what is best for us.

People with that kind of glint in their eyes are usually a little crazy, and in fact a case can be made that the government has gone mad, that the inmates are running the asylum.

Two trifling examples from the week just past:

The Supreme Court and Nut Hatchery agreed that a drive-in movie operator has a perfect right to flash nude bedroom scenes on his big screen in plain view of passing motorists, including those entering a church parking lot.

Let them look the other way, said the dirty old men in the black robes, which distinguish them from the men in the white coats.

A Rigorous Life

Following editorial is from the Winona Daily News:

Members of Congress have just raised their pay from $42,500 to $44,625 a year. We're not certain whether that's a merit increase or a cost-of-living boost.

Sen. Mike Mansfield is proud, for example, that the Senate has been in session for 930 hours this year as of Oct. 23. That was in 146 working days.

Let's see now Oct. 23 was the 296th day of 1975, so that means they had 150 days off.

It's a strenuous life. Sen. Mansfield hopes that the session can be adjourned Dec. 12—so that everyone can get home for Christmas.

As for next year the rest and recuperation leave looks like this: Feb. 6-16; April 14-26; May 28-June 2; July 2-19; Aug. 11-23; Sept. 1-7, and adjournment, Oct. 2.

Another day, another dollar.

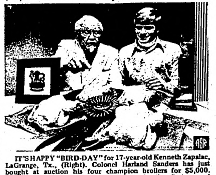
$5,000 'Bird-Day' For 4-H Boy



IT'S HAPPY "BIRD-DAY" for 17-year-old Kenneth Zapalac, LaGrange, Tx., (Right). Colonel Harland Sanders has just bought at auction his four champion broilers for $5,000. Zapalac's birds were named the best in the first annual National Junior Dressed Broiler Show.

KANSAS CITY, MO., — It's happy "bird-day" for 17-year-old Kenneth Zapalac, a 4-H boy from LaGrange, Texas. His grand champion entry in the National Junior Dressed Broiler Show was sold at auction to Colonel Harland Sanders for five thousand dollars.

Competing against 325 4-H and Future Farmer of America members from across the nation, Zapalac's entry of four broilers took top honors.

When asked why he would pay $5,000 for just under 11 pounds of chicken meat, Colonel Sanders said, "I like to help these fine youngsters and I look at this as a very special scholarship to this deserving young man."

Zapalac says he hopes to use his earnings to help pay for his studies. If things go right, he'll be attending Texas A & M University, majoring in agribusiness and poultry science.

The top ten entries in the show were sold at an auction breakfast for a combined total of $6,320. The National Junior Dressed Broiler Show, sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken is a new feature of the American Royal Livestock, Horse Show and Rodeo.

Others in the top ten entries include Kathy Behlen, who showed the reserve champion, from Gonzales, Texas; Brian Mozisek, LaGrange, Texas; Wendy Traigle, Napoleonville, Louisiana; Larry Bippert, LaGrange, Texas; Shawn Behlen, Gonzales, Texas (took two places in the top ten); Lyn Leonhardt, Carmine, Texas; Randy Pearson, Prairie Grove, Arkansas and Randy Easley, Siloam Springs, Arkansas.

In addition to the sale, Kentucky Fried Chicken provided $2,150 in prize money to be divided among the top ten contestants.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In response to your editorial of December 8, we would like to express a viewpoint of parents of children who derive benefits in both skating programs.

We have a son in the hockey program, a daughter in the recreational figure skating program, and another son who is taking advantage of both programs. If there were a racing program, he'd no doubt want to compete in that also! We feel he will develop skating skills from both existing programs which will enable him to enjoy skating, which is the reason people young and old put on skates—for enjoyment.

We as parents could not choose one child's enjoyment above the other because of the equal merit of each program. Thus we feel a spirit of cooperation among the various skaters and committees can be a big plus for this community.

Humphrey Reports

To Minnesotans

America's food stamp program is currently under fire from conservatives who would like to see it drastically curtailed, among them Treasury Secretary William Simon and Senator James Buckley of New York. Provocative as they are, their attacks are based on three fallacies.

Size. Critics claim that the food stamp program is out of control, that the number of recipients has swelled to outrageous proportions. This is simply not the case.

It is true that when the program was enacted into Federal law in 1965, it was slow to get underway, with only 70 counties in the nation offering food stamps. However, at that time, thousands of other counties were operating food distribution programs, directly granting commodities to the needy.

As those counties changed over from distributing food to administering food stamps, it made the food stamp program appear to be growing at an incredible rate, although it was simply a substitution of one system of aid for another.

But the program leveled off in 1971, and remained stable until the recession hit with full force in mid-1974. As unemployment increased, so did the food stamp rolls. But this year, as unemployment began to come down a little, so did food stamp use. In fact, almost a million people have left the program in the last few months alone.

Income. Attackers of the program claim that middleclass families are abusing the system. But when the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee took a hard look at the figures, we found that fully two-thirds of food stamp recipients have net annual incomes below $4000—the poorest of the poor.

We found no families above $10,000 a year using the program, and of those households earning from $9,000 to $10,000 only one-tenth of one percent were issued food stamps. This hardly constitutes middle-class abuse; the system is clearly working hardest for those who need it most.

Fraud. Critics have called the food stamp program a "haven for chiselers and rip-off artists." But the Committee found just the opposite to be true. After extensive research and hearings, the investigation concluded that the fraud rate was extremely low. According to the most recent figures, only eight families in every 10,000 obtain their food stamps fraudulently—an extremely small fraction of one per cent.

As result of the committee's investigation, I am happy to be able to report that the food stamp program is in good health. Of course, we will continue to improve the program, but it is basically a good program, a sensible and humane program, and one of which all Americans can be proud.

The post office, whose first class rates go up again after Christmas, is experimenting with a service to take our minds off our pain: express mail with a money-back guarantee if the letter or package is not delivered by 3 p.m. the next day. It will cost more than first class though—lots more.

Warriors, Skippers Hand Eagles Basketball Losses

Grygla lost a pair of basketball games over the weekend as the Eagles fell to Strandquist 71-63 Friday and suffered a 96-35 beating at the hands of Middle River Saturday.

The two losses stretched Grygla's season-opening losing streak to four straight losses. The Eagles will go after their first win tomorrow (Tuesday) at Warroad.

Grygla and Strandquist battled on even terms throughout most of Friday night's game at Grygla before the Warriors posted a 71-63 triumph.

Strandquist posted narrow quarter leads of 16-12, 38-32 and 55-53 before the Warriors out-scored the Eagles 16-10 in the fourth stanza for the win.

Randy Borowicz of Strandquist took game high scoring honors with 25 points while Lowell Lefrooth scored 16 and Paul Grochowski 14 for the Warriors. Gary Satre continued his hot scoring hand for Grygla, pumping in 21 points. Gordy Moe added 13, Jeff Standley 12 and Arlo Hagen 11 for the Eagles.

Strandquist won the game with a sizzling 51 per cent shooting eye from the field as the Warriors hit 30 of 59 field goal attempts. Grygla shot 37 per cent on 27 of 73 tries. Strandquist made 11 of 24 free throw opportunities while Grygla sank nine of 22 gift tosses.

Grygla coach Van Swanson pointed to Strandquist's shooting as the key to the game. "That (51 per cent shooting) is pretty doggone tough to beat," he quipped. "We got in foul trouble, too, and lost a couple of our key men at the end. We did play a pretty good game overall, though."

Six Middle River scorers reached double figures as the Skippers crushed Grygla 96-35 at Middle River Saturday.

Elwin Ness led the high-scoring Skippers with 21 points while Mike Carriere scored 19, Terry Peterson 14, Rick Rantanen 13, Gary Ryba 12 and Delray Beito 10. Satre was the only Grygla scorer in double figures with 14 points.

Middle River jumped out to a 28-6 first quarter lead, made it 56-15 by halftime and enjoyed a 70-24 third quarter bulge.

"We played poor ball," admitted Swanson, "and they've got a very, very good ball club. We tried to run with them which was a bad mistake on our part. They shot 70 per cent from the field in the first half and we were cold."

Rick Johnson Is Winner In Pool Tourney Finals

Rick Johnson of Thief River Falls was named winner Thursday in the month-long eight-ball pool tournament conducted at the Luvin Limey.

Johnson earned the tournament's $70 first prize for his efforts and was presented with a championship trophy by Luvin Limey assistant manager Jim Willett.

Duke Johnson and Gary Johnson of Thief River Falls were second and third place finishers, respectively, and earned trophies along with $20 and $10 in prize money.

About 60 entries started the tournament in mid-November.

Spring Sports State Meets To Have New Look

Several changes in policies for spring sports state tournaments in 1976 were approved by the Minnesota State High School League board of directors at their December meeting.

The most significant changes will occur in baseball and golf.

After being conducted for the past 14 years in Midway Stadium in St. Paul, the 30th annual state high school baseball tournament will be held next June at St. Cloud's Municipal Stadium. St. Cloud previously had been the host city in 1954 and 1961.

The format of the baseball tournament will change with competition being held in two classes for the first time—Class AA and Class A. In addition first round quarterfinal games will be played at neutral sites in their geographical areas on June 7. Semifinal, third place and final games in each class will be played in St. Cloud on June 10-11.

Pairings for first round baseball games will match teams from Regions 1, 2, 3, 4, and Regions 5, 6, 7 and 8. Pairings for quarterfinal games in 1976 will pit Regions 1 vs. 2; Regions 3 vs. 4; Regions 5 vs. 6; and Regions 7 vs. 8 in each of the two classes. Sites for those quarterfinal games will be determined through the cooperation of the MSHSL staff and region committees.

The new baseball tournament plan was adopted for two years.

After being held for many years at the University of Minnesota golf course in St. Paul, the state high school golf tournament will also have a change in site and format.

For the first time ever the tournament will be conducted in classes—Class AA and Class A.

The Class A golf competition will be held at the Willmar Country Club in Willmar on June 2-3 with Class AA play scheduled for the Majestic Oaks Country Club in Blain on June 3-4. Eighteen holes will be played each day.

The advancement procedure from Class A and Class AA golfing regions to the state tournaments will include the top five individual finishers in each region plus the winning team.

Sites for the 1976 state girls' and boys' track and field meets will remain the same as in 1975 with the state girls' track and field meet scheduled for Richfield high school June 4-5 and the state boys' track and field meet slated once again for St. Cloud Apollo high school June 4-5.

Changes will occur in the structure of both track meets. The girls will have competition for the first time in two classes—Class AA and Class A— and the boys will also compete in Classes AA and A, unlike last year's format which had three classes—AA, A, and B.

State, Federal Forest Program Pact Signed

An agreement creating a comprehensive fish and wildlife management program for the two national forests located in Minnesota was concluded last month at a ceremony in St. Paul.

The program would cost $8.8 million over a five year period but has yet to be funded by the Congress.

The agreement covers the 650,000 acre Chippewa national forest in north central Minnesota and the 2,169,000 acre Superior national forest in the northeast.

Representing the state of Minnesota at a signing ceremony were governor Wendell Anderson and commissioner of Natural resources Robert Herbst. Signing for the federal government was regional forester Jay Cravens of the U.S. forest service eastern region.

Basic elements in the program are forest and wetland habitat management; endangered, threatened and unique species; wildlife census and surveys; and fisheries. The program was put together by working committees of state and federal personnel with input from the public.

"The wildlife resource is an important benefit of both national forests, providing hunting and fishing and other recreational opportunities," said Herbst.

He said that management of the lakes and streams in the two national forests will be intensified to provide better fishing and protection of the aquatic resources.

Under the program, the Minnesota department of natural resources and the U.S. forest service will coordinate their management activities to achieve the goal of enhancing fish and wildlife habitat.

The program is an outgrowth of the Sikes act, signed by the president on October 18, 1974. The act directs the secretary of agriculture to consult with state agencies in order to develop a comprehensive plan for fish and wildlife conservation and rehabilitation on the national forests.

"Hopefully," said Herbst, "the program in Minnesota will lead to an improvement in the habitat for deer, grouse, and other forest wildlife, both game and non game, within our two national forests."

St. Paul Race Site Is Selected For Snowmobiling World Series

United States snowmobile association has announced the selection of St. Paul as the site for the seventh annual USSA world series of snowmobiling.

The event, to be held February 20-22, is the most prestigous in snowmobile competition and annually features the most successful racers and teams from throughout North America. Drivers become eligible to compete at the world series based on their performance and points obtained throughout the entire race season.

In announcing the selection of St. Paul to host the event, USSA national president Don Thompson praised the facility as "one of the finest racing sites in North America."

The three days of competition will be conducted on the .6 mile banked, oval track at the Minnesota state fairgrounds. "Grandstand seating for 21,500 spectators, spacious parking and pit facilities, and the conveniences of a major metropolitan area such as St. Paul-Minneapolis, should make this the most successful world series in the history of the USSA", said Thompson. He added, "It will serve as a championship tribute to the finest drivers in snowmobile racing, who will be competing in this important event."

The world series location has alternated each year between the eastern and central divisions of the USSA. Last year the race was held in Weedsport, New York.

John Helland of Brooklyn Center is chairman of the sponsoring organization, Champion Makers, Inc.; and a guaranteed purse of $25,000 plus contingency prizes and money is being offered; along with championship trophies for all five places in each class of competition. Helland is experienced in USSA racing and he has been a leader in the St. Paul winter carnival snotona race, a USSA sanctioned event which is also held on the fairgrounds facility. In addition, Helland serves as the USSA central division youth committee chairman, and as a Minnesota state board representative.

Thompson pointed out that Helland heads a group of over 70 experienced race workers, who will provide a smooth running and successful operation for the world series weekend. Thompson said, "The world series committee, in selecting St. Paul, feels totally assured of a top level racing facility, as well as an experienced and capable sponsoring organization."

World series snowmobile competition will be on an invitational basis to high point champions from the USSA eastern, central, Alaskan, and western divisions. In addition, high point drivers from other racing associations throughout the United States and Canada will receive invitations to compete.

Thomas said, "This will be truely an international championship event, and the seventh annual USSA world series of snowmobiling will reflect the spirit of '76."

Spear Illegal While Angling

Minnesota conservation officer Donald Fearn has asked the Times to remind ice fishermen that there has been no change in Minnesota law to allow anglers to have a spear in a dark house while angling.

Fearn said rumors abound that the law has been changed but that they are unfounded. It is still illegal to have a spear in a darkhouse while fishing with a hook and line.

New Conference Affects NWAC

It was made official last week that Brainerd, thought to be a prime candidate for Northwest Conference membership, will not be added to the NWAC line-up.

Although Brainerd had shown interest in the Northwest Conference, the Warriors instead were one of six teams who formed a new league last week. Brainerd, Little Falls, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech and Willmar and Alexandria will form the new Central Minnesota Conference.

Current Northwest Conference member Fergus Falls was originally part of the new conference plan along with Moorhead, but those two schools apparently will not join the others. However, it's believed that Cambridge and Elk River might.

The new conference will begin operation in the fall of 1977 with competition in all sports, boys and girls.

The formation of the Central Minnesota Conference does affect Thief River Falls and the rest of the Northwest Conference schools—Fergus Falls, Bemidji, East Grand Forks and Crookston—in a way.

Alexandria and Willmar will be leaving the West Central Conference to play in the Central Minnesota Conference, and the Northwest and West Central winners have been meeting in a post-season football conference playoff game for the past three years, with Willmar and Alexandria appearing in two of those playoff games.

Little Falls will be leaving the Mid-State Conference to join the Central Minnesota Conference, bringing to light the recent talks between Northwest and Mid-State Conference officials concerning some type of merger or reorganization between the two leagues.

Brainerd, St. Cloud Tech and St. Cloud Apollo are currently independent schools with no conference affiliations.

Crookston Upsets Fertile Matmen

Crookston registered what head coach Richard Kramchuck called "the biggest win for us in a long time," Tuesday when the Pirates upset Fertile 28-27 in a dual meet wrestling match at Crookston.

The match was decided with a climactic heavyweight battle between Crookston's Laine Bennen and Fertile's Dwight Christian.

The Pirates led 28-23 going into the heavyweight finale and Christian almost won it for the Falcons by putting Bennen on his back with 16 seconds left in the third period. However, Bennen managed to brace himself against a pin and although he lost a 14-4 decision, Christian was not able to gain the match-winning pin.

Thief River Falls lost to both Crookston and Fertile earlier this season. The Prowlers bowed to the Pirates 38-23 and lost to Fertile 47-6.

Fertile, the defending Region Eight champion, has now lost three dual meet decisions this winter after running up an impressive winning streak that covered some 50 matches. Bagley snapped the Falcon win streak, a Fertile loss that was followed by defeats at the hands of Greenbush and now Crookston.

Thief River Falls wrestled at Greenbush Thursday and Bagley is scheduled to be here tomorrow (Tuesday) for a 7:30 p.m. match.

Miscellaneous

+A.J. Kramer of Roseau was named Region Eight cross country coach of the year. He'll be eligible for state coach of the year honors in January.

+Wonder Monds, a starter ahead of Thief River Falls' Kent Smith as a monsterback in the University of Nebraska defensive secondary during the 1975 football season, was named first team All-American by the Associated Press.

+Kevin Lindberg, a state high school wrestling champion at Fertile, is now a freshman on the Concordia College wrestling team in Moorhead. He wrestles at 177 pounds for the Cobbers.

+University of Minnesota-Crookston players Mike Karkhoff, Greg Smith, Mickey Jones and Kurt Oravetz were all named all-region football selections this week for the five-state area NJCAA Region 13.

Northland Six Sweep Mesabi Series 7-6, 6-5

Northland community college hockey team opened its 1975-76 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) season in grand fashion Saturday and Sunday with a two-game weekend sweep over Mesabi.

New Northland coach Curt Geatz made his debut Saturday when the Northmen took a 7-6 overtime decision in a game played at Hoyt Lakes. Northland won Sunday's encounter at Virginia by a 6-5 score.

Northland is idle now until a Friday-Saturday weekend series against Hibbing here January 9-10.

NCC 7, Mesabi 6

Mesabi jumped out to a 4-0 first period lead Saturday before Northland got untracked.

Third period goals by John Presting, Scott Engelstad and Al Martin brought Northland within 4-3. Jim Elleson, Chris Skrutvold and Jim Moran earned assists on the play.

Northland dominated play throughout most of the game, but could not break a 6-6 third period tie. Skrutvold and Craig Ulness scored for the Northmen in the third period. Engelstad assisted on Skrutvold's goal and Ulness notched an unassisted marker.

Moran won it for the Northmen about four minutes into the sudden death overtime session. Tom Barry brought the puck from behind the net and passed to Moran who slammed in a close range game-winner. Jon Hakala also picked up an assist on the play.

Northland out-shot Mesabi 35-24. Tim Erickson played in the nets for the Northmen.

"We definitely dominated the game," pointed out Geatz. "We played about 75 per cent of the game in their end, but we couldn't put the puck in the net. The game should have never gone into overtime. It was frustrating."

NCC 6, Mesabi 5

In opposite fashion from Saturday, Northland jumped out to a 4-0 first period lead in Sunday's game before escaping with a narrow 6-5 win.

Jim Elleson scored twice to start the game. His first goal, assisted by Dale Palm, came just 51 seconds into the contest. Eight minutes later he scored an unassisted goal. Tom Barry and John Presting made it a 4-0 game. Barry scored with help from Wes Roberts and Craig Ulness. Presting was assisted by Chris Skrutvold and Roberts. Mesabi scored the only goal in the game's second period, but the Virginia school out-scored Northland 4-2 in the third period to make things tight.

Three straight Mesabi goals tied the game 4-4 with 8:23 remaining, but goals by Ulness and Skrutvold just 3:37 apart put Northland ahead for keeps. Ulness was assisted by Presting and Elleson and Engelstad was credited with an assist on Skrutvold's actual game winner as Mesabi scored the final goal.

Erickson kicked out 34 saves while teammates fired 35 times at the Mesabi nets.

"We've got to be satisfied with two wins," commented Geatz, "but we couldn't put it together Sunday. We had penalty problems, but we hung in there and got the job done."

Prowlers Rally To Tie Grand Forks Central 3-3 In Overtime

Thief River Falls recovered from a 3-0 deficit to tie Grand Forks Central 3-3 Saturday in an overtime hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Sluggish Prowler start spotted the visiting Redskins an early lead, but a strong finish by the host club forced the game into an eight minute sudden death overtime period, a scoreless session in which both teams failed to capitalize on several scoring opportunities.

Steve Purpur scored first for Central with a well-placed wrist shot into the lower left-hand corner of the net just 4:18 into the first period. The goal was set up by several sharp passes during a Redskin power play.

Central went ahead 2-0 when Rick Palmiscno's long, lazy slap shot from the blueline skipped through the legs of Thief River Falls goalie Terry Sullivan. The unexpected goal came at the 9:16 mark of the first period while the Redskins were penalty skating.

Thief River Falls fell behind 3-0 six minutes into the second period when Bill Wedin did a good job of digging the puck out from along the boards and setting up teammate John Cunningham who was standing unguarded face-to-face with Sullivan.

Bob Forberg finally snapped the Prowler dry spell and ignited the sports arena crowd by beating Central goalie Neil Whalen with a 20-foot slap shot while on the move 10:09 into the second period. Jeff Lindquist earned an assist on the play, a two-on-one Prowler break.

Thief River Falls, fully recovered from its first period doldrums, scored twice in the third period to tie the game 3-3.

Doug Dallmann made it a 3-2 game with an unusual goal 5:06 into the period. Dallmann and Central defenseman Mike Lerud collided and slid into Whalen and the three players, along with the puck, went into the Redskin net. Dallmann was credited with an unassisted goal on the play.

Junior center Scott Bergland capped a strong night's work for him and linemates Gordy Markstrom and Steve Geatz by scoring the tying goal at 9:09. Markstrom missed a clean breakaway shot, but Geatz grabbed the rebound and passed to Bergland who dribbled an end-over-end wrist shot past Whalen.

The final minutes of regulation time and most of the overtime period kept the fans on the edge of their seats as both teams came up with several near-goals.

"The first period killed us," said Prowler coach Bill McGann. "We played very poorly in the first period, but the kids dug down and came back and played well in the second and third periods."

Both goalies had busy nights, kicking out an equal number of 24 shots. Sullivan was peppered with 14 shots in the first period while Whalen was showered with 14 shots in the third stanza.

Thief River Falls, 1-2-1 for the year, will be right back in action tomorrow (Tuesday) when the Prowlers host Crookston Cathedral in a 7:30 p.m. game in the sports arena.

TRF Wins Fosston Swim Invitational

Thief River Falls' first venture into invitational meet competition proved to be highly successful Saturday as the Prowler swimmers captured top honors in a seven-team event at Fosston.

Coach John Kopari's Prowlers finished the day with 220 points. Fosston was a distant second with 167½ points, followed by Bemidji with 120½, Moorhead 119, Grand Forks Red River 112, Detroit Lakes 111 and Grand Forks Central 33.

Prowler co-captain Mark Storhaug was named the meet's most valuable swimmer as he won two events and was a member of a winning relay team. Storhaug won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:16 and took the 500-yard freestyle in 5:25.6. Storhaug teammed with Dan Cork, Jeff Carter and Greg Omdahl to win the 200-yard medley relay event in 1:51.4.

Dan Heleren, who is the Prowler co-captain along with Storhaug, matched Storhaug's efforts with a pair of in-

Plummer, Willett Trip RLF 46-45 In Overtime

Plummer sophomore Dan Willett, playing in his first varsity game, scored the game-winning basket on a last second shot Friday as the Cardinals edged Red Lake Falls 46-45 in an overtime basketball game played at Plummer.

Red Lake Falls led 45-44 in the final seconds of the overtime period when Plummer missed several rebound shots at the basket before gaining possession out of bounds underneath the Cardinal basket with just two seconds showing on the clock.

Tom Willett tossed the inbounds pass to brother Dan who found himself open underneath the bucket for his game-winning heroics.

The win lifted Plummer's 1975-76 season record to 2-0 heading into a Tuesday night test at home against Oklee.

Red Lake Falls led 11-8 at the first quarter break before Plummer rallied to take a 28-15 halftime lead. Plummer led by as much as 10 points early in the third quarter before settling for a 33-28 advantage going into the fourth period. However, Red Lake Falls came away with a 39-39 tie when the buzzer sounded, sending the game into overtime.

"We played well at times," said Plummer coach Paul Williams. "Our full court press, although we didn't force many turnovers, wrecked their offensive continuity."

Dave Walter and Carl Torkelson scored 14 points apiece for Plummer while Scott Miller had 13 and Duane Hoeffer 10 for Red Lake Falls.

Williams had special praise for Torkelson who hit several long range baskets in the late stages of the game for the Cardinals. Williams also cited the play of both Dan and Tom Willett. Dan came off the bench in the third quarter and played well, said Williams and Tom pulled down a team-high 11 rebounds for the Cardinals.

Plummer shot 33 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 17 of 51 attempts. The Cardinals made only 12 of 22 free throw tries while Red Lake Falls made seven of 10 gift tosses.

Goodridge Girls Clobber Climax By 79-9 Score

Unbeaten Goodridge lifted its 1975-76 season record to 4-0 Thursday by crushing Climax 79-9 in a girls' high school basketball game played at Climax.

In another area game, Grygla clobbered Baudette 54-23.

Goodridge 79, Climax 9

Goodridge set school records on both offense and defense with a resounding 79-9 romp over Climax.

Georgine Troska poured in 32 points for the Huskies while Laurie Kiesow added 16 and Shirley Grabowska had 11.

Goodridge owned a 16-5 first quarter lead, enjoyed a 38-8 halftime cushion and then held Climax to just one point after intermission enroute to a 69-9 third quarter bulge.

The Huskies are scheduled to play at Argyle tonight (Monday) before hosting Oklee Thursday.

Grygla improved its record to 2-3 with a one-sided 54-23 win over visiting Baudette.

The Eagles jumped out to a 14-6 first quarter lead, made it 27-10 by halftime and enjoyed a 43-15 cushion at the third quarter break.

Connie Sistad scored a game-high 16 points for Grygla and Dawn Satre added 10. Carol Pirkl scored nine points for Baudette.

Lincoln high school freshman basketball team stretched its 1975-76 season record to 3-0 Friday with a 46-31 win at Mahnomen.

Thief River Falls led at every quarter break, 14-6, 23-14 and 37-20.

Bryant Peppin scored 16 points for the winners while Bill Michalek added 10.

Lincoln freshman will be involved in tournament competition this weekend in conjunction with the annual Prowler holiday tournament. The freshman squad will play Warren at 3 p.m. Friday while Karlstad meets Fosston at 4:30 that same day in the Lincoln gym. The Friday losers will meet in Saturday's 2 p.m. consolation game while Friday's winners clash in Saturday's 3:45 p.m. championship game.

Mahnomen Decks TRF Basketball Squad 75-59

Mahnomen broke open a tight first half ball game by dominating play after intermission Friday enroute to a decisive 75-59 high school basketball win over visiting Thief River Falls.

The defending Region Eight champion Indians owned just a 35-31 halftime lead, but that margin reached a 13-point spread at 54-41 by the time a disastrous Prowler third quarter came to an end.

Back-to-back buckets by Thief River Falls guard Terry Dyrdal kept the Prowlers within a 42-39 range midway through the third period, but Mahnomen suddenly exploded offensively, out-scoring Thief River Falls 12-2 over the late stages of the stanza. A variety of Indians scored during the uprising while only a short jump shot by Dave Poole put Prowler points on the board.

Mahnomen's offense continued to shine in the fourth quarter when the Indians enjoyed their biggest lead of the game, a 21-point bulge at 68-47 on a turnaround jumper by sophomore forward Myron Kersting with about three minutes left.

"We had a defensive breakdown," explained Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters about his team's second half performance.

Peters pointed to an injury suffered by senior guard Don Forney as a major factor in the ball game. Forney left the game with a leg injury just prior to Mahnomen's big third quarter outburst and he didn't return to action until most of the Indians' damage had been done. "We were still in the game when we lost Forney," said Peters. "Without him in there, we lost control, we lost our composure."

Coach Ray Stinar's Mahnomen ball club led most of the ball game. The Indians posted a 14-11 first quarter advantage and owned several leads of up to seven points in the early stages of the second period before Thief River Falls took control of happenings for a short spell.

Thief River Falls trailed 24-17 when the Prowlers suddenly broke loose for seven straight points to tie the game 24-24. John Larson put in a rebound to start the surge with 5:30 remaining. Forney hit one of two free throws and followed with a long set shot. Dyrdal then canned a long jumper to gain the deadlock.

Mahnomen guard Myron Brusven put the Indians back into the lead with a single free throw, but Forney hit again from the field, this time banking in a driving lay-up, to give the Prowlers their first lead of the game, 27-25.

Dyrdal scored on a fast break to push the Prowler lead to 29-25, but Mahnomen tied the game again on a base line jumper by Jon Otto and a pair of free throws by Dale Schoenborn with two minutes remaining in the first half.

Poole dropped in a short hook shot to give the Prowlers what was to be their last lead of the game as Mahnomen finished the first half with six straight points from the free thrown line. Greg Stock, Schoenborn and Kersting all scored twice from the charity stripe, with Kersting making two free throws with time already expired.

Thief River Falls' backcourt of Forney and Dyrdal carried the bulk of the Prowler scoring load as Forney finished with 19 points and Dyrdal added 14. Forward Dave Poole came off the bench to score 11 points.

"Our front line didn't do the job for us offensively or defensively," said Peters. "Our guards played well and I thought Poole did a nice job. But we've got to get more scoring and better defense out of our front line people."

Paul Muckenhirn tossed in 19 points and Stock added 18 for the Indians. "Stock really hurt us," pointed out Peters. "We knew Muckenhirn would score, but Stock surprised us by getting 18."

Mahnomen shot a nifty 60 per cent from the field for the game, but mostly because Prowler defenders let the Indians slip inside for easy buckets. Mahnomen made 27 of 45 field goal tries. Thief River Falls shot at a 40 per cent clip, making 26 of 65 attempts. Mahnomen enjoyed a big advantage at the free throw line where the Indians sank 21 of 29 gift tosses. Thief River Falls hit seven of 14 free throw opportunities. The Prowlers finished with a 29-21 rebound edge.

Thief River Falls, 2-1 for the year, will travel to Grand Forks to face a strong Central team tomorrow (Tuesday).

Lincoln Girls Lose To Moorhead 33-17

Lincoln high school girls' basketball team closes out the 1975 portion of its 1975-76 season schedule today (Monday) when the Prowlers host Fisher in the Lincoln gym.

Today's game is a late afternoon affair. Junior varsity action is scheduled to start at 3 p.m. and the varsity game is expected to start about 4 p.m.

Thief River Falls is still looking for its first win of the year after losing a one-sided 33-17 decision to Moorhead Thursday. The loss to the Spuds was the Prowlers' fifth straight setback of the year.

Moorhead owned a narrow 6-4 lead after a slow-moving first quarter, but the Spuds stretched the margin to 16-7 by halftime, thanks largely to a 10-point offensive effort by Moorhead standout Mary Grinaker, a 5-10 junior forward.

Moorhead maintained a 22-14 edge as the third quarter came to an end and the Spuds dominated the final eight minutes to win handily.

Grinaker finished the game with 13 points, high scorer for either team. Sophomore center Cheri Onkka topped the Prowler scoring charts with a modest six points.

A terribly cold shooting performance and a substantial rebound deficit proved fatal to Thief River Falls. The Prowlers made only six of 48 field goal attemps for the game, a dismal 13 per cent figure. The Prowlers hit just two of 28 first half shots from the floor. Moorhead, meanwhile, hit 13 of 64 tries for a 20 per cent effort. The Prowlers made five of 11 free throw opportunities while the Spuds connected on seven of 11 gift tosses. Moorhead finished with a hefty 46-24 rebound advantage. The Spuds also topped the turnover charts 20-16.

Lincoln junior varsity improved its record to 3-2 with a 30-25 victory in the preliminary game. Kelly Storhaug scored 10 points for the winners who led at every quarter stop, 4-1, 12-11 and 22-13.

Mahnomen Tops Basketball JV Team By 61-45

Mahnomen handed the Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team its first loss of the 1975-76 season Friday by a 61-45 margin at Mahnomen.

Mahnomen led 13-9 at the first quarter break, made it 34-16 at halftime and enjoyed a 48-30 third quarter cushion.

Peter Lee topped the Thief River Falls scoring charts with 15 points.

dividual wins and a spot on a winning relay squad. Heleren won the 200-yard freestyle in 2:00.6 and captured the 100-yard freestyle in 54.3.

Heleren, Cork, Omdahl and Jim Harris teammed up to win the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:42.6.

Paul Schnaper of Bemidji was also a double event winner as he took the 50-yard freestyle in 24.5 and the 100-yard backstroke in 1:01.3.

Other individual winners included Scott Faulk of Moorhead with a 1:03.0 in the 100-yard butterfly; Jim Larson of Fosston with 249.65 points in the diving competition; and Andy McArthy of Detroit Lakes with a 1:08.7 in the 100-yard breastroke.

Thief River Falls faces double duty this week. The Prowlers travel to Brainerd for a 4 p.m. dual meet tommorrow (Tuesday) before playing host to Moorhead in a 7 p.m. meet in the Franklin middle school pool Thursday. Thief River Falls is 2-0 in dual meet competition.

Sioux JV Claim Second Four-Point Win Over NCC

University of North Dakota junior varsity basketball team picked up its second four-point win over Northland community college in about a week's span Saturday as the Sioux stopped the Northmen 72-68 in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

Nine days earlier North Dakota edged Northland 68-64 in overtime at Northland. Coach Chet Engelman's Northland squad, now 3-2 for the year, returns to action tomorrow (Tuesday) when the Northmen play host to the Grand Forks Air Force base team in a 7:30 p.m. game.

A late game rally nearly gave Northland a come-from-behind win in Saturday's rematch. North Dakota led 70-62 with just 1:12 remaining when Northland scored three times to pull within 70-68. But forced into a must-foul situation, the Northmen sent Jay Gibson of the Sioux to the free throw line with six seconds left. Gibson made both ends of the bonus situation to seal the decision.

"I'm disappointed we lost," said Engelman, "but we learned we can come back. I'm not disappointed in our kids. We did a lot of things right. The kids didn't quit and we put on a heck of a rally."

The game featured a see-saw first half. Northland assured itself of a halftime advantage when sophomore forward Bill Whitney scored six straight points for a 33-25 Northman lead with 1:28 left. Northland led 37-29 at halftime.

Emery Koenig, a 6-8 sophomore, sparked a second half North Dakota surge that scored eight straight points to give the Sioux the lead for keeps. Koenig dropped in five three throws during the drive that gave the Sioux a 59-55 lead with 6:41 remaining.

Koenig finished as the game's high scorer with 32 points. Dave Wahlers added 12 and Gibson 10 for North Dakota. Whitney pumped in 17 points for the Northmen while Preston Curtis scored 12 and Tom Johnson 10.

"Whitney played a very nice ball game for us," praised Engelman who also cited the defensive play by Joe Brown and the rebounding work of Bill Gusa.

Northland out-shot North Dakota from the field but lost the game at the free throw line. The Northmen made 32 of 80 field goal tries for a 40 per cent showing while the Sioux made 25 of 57 shots for 44 per cent. However, North Dakota made 22 of 28 free throw opportunities while Northland made four of only seven gift tosses. Northland enjoyed a 61-42 rebound advantage as Whitney pulled down 13 caroms and Gusa added 12. North Dakota topped the turnover charts 19-15.

Lincoln Hockey JV Squad Stops GF Central 5-3

Five different players scored goals Saturday as the Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team skated to a 5-3 win over Grand Forks Central.

Lyle Johnson, Dan Winjum, Roger Roadfelt; Murray Dicken and Jon Ballingrud scored for for Thief River Falls. The two teams skated to a 1-1 first period deadlock and went through a scoreless second period before Thief River Falls out-scored Central 4-2 in the final stanza.

Thief River Falls goalie Joe Klosterman kicked out 20 shots on goal while teammates fired 34 times at the Central nets.

Nordics Topple Argyle 67-55

Unbeaten Marshall County Central high school stretched its 1975-76 basketball season record to 3-0 Friday with a 67-55 win over Argyle in a game played at Newfolden.

Three different players added substantial weight to the Nordic scoring load as Mike Fincher pumped in 18 points, Bruce Rokke 17 and Kevin Sethre 14. Argyle's Jay Sorenson shared game-high scoring honors with Fincher with 18 points while Randy Nelson added 14 for the Eagles.

Newfolden led 19-12 at the first quarter break, owned a 32-27 halftime lead and forged to a 48-35 third quarter advantage.

"We played pretty well," pointed out Newfolden coach Ron Ueland. "We really saw the pressure, but we handled it pretty well. Out shooting percentage was good because we got the offensive boards and we beat the press."

Newfolden did enjoy a hot hand from the field, hitting 30 of 58 shots for a 52 per cent showing. Argyle shot at a 40 per cent clip, hitting 23 of 57 tries. Newfolden made seven of 15 free throw opportunities while Argyle sank nine of 10 gift tosses. Newfolden posted a hefty 37-18 rebound edge over the smaller Argyle squad, with Fincher pulling down 16 caroms.

The Nordics, after opening the year with three straight home games, will be on the road for the first time this season tomorrow (Tuesday) with a game at Alvarado.

Stephen Trips Goodridge 52-51

Goodridge suffered its fourth straight set-back of the 1975-76 basketball season Saturday as the Huskies lost a 52-51 overtime game to visiting Stephen. The game was postponed from Friday to Saturday night at Goodridge because of weather conditions. Goodridge will go after its first win of the year tomorrow (Tuesday) when the Huskies travel to Red Lake Falls. The Goodridge-Stephen affair was close throughout the five periods of action. The two teams played to an 8-8 first quarter stand-off. Goodridge took a slim 23-22 lead into the lockerroom at halftime, but the Tigers went ahead 38-36 at the end of the third quarter.

Regulation time ended with the score knotted at 50-50. A Stephen field goal early in the overtime session decided the game, with Goodridge responding with only a single free throw. A last second shot by the Huskies' Jim Johnson just missed the mark.

"The free throw line hurt us," pointed out first year Goodridge coach Gary Hamilton. Goodridge made only seven of 16 free throw opportunities. Stephen had a rough time at the charity stripe as well, making only eight of 24 tries. Both teams hit 22 field goals, with the Huskies shooting a brisk 52 per cent from the field.

Three players from each team reached the double figure scoring columns, headed by the Huskies' Rick Easthouse with 21 points. Randy Nelson and Kelly Dahlen added 10 points apiece for Goodridge, with Dahlen also hauling in 13 rebounds. Dale Kurowski and Rod Pawolski both scored 14 points for the Tigers while Greg Borowicz added 12.

"We've been playing well," pointed out Hamilton in spite of his team's 0-4 start. "We've been in every ball game, we just need a few breaks. We're young, but we're coming along."

LEGAL NOTICE

Dec. 1, 8, 15, 22, 29, Jan. 5 1976
Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That default has occurred in the conditions of that certain mortgage, dated the 12th day of September, 1968, executed by Norman L. Helle and Jeanette J. Helle, husband and wife, as mortgagors to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Thief River Falls as mortgagee, filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of September, 1968, at 3:00 o'clock P.M., and recorded in Book 108 of Mortgage Records, page 547; the original principal amount secured by said mortgage being $7,000.00; that no action or proceeding has been instituted at law to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, that there is due and claimed to be due upon said mortgage, including interest to date hereof, the sum of Five Thousand Sixty-two and 09/100 DOLLARS ($5,062.09), and that pursuant to the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed and the tract of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lots Forty-one (41) and Forty-two (42) in Eshelby's Rearrangement of Smiley's addition to Fairfield, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said county at public auction on the 14th day of January, 1976, at 10:00 o'clock A.M., at the front door of the Courthouse in the City of Thief River Falls in said county and state, to pay the debt then secured by said mortgage and taxes, if any, on said premises and the costs and disbursements allowed by law. The time allowed by law for redemption by the mortgagors, their personal representatives or assigns is six months from the date of said sale.

Dated November 28th, 1975.

Order for Hearing on Petition For Admission of Will To Probate

State of Minnesota,
County of Pennington—ss.
IN COUNTY COURT
PROBATE DIVISION

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF Horace Dalager, Decedent.

IT IS ORDERED that the petition for admission of will to probate filed herein and any objections filed thereto be heard on December 31, 1975, at 2:30 o'clock P.M. by this court in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota. That, if proper, at said time and place a representative will be appointed to administer the estate, who shall collect all assets and file an inventory thereof, pay all legal debts, claims, and taxes, and expenses of administration, and sell such real and personal property as may be necessary and for the best interests of the estate. Upon completion of administration, the representative shall file a final account for allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the court and do all other acts to close the estate.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that creditors of decedent file their claims in this court within sixty (60) days from the date hereof and that said claims be heard on March 3, 1976, at 2:00 o'clock P.M. by this court in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Dated November 26, 1975.

Card of Thanks

Tom wishes to express his sincere thanks to all our friends for cards and visits while a patient at the hospital. Special thanks to our Pastor and Mrs. Robert Amundson from Gatzke for their visits, to the Sons of Norway for the beautiful plant, and to all the hospital staff and Dr. Bray, and Dr. Heinrich for their kind and excellent care. Thanks also to all those that took me and wanted to take me to the hospital every day.

Thank you all so much and God bless you.

Armstrong Recalls An Early Christmas

TIMES BICENTENNIAL 1776 ★ 1976 FEATURE

by Frank Armstrong

A few days before Christmas 1912 when I was four years old, my mother hitched Old Dick to the cutter and took Leslie and Ray, my two older brothers, and myself over to Uncle Charley's and Aunt Alma's, who lived one mile across the field. We were to accompany them along with our cousins Carlton, Lee and Clyde to the Christmas program at the grade school in Euclid that evening.

When it was time to go Uncle Charley hitched Maude and Barney to the bobsled. There was a wagon box on the sled with plenty of clean straw in it. It was a beautiful evening, starlit but no moon, and about 20 above zero.

We made a bee line to Euclid across the fields as that was the way the sleigh trail went. As everyone used horses and sleighs in those days, there was a well packed track to follow. The program went according to plan. On the way home the Winnipeg flyer was going south on the Great Northern railway tracks and it made a lovely sight with the coaches lit up.

When we got back to Uncle Charley's we were tired so we soon went to bed. We six boys all slept in one bed crosswise. It made a full bed but I was soon asleep. Later on I woke up and heard brother Leslie and cousin Carlton whispering. You see, they were the oldest and thought they were quite foxy.

Leslie said, "I do not think there is anything to this Santa Claus story." Carlton answered, "I think you are right." This left me up in the air, as I did not understand what they meant.

Soon they slipped out of bed and tiptoed to the door which was just a curtain. I followed. We peeked out. All was dark except a candle carried by Aunt Alma as she filled our stockings. We made it back to bed without being heard, then our wise guys compared notes. They now knew that there was no Santa Claus but sure spoiled it for me who was much younger.

Two years later, when I started school I played Santa's little boy. Mac Landon, still living at Euclid, was Mrs. Santa Claus and Carl Zeltwanger was Santa. I was wearing a brand new Buster Brown suit of which I was very proud. I do not know what Santa's beard was made of, but his white beard shed all over my dark suit and upset me to no end.

That same day on the way home from school we were in a rush to get home, so we could get back for the evening program. Leslie was driving Old Dick and he managed to tip the cutter over. I got snow in my mittens and down my neck. It was below zero.

Seems Leslie never had much luck driving horses. The only one that could even stay close to him in the number of runaways was our neighbor Bill King. Leslie had a runaway with our "Old Granny" while she was hitched to the buggy. So Bill had a runaway with Prince and George, a gentle honest white team they had.

Then for a while Leslie was ahead. He had a runaway with four horses hitched to a drag, got one foot caught in the drag and dragged behind in the dirt.

He did not stay ahead very long. Bill got a team of mules, Sailer and Jerry. Sailer was so named because he could sail over all fences or what have you. He was a pretty mule, dark brown. Jerry was sorrel and was no match for Sailer when the going was rough.

Bill hitched them to a wagon with a low box on it and took off in a cloud of dust. They took him under the clothes line and when his chin hooked the clothesline the mules were on their own.

They went south on the road for half a mile, then came to a cross road. Jerry was on the left. He was lagging so they turned east. Three-quarters of a mile east they came to the Fern Acker farm. They would have turned in there but the dog came to the road and scared Jerry enough to keep him going straight ahead. They made another mile east and by then Jerry was really tuckered so they turned left into the George Landon farm.

Landons had just put in gas lights in both the house and barn and they even had a gas yard light. The gas was made right on the farm in a carbide tank. Well, Sailer and Jerry still had some speed left. One went on each side of the yardlight post They broke not only the post but also the gas pipe.

George Landon ran to the broken pipe put his thumb over the pipe and shouted for someone to bring him a cork that would fit the pipe. As I remember it, Leslie just threw in the towel and let Bill have the honors.

Harold Landon and his sister, Mae Magsam Landon still live on the Landon farm. Their sister, Mrs. Lester Magsam, lives with her husband on the Fern Acker farm. Jack King, Bill's brother, still lives on the King farm. I will stop here, but I could write horse and mule stories all night. I could also tell about donkeys as we still have two. We got our first donkey in 1937.

FFA Sponsors To Hold Annual Meet Dec. 30th

Twenty-second annual meeting of the donors to the Minnesota Future Farmers of America (FFA) Foundation, Inc., will be held on Tuesday, December 30, at the St. Paul campus student center. Board of directors will be named and officers will be elected. Over 500 donors contributed to the foundation during its 22nd year of operation.

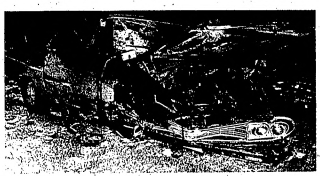
Activities financed by the foundation include recognizing FFA members excelling in leadership, personal development, citizenship, community service, safety and supervised occupational experience programs in agri-business and natural resources.

The Minnesota FFA foundation was established in December of 1953, to provide business, industrial, civic, farm and service organizations and individuals in Minnesota with an opportunity to participate in furthering the programs of FFA and vocational agriculture in public secondary schools.

All funds accepted by the foundation are used exclusively for the purpose of motivating and promoting the best interest of the 16,127 members of the Minnesota FFA in 272 high schools.

New activities and projects that will be discussed at the December 30 meeting include: Recognition of FFA'ers excelling in agri-business, salesmanship, forestry, machanics, job interviews and communications. Financial assistance in organizing award programs for alumni, collegiate, and post-secondary FFA members will also be discussed.

David Belina of Minneapolis has served as vice-president and chairman of the Finance Committee of the Foundation during the past year; Paul M. Day, state supervisor of agriculture education, Northfield, has served as president, and W.J. Kortesmaki, state FFA executive secretary, St. Paul, as secretary-treasurer.



JEROME LACOE, 22, of Thief River Falls received facial lacerations and a head injury in a one car accident just south of the bowling alley early Thursday morning. LaCoe, listed in guarded condition, was transferred to Fargo for continued treatment. At approximately 12:15 a.m. LaCoe was driving south on highway 32 when his car left the road, struck a signpost, slid into the ditch and struck an approach. The car was totaled.

Viking-Land Offers Leisure Time Activity

Winter offers leisure time activities for the whole family in Minnesota's Viking-Land, USA. As it's name suggests, this 17 county area of northwestern Minnesota offers a classic winter season to visitors and residents alike.

Start with fishing, a sport that is of interest to everyone, even if only to enjoy dining on the results. Thousands of Viking-Land lakes offer walleye, northern pike and panfish that are fun to catch and a sizzling, brown treat to eat. And the ice-supported villages of fish houses offer a genuine social life during lulls in the action.

Bring your snowmobile and your cross country skiis. What better base to use for both activities on the wide open Viking-Land lakes than a cozy fish house? For more formal snowmobiling, extensive marked trails are available throughout the region along with attractive maps to keep you oriented. Four downhill ski areas cater to the more adventurous skier and quiet ski touring in many state parks is inspiring.

Tired of solitude? Take in a Viking-Land winter celebration. They range from curling inside to snowmobile racing outside (the St. Paul to Winnipeg race overnights twice in Viking-Land), from fishing derbys on the ice to full scale civic celebrations lasting several days such as Alexandria's Ullr Fest and Detroit Lakes' Winter wonderland frolics. And don't forget the Red River Valley Winter Show at Crookston, an agricultural exposition visited by thousands each year.

For a full schedule of Viking-Land winter events, write Viking-Land, USA; box 545 dept. W; Battle Lake, MN 56515.

To Show Fifth In Series For Handicapped

Some homemakers must keep house for themselves when the mere making and pouring of a cup of coffee leaves them physically exhausted. Others must wrestle with kitchens, laundry areas, and home floorplans that aren't designed for wheelchair access.

The fifth "Ability—Not Disability" television program stresses what homemakers with these problems can do—not what their limitations are. Produced by the Agricultural extension service at the University of Minnesota, the program was filmed in the homes of handicapped persons who have learned to cope with their problems and share the energy—and frustration-saving tips they have devised.

Simplicity in homemaking is the key to dealing with limited energy and wheelchair problems, the program advises. Convenience foods, ample storage space, and well-planned chores are keys to running a home well despite physical problems.

The program geared for low energy and wheelchair-bound homemakers will be aired at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday on channel 2 or channel 13 on cable.

Agassiz Refuge Pays $14,916.05 To Marshall Co.

Joseph Kotok, manager of Agassiz national wildlife refuge, presented a $14,916.05 check to Marshall county last Monday as part of a federal program providing cash returns to counties in which national wildlife refuges are located. The payments are made in accordance with the refuge revenue sharing act of 1964, which requires that the funds be expended by the counties for the benefit of public schools and roads.

The law provides for payments to be made on a basis of either 25 per cent of net refuge receipts or three quarters of one per cent of the adjusted cost of acquired lands, which is usually the larger amount.

Every five years land valuations are adjusted. In 1970, an adjustment resulted in a $3,529.73 increase to Marshall county.

National Guard Recruits 593 In Two Months

In an announcement from state headquarters in St. Paul, Brig. Gen. James G. Sieben, adjutant general of Minnesota, said, "I am very pleased to report that the Minnesota army national guard has seen a steady increase in personnel strength for the past eight weeks, and we are confident the young men and women of Minnesota will continue to take advantage of the many benefits a part-time military career can offer."

Figures released by the guard's recruiting office show 593 enlistments in the past two months bringing guard strength to 92 per cent of the total number authorized for Minnesota by the national guard bureau.

"Earn while you learn" is one of the many programs the national guard can offer its members, Gen. Sieben said.

It especially is beneficial to the college and vo-tech students who utilize the additional income to help defray the cost of their studies. And guard members now are paid the first of the month, every month. This new monthly pay procedure along with the increase in pay has proved to be an attractive incentive to former guardsmen and veterans.

"As the descendant of the original colonial militia, the national guard is proud of the fact that we are all-volunteers. Our members are Minnesotans from all walks of life, and all areas of the state, who are in the guard because they want to be," Sieben added.

High school graduates or high school seniors who are looking for a good paying part-time career, should contact the nearest national guard armory for further information. There is a national guard armory located in Thief River Falls.

ANOTHER SCRAPER manufactured by Toreq, Inc., of Thief River Falls is loaded for delivery to a customer. Since the firm began actual operation in June, it has produced about 50 of the scrapers and all have been sold, primarily in Minnesota and North Dakota. The scrapers, in models with eight-yard and 11-yard capacity, are designed to be pulled by four-wheel drive tractors and have been sold mostly to farmers for ditching, land leveling and similar use.

Toreq Receives Order For 100 Farm Scrapers

Purchase of a minimum of 100 farm and industrial scrapers manufactured by Toreq, Inc., of Thief River Falls is included in a record of intent signed with Toreq by Steiger Tractor, Inc., Fargo, N.D. Announcement of the sale for the 1976 calendar year was made by Douglass Steiger, president of Toreq.

Thief River Falls' newest industrial corporation, Toreq began operation in new facilities in the new industrial park southwest of Thief River Falls in June of 1975. In addition to the two models of farm and industrial scrapers which are its main business, Toreq also manufactures component parts for Hydra-Mac, Inc., another local industrial farm.

In the few months it has been in operation, Toreq has completed manufacture of approximately 50 units, nearly all of which have been sold in the Minnesota and North Dakota area. Number of employees has increased from about 20 on the start-up date to approximately 45 at the present time.

Clifton Johnson serves as corporate vice president and general manager of the company. Officers of the corporation are Douglass Steiger, president; Lowell T. Swenson, vice president; and J. J. Womack, secretary-treasurer. Also serving on the board after being elected at the annual meeting in November are Mervin Prestebak of Thief River Falls and Francis Bogner of Beaver Dam, Wis.

Toreq evolved from Steiger Manufacturing company of Red Lake Falls with equipment transferred to the Toreq plant and manufacturing facilities on the Steiger farm closed. The plant at Thief River Ralls is housed in a steel building 24,000 square feet in size, located on an eight-acre site.

CLIFTON JOHNSON, vice president for production at Toreq, Inc., inspects a prototype wagon being painted in the paint booth at the plant located in Thief River Falls. The company manufactures two models of heavy duty scrapers and parts for another local firm—Hydra-Mac, Inc.—but is also interested in production of other items which can utilize its equipment and employee skills.

Public Hearing To List County HUD Priorities

Pennington county board of commissioners will hold public community development hearings Monday, December 29 at 1:30 p.m. in Goodridge city hall and Tuesday, December 30 at 1:30 p.m. in the first floor meeting room of the Pennington county courthouse.

Purpose of the hearings will be to duscuss potential community development priorities for the second year HUD application. The intent, funding categories and funding levels of the act will be explained at the hearing.

Any county residents wishing to provide input on county needs and priorities should be present at one of the hearings. The second year pre-application will be prepared by December 31.

The county board of commissioners, at a meeting Tuesday, December 9, proposed that HUD funding be requested for county plans to develop a sanitary landfill site in the county.

Cigarette License Fee Hiked By City

A change in the long standing cigarette license fee rate in Thief River Falls was passed by the city council at a meeting Tuesday evening in the city auditorium council chambers. The fee, set for many years at $12 per year, was raised to $24 per annum, with the monthly fee thus advancing to two dollars. Licenses will not be issued for less than a month.

A request by the Kat Haus for an intoxicating liquor license was rejected due to a conflict with ordinance guidelines, which stipulates that a license shall not be granted to premises located within 300 feet of a church or school. Gospel Tabernacle is located within 300 feet of the Kat Haus.

City engineer D. H. Stewart informed the council that based on soil boring tests conducted at various sites within Pennington county, it appears that there could be feasible sanitary landfill sites within the county, and that he was going to attend the next meeting of the county board of commissioners to recommend that the board pursue plans for a site location within the county.

The council approved an increase in the municipal band budget from its annual rate of $1,500 to $2,500 for 1976. The council stressed that the budget increase will be effective for one year only, and was raised for '76 to enable the band to schedule more concert activity for the Bicentennial year.

Recommendations for guidelines concerning the use of city property by religious groups and speakers, submitted by the city ministerial association, were accepted by the council. The guidelines were accepted, however, with the understanding that they will not be entered into the city ordinance and can be adjusted if the council so desires. Included in the guidelines are three requirements: Newspaper and radio-t.v. advertisements must identify the group sponsoring a religious function on city property; the city council should insist on a thorough reference check; and use of the property should require

Junior Varsity Debaters Fifth At Big Tourney

Thief River Falls junior varsity debate team placed fifth out of 40 entries at the invitational tournament held Friday and Saturday at Marshall. Dassel-Cokato won the division, followed by Crookston and them by Watertown and Sioux Falls, S.D.

Junior varsity affirmative team of Elaine Charlson and Tammy Schwartz went undefeated in five rounds and the negative team of Janet Peterson and Lori Klemisch won two rounds in the competition. Miss Peterson also won an "A" rating in humorous interpretation in a speech contest held in connection with the debate tourney.

In the novice division of the debate event, affirmative team members Diane Lahlum and Julie Dobias won two rounds and the begative team of Michelle Kaspari and Sue Ranum won one round. Ruth Carlson and Marlo Erickson served as timekeepers at the tourney.

According to James Goldesberry, coach, the next tournament will be held January 10 at Grand Forks.

To Improve Houses Under HRA Plan Okayed By City

To encourage improvement of deteriorated and substandard housing in Thief River Falls, the city HRA has adopted a rehabilitation loan and grant program developed by city planner Terry Madson.

The program, which has been modeled after similar local and federal rehabilitation programs now underway in numerous cities throughout Minnesota, has been financed by $40,000 of a $300,000 HUD community development grant received by the city last summer. It is hoped that at least 10 residences can be rehabilitated under the program.

Under the loan program, eligible applicants with annual family incomes below $11,300 (the median income for Pennington county) can obtain a three per cent interest FHA title I loan, and applicants with incomes above the median can receive a six per cent interest loan. The maximum term of the loan is 12 years, with the minimum monthly payment $10. All loans must be "direct" loans, as defined by FHA title I regulations, and applicants must be reasonable credit risks, as determined by the local lending institution involved.

Since lending market interest rates are higher than three or six per cent, the HRA loan program will take the form of interest subsidies to bank loans, with the difference in principals between a loan schedule at three or six per cent interest and the current market interest rate determining the amount of the subsidy.

Outright grants are also available under the HRA program, although due to the limited amount of money available, grants will be limited to applicants with an annual family income of less than 50 per cent of the county median income ($5,650). Repairing of code deficiencies and winterizing of homes are the only eligible improvements under the grant portion of the program. Security, in the form of a two-year lien, will be requested from grant applicants by the HRA.

Property eligible for rehabilitation under the program includes residences which may have been encouraged or required to undergo improvements to increase compliance with state, county or municipal health, housing, building, fire prevention and housing maintenance. code or other public standards applicable to housing.

Improvements may also be instigated through the program to make housing more desirable to live in, or to increase the market value of the housing by installing some permanent necessary improvements. Improvements such as insulation and storm

BUDDY POPPY displays won Ninth District honors for the third year in a row for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 and auxiliary. The local VFW has also won district competition two consecutive years in number of poppies sold. A repeat performance this year will result in permanent possession of a traveling trophy which goes to the winner each year. Pictured with the 1976 winning display and trophies earned during the past three years are, left to right, Sam Genereux, Post 2793 commander; Mrs. Mary Ann Myhrer, auxiliary president; Mrs. Donna Olson, poppy chairman; Joe Rinowski, post poppy chairman; and Mrs. Olson's son Blake, age six, who has helped to construct the last three winning displays.

Step Taken Toward Addition To AVTI

Another step toward development of an addition to the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute was taken by the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening at its meeting held at Mark Twain elementary school.

After a dinner meeting with representatives of the architectural firm of Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen, Inc., the board directed the architects to proceed with preliminary designing of "replacement of vocational facilities located in Lincoln high school and the development of a farm equipment mechanics program area".

A meeting involving the school board, administration, architect and state department of education in regard to the vocational addition has been scheduled for Monday, January 12.

Another resolution adopted by the board indicated the school district's intent to continue to operate the area vocational-technical institute under its present governance and management system.

First segment of two-way radio equipment for the district's school buses was approved with awarding of a $7,270 contract to Motorola Communications. The contract will include eight mobile two-way radio units, a base station with remote hook-up and antenna tower to be installed by the bidder.

Two school buses were purchased with trade-in given on 1967 models. Low bidder on two 60-passenger school bus chassis was Tunberg Motor company at $16,580. Low bidder among five for the school bus bodies was St. Cloud Industrial Products, Inc., with a net bid of $16,688.

Authorization was given to call for bids on an automatic pool controller to regulate the chlorine and P.H. factor at Franklin swimming pool and for 170 new wall lockers to be installed at Lincoln high school.

Northland community college was authorized to use the varsity football field without charge on September 11 and 25 at 7:30 p.m. and

Brothers of the Brush

Whisker Club To Be Formed Here

Initial plans to organize a "Brothers of the Brush" group for the local American revolution Bicentennial observance are now underway, according to Don Grabanski, chairman. Plans are to get the organization underway about January 1.

Joining in the early planning are Rick Contos, chairman of the local Bicentennial commission, Orrin Aune and Stan Upham. The Brothers of the Brush will be a membership organization composed of bewhiskered men (ladies who wish to qualify will also be eligible) whose objective will be to add humor and interest to the Bicentennial celebration.

Highlight of the organization's year will be a beard judging contest to be held this coming summer. Three places will be awarded in each division with categories including such divisions as moustache, peach fuzz, fullest beard, goatee, mutton chops or sideburns, whitest, grayest, most colorful and novelty. The judging contest will likely be followed by a dance to be known as the "Brush Cutters' Ball".

Membership in the group has tentatively been set at $1.50 per person, which automatically qualifies the member to compete in the beard judging contest. Shaving permits will also be sold by the organization, with the price likely to be whatever the traffic will bear.

Authorized representatives of the Brothers of the Brush will check for membership cards during the year prior to the beard judging contest and a kangaroo court will be in session on call to dispense injustice upon non-members, Grabanski said. All money raised through membership fees, shaving permits and fines will be contributed to one or more local selected worthy causes.

"We know there are a lot of men who want to get into the competition," the chairman added, "and many others who need an excuse to get on the beard-growing bandwagon. Starting the Brothers of the Brush on January 1 should be a good way to kick off the Bicentennial year, but prospective members can start to grow their beards at any time."

Persons with questions about the organization or who are interested in samples of whisker styles may contact Grabanski at 681-1802.

Goodridge Postal Clerk Honored On Retirement

Mrs. Leo Ellingson, Goodridge post office clerk, and her husband were honor guests at a ham dinner Sunday evening in honor of Mrs. Ellingson's retirement. The event, hosted by the co-workers at the Goodridge post office, was held at the Goodridge cafe-recreation center.

Postmaster Ernest Swanson, as master of ceremonies, presented Mrs. Ellingson with a framed certificate of service award from the regional director of postal services Gels. He also gave her a gift from her co-workers in recognition of nearly 24 years of service to the Goodridge post office.

Expressing tribute to Mrs. Ellingson for her work were Clarence Peterson, former post master who Mrs. Ellingson trained for his job over 23 years ago; Ernest Swanson, who was trained for his position 14½ years ago; Marilyn Wiseth, present clerk; Irving Easthouse, Loren Race, Irvin Iverson, rural carriers; and Vernon and Viola Wikstrom, star route carriers.

It was noted that the only co-worker who had seniority over Mrs. Ellingson was John Tanem, carrier on Star route northeast of Goodridge.

Pictures were taken of the honor guests and the postal employees and their spouses. Progressive whist was played and lunch was served by Mrs. I. Easthouse and Mrs. K. Wiseth.

Lambert And Tweten Marriage Vows Spoken

Candelabras with greens and peach colored robbons graced the chancel at the Evangelical Free church in this city for recent wedding of Miss LuAnn Charlene Lambert of Lake Bronson and Wayne Howard Tweten of Thief River Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Leonard Lambert of Lake Bronson. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tweten of this city.

Rev. Ivan Carlson officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 125 relatives and friends. At the organ was Mrs. Edsel Lindquist, a friend of the couple, who played Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus" for the processional. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kompelien, also friends of the couple, sang "O Perfect Love," and "We've Only Just Begun."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of white organza. Venice lace trimmed the high neckline, sheer, rounded yoke and formed the cuffs of her long, sheer sleeves. Matching lace edged the skirt and chapel-length train. A coordinating veil, edged with matching Venice lace, completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, peach roses, sprengeri, and babies' breath, accented with leather leaves in green and brown.

Mrs. Alan Carlson of Minneapolis attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marian Boroski of Orleans, a friend of the couple, and Jean Tweten of this city, a sister of the groom. They wore peach colored, floor-length gowns featuring shirred lace bodices styled in empire fashion with V-necklines and short puffy sleeves. Identical bouquets of peach carnations with yellow daisies and babies' breath were carried by the attendants.

Best man was Gary Tweten of Roseau, a brother of the groom. Serving as groomsmen were Larry Paulson of Thief River Falls, a friend of the couple, and LuVerne Lambert of St. Paul, a brother of the bride. The guests were ushered in by Alan Carlson of Minneapolis and Alvin Paggen of Thief River Falls, brothers-in-law of the bride and groom, respectively. All the men of the wedding party wore brown tuxedos with peach ruffled shirts and brown bow ties. The groom's boutonniere was a peach rose taken from the bride's bouquet. His attendants had peach carnations pinned on their lapels.

For her sons's wedding Mrs. Tweten selected a long-sleeved gray knit dress topped by a sleeveless gray, blue and white vest with silver buttons. A silver necklace and silver shoes completed her attire.

Honor guest at the wedding was Mrs. Alice Tweten, grandmother of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Orange and yellow streamers and white wedding bells graced the dining area. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with yellow roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. On either side of the cake, connected by ribbon streamers, were two heart shaped cakes inscribed with the couple's names. Mrs. Gary Coffield, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Henry Johnson, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Mrs. Allen Jones and Mrs. Art Nordby, aunts of the groom.

Friends of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Langness served the punch. At the guest book was Mrs. Lloyd Anderson, also a friend of the couple. The waitresses were Sheila Hagen, Marlene Johnson, Diane Johnson, Janet Carlson and Wanda Carlson, all cousins of the bride.

The gifts were opened later by the bride and groom at the home of the groom's parents.

The bride is a graduate of Lancaster high school and the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute; and the groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school.

The couple is at home in Warroad where both are employed by Marvin Windows. Photo, Lund Photography, Roseau.

Christmas Noted At Viking Garden Club Party

Viking Town and Country garden club Christmas party was held Wednesday afternoon, December 3, at the home of Mrs. Lizzie Peterson.

Eight members and five guests attended. The members answered roll call by listing gifts they recalled receiving as a child. Following a brief business session with president Mrs. Bert Kron presiding, contest games were played. Winning prizes were Mrs. Earl Erickson and Mrs. Carl Krohn. Mrs. Arne Samuelson won the door prize. Adding to the festivities was the presentation of a housewarming gift to Mrs. Peterson. Mrs. Egbert Malberg made the presentation. Each one present received a rose and a gift from Mrs. Peterson.

A potluck lunch concluded the afternoon.

Christmas Party Set By Sow and Hoe Club

Sow and Hoe garden club Christmas party will be held Saturday night at the Palmer Lorenson home.

The event will begin at 6:30 p.m., with a potluck supper. Roll call will be a Bible verse listing the occupations of the people in the Christmas story.

All members are encouraged to attend. Dues will be collected.

HOMEMAKERS OF 18.3-8

Black River homemakers family potluck supper was held Monday night at the Wilbur Hallstrom home. Each family brought one main dish and something for dessert.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Tollefson, Darla, Lance and Lona; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hesse and Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Naplin and Mark, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Grandbois, Deede, and Dorrie and Mr. and Mrs. Walt Osborn, Andy and Julie;

Also Mr. and Mrs. Ron McKercher, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Naplin, Mr. and Mrs. John Erickson, Craig and Cheryl, Mrs. Minnie Erickson, Mrs. Amanda Hallstrom, Mrs. Loraine Steiger and Bryan and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hallstrom, Greg and Dan.

Christmas Party Set By Sons Of Norway

Sons of Norway, Snorre lodge 70, Christmas party will be held Friday at the Eagles hall. The event will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a potluck supper for members and their families.

A program will be given. Included will be a play, "An Old Fashioned Christmas," presented by members of Northland Retired Teachers association. Music will be provided by the Senior Citizen's kitchen band.

Phyllis Strom Weds John Nelson At Dawson

Miss Phyllis Strom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Strom of rural Dawson, and John Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Nelson of this city, exchanged marriage vows recently at an afternoon wedding at the Grace Lutheran church at Dawson.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. Russell Anderson. Barry Lund was the organist. Soloists were friends of the couple: Miss Polly Strege, who sang, "Wedding Benediction" and "O Perfect Love," and Rocky Wilson, who sang, "Colour My World," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the chancel setting were two large floral arrangements of mums in yellow, bronze and white with lime green tips.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in an empire fashioned gown of candlelight angelic chiffon over jewel crepe. Her sculptured bodice with high neckline was complemented by appliques of seeded Alencon lace, matching the lace that covered her bouffant bishop sleeves. A border of lace and a chiffon ruffle accented the entire hemline of her chapel-length train. Flowing over her gown and train was a full-length veil of nylon illusion held by a Juliet headpiece of Alencon lace, lined with jewel crepe and seeded with pearls and rhinestones to match her gown. The bride's entire ensemble was designed and sewn by her sister Mrs. Ardelle Adamson of Holmen, Wis. To complete her attire, the bride carried a colonial-styled bouquet of white mums, tipped in lime green, accented with bronze and yellow mums.

Mrs. Jolene Moen of Minneota was the bride's personal attendant.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Glenice Jones of Brooklyn Park, a cousin of the bride. Other attendants were Mrs. Ardelle Adamson of Holmen, Wis., sister of the bride, Miss Bonnie Harris of Roseville, a friend of the bride, Mrs. Evie Vigness and Mrs. Bonne Solheim of Thief River Falls, sisters of the groom. They wore floor-length princess styled gowns of lime green polyester crepe topped with chiffon floor-length capes. To accent their attire, they wore white picture hats with lime green bands and small chiffon flowers. Each attendant carried a single white mum, tipped in lime green. Their lime green pierced drop earrings were a gift of the bride.

Hollie Strom of Dawson and Heidi Solheim of Thief River Falls, nieces of the bride and groom, respectively, served as flower girls. They wore identical floor-length gowns of lime green polyester crepe styled with empire bodices with cape sleeves. Their white picture hats were replicas of the hats worn by the bride's attendants.

Best man was Curt Boraas of Dawson, a friend of the groom. Groomsmen were Bruce Nelson of Anoka, Terry Nelson of this city, brothers of the groom; Roger Strom of Dawson, brother of the bride, and Tom Melin of Warren, a friend of the groom. Ushers were Bruce Steiger and Ron Sorvig of Thief River Falls, friends of the groom, and Warren Larson of Plymouth, a cousin of the groom. All wore gray Knight tuxedos with boutonnieres of white carnations tipped in lime green.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue, floor-length, A-line gown of a polyester lace knit styled with cape sleeves. Her corsage was of white mums with lime green tips. The mother of the groom wore a coral ensemble enhanced by embroidered trim and a corsage of bronze mums.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception in the church parlors following the ceremony. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Femrite, uncle and aunt of the bride. Mrs. Janice Kostad presided at the guest book as Miss Kaye Thompson and Mrs. Paulette Peterson served the punch. All are friends of the bride.

The four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white with touches of lime green and decorated with frosting mums in bronze and yellow, was cut and served by Mrs. Vernie Mohr, friend of the groom, and Mrs. Amy Lee, cousin of the bride. Pouring were Mrs. Alice Svendeen and Miss Norma Nelson, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively.

Waitresses were Mrs. Janice Olson, Mrs. Sharon Otremba, Mrs. Joan Leonard, Mrs. Lorraine Goar, Miss Ann Lee and Miss Gioia Murlock.

Following a wedding trip to Springsteel Island on Lake of the Woods, and to Winnipeg, Man., Canada, the couple is now at home in this city at 718 North Duluth. The bride is a 1969 graduate of Dawson high school and the University of Minnesota, Morris, with the class of 1973. She is employed by Nelson State Farm insurance. The groom is a 1968 graduate of Lincoln high school and a 1972 graduate of the Moorhead State university. He is employed by Hydra Mac, Inc. Photo C. Edwards studio, Madison.

VFW Auxiliary And Kiddies Yule Parties Are Set

Regular meeting of the VFW auxiliary 2793, will be held Monday at 8 p.m., at the club rooms. Following the brief business meeting a Christmas party featuring a festive lunch and games, will be held.

There will be no gift exchange. All members are encouraged to attend and are reminded to bring the labels for St. Bernard's project.

Members are also reminded that the Annual Kiddies Christmas party is scheduled for December 22 at 2 p.m., with the party limited to only the members' children.

Both events were planned at the November meeting of the auxiliary. Also included at the November meeting was the acceptance of Alma Brown, Viola Jaranson, Carolyn Jesch and Vicki Hermes into membership. Donations made were fruit baskets to four local rest homes and $5 to the Minnesota League of Families in support of Richard Nelson, the unit's adopted POW. Among the communications were appreciation letters from the Knutson family. The attendance prize at the November meeting was won by Ruth Gereoux and the door prize by Clara Olson. Hostesses were Shelva Johnson, Leona Haugen and Lois Hook.

Guy Andrew Drevlow Baptized At St. John

Guy Andrew Drevlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Drevlow of this city, was baptized at St. John Lutheran church on Sunday during the morning worship services that included the presentation of the Christmas story by the Sunday school children. Rev. Paul R. Biegner administered the sacrament.

Sponsors were Mary Elizabeth Hunter of Ironton, Howard Hunter of Crosby, and Guy's older brothers: Fella and Joe.

A dinner was hosted at the Drevlow home following the services. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hunter of Ironton, Mr. and Mrs. Armen Drevlow of Long Prairie, and Misses Colleen and Lynne Mahoney of Deerwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blonigen of Harvey, N.D., have announced the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Mary Kay, and David J. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Nelson of Viking.

Miss Blonigen is a 1975 graduate of Fordville high school and is attending Aakers Business college in Grand Forks.

Nelson is a 1973 graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden, and is employed in this city by Scholin Sales.

A September 3rd wedding is planned.

Swingin' Squares Yule Party Set At Goodridge

Swingin' Squares of Goodridge will hold its Christmas party on Saturday, December 20 at the Goodridge school gymnasium. The event is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

All dancers and spectators are welcome to attend.

Members are also reminded that they may purchase square dance attire during lessons at the gymnasium on December 18, beginning at 8 p.m.

Charles F. Andersons Announce Eric's Birth

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Anderson of Minnetonka announce the birth of their first child, Eric Charles, born November 28, at the Methodist hospital in St. Louis Park. He weighed 6 lbs., 10 oz., and was 19 inches long.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Melville Simon of this city, who spent several days at the Anderson home getting acquainted with their grandson, and Mrs. Lee Anderson of Excelsior.

DeCor Club Christmas Party And Events Noted

Members of the DeCor club of the Thief River Falls Federated Women's club met Tuesday night at Kife's for a Christmas dinner party. For the event, the tables decorated in the Christmas decor with Madeleine Scramstad, Mabel Lyken and Bertha Hastad in charge.

Members present were Geneva Overum, Jeanette Dostal, Carla Peterson, Lillian Aasland, Madeleine Scramstad, Bertha Hastad, Eula Kvikstad, Gladys Iverson, Mildred Wick, Ellen Peterson, Mabel Leyden and Mary Ann Lofberg.

Highlighting the event was an exchange of gifts, showing members' ingenuity in securing gifts for 75 cents.

Plans for the party were made at an early meeting of the club held at the home of Bertha Hastad. At that meeting, members participated in the World Hunger program sponsored by World Vision by giving individual donations, by passing an empty plate as a symbol of hunger. The program was based on "Christmas Around the World," with Bertha Hastad reading the history of Christmas and each member reading Christmas traditions from various countries. Christmas carols were sung and the poem, "At Christmas," by Edgar Guest was read by Geneva Overum. The 11 members present participated in the cookie exchange.

Meetings in November were held at the Mildred Wick and Ellen Peterson homes. Program booklets were distributed to the nine members attending the meeting at the Wick home. At that time the World Hunger program was discussed and it was decided that members would make individual donations through May 26. At the meeting held at the Peterson home, announcement was made that the movie "The Hiding Place," based on the book by Corrie Ten Boom, studied last year at one of the club meetings, will be shown in Thief River Falls on Feburary 4. Mrs. Berton Hushagen was a guest at the meeting. The program, based on Armistice day, was highlighted by members reminiscing the event.

Christmas Party Held At Catholic Daughters Meet

Festive Christmas party followed the regular meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America, Our Lady of Snows court 2023, held December 2 at St. Bernard's hall.

Prior to the meeting, members attended Mass with Rev. Frank Ringwelski as celebrant.

Sister Placid reported that she had entered the name of District Deputy Loretta Welter, who is ill, for perpetual enrollment in the golden book at the Benet Lake Wisconsin monastery. She will share in all prayers and Masses offered by the community of the faithful at the monastery. It was also noted that a Mass had been offered in her behalf by the local court at St. Bernard's.

Frances Oski reported on the senior citizens meals being served at Northwestern hospital to all senior citizens over 60 years of age. Members discussed remembering local senior citizens during the Christmas season. It was to distribute the fruit and cookies to the homes, soliciting assistance from the membership.

Regent Ione Gonsorowski presided at the meeting, recording secretary Ageline Breznay called the roll, Lorena Lasha served as monitor, Kathy Belmont, gave the financial report and Sue Wolbeck, accepted the membership dues. Mrs. Breznay was appointed to serve as publicity chairman.

Serving the festive lunch in a Christmas setting were Cyrilla Rodekuhr, Irene Rausch, JoAnn Protz and Leona Peterson. A gift exchange concluded the Christmas festivities.

Banker's Bank Introduced In Minnesota

With presentation of its charter December 15, the Independent state bank of Minnesota—a banker's bank—is "introducing a new banking concept to Minnesota, delcares Gordon C. Donnelly, its president.

The state charter was presented by Minnesota state banking commissioner, Robert A. Mampel, at formal opening ceremonies in the Garden court of the National city bank building in Minneapolis.

"Establishment of the Independent state bank of Minnesota," according to Donnelly, "is of major importance to Minnesotans." Donnelly, also president of the First State bank of Wheaton, explained the new "banker's bank" will provide services and loan funds to independent banks throughout Minnesota.

"The public will be better served," he said, "when the Independent state bank of Minnesota, for example, provides loan requirements to independent banks throughout Minnesota in excess of their local lending capabilities."

Another public benefit of the new bank, according to Donnelly, is that "it may help slow down the current trend toward concentrating banking resources in just a few banks."

Initial capitalization of the Independent state bank is $1,264,400, with 180 qualified stockholder Minnesota banks.

The bank will be known as a correspondent bank. (Correspondent banking is a system under which banks perform various services for other banks.) The Independent State Bank of Minnesota will not offer checking or saving accounts, nor any other services.

Area Students Graduate From St. Cloud 'U'

Two area students were among the 293 awarded degrees by St. Cloud state university during fall quarter commencement exercises November 21.

Included were Renae J. Fjeld of Goodridge, who received a bachelor of science degree, and Miles T. Anderson of Greenbush, who received a bachelor of arts degree and graduated with scholastic honors.

Anderson was also one of the speakers for the event.

HRA Program For Housing Gets Approval

windows, which will conserve use of fuel and energy, are strongly encouraged, as well as exterior improvements that have a positive impact on the surrounding neighborhood. The local rehab program may also be utilized for bringing individual sewage dosposal systems (including septics) into compliance with local, state and federal environmental and sanitary standards. The program cannot be used for the financing or payment of assessments for public improvements, or the refinancing of any mortgage or debt.

To apply for a loan, persons are invited to go to the community development office in the city auditorium and fill out the rehab form. The applicant then schedules a visit to the home with the city building inspector to discuss his proposed improvements. Additional improvements may be added by the building inspector at this time.

The third step is for the applicant to specify improvements so that a contractor may bid competitively for the job. If the applicant does not have the knowledge to prepare specifications, the HRA will provide competent individuals to assist at no charge. The applicant then goes to contractors or building yards for estimates.

Next, the applicant must visit his local bank to determine if he is eligible for an FHA title I loan and is a reasonable credit risk. At this point, a feasibility study may be performed.

If the bank approves, a review board will then determine if the applicant is eligible for grant or subsidy assistance. If eligible, the HRA will contact the bank and confirm the amount of assistance the applicant is eligible to receive. After the loan is approved, and the applicant signs a two year mortgage with the HRA, he may then accept a bid from the contractor and start construction.

For further information on the program, interested persons are invited to call Terry Madson at 681-6780.

Hill Gives His Observations About Strikes

According to Donald C. Hill, Northfield senior high school social studies teacher and coach and president of the Minnesota Education association, the answer is common to all four situations in which teacher strikes occurred last week (Winona, Howard Lake, Roseau, Luverne):

"Once the school board makes the decision not to go to arbitration, or refuses to take the whole dispute to arbitration, the school board makes very little attempt to solve the impasse," he said.

"The result is the teachers are given the alternative of capitulating to the board's wishes—or strike. Teachers find themselves being tested as to their dedication to the negotiations process.

"One would be naive to think that teachers faced with this choice would knuckle under and grovel before school boards," Hill observed. "In all cases, the impasse is about more than just money; it involves the attitude displayed by school boards toward resolution of impasse. Boards blame the teachers for the situation—and just sit. This puts the burden of solution on the teachers.

"Now that there are work stoppages, the burden is on the boards."

Hill maintains that in all four strike situations—"plus scores of others"—teachers have made every possible reasonable concession to reach agreement through marathon bargaining sessions, but "school boards moved practically nowhere."

Hill concludes: "If this attitude persists in the remaining unsettled districts, more than a hundred of them, we'll have more legal strikes!"

John Aune, 88, Services To Be Held In Gatzke

John O. Aune, 88, father of Mrs. Clayton (Marvel) Carlson of this city, died Saturday afternoon at Northwestern hospital. Carlson, a resident at Valley Home, formerly resided at Gatzke.

Funeral services for John O. Aune will be held Thursday at 2 p.m., at the United Lutheran church at Gatzke. Rev. Robert Amundson will officiate. Interment will be in the Moose River cemetery at Gatzke.

The body is reposing at the Collins Funeral home at Middle River and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services. A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

Mrs. Palma Petterson Dies In Crookston

Mrs. Palma Petterson, 54, a former resident of the Holt community, died unexpectedly Friday morning at her home in Crookston.

Funeral services for Mrs. Palma Petterson were held Tuesday at 1 p.m., at the United Lutheran church in Greenbush with Rev. Karl Stendahl officiating. Gilbert Olstad sang two selections and Miss Renae Melby, a granddaughter, sang "I Know Who Holds Tomorrow." Organist was Mrs. Karl Stendahl. Interment was in the Pauli Lutheran church cemetery near Greenbush with the Collins Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Butch Nelson, Morris Nelson, Peter Kuchen, Iver Petterson, Clarence Melby and Maynard Garfve.

Mrs. Petterson, the former Palma Ardell Johnson, was born April 2, 1921 at Holt to Gilbert and Clara Johnson, now deceased. She attended school and grew to womanhood in the Holt community. She later moved to Karlstad and lived there for many years. On May 18, 1956, she was married at Biwabic to Joseph M. Petterson. The couple made their home at Grand Forks, N.D., until 1960, when they moved to Crookston. Since then, she had lived in Crookston.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Donald (Janice) Melby of Greenbush; a son, Sidney Nohre of Circle Pines; five grandchildren, four sisters: Mrs. Gertie Robinson of Newfolden, Mrs. Ernest (Alma) Davis and Mrs. Gilma Baucher, both of Crookston, and Mrs. Albert (Anna) Flake of Babbitt; and one brother, Clifford Johnson of Ellsworth, Iowa.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in September of this year, two grandchildren and one brother.

Services Held At Zion For G. Offerdahl

Funeral services for George Offerdahl, 71, of this city, were held today (Wednesday) at 2 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church. Offerdahl died unexpectedly Saturday afternoon.

Swanson Will Preside At 5M3 Lions Meeting

Initial plans have been formulated for the 1976 Midwinter convention of Lions district 5M3, to be held at the Holiday Inn in Fergus Falls on January 30, 31 and February 1. District 5M3 includes the 20 counties in Northwestern Minnesota.

Lions district governor Ernest T. Swanson of Goodridge will be the host governor for the convention.

General chairman for the event is Donald Vraspir, together with Fergus Falls committee chairmen, have chosen the theme "Twenty-Two Hundred" to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the Fergus Falls Lions club and the 200th anniversary of our country.

Fergus Falls Holiday Inn will serve as convention headquarters for the three-day event and approximately 500 Lions members and wives from Minnesota and Canada will be meeting there. The new district governor for 1976-77 will be elected during the convention.

Main speaker for the convention will be Dr. Lacey M. Presnell Jr., Rawleigh, Nc. Dr. Presnell is presently serving on the board of directors for the International association of Lions clubs.

Kidney Fund To Receive Share From Beef Sale

A "Beefeaters Benefit" sponsored by the National Farmers organization (NFO) will be held from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday in the parking lot on the corner of Third street and Knight avenue in Thief River Falls. Extra lean ground beef, Wisconsin cheddar cheese and beef summer sausage will be available, with a share of the proceeds donated to the upper midwest kidney foundation for the fight against kidney disease and the continuation of the "Gift of Life" organ donation program.

The concept, pioneered in Minnesota, enables the farmer-producer to offer his product directly to the consumer at a reasonable price and, at the same time, contribute to a worthy cause. According to Don Rehwaldt, NFO representative, "This direct to the consumer sale allows the farmer to receive a better price, the consumer to receive a top quality product, and the money saved in the marketing process is donated to the kidney foundation."

The local kidney foundation representative is Mrs. James Nepper of Thief River Falls, 681-3213. She announced that Mayor Robert Carlson will donate the $50 permit fee for the sale in memory of Orpha Ryan, a local transplant recipient.

Ground beef, guaranteed to be 87 per cent or better lean meet, is sold in five pound frozen packages at one dollar per pound. Cheese is selling for $1.50 per pound, and beef summer sausage, approximately three and three-quarter pounds, is $6.50 per stick.

Mark Twain To Hold Christmas Program Thurs.

Mark Twain elementary school will present "Christmas USA" Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the Franklin gymnasium, directed by Mrs. Jan Stoffel and accompanied by Miss Floria Swanson.

Tim and Susan's grandparents come for Christmas, and just in time! Tim has an assignment for school on Christmas and Christmas music in America from 1776 or before until the present day. It's due tomorrow, and so far all he has are some reference books.

With the help of Grandma and Grandpa, Mom and Dad and sister Susan, Tim gets the assignment done, in the meantime discovering some things about the hanging of the greens, Santa Claus, an Indian Christmas carol from before 1700, the banning of Christmas in Puritan New England, Christmas music by American composers in colonial America and later, the naming of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, the beginnings of spirituals, Christmas trees, animals speaking on Christmas Eve, bells and the Christmas story.

Kindergarteners as carolers will sing "Jingle Bells, "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "Jolly Old St. Nicholas," "Up on the Housetop," "African Noel," and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas."

Grade four sings "Twas the Night Before Christmas." Fifth grade will sing "The Huron Carol," "Old Hundred", "Come, Thou Long-Expected Jesus," and "The Shepherds and the Angel." Grade three will perform "Sing It Out With a Shout," "Mary Had a Baby," "Children Go Where I Send Thee", and "Go, Tell It on the Mountain."

Represent St. Hilaire Co-Op At GTA Meet

More direct exports of grain by GTA and other regional grain marketing cooperatives was called for by Upper Midwest farmers attending the annual meeting of the Farmers Union Grain terminal association recently in St. Paul.

Representing St. Hilaire at the two-day meeting were R. E. Miller, manager of the St. Hilaire co-op elevator, and co-op delegates Ron Anderson of Red Lake Falls, Bob Wald of Thief River Falls and Everett Flesche of St. Hilaire.

To do more direct exporting, closer cooperation will be needed by the nation's regional grain marketing cooperatives. GTA delegates voted to support such cooperation by their organization.

In a resolution of support for building a national export cooperative, delegates called for a study on the probable costs, risks and benefits of a national export company, as well as the probable cost of not having such a company.

Effective co-op exporting would require co-op members to commit part of their grain in advance of sale. One such method would be pooling of grain which is being introduced in the southwest hard winter wheat area. Delegates instructed GTA staff to explore practical methods of getting commitment by cooperative members in this area.

Another Step Taken Toward AVTI Addition

October 2 and 23 at 1:30 p.m. The school district will have access to college facilities to an approximate value of $600 in exchange as repayment.

Back pay to certified and non-certified personnel as determined by negotiations or arbitration was authorized for payment and checks for those amounts are expected to be issued this week.

Mrs. Harriet Hanson was hired as a long-term substitute for grade three at Northrop, Colleen Broten as secretary at the AVTI, Ellen Anton as long-term substitute for typing instructor and VyAnn Feragen as half-time secretary for the buildings and grounds and transportation departments.

Extra-curricular assignments as VICA advisors at the Northwest Vocational center were approved for Allen Aaseby, Roger Rivera and Lee Heinecke and as FFA advisor for Jerry Hauff.

Policy statement on compliance with state and federal law prohibiting discrimination and appended grievance procedures as required for Title IX participation was also approved. Also approved was employment of an architect to design and draw specifications for an engine test cell for the AVTI aviation mechanics program.

Due to problems regarding student parking on school district property in the areas of Lincoln high school and the school district service center, a public hearing on regulating of parking was set for January 5 at 7 p.m. in the board room of the school district service center.

It is proposed that now student parking be allowed along the railroad tracks immediately south of Lincoln high school, inside the fenced area at the school district service center, between the old bus barns, next to or around old Washington school or outside the auto mechanics and carpentry shops located at Lincoln high school.

A resolution was adopted for the school district and the principals and directors association to enter into a contract for the 1975-76 school year as negotiated.

Hired as ice rink attendants at a rate of $2.20 per hour were Dennis Knutson, Ervin LaForge and Larry Sampson. Extension was granted to Bible Baptist church for rental of Knox elementary school for an additional month.

Fire Destroys Polansky Farm Home Monday

Fire Monday morning destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Polansky of Gatzke, causing the loss of all household goods and personal belongings. Mrs. Polansky was upstairs at the time the fire apparently started downstairs.

The Polanskys' five children, ranging in age from five through 15, were in school at the time of the blaze. The fire reportedly spread so rapidly that Mrs. Polansky was unable to save any possessions before being forced to leave the house.

Friends and neighbors have organized a campaign to assist the family in replacing at least a part of the clothing lost in the fire. Persons who wish to assist by providing clothing items should bring them to St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls.

Clothing needs were described for individual family members as follows:

Eugene—Men's pants with 38-inch waist and 29-inch inseam, shirts size 16-16½ and shorts size 38-40;

Marge—Size 18 slacks, size 20 skirt, size 9 shoe and 38-40 blouse;

Mark, 15—Pants with 38-inch waist and 31 inch inseam, size 15-15½ shirt, size 38-40 shorts and size 10 shoe;

Gary, 14—Size 16 slim pants, boys' shirt size 14-16, boys' size 16 shorts and size 6½-7 shoe;

Paul, 11—Size 31 pants, boys' size 16-18 shirt;

Cindy, 12—Size 16½ slacks, size 18 skirt, size 7 shoe;

Kathy, 5—Size 6 or 7 little girls' dresses, size 8 or 9 shoe.

The family is also in need of bedding and similar items.

Prenatal care for a pregnant woman is many things, says the March of Dimes—good nutrition, the right balance of exercise and relaxation, good personal hygiene, and a regular schedule of examinations by physicians or nurse-midwives.

Public Schools Close Friday For Vacation

Thief River Falls public schools will close at regular dismissal time on Friday for the annual Christmas and New Year holiday, according to Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of schools. Students and teachers will have a vacation period until Monday, January 5, when schools will reopen at the regular time.

Administrative offices in all public schools and the school district service center will be open on December 22 and 23 until 5 p.m. and close at 3 p.m. on December 24, remaining closed until December 29. They will be open December 29 and 30 and close at 3 p.m. on December 31, remaining closed until the start of school January 5.

Mair, Purath Head Of State Beef Groups

Ray Mair and Pauline Purath, both of rural Red Lake Falls, were elected president of the Minnesota Beef Producers association and Minnesota CowBelles at the annual meetings of the organizations held recently in Duluth.

Other officers of the beef producers group are Bill Rice of Wilton, vice president, and Bob Wiese of Lynd, secretary-treasurer. Ron Moe of rural Thief River Falls serves on the board of directors and Bud Wishard of Trail is past president.

Other officers of the CowBelles, women's auxilary to the beef producers association, are Mrs. Richard Henze of Little Falls, vice president, and Mrs. Ronald Caldwell of Pierz, secretary-treasurer.

Audubon Group Makes Plans For Bird Count

Agassiz Audubon met Wednesday at Warren high school when Tex Hawkins, a former Peace Corps volunteer in Costa Rica, gave a slide talk on the birds of Costa Rica.

Agassiz Audubon society is now three years old and growing in membership, according to society officers. The club is composed of people interested in bird-watching and conservation of wildlife.

Robert Carter of Wannaska contributed $100 in memory of his wife and the memorial will be used for special conservation projects. Annual Christmas bird counts will be held between December 20 and January 4. Anyone interested in joining one of these outings may do so.

Warren will have its count on December 20, starting from the county courthouse and led by Gladwin Lynne. On January 3 the Crookston count will be led by Terry Wolfe. Thief River Falls count is scheduled for Sunday, December 21, starting from the Rex cafe at 8 a.m., led by Clifford Steinhauer. Results of the bird counts may be seen in the public library in the magazine "The Loon."

Agassiz Audubon society will be host to the Minnesota Ornithologists Union on May 29 and 30 and expects 200 to 300 birdwatchers. One of the stops will be made at Agassiz national wildlife refuge.

Yule Program Set Friday At St. Hilaire

St. Hilaire elementary school Christmas program will be presented Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne Harger. Theme of the program will be "Countdown to '76'".

The Bicentennial Christmas musical will feature the fourth and fifth grades in numbers throughout the program. The second grade will sing songs dealing with Yankee Doodle toys from the 1776 era, following Colonial Christmas numbers by the first grade.

Kindergarten will present 1876 Christmas numbers and the third grade will present the space age Christmas. The audience will also join in the singing to conclude the program.

Icy City Streets Cause Accidents

Chief of police Kenneth Froschheiser attributed many of the 17 automobile accidents that occurred in Thief River Falls within the last week to slippery driving conditions caused by compacted snow and ice on city streets. On Monday afternoon alone, following the weekend snowfall, seven mishaps were reported.

The chief urged that motorists proceed carefully on the streets for the rest of the winter because, with subfreezing temperatures setting in, roads will likely remain slippery for some time.

In addition to the accidents, police were occupied by investigations of two break-ins and two other attempted break-ins that were reported Sunday. In a break-in at the Rex cafe, the safe at the front of the restaurant was pushed to the other end of the building and then downstairs, where it was peeled. Some money was taken, with damage to the safe estimated at $300 and damage to a door set at $100.

J & B drug store also reported a break-in that day. Entry was gained the previous night through the front door, with $100 damage done in the process. A quantity of drugs was taken, but the safe and till were not touched. The suspects left through the back door. Doors at Piggly Wiggly and Corner Drug were tampered with during the night, but no entry was gained.

Three Minneapolis area men who are being held in Crookston following an early Sunday drug store break-in there are also being investigated for possible connection with the Thief River Falls break-ins and break-in attempts. Max Graham of the bureau of criminal apprehension is directing the investigation, with the TRF police department assisting.

In an accident reported December 8, Lonny Nissen of Thief River Falls was traveling north on Knight avenue in front of Lincoln school and was passing a car which had stopped in front of him when he struck a pedestrian, Donald Wehage of the city, who was walking west across the street. Wehage suffered a bruised left hip.

In the first of two accidents Tuesday, December 9, Patrick English of Renville was traveling west on Third street at 3:48 p.m. when he collided with a vehicle driven by Leonard Helgeland of the city, who was driving north on Knight avenue. The drivers' vision was evidentally obscured by a parked semi. Estimated damages were $1,000 to the Helgeland car and $100 to the English vehicle.

At 9:54 p.m., Jane Brodin, TRF, traveling west on Greenwood street, had stopped at the stop sign and was proceeding across the intersection when she was struck in the left rear by a car driven by Kendall Kolden of St. Hilaire, who was driving south on Highway 32. Damages were estimated at $500 to both vehicles.

Wednesday, December 10 at 5:48 p.m., Barbara Restad of the city was headed west on First street and Arlene Walker of Red Lake Falls was driving south on Main avenue when their cars met in the intersection, causing estimated damages of $300 to the Restad vehicle and $100 to the Walker car.

In an accident Thursday, Michael Knott of Red Lake Falls was driving west on Eighth street and Carl Burrell of the city, traveling north on Atlantic, was proceeding after stopping at a stop sign when the cars met in the intersection. Again, vision was blocked by a parked semi. Damages were estimated at $250 to the Knott vehicle and $50 to the Burrell car.

Later, at 5:18 p.m., Greg Olson of the city was driving south on Main avenue when he collided with a car driven by Marlys Vettleson of the city, who was attempting a left turn into Main from the First Northwestern Bank parking lot. Estimated damages were $75 to the Olson car and $180 to the Vettleson vehicle.

Two accidents were reported Friday. At 5:27 p.m. Alton Sparby of Grygla was driving west on Second street and Daniel Sustad of Viking was headed south on LaBree avenue when their cars met in the intersection, causing $150 damage to the Sparby car and $100 damage to the Sustad vehicle.

At 6:35 p.m., Gregory Weyer of Viking was traveling north on Highway 59 driving a truck owned by Viking elevator when the outside wheel fell off the truck and the vehicle crossed the traffic lane and collided with a car headed south on the highway and driven by Alvin Omdahl of the city. Estimated damages in the accident, which occurred in front of Speed's automobile service, were $20 to the truck and $300 to the Omdahl car.

At 2:04 p.m. Sunday, Michael Skibicki of Goodridge was traveling north on Davis avenue when he tried to stop for the stop sign at Eighth street, slid, and struck the back of the car ahead of him driven by Judith Borchert of the city. Estimated damage to the Skibicki car, owned by Darlene Olson of East Grand Forks, was $350, and an estimated $150 damage was set on the Borchert car.

In the first of the seven accidents reported Monday afternoon, Kenneth Kalsness of the city, driving a vehicle owned by Thomas motors, was traveling east on Greenwood street at 1:02 p.m., when a vehicle driven by Daniel Austad of the city, headed east on Kendall avenue, slid through the stop sign at Kendall and Greenwood and struck his car. Damages were estimated at $125 to the Kalsness car and $175 to the Austad vehicle.

At 1:05 p.m., Todd Adams, TRF, had parked his car on Davis avenue near Eighth street and opened the front door when a car driven by Wayne Vettleson of the city slid into the door. As they waited for the police to arrive, Sverre Solheim of the city attempted to pass them and slid into the side of the Vettleson car. Estimated damages were $225 to the Adams car, $550 to the Vettleson vehicle and $75 to the Solheim car.

Wallace Rondorf, TRF, was traveling west on Gulf street and David Drotts of the city was headed south on Merriam avenue at 3:32 p.m. when their cars collided in the intersection, causing estimated damages of $250 to the Rondorf car and $150 to the Drotts vehicle.

At 4:45 p.m., John Wayne of the city was driving north on Knight avenue and David L. Anderson of the city was traveling east on Fourth street when the two cars met in the intersection, skidded and collided again from the rear of both cars, causing damages estimated at $400 to each vehicle.

Rufus Olson of the city and Michael Burstad, TRF, were both traveling west on Third street at 5:09 p.m. when Olson attempted to pull into the alley between Horace and Atlantic avenues and was struck by Burstad, who tried to pass on the left. Damages were estimated at $275 to the Olson car and $75 to the Burstad car, owned by Jerry Stallock of the city.

At 5:07 p.m., Ray Dargon of St. Hilaire was turning left into Greenwood street after traveling south on Brooks avenue and Gerald Ambuehl of the city was turning right into Brooks after heading west on Greenwood when the cars collided, causing estimated damages of $150 to the Dargon car and $200 to the Ambuehl vehicle.

A vehicle driven by Janeen Burstad of the city was traveling west on Eighth street at 5:35 p.m. when it struck the rear of a vehicle driven by Kenneth Matthew of Goodridge, which was being pushed backwards in the traffic lane. Janeen Burstad was taken to Northwestern hospital, checked for injuries, and released. Damages were estimated at $2,000 to her car, which was owned by Kenneth Kalsness of the city, and $250 to the Matthew vehicle.

In other incidents, it was brought to the attention of the police department Monday, December 8, that a male juvenile, 14, had allegedly taken a calculator valued at $97 from an office at Lincoln high school. Charges are pending. The same day, Warehouse Foods reported confronting a female shoplifter outside the store who dropped the items from under her coat and fled. Kitchen articles and food items valued at a total of $9.03 were recovered. Adeline Olson, 18, of the city was charged.

On Tuesday, December 9, Terry Dunham of the city told police that while his car was parked at the Evangelical Free church lot a window was broken. No entry was gained. The damage was believed to have been caused by a stone thrown between 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. Laurel Jasmer of the city reported the same day that one of her car windows was broken while parked at the Country Kitchen. A tape case and about 12 tapes valued at a total of $169 were taken. The incident is believed to have happened at about 11:30 p.m.

Connie Simons of the city reported that within the last five days someone had attempted to remove the battery from her car while it was parked in front of her residence. One battery cable was taken off and another loosened. The same day, Ray Wagner of the city reported that during the night the battery was taken from his pickup parked in the alley behind his residence. His loss was estimated at $30.

At 5:37 a.m. Thursday, a local citizen reported frightening away a suspect who was taking gas from a school vehicle at the area vocational-technical institute. A vehicle license number was taken, and the case is under investigation. Between seven and eight gallons of gas were taken. Later that day, Glendenning trucking said that during the past two weeks gas was reported stolen from various trucks. Approximately 40 gallons had been taken.

Friday, Larry Hyslop of the Wetch hotel told police that two radios valued at $73 were taken from his room, and Greg Tabor of Northland Manor said that someone had entered an apartment at the Manor rented by Timothy Lutz and taken a tape player belonging to Tabor. His loss was valued at $80.

Police investigated a case where a male subject had left a local motel without paying his bill. With assistance from a local citizen, on Saturday Jack Noel Barry, 37, of Lander, Wyo., was located, and, upon further checking, it was learned that he owed money to another hotel. Barry, who allegedly registered under assumed names, is charged with defrauding an innkeeper.

At 8:26 a.m. Monday, a report was received that Flom's grocery had been broken into during the night. The lock was broken to gain entry and the apparent loss at this time is three cartons of cigarettes.

Tuesday, a car owned by Michael Sommers of Verndale was parked at First street and Kendall avenue when an unknown vehicle hit, causing an estimated $550 damage. The accident was reported at 1:50 a.m.

Survival Kit Is Good Gift For Christmas

If you want to give someone an inexpensive, very useful gift for Christmas, the Minnesota Department of public safety suggests a winter survival kit for the car.

Contents of the kit, together with tips for winter survival, are recommended by the Minnesota Para-Rescue Team in cooperation with Public Safety's emergency services division.

Most of the ingredients for the kit are readily available around the home, or can be purchased very reasonably at local retail stores.

The container is a three-pound coffee can with a plastic cover. Fill it with:

Bright red or orange cloth for signal banner, face mask, matches and candle stubs, can opener, safety pins, small sharp knife (kitchen paring knife OK), toilet paper, facial tissue, canned fuel or fuel tablets, aspirin, spoons, 2 dimes taped to cover for phone calls, flashlight and spare batteries, compass (even a cheap one will do), any high calorie food such as meat ball stew, honey, semi-sweet chocolate, instant coffee, tea, soup, raisins in small packets, candy bars or chewing gum.

Punch three holes around top edge of coffee can so it can be used for melting snow, heating food. It can be hung from the inside mirror with heat or candle on the dashboard beneath it. On the outside of the coffee can, tie work gloves or mittens, scarf and stocking cap.

The coffee can kit should be kept in the passenger compartment. Other items such as sleeping bags, fire extinguisher, first aid kit, booster cables, road flares, shovel, heavy clothing, tow cable, sand or grit may be kept in the luggage compartment, but should be moved into the car if severe weather threatens.

The above kit, together with common sense and keeping cool, will get you through a winter emergency. In addition, main points to remember are: Don't panic, stay with the car, and stay visible with signal banner, flares or dome light.

Minn. Wild Rice Is Exposed At Phoenix Show

George Moriarty reported to the Wild rice industry that wild rice received valuable TV exposure in Phoenix, Ariz. recently.

The Minnesota department of agriculture held a Minnesota food exposition in Phoenix on October 22. There were approximately thirty food marketers who had display booths, among them were United wild rice, inc. and Sara Bay Inc. The Minnesota paddy wild rice research and promotion board had an educational booth depicting wild rice harvesting and processing done in the old and the new methods and also dispensed information on basic preparation and uses.

The Minnesota food exposition provides an opportunity for Minnesota food industry people to display their products and solicit business among several hundred invited guests, made up of local buyers for hotels, restaurants, wholesalers, institutions, etc. This is the second such show held in Phoenix, Ariz. This area has a population of one and one-half million people, has 1,000 food stores doing an annual business of $883,786,000. There are approximately one-half million households in this area. While there, the Promotion board was very fortunate in securing TV exposure in what is prime time for housewife viewing. From seven to nine minutes were allotted on three talk shows, which were station KOOL, an educational channel; on station KPHO TV with Rita Davenport on the "Open House Show" and on station KTAR with Dianne Kalas in "Today In Arizona". George Moriarty, executive secretary of the Promotion board was the guest on the shows and discussed the early history of wild rice, how it is being grown under controlled conditions, its adaptability for use in casseroles, and with all types of fish, fowl and meats. The moderators of these shows found wild rice to be an interesting subject and in their questions, provided Moriarty an opportunity to point out that although wild rice is a gourmet food, its expansion during cooking gives such an increased amount as to make less expensive per serving as is generally believed. He further stated that everyone is entitled to an occasional splurge and that nobody should deprive themselves of this very delicious food.

The marketing order implemented last year, creating funds for the Promotion board, is making it possible for this and other types of promotional work to be carried on the end result of which will be beneficial to wild rice growers as well as to the entire industry.

SPARKS FLY as a power grinder is applied to a welded joint on this component part manufactured at Toreq, Inc., in Thief River Falls. In addition to its main line of heavy duty scrapers, the company manufactures some parts for Hydra-Mac, Inc., also of Thief River Falls.

WELDERS at Toreq, Inc., are involved in many areas of scraper construction. Nearly all of the scraper parts are cut and assembled in the Toreq plant.

The company's payroll has increased from about 20 in June to about 45 at the present time.

Toreq Given Order For 100 Farm Scrapers

Douglass Steiger told the annual meeting in November that 1976 forecasts look extremely favorable with a good market demand for the Toreq scrapers. Sales for the first year exceeded management forecasts, he said, and the recent agreement with Steinger Tractor will assure growth for the coming year.

Scrapers manufactured by the company are of 11 cubic yard or eight cubic yard capacity and are designed to be pulled by 200-plus horsepower rubber tired and crawler type tractors.

A company information sheet notes that the scrapers feature an improved bucket and apron design for easier loading and better spread control, swivel hitch for greater mobility and less drawbar strain, unique flotation for greater mobility with improved cutting control and heavy duty cylinders for high or low pressure systems to insure even loading and unleading.

The 11-yard scraper has a cut of 104 inches to a nine-inch depth, a wheel base of 196 inches, overall height of 70 inches and weighs 10,350 pounds. Rear tires are 18.4x26—10 ply and front tires are 16.5x16—10 ply. The eight-yard scraper has an 85½ inch cut to a depth of eight inches and is 65 inches high. Its rear tires are 14.9x24 and front tires are 12.5Lx16.

Grain Beetles Destroyed At Duluth Port

State and federal inspectors discovered and destroyed a potentially dangerous quantity of one of the world's most destructive cereal grain insect pests, the Khapra beetle, aboard a foreign ship in Duluth Port on December 2, the Minnesota department of agriculture confirmed recently.

The beetles were found in the dry food stores inventory of the Liberian motor vessel Pacific Defender, which had arrived in Duluth to pick up grain cargo for delivery to Russia.

State inspector Gary Kujava and federal inspector John Wuotila, both assigned to Duluth port, found numerous live larvae and adult Khapra beetles in the ship's supplies of beans, rice, flour and spaghetti. Immediate action was taken to quarantine the ship and fumigate the contaminated storeroom.

Follow-up inspection confirmed that all of the beetles were dead. All of the finely ground cereal products in the storeroom, about 300 pounds, were removed and destroyed by incineration. The dry stores had been obtained at Mombassa, Kenya.

Robert Flaskerd, state director of the department's plant industry division, said that thorough inspection of all incoming ships has prevented any recurrence of Khapra beetle infestations in the United States for the past five years.

Bert Hoger, plant industry entomologist, said the Khapra beetle is as durable as it is destructive. It can survive extremely cold temperatures, down to zero in stored grain. The beetle can live without food for up to three years. Khapra beetles are prolific multipliers in stored grain.

Although the beetle in the most destructive stage, larva, is smaller than a flaxseed, it can consume enormous quantities of cereal grains. India annually loses thousands of tons of grain to this insect.

Hoger said the Duluth port discovery of the Khapra beetle in this instance was probably a greater threat for a new infestation in Russia than here. The ship unloaded no cargo in Duluth, and the outdoor temperature on December 2 was only 19 degrees. Undetected, the beetles might have found their way into the grain loaded for delivery in Russia.

Truck Official Likes Gov't. Regulations

Advocates of less regulation by government are misdirecting both their attention and efforts, a spokesman for the trucking industry declared at a U.S. department of commerce hearing on "regulatory reform" in St. Paul recently.

Testifying at a series of hearings being held in various cities throughout the country, James N. Denn, executive vice president of the Minnesota motor transport association, St. Paul, said the real problem is in the field of "social" regulation and not with "economic" regulation.

"There is a vast difference between social and economic regulation," Denn pointed out. "Unfortunately, it seems that much of the discussion about regulation these days is centered upon economic rather than social regulation. I believe this attention is off target.

"Like businessmen of my acquaintance," he said, "I think there is a surplus of government regulation in what I would term the social field. I think it should be reduced and, in some cases, eliminated. On the other hand, in the field of economic regulation—which includes the regulation of transportation—there is a need for proper government regulation. This area should be strengthened rather than weakened or demolished."

Recognizing that many social-type regulations are proper and necessary, Denn went on to observe that, "Regrettably, however, there are still too many that appear to be the result of someone's whim or 'research' not substantiated by fact.

"There is insufficient attention given to the cost-benefit ratio," Denn stated. "There is little awareness of the chain reaction that a single regulation or requirement can create, resulting in a whole series of changes having to be made simply to comply with one regulation."

Stressing his support of economic regulation, Denn noted that transportation operates under what he described as "the public utility concept." "Just as the homeowner knows the light is going to come on when he flicks the switch," he said, "The shipper knows he is going to get truck service when he reaches for the phone. He has the right to expect truck service because the truck owner has the obligation to provide it for him. The motor carrier has that obligation because he is under economic regulation."

Denn hit hard at proposals by the administration to eliminate government regulation of transportation. "Because of regulation by government," he said, "freight transportation in the United States is more than reasonable—it is a bargain."

Denn denied claims that regulation increases costs, causes empty backhauls or restrains competition. "Economic regulation is the heart of this nation's freight transportation system," he said, calling it "the best, most efficient, most dependable in the world."

Commending the commerce department officials for their interest in regulatory reform, Denn said, "I urge you to make certain you and the rest of our government shoot at the right target."

Brodin, Thyren Attend Meeting

Dealers from the 12-state Midwest division of Lennox, including Rodney Brodin and Donald Thyren of Brodin Sheet Metal in Thief River Falls, spent three days in product, marketing and service meetings and seminars recently at Marshalltown, Ia.

They learned of continuing product improvements and energy related research from company spokesmen and through audio-visual communications.

U.S. Historic Music Sites To Be Recognized

Sites that have been associated with significant music events or individuals during the nation's 200-year history will be designated as landmarks and permanently marked during 1976, according to the national music council (NMC).

"Locations chosen may be associated with musical events or prominent musical persons," according to Don C. Robinson of Atlanta, Ga., chairman of the Music educators national conference Bicentennial commission, which is administering the program. "Each state has its own screening committee, appointed by the council's 60 member organizations, which has nominated the places to be cited," Robinson explained.

Following approval of the candidates by the national committee, a bronze plaque commemorating the musical landmark will be installed at each site with appropriate ceremonies. Final selections are to be announced shortly after Jan. 1, 1976.

Although over 300 sites have been suggested, he said, only those that are significant to our broad musical heritage will be officially recognized—not to exceed 200. "We believe the establishment of these musical landmarks, preserving for posterity a record of two centuries of musical development, will be one of the most important events of the Bicentennial celebration," he added.

Another part of the Bicentennial parade of American Music is a series of 52 free concerts at Washington's Kennedy center, extending over a 20-month period, that is administered by the National Federation of music clubs. Programs saluting the musical contributions of each state are held in conjunction with the "State Day" celebrations organized by the Washington, D.C., mayor's office of Bicentennial programming.

Dr. Merle Montgomery, NMC president, is the national coordinator for this 200-year survey of American music. "America has a right to be proud of its musical heritage," Dr. Montgomery pointed out. "As we observe our Bicentennial, it is altogether fitting that the musical pioneers who gave us our vital music background be recognized and honored by the performance of their works, and that the places where those no longer with us lived or worked should be marked in an appropriate manner."

CPA Suggests Computing Tax In December

Does it make any sense to compute income taxes in December, with the year not even over and the tax return deadline four months away? The Minnesota Society of CPAs thinks so, and offers a number of reasons, all of which have to do with saving tax dollars come next April.

The CPAs don't suggest that you completely fill out your Form 1040 at this early date—merely that you get a good enough idea of your income, exemptions, deductions and probable tax obligation so you can take whatever tax-minimizing steps may be necessary while you have the chance.

For example, if a quick computation indicates your taxes have been underwithheld, there's still time to have your employer hold back enough from your last couple of paychecks to meet the withholding requirements.

Or if you are eligible for a tax credit for buying a new home, and the credit is greater than the taxes you owe, you won't want to see part of that credit go unused; perhaps you can bring some of next year's income into 1975, when it can be offset by the credit.

Or let's say you have just had a very good year; your 1975 income promises to be well above what you expect to make next year. How about trying to delay some of your earnings until after the first of the year, or prepaying some of next year's deductible expenses now?

The CPAs advise that not all bills can be prepaid with Internal Revenue blessing, but among those than can are certain state and local taxes, charitable contributions and some interest payments made no more than a year in advance.

Most medical bills can't be prepaid, but there's nothing to prevent you from paying now every penny of medical expenses you presently owe, and the CPAs recommend that you do so, especially if those expenses exceed the excludable first three per cent of adjusted gross income.

After roughly assessing their tax situation, taxpayers with investments in securities may be promoted to make changes in their portfolios to balance out capital gains and losses. The CPAs believe wise investors avoid buying or selling for tax reasons alone; sound investment considerations should also support such a move. And, they add, don't forget that a purchase or sale of a security take five working days to carry out and if you wait too long the transaction may occur in 1976 rather than 1975.

How about those Individual retirement accounts, into which persons not already covered by a pension or profit-sharing plan can put aside part of their income and pay no taxes on it until it is withdrawn? If you are eligible, consider establishing an IRA at once, say the CPAs, for in the closing days of the year you can set aside the full amount permitted for all of 1975.

The same is true of gifts to your children or others. There is a $3,000 annual limit on the amount that can be given without paying taxes, and if you don't make the 1975 gift this month, the tax break for the year is lost.

Incidentally, if you do make the gift now, make sure your check is cashed this year. To avoid having to ask the recipient to hurry to his bank, just have the check certified; that causes it to be debited to your account at once.

Those are just a few of the reasons for looking into your tax situation now, according to the CPA society. Painful as the process may br, it can pay big dividends. And, the CPAs add, digging out your canceled checks, bank deposit slips and other documents well in advance of income tax filing time can help you organize your records to simplify and speed the filing process.

Cycle Fatality Rate Reduced By Helmet Use

Study of the effectiveness of motorcycle helmet use laws in which comparative figures for Minnesota's motorcycle fatality picture were included has indicated that the helmet use laws are reducing the death rate, the department of public safety reported recently.

In addition, the study found that laws requiring the daytime use of headlamps by motorcyclists may also be achieving the same loss reduction purpose, although caution was added in that more information on the effectiveness of headlamp laws would be needed before definitive conclusions could be drawn. Minnesota motorcyclists were required only as of August 1 of this year to turn their headlamps on whenever the machine is in operation.

The study, undertaken by the insurance institute for highway safety (IIHS), compared the fatal crash involvement rates in eight states which adopted helmet use laws with the rate in eight other similar states that had no such laws during a comparable period.

The study found that the fatality rate declined from more than 10 deaths per 10,000 registered motorcycles the year before the laws' enactments to about seven per 10,000 both in the years of enactments and the following years.

Minnesota's fatal involvement rates, averaged in with the seven other states which did pass helmet use laws in the period studied, are considerably lower than the eight state average. In the four years prior to Minnesota's enactment of the helmet law in 1969, the state averaged 6.8 deaths per 10,000 registered motorcycles. In 1969, the average dropped to 5.2. In the four years following, the average was 5.5 deaths per 10,000 registered cycles.

Like the rest of the nation, Minnesota has seen an upsurge in the number of registered cycles over the past 10 years. In 1965 the state registered 39,400 of the vehicles while in 1974 that number had more than tripled to over 138,000.

The IIHS report also compared fatal crash involvement rates in four states that require motorcyclists to use headlamps during the day—to make them easier for auto drivers to see—with four states not having such requirements.

The study of this situation found that the proportion of fatal crashes involving motorcycles decreased from that of the prior year in each of the states enacting such laws relative to the fatality rate in it and its comparison state. Although no definite conclusion was drawn from the headlamp law study due to a number of variables, the findings were stated to be "sufficiently encouraging to justify their consideration" in states that do not have headlamp use laws.

Common Situs Construction's New Headache

President Ford and his veto power is virtually all that stands in the way of a blatant piece of special interest legislation which would enormously increase the picketing power of U.S. construction unions at the expense of taxpayers and consumers, states the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

In a raw demonstration of majority power, the Senate recently cut off all debate and passed the controversial pro-labor common situs (site) picketing bill, which, in effect, would reverse a U.S. supreme court decision of 1951 and permit secondary boycotts on construction jobsites.

The bill, strongly backed by the AFL-CIO, permits a single union, in a dispute with one employer, to shut down entire construction jobs involving neutral employers and their workforces.

A public opinion poll shows that not only the public but most unionists oppose the use of such picketing tactics against innocent third parties in labor disputes. Opinion Research corp. of Princeton, N.J., found in a national poll of more than 1,000 interviews that 68 per cent of the public opposed common situs picketing. Among union members, 57 per cent were opposed and among union families, 62 per cent.

What is the rationale behind such a piece of legislation?

Sheer power: The votes. Most of those votes were won in the 1974 general election when the AFL-CIO, rather than either political party, emerged as the big winner, with seven of every 10 candidates endorsed by the AFL-CIO winning their races.

The success of this particular pro-labor bill was assured months ago when the Senate majority, flexing its power, voted to change the rules by which all debate could be cut off on legislative issues. On March 7, the Senate voted, 56-27, to discard the long-standing rule which required a two-thirds majority. Under the new rule, a vote of three-fifths of the entire membership, or 60 Senators, can vote cloture, or an end to debate.

When the common situs bill reached the Senate, a filibuster was attempted but was swept aside, 62 to 37. Under the former rule 66 votes would have been needed.

It should come as no surprise that 85 per cent of those who voted to change the cloture rules (48 of 56) in March were among the 62 voting in November to shut off the filibuster against the picketing bill.

Forty Senators scored 100 per cent on the AFL-CIO ratings. They voted (1) to change the cloture rule, (2) to end the debate on the picketing bill and (3) in favor of the bill on final passage, when the vote was 52-45.

The Associated Press reported that the AFL-CIO, according to an unofficial tally, had contributed $1.4 million in campaign funds to many of the Senators whose votes helped clinch passage of the picketing bill. The tally came from a computerized study made by Common Cause, a citizens' lobby.

Except for the remote possibility of defeating the House-Senate conference report, only President Ford can stop the rampant pro-labor majority, and he has indicated he may sign the bill if it is accompanied by an administration-backed construction bargaining reform bill.

In urging a veto, Dr. Richard L. Lesher, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, wrote to the President, declaring:

"If the building trades unions are given the secondary boycott power . . . we can see no result other than a dramatic increase in the cost of construction and a decrease in productivity and efficiency.

"In the process, thousands of non-union craftsmen will be threatened with the loss of their jobs as unions press for all-union construction sites. The competition that now exists between union and non-union employers will be severely diminished. And the individual right of free choice will be further eroded."

Majority rule in this nation has been a keystone of our democratic system. But a majority that changes the rules to suit its purposes is another matter. It speaks for power, not the public interest.

The National Chamber acts in the public interest in warning the President that individual rights will suffer if the majority wins this one on the strength of sheer muscle alone.

Gives Grant Of $1 Million To U of Minn.

McKnight foundation of Minneapolis has granted $1 million ot the University of Minnesota to be used under the supervision of President C. Peter Magrath over a three-year period.

"This gift from the McKnight foundation is extraordinarily welcome news," Magrath said. "It enables us to work on some selective improvements in our graduate and professional activities."

The funds will be divided, with about $675,000 going to academic programs under Henry Koffler, vice president for academic affairs, and about $325,000 going to programs in the health sciences under the direction of vice president Lyle French. The money will be transmitted through the University of Minnesota foundation, the university's fund-raising arm.

Specific areas that have been selected to receive the McKnight money include the chemistry department, programs in language and literature, health sciences basic research, the graduate nursing program and basic sciences training and research in the health science areas.

In chemistry, Koffler said, funds will be used to help establish laboratories for new faculty members.

"The individuals whom we want to persuade to come to Minnesota, all distinguished scientists or promising future stars, are well set up at their own institutions and will not come unless we can provide them with at least equivalent laboratory facilities and equipment," Koffler said.

"Language and literature are at the core of the humanities, which we must restore to their former distinction at Minnesota," he continued. Major emphasis will be on the development of faculty, programs and interdisciplinary ventures.

"Basic health sciences research needs," French said, "result from the need for better integration of basic science studies in the training of all health science professionals."

He said an expansion of graduate programs in nursing would respond to a need for more qualified faculty in nursing schools. The University has the only nursing graduate program in Minnesota.

Ten per cent of the grant will be used at Magrath's discretion for the programs being supported by the grant.

"The McKnight grant will not be used in a way that will create new obligations for state support," Magrath said. "No new faculty appointments will be made unless the salary obligations can be assumed within the current state appropriation at the time the gift terminates."

"At a time when the upgrading and maintaining of quality have been hampered by inflation and cutbacks in federal support, I'm personally extremely grateful to the McKnight foundation for this vote of confidence in graduate and professional programs at the University of Minnesota and hope this action on their part will stimulate other foundations and private donors to renewed and additional support of the University," Magrath said.

The McKnight foundation was established in 1953 by William L. McKnight and the late Maude L. McKnight. McKnight was among the founders of the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing (3M) company.

Legislation Encourages Energy Saving

Senate Independent-Republican caucus has released a legislative program designed to encourage energy conservation through incentives rather than penalties.

The program, which is one of several the caucus plans to release on statewide issues, was announced by Minority leader Robert Ashbach of Arden Hills and his assistants: Joseph O'Neill, St. Paul; Howard Knutson, Burnsville; Mel Frederick, West Concord; John Bernhagen, Hutchinson; Carl Jensen, Sleepy Eye; and Robert Dunn, Princeton.

One of the highlights of the 10-page program, the senators said, is a three-cent-a mile tax deduction for each passenger a driver carries in a car pool.

"Most experts agree that car pooling is one of the best ways of saving energy," Ashbach explained, "and many programs have been tried, but motorists generally have shown a reluctance to participate. We think this approach has an excellent chance of succeeding because it offers a substantial tax savings which can mean as much as a 12-cent-a-mile deduction fo the driver of a five-passenger car pool."

Ashbach said the package also includes tax incentives for converting to coal as an energy source; provisions for special loans to research and develop new energy sources; and a broadened energy education program in the state.

"We've attempted to take a positive approach with incentives rather than penalties, such as higher taxes on heavier cars, because we think in the long run this is the most successful way to get people to respond," said Ashbach.

Another incentive, according to Frederick, is a state award for the best energy-saving ideas which has been proposed by Sen. Mel Hansen of Minneapolis.

"We're also encouraging a broad new education program in the schools to alert students to the necessity of wise energy consumption," said Knutson, "which may well be the ultimate solution to the problem."

Bernhagen said other highlights of the program include: sales tax exemption for cars achieving more than 25 miles per gallon; tax incentives for improving insulation in residential, commercial and industrial buildings; increased state purchase of compact cars and consideration of tax deduction for bus riders.

Also protection of future utilization of the wind and sun as energy sources; sales tax exemption for commuter vans which carry employees to their jobs; enforcement of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and using the existing Minnesota commission on interstate cooperation to communicate with other states on energy-related matters.

O'Neill said the incentives for conversion to coal were designed to offset the rapid depletion of gas and oil supplies which are currently the state's principal sources of energy.

Jensen also said the caucus preferred that whenever feasible private enterprise—rather than the state—should provide energy conservation incentives. Jensen also cited Northern States Power's current program of installment loans for home insulation as an example.

Dunn noted that the liegislature should also consider granting loans and tax incentives for research into the possibility of generating energy from solid waste, peat and wood, fiber and the expansion of nuclear generated electrical energy.

Drivers Are Accountable For Actions

Accountability, according to Thief River Falls Chief of Police Ken Froschheiser, is a growing concept these days—in government and public service, the world of commerce and in education.

"Our department is accountable," the chief pointed out, "for our responsibilities for the safe and efficient flow of traffic, regardless of the weather. But so is every individual driver responsible and accountable for his passengers and for every other driver he meets."

As Chief Froschheiser sees it, it's every driver's responsibility to be aware of the type of driving conditions he will encounter throughout the winter and to equip his car for the best possible traction to protect his passengers and other drivers, as well as himself.

The chief referred to tests conducted over the years by the national safety council's committee on winter driving hazards and cited these findings:

For getting started and for keeping moving, tests have disclosed that conventional snow tires provide only a small improvement on glare ice (28 per cent); reinforced tire chains about seven times the pull of regular tires on ice.

On loosely packed snow, however, conventional snow tires provide half-again as much pull as regular tires. Reinforced tire chains produce about four times the pull of regular tires.

For stopping on ice, conventional snow tires were found to offer no advantage; reinforced tire chains a 50 per cent improvement over regular tires.

On loose snow, however, conventional snow tires were 13 per cent better than regular tires; reinforced tire chains were 37 per cent better.

Chief Froschheiser also pointed out the importance of "cornering", the ability to maintain steering while turning. Being able to round a curve without having your front wheels slide out from under you is a major slick-road problem.

According to the NSC skid testers, traction aids (snow tires, studs and chains) are of little advantage in maintaining steering unless they're used on all four wheels—on the front as well as the rear wheels.

To this warning, the chief added a second admonition:

"Regardless of the help provided by these traction aids on snow and ice, in no instance can a driver stop, go or steer nearly as well as with regular highway tires on dry pavement."

His suggested solution to help every driver carry out his responsibilities to his passengers and to other drivers under winter conditions is: "Slow down, think out every maneuver well in advance and steer, accelerate or stop gently. This is the way to avoid the sure skid producers of sudden, hasty changes in either speed or direction."

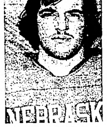
Smith, Nebraska In Fiesta Bowl

Area football fans should take special interest in the 1975 Fiesta Bowl scheduled to be played Fri., Dec. 26, at Tempe, Arizona.



Kent Smith

The University of Nebraska meets Arizona State in the post-season classic scheduled to be televised by CBS beginning at 2 p.m. The television exposure will give Thief River Falls fans an opportunity to watch Lincoln high school graduate Kent Smith in action for Nebraska.

Kent, wearing number 23, plays in the Nebraska defensive secondary as a monsterback. He also plays on the Cornhuskers' kickoff and punt receiving teams.

University of Nebraska sports information director Don Bryant rates Smith a "potential Husker star in years to come." Bryant said "Nebraska fans are already expecting big things next season from Kent, even though he was not a starter during the 1975 football season."

Bryant explained that Smith played behind Cornhusker All-American Wonder Monds this fall, "but even as a second string performer, (Smith) had an outstanding statistical season."

A sophomore, Smith started against Iowa State November 15 when Monds was sidelined by an ankle injury. His day's efforts against the Cyclones consisted of six tackles and a pass interception. He was also credited with breaking up two other pass plays.

For the year, Kent was credited with 17 total tackles, including seven unassisted stops. He recovered one fumble, intercepted two passes and broke up four other pass plays.

According to Cornhusker defensive coach Warren Powers, a former Oakland Raider defensive back, "Smith has a lot of potential during his remaining years as a Cornhusker. He is a fine, dedicated football player," said Powers. "And along with his football abilities, Kent is a fine person and student."

Nebraska, rated number five in the country with a 10-1 record, will be looking to break a current bowl victory record against Arizona State. The Cornhuskers have won six straight post season bowl games, an NCAA record currently shared with Georgia Tech.

Arizona State is rated seventh in the nation with an 11-0 record and Tempe is home of the ASU campus.

Williams Earns Praise

Lincoln high school graduate Doug Williams was praised for having a "real fine day," by University of North Dakota swimming coach Pat Behrns after the Sioux opened their 1975-76 season at the Jackrabbit relays last week in Brookings, S.D.

Williams, a sophomore, was a member of a pair of first place relay teams—the 150-yard individual medley unit and the 300-yard backstroke outfit—as the Sioux placed third in the meet.

The UND 300-yard backstroke relay team broke the meet record with a 3:03.1 clocking.

Little Falls Is Region Power

Little Falls won the Minnesota state high school basketball tournament championship a year ago as a representative of Region C in the MSHSL Class AA alignment.

This winter the Flyers are rated among the best teams once again, but Little Falls is a Region Eight AA ball club this time.

Little Falls was called a "devastating" basketball team by Staples head coach Tom Wolhowe after a recent 74-39 Flyer win over the highly regarded Cardinals. And Little Falls played that game without the services of starry 6-5 Paul Cameron who broke a toe on his right foot in an earlier 64-53 win over St. Cloud Apollo.

"Even without Cameron, they still have four big kids," said Wolhowe.

Lincoln, Northland To Host Basketball Events

Lincoln high school and Northland community college will act as hosts this week to Christmas holiday basketball events in Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls, Karlstad, Fosston and Hendrum will make up the field for the third annual Lincoln Christmas classic, drubbed the Bicentennial Christmas classic, this year.

Northland, Bottineau, North Hennepin and the Grand Forks Air Force base will compete in the third annual Northland Arctic holiday basketball tournament.

Both events get underway Friday night. At Lincoln, Karlstad plays Fosston at 6:45 p.m. and Thief River Falls meets Hendrum at 8:30. At Northland, the Air Force base takes on Bottineau at 7 p.m. and Northland tackles North Hennepin at 9.

Saturday's formats and times will change. Friday night losers at Northland will meet in the tournament consolation game at 2 p.m. while Friday winners clash in the championship game at 4. Lincoln's competition is billed as a classic and not a tournament, so Saturday's pairings are already set with Karlstad playing Hendrum at 7 p.m. and Fosston challenging Thief River Falls at 8:45.

Lincoln Classic

Fosston and Karlstad will be making their third straight appearance in Lincoln's Christmas classic. Hendrum replaces Breckenridge in the fourth slot this year.

In Fosston and Karlstad, fans will be watching early season favorites for District 30 and District 32 honors, respectively, this winter. Hendrum offers an unknown quality and Thief River Falls is trying to find itself after back-to-unknown losses to Mahnomen and Grand Forks Central.

Fosston's Randy Lindfors, a muscular 6-5 center, is regarded by many this year as the best basketball player in northwestern Minnesota. And Karlstad's 6-1 Mike Kuznia is one of the best ball players in District 32.

"There's going to be some good basketball played," offered Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "Fosston definitely has a heck of a ball club and Karlstad's going to be a good one once they get rolling." Karlstad got a late start on the basketball season because of the Rabbits' football success enroute to a runner-up finish in the state Class C playoffs, explained Peters.

Medals will be presented to all participants and coaches.

Northland Tournament

Host Northland is the two-time defending champion in the Northland Arctic holiday tournament.

Northland beat Rainy River 90-82 for the tournament title two years ago and bested Lake Region 84-57 in last year's championship game.

Grand Forks Air Force base is making its first appearance in the event while NDSU-Bottineau plays here for the second year in a row and North Hennepin makes its third straight trip to Thief River Falls. In fact, North Hennepin is the two-time defending consolation champion.

"I think all the games will be tight," pointed out Northland coach Chet Engelman, "but if we play well, I think we can win it. There should be some basketball."

The Air Force base will bring a 8-10 record into the event. B. J. Branigan, a 6-2 guard-forward, flies for the air base team that boasts good balance and lots of experience.

Bottineau is 2-3 for the year, with a couple of losses coming at the hands of four-year schools. Don Kleven, a 6-4 transfer student from Minot State, sports a 22-point scoring average and 6-5 Alvis Beckman averages 14 points per game for the North Dakota State University branch school.

North Hennepin will field probably the tournament's top individual ball player in Willie Brown, a Houston, Texas native likened to former Northland All-American David Dickey. The Brooklyn Center school has a 3-2 record.

Lincoln Swimmers Edge Brainerd By 87-85 Score

Thief River Falls overcame a four-point deficit with a first place finish in the meet's final event Tuesday to eke out an 87-75 dual swim meet win over Brainerd.

The dramatic come-from-behind win, the second straight dual meet triumph in that manner for Thief River Falls, stretched the Prowler season record to 3-0 heading into a 7 p.m. Thursday night test against Moorhead in the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls trailed 81-77 going into the final event at Brainerd—the 400-yard freestyle relay. But the Prowlers earned 10 points in the race with a one-three finish. Brainerd placed second by some 3.2 seconds and had its other foursome disqualified.

Dave Glauque, Bruce Storhaug, Dan Heleren and Dan Cork won the meet-clinching 400-yard freestyle relay event in 3:55.5 while Scott Wallberg, Dave Beito, Eric Thorsgard and Jim Harris picked up an important third place finish.

Individual Thief River Falls winners included Mark Storhaug with a 2:16.4 in the 200-yard individual medley; Greg Omdahl with a 24.7 in the 50-yard freestyle; Heleren with a 53.9 in the 100-yard freestyle; and Cork with a 1:03.2 in the 100-yard backstroke.

Brainerd, paced by double event winner Dave Monkman, won five events. Monkman won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:56.8 and took the 500-yard freestyle in 5:18.9.

Rick House of the Warriors was the meet's top diver with 141.70 points while Mark Nelson won the 100-yard butterfly in 1:05.0 and Kevin Anderson took the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:06.8.

Brainerd also won the 200-yard medley relay with Monkman, Al Bergerson, Kevin Anderson and Matt Vrudney swimming a 1:50.7.

"It was really an exciting meet," pointed out Prowler coach John Kopari. "We swam basically our best times of the year against some very good Brainerd swimmers."

Thief River Falls will also be in action Saturday when the Prowlers take part in an invitational meet at Fergus Falls.

Central Clips Prowlers 61-47

Grand Forks Central jumped out to an 18-5 first quarter lead Tuesday to key a 61-47 high school basketball win over visiting Thief River Falls.

The rocky start was instrumental in lowering the Prowler season record to 2-2 for the year while the highly regarded Redskins pushed their mark to 4-0.

Thief River Falls improved its offensive production considerably in the second quarter, but still trailed the defensively-strong Central squad 29-19 at halftime. The Redskins owned a commanding 43-27 lead at the end of the third quarter.

"We had a pathetic first quarter," explained Thief River Falls head coach Glen Peters, noting his team missed its first six shots and turned the ball over nine times against a Central press in the first eight minutes.

Four Central scorers reached double figures as Mike Fruetel scored 18 points, Rick Bock 13, Arlen Hefta 10 and Greg Wilson 10. Don Forney dropped in 15 points for the Prowlers and Jeff Neelan added 10.

"I thought our kids did a nice job playing defense," said Peters, "but we gave them second and third shots on rebounds. Our biggest problem right now is rebounding. We were out-jumped and out-positioned on the boards. We just can't afford to give up two or three shots all the time."

Central finished with a sizable 31-18 rebounding edge, a figure aided further by 21 Thief River Falls turnovers.

Thief River Falls shot only 39 per cent from the floor for the game, hitting 20 of 51 attempts. Central, meanwhile, shot at a mean 56 per cent clip by making 30 of 54 tries. The Prowlers made seven of nine free throw attempts while Central sank just one of eight gift tosses.

Prowler Skaters Beat Crookston Cathedral 6-3

Thief River Falls snapped a 3-3 tie with a three-goal third period outburst Tuesday to beat Crookston Cathedral 6-3 in high school hockey action in the sports arena.

A sparse crowd was on hand to watch the Prowlers level their season record at 2-2-1 heading into a Saturday night assignment in Aurora-Hoyt Lakes.

The few fans on hand must have wondered if Thief River Falls was heading into its third overtime game of the still-young 1975-76 season when the two teams matched goals through the first two periods.

Junior wing Brad Kosel quickly dispersed those overtime thoughts, however, by swooping down and lifting a loose rebound up and over Cathedral goalie Dave Couauette just 3:58 into the third period. Coauette had just made a save on Murray Dicken's hard slap shot from the left point, but did not have time to bounce off his knees when Kosel darted in front of the net for the goal and a 4-3 Prowler lead.

A pair of rapid-fire goals later in the period padded the Thief River Falls lead as Kent Ehrenstrom scored at the 8:02 mark and Mike Jury put one in at 8:44.

Ehrenstrom sent a hard wrist shot from the slot whistling by Coauette on assists from Doug Dallmann and Bob Forberg.

Jury's goal, his second of the game, was set up in front by several sharp passes from Forberg and Lindquist, a play typical of all six Prowler goals.

"We just gave them two goals," said Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann. "The ones we got, we passed the puck and set them up real well I thought."

Thief River Falls scored the game's first goal when Dallmann did a nifty job of stickhandling to tuck a close range backhand into the short side of the net at 4:10 of the first period. Lindquist and Bill Olson assisted on the power play goal.

Crookston tied the game on a sharp angle shot by Jim Salem at 6:57 and then went ahead 2-1 on a slap shot deflection by Tim Riopelle during a Cathedral power play.

Thief River Falls capitalized on a flurry of activity around the Crookston net to gain a 2-2 tie just 51 seconds later. Jury lifted in his own close range rebound at 9:10, with Lindquist and Forberg earning assists on the play.

The Prowlers took a 3-2 lead into the lockerroom when Lindquist hit a close range wrist shot that bounced off Coauette and trickled across the goal line at 12:11. Steve Geatz and Jury assisted on the score.

The lively first period was followed by a less active second stanza that was highlighted by a typing goal off the stick of Cathedral's Joe Menard with only 1:09 elapsed. Thief River Falls goalie Terry Sullivan turned back a volley of Crookston shots to open the period before Menard finally put a rebound up and over the prone netminder.

"We played ping-pong hockey with them; just dumping the puck back and forth into each other's ends," said McGann. "But we finally got our game going in the third period. I think maybe we wore them down."

First Period

Scoring—TRF, Dallmann assisted by Lindquist and Olson, 4:10. CC, Salem assisted by Mark Ogaard and T. Noah, 6:57. CC, Riopelle assisted by Rook and T. Noah, 8:01. TRF, Jury assisted by Lindquist and Forberg, 9:10. TRF, Lindquist assisted by Geatz and Jury, 12:11.

Northmen Rip Air Base Basketball Team 107-73

Northland, regaining the form that has made the school one of the most respected basketball powers in the state, romped to an easy 107-73 win over the Grand Forks Air Force base basketball team Tuesday in the Northland gym.

"We looked more like a Northland team than anytime this year," praised Northland coach Chet Engelman whose team improved its 1975-76 season record to 4-2. "It was the first time all year we've pressed effectively and consistently. Everybody played well for us."

The Northland press enabled the Northmen to set a single game school record with 41 loose ball recoveries, a mark nearly every member of the team had a hand in setting. Center Tom Johnson led the way with six recoveries while guards Tom Sumpter, Preston Curtis, Keith Cheek and Joe Brown had five apiece.

Curtis and Johnson shared game-high scoring honors with 18 points apiece. Brown and John Baril scored 12 points each. Curtis also dished out five assists. Sam Hall scored 16 points for the Air Base and Elwin Handy added 14. Northland, a winner December 2 over the Air Base by a much closer 76-68 margin, led only 29-28 with six minutes remaining in the first half before pulling away to a 51-38 cushion at intermission.

Northland iced the game with a pair of scoring outbursts in the second half that rang up 13 straight points on two different occasions.

The Northmen shot an even 45 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 45 of 100 attempts. The Air Base made 36 of 83 shots for a 43 per cent figure. Northland enjoyed a considerable advantage in the free throw department as the Northmen sank 17 of 28 gift tosses while the Air Base made one of only three free thrown opportunities. Northland also posted a huge rebounding edge by outboarding the Air Base 70-46. Bill Whitney pulled down 12 rebounds and Brown hauled in 10.

Engelman praised nearly everyone, but singled out Johnson and Curtis for "super ball games."

Bagley Bounces Wrestlers 42-6

Lincoln high school wrestling team closed out the 1975 portion of its 1975-76 season without a win Tuesday as the Prowlers dropped a 42-6 decision to a strong Bagley team in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls posted just two individual wins against the highly regarded Flyers as the Prowlers suffered their fifth straight dual meet setback.

Dan Hallstrom at 126 and Duane Gonsorowski at 145 were the only Prowler winners. Hallstrom produced a three-point nearfall late in the third period to overcome Steve Snobl. Gonsorowski gave up just three single point escapes in beating Paul Rasmussen 8-3 when each escape by Rasmussen was matched by a two-point takedown by Gonsorowski.

Several other weight classes featured close matches. In a battle of 112-pound sophomores, Bagley's Rod Gerbracht picked up a third period reversal to edge Lee Furuseth 6-4. Another third period reversal, this one by Bagley's Jim Leines, beat Dale Furuseth 2-0 at 155. David Skunes of Bagley defeated Randy Olson in a different manner, scoring five points on a takedown and three-point nearfall in the first period enroute to a 5-3 win at 167.

Bagley picked up pin wins by David Sederquist in 1:48 over Randy Ayers at 98 pounds and by Brian Willborg in 3:17 over Peter Mosbeck at 138.

Other Flyer winners included Mark Thoveson by 11-4 over Clark Nelson at 105; Mark Nelson 13-7 over Scott Nelson at 119; Chris Nelson 9-2 over Larry Swanson at 132; and Kyle Orvick 19-1 over Stuart Peterson at 180.

Bagley also picked up a six-point forfeit win in the heavyweight match. Mike Selves was the only Thief River Falls winner as Bagley won the junior varsity match 48-6. Selves beat Jim Street 11-3 at 112. Thief River Falls also received points from Matt Overby who wrestled to a 4-4 draw with Brad Sether at 167.

Thief River Falls returns to action Sat., Jan. 3, in the Grand Rapids invitational.

THIEF RIVER FALLS center Cheri Onkka was trapped between Fisher defenders Nancy Nesbit (23) and Gail Mosher as she pulled down a rebound and looked for an outlet pass during Monday's basketball game in the Lincoln gym. The Prowlers beat the Flyers 33-30 for their first win of the 1975-76 season.

Nordics Edge Alvarado 56-55 In Final Seconds

Marshall County Central high school basketball team stretched its 1975-76 season record to a perfect 4-0 level, but barely Tuesday as the Nordics avoided an upset bid by Alvarado to take a 56-55 decision out of the Indians' gym.

Newfolden center Mike Fincher scored the game-winning basket with just five seconds remaining after an outstanding effort by teammate Jeff Sorenson, a guard, who managed to dribble through a tough Alvarado full court press defense before passing the ball to Fincher who was all alone under the Nordic basket.

Alvarado enjoyed a nine-point lead with 4:30 remaining in the game before Newfolden battled back to take a 54-55 lead with 1:30 left. The Indians regained the lead at 56-55 with 15 seconds to go before the Nordics' Sorenson-Fincher combination clicked.

"We stood around a lot," admitted Newfolden head coach Ron Ueland. "We saw a different defense. They took Fincher and (Bruce) Rokke away from us and we had to go to different people."

Sorenson finished the game with 17 points and Fincher added 11. "Sorenson played real well," pointed out Ueland. "He kept control of the tempo and kept us in there." Bruce Kollin scored a game-high 18 points for Alvarado while Rick Bowman added 15 and Brian Kollin scored 12.

The two teams played to a 15-15 first quarter draw and were still tied at halftime, 29-29. Alvarado led 42-37 going into the fourth quarter.

Newfolden shot just 28 per cent for the game as the Nordics made 22 of 74 field goal attempts. Alvarado shot at a 40 per cent slip on 22 of 54. Newfolden sank 12 of 18 free throw tries and Alvarado made 11 of 19 gift tosses. Newfolden owned a 35-23 rebound edge, with Fincher hauling in 13 caroms.

Newfolden visits Grygla Friday.

Grygla Drops 61-32 Contest At Warroad

Warroad capitalized on a cold shooting performance by Grygla Tuesday to hand the Eagles their fifth straight setback of the 1975-76 basketball season. The host Warriors posted a 61-32 win.

Grygla made just 10 field goals in 55 tries for a chilly 18 per cent shooting effort from the floor as Warroad accumulated quarter leads of 18-6, 33-13 and 41-25.

Senior guard Gary Satre represented nearly all of the Grygla offensive production as he made eight of the Eagles' 10 field goals anf finished with 21 of his team's 32 points.

Roger Reinhart paced the Warriors with 21 points. Scott Johnson added 13 points and Duwayne Heptner scored 10 for the winners.

"We were very cold," understated Grygla coach Van Swanson. "You're not going to win many ball games with 10 field goals."

Warroad shot 36 per cent for the game on a 23 for 66 showing. The Warriors made 13 of 20 free throw attempts while Grygla sank 12 of 20 gift tosses.

Grygla is scheduled to host powerful Newfolden Friday.

Cards' Third Win

Plummer Stops Oklee By 36-33

Plummer won its third straight game of the 1975-76 basketball season Tuesday as the Cardinals posted a low-scoring 39-33 win over Oklee in the Pershing high school gym.

Plummer held Oklee to just three points in the first quarter enroute to a 9-3 lead. Oklee pulled within 15-14 at halftime, but Plummer stretched its lead to 27-21 at the third quarter break.

"It was a ragged game," commented Plummer head coach Paul Williams. "I guess we played just well enough to win."

Three Plummer scorers reached double figures as Marty Hesse hit 12 points and Carl Torkelson and Stan Tvedt scored 10 apiece. "Our two sophomores—Tvedt and Hesse—played well for us in the second half to keep us ahead," pointed out Williams. Tvedt scored all of his points in the second half after running into early foul trouble and Hesse contributed six second half points. Oklee's Phil Fore was the game's high scorer with 17 points.

Plummer shot only 28 per cent from the floor for the game, hitting 16 of 57 attempts. The Cardinals made seven of 14 free throw tries while Oklee sank nine of 14 gift tosses.

Plummer returns to action Friday when the Cardinals travel to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart for an 8 p.m. game.

Grygla Will Host Girls' Tournament

A first round game matching two of the area's top teams—Newfolden and Goodridge—will highlight a girls' holiday basketball tournament scheduled to be played Monday and Tuesday at Grygla.

First round games on tap Monday will feature a 7 p.m. Goodridge-Newfolden clash and an 8:30 p.m. Grygla-Oklee meeting. Goodridge and Newfolden are both undefeated, sporting identical 5-0 records.

Monday's first round losers will tangle in Tuesday's consolation game at 7 p.m. while the Monday winners clash in Tuesday's championship game at 8:30.

All games will be played in the Grygla school gym. Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place teams.

In games played earlier this week, Grygla whipped Badger 56-28 and Goodridge beat Argyle 50-11. A Monday Newfolden-Roseau game at Newfolden was postponed until Friday.

Grygla 56, Badger 28

Grygla leveled its season record at 3-3 with a 56-28 romp over visiting Badger Monday behind a 27-point scoring performance by Connie Sistad.

Bev Byklum also recorded double figures for the Eagles with 12 points as Grygla posted quarter leads of 19-6, 37-13 and 43-24. Jane Peterson scored 12 points for Badger.

Goodridge 50, Argyle 11

Goodridge won its fifth straight ball game with an easy 50-11 romp over Argyle Tuesday, a game postponed from Monday's scheduled date because of weather conditions.

The Huskies led only 5-2 at the end of the first quarter before blitzing the host Eagles in the second stanza for a 24-5 halftime cushion. Goodridge led 38-7 at the third quarter break.

Georgine Troska scored 27 points for the Huskies and teammate Bev Horachek added 10.

TRF Snowmobile Races Planned February 7, 8

Thief River Falls Jaycees will host the 1976 States Dominion snowmobile races Saturday and Sunday February 7 and 8, it was announced this week.

The races, featuring the Arctic challenge cup worth $1,000 to the top point driver, is officially sanctioned by the USSA and will be the only Masters Circuit race in the USSA Central Division that weekend, boosting hopes of large entry and spectator turnouts.

Some $4,000 in prize money is expected to be up for grabs here, with race officials returning 100 per cent of all entry fees in prize money.

Thief River Falls will be a focal point for international snowmobile racing acitivity this winter. In addition to the States Dominion races in early February, the St. Paul to Winnipeg International 500-mile snowmobile racers will stop in Thief River Falls on January 21 for their final layover before beginning the final day race to Winnipeg.

To call attention to the two major snowmobiling events, which fall within three weeks of each other, the Thief River Falls Jaycees will publish 25,000 copies of a special 16-page tabloid called "Northwest Snowmobile News."

Plans now call for some 16,250 copies of the tabloid to be circulated throughout the seven-county area of northwestern Minnesota Shopper's Guide. The balance of the 9,000 copies will be distributed along the International 500 race route.

Baseball Clinic Is Slated In UND Fieldhouse

Fourth annual University of North Dakota baseball clinic will be held Sat., Feb. 21, in Grand Forks, it was announced by clinic director Harold "Pinky" Kraft, UND baseball coach.

All baseball coaches, managers, players and fans from Little League to college age are invited to take part in the clinic. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. on the day of the clinic, with the program scheduled to start at 8:30 a.m. in the UND fieldhouse.

There will be a $3 clinic fee for coaches attending the clinic. All players accompanied by coaches will be admitted free of charge. Coaches and umpires will be admitted to the UND-Mankato State basketball game that evening, free of charge.

Set Attendance Record In 1975 Grid Playoffs

An all-time high paid attendance record of 46,735 was set in the five classifications of the 1975 Minnesota State High School League football championships held throughout the state in November.

The previous high total was 39,751 in 1972, established during the first year of the playoffs.

There are 15 games played during the two-week period of state playoffs.

Official paid attendance figures became available this week after the league office received all advance ticket sale reports from schools that participated in the fourth annual event.

Five other records were broken, four of which affected the two large school classes—Class AA and Class A. The other record was set in Class C.

In Class AA, where all three playoff games were played at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis, the two attendance records included most paid admissions in the class—21,894, over 2,000 more than the record-setting 19,520 figure in 1972, and highest paid crowd to attend a single game—10,359 when Richfield met Stillwater in the finals. The previous high was 8,375 when Minneapolis Washburn opposed Richfield in a semifinal game in 1972.

The two records snapped in Class A included a high total class crowd of 12,328, well ahead of the 8,836 figure established in 1972, and high single game of 5,452 which watched St. Thomas Academy and St. Peter battle in the finals at the College of St. Thomas. The previous high single game standard was 4,000, set in 1972 when Sauk Centre and Burnsville clashed in the finals.

The mark broken in Class C was most paid to watch a single game—2,053 that witnessed the semifinal meeting between Esko and Blooming Prairie at Cloquet.

In comparison to a year ago when the total attendance was 35,060, three of the five classes showed an increase in attendance. Class AA's 21,894 figure was up from last year's 14,156; Class A's 12,328 total was up from the 7,411, 1974 total; and the other increase was in Class B where 4,725 were in attendance compared to 4,612 a year ago.

Class C and nine-man divisions dropped in total attendance from 1974. Class C was down over 1,000 when 4,065 attended compared to last year's record high 5,158 figure, and in the nine-man class only 10 less persons watched this year when 3,713 attended. Last year's 3,723 total is a record high.

While the 10,359 which watched the Richfield-Stillwater clash was the highest paid figure, the lowest was the 801 total recorded when Audubon met Laporte in Detroit Lakes in a semifinal game in the nine-man division.

The official MSHSL attendance figure for the Karlstad vs. McIntosh-Winger Class C semifinal game played in Thief River Falls was 993.

Area Deer Kill Declines From 1974 Season

Deer kill in Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Kittson and parts of Marshall and Roseau counties declined this year from 1974, according to statistics compiled by Robert Farmes, area game manager for the department of natural resources.

This year there were 5,229 deer registered in the counties mentioned above, compared with 6,092 in 1974. Both figures are down considerably from the 7,381 deer registered by hunters in 1973.

Farmes said that reduction of the zone between highways 59 and 75 to a two-day rifle season this year accounted almost entirely for the decrease in total kill. Deer taken in that zone declined in number from 3,115 a year ago to 2,218 this year.

Based on DNR estimates of the deer population, it had been intended to reduce the number of deer taken in the area between highways 59 and 75 where hunting pressure has been heavy and the smaller wooded areas can be more easily driven by large hunting parties. Percentage of success was believed to be about the same in the zone, but a number of hunters who normally hunt that area elected to hunt for five days in zone one east of highway 59.

Permitting a two-day season for shotgun with rifled slugs west of highway 59.

Permitting a two-day season for shotgun with rifled slugs west of highway 75 resulted in 247 deer being taken in that area—more than twice the number of 134 taken by hunters in that zone a year ago.

Of the total 5,229 deer taken in the counties mentioned, 1,871 or 36 per cent were adult males and 901 or 17 per cent were male fawns. There were 1,678 adult females (32 per cent) and 772 female fawns (14 per cent) included in the total.

Minnesota DNR Starts Hunter Education Class

Department of Natural Resources is seeking both instructors and students to participate in a pilot project designed to make state hunters better sportsmen.

Charles Wechsler of the DNR's Bureau of information and education, who is coordinating the statewide effort, said the program is primarily aimed at the adult hunter, unlike the DNR's firearms safety training program.

Emphasis in the adult program will be on hunting ethics, hunter-landowner relations and awareness of hunting regulations.

Under the pilot program teams of instructors, will conduct classes at ten different locations scattered throughout the state. Each class will total 12 classroom hours and will be comprised of 30 participants.

The course text and test was written by Max Malmquist, a teacher at Anoka-Ramsey community college and an avid hunter and fisherman.

Participation in the program is strictly voluntary, said Wechsler, and instructors are unpaid.

To date, 45 Minnesota hunters have signed up to take the course.

Hunters who wish to participate as either students or instructors should contact Wechsler at the DNR I and E bureau, Centennial building, St. Paul. Phone 612-296-3336.

Lincoln Girls Defeat Fisher 33-30 For First Basketball Win

Lincoln high school girls' basketball team enjoyed its first victory of the 1975-76 season Monday as the Prowlers edged Fisher 33-30 in the Lincoln gym.

Although it wasn't an artistic success, it was the first Prowler win after five straight season opening setbacks. "We've played better," admitted Thief River Falls coach Judy Charlebois. "Our shooting was rotten. If we can just get our shooting down, we'll be alright."

Five straight free throws to start the game gave Fisher a 5-4 lead at the end of the slow moving quarter. The Flyers, despite making only one of 19 first half field goal attempts, led 12-10 at intermission on the strength of a 10 for 20 showing at the free throw line.

Thief River Falls took command of the game at the outset of the second half, however, when the Prowlers scored the first eight points of the third quarter. Carrie Sollom put in a short set shot and then Marty Minor, a 5-1 guard, took over by hitting three straight baskets in a 1:33 span to give the Prowlers an 18-12 lead.

Thief River Falls held onto a 22-17 lead as the third quarter came to a close and built the difference to seven points, 31-24, with 2:22 remaining before Fisher scored six of the game's final eight points to make the final score close.

Both teams had cold shooting games from the floor. Thief River Falls shot 20 per cent on 14 of 70 tries while Fisher shot 19 per cent on eight of 42 attempts. The Prowlers made five of 15 free throw opportunities while the Flyers sank 14 of 32 chances. Fisher finished with a 40-34 rebound edge, but the Flyers also topped the turnover charts 34-22.

Thief River Falls junior varsity improved its record to 4-2 with a 22-20 win over Fisher in the preliminary game. A pair of free throws by Pam Kochevar with time expired won the game.

A break in the schedule will find the Prowlers inactive until Mahnomen visits Thief River Falls for a 7:30 p.m. game Mon., Jan. 5.

SIX NEW ALLEYS are now in operation at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls and 20 leagues are involved in the present schedule. Expansion of the local bowling facility to a total of 16 lanes started last summer and was completed early this winter, with an addition being required to permit the expansion. New ball returns and other fixtures were installed throughout the building and other remodeling and redecorating done.

Family Bowl Hosts High School Events

High school bowling teams throughout the state of Minnesota will be competing for state honors in the 15th annual invitational school team tournament in 1976.

Playoff competition begins with district roll-off activity scheduled Sat., Jan. 10. Family Bowl in Thief River Falls will act as host site for the area district meet.

First place boys' and girls' teams at the district level will advance to the regional roll-off planned Sat., Jan. 24. The area regional event is also scheduled to be held at the Family Bowl.

The 16 regional winners will advance for state honors Sat., Feb. 14, at Inver Grove Heights in the Twin Cities.

Tournament format features three games, total pins to determine winners at the district and regional levels. The state championship will consist of five match games providing pins plus bonus for winning.

The tournament is sponsored by the Minnesota state bowling proprietors' association.

Young Readers Enjoy Magazine By Ranger Rick

Ranger Rick is a conservation-minded imaginary raccoon who is a friend and counsellor to more than a million young readers of Ranger Rick's nature magazine, published by the national wildlife federation.

Once called "national wildlife's answer to Smokey the Bear, Ranger Rick has acquired more than 1.5 million five-to-twelve-year-old readers in all 50 states and ten foreign countries since the first issue of the magazine in January, 1967. There are also 3,881 Ranger Rick nature clubs.

Ranger Rick readers learn such things as the fact that butterflies taste through their feet and grasshoppers have ears in their knees. But more important, according to editorial director Trudy Dye Farrand, who has guided the magazine from its beginning, "they develop a love and respect for nature and our environment."

In its nine years the magazine has won 18 national awards from educational and environmental organizations. Many have praised the magazine for its "tell it like it is" approach to nature.

"The sooner children learn how nature works the better," says Mrs. Farrand. "We don't shy away from the fact, for instance, that all living creatures must eat to live, and that many animals are predators, preying on smaller creatures. We also provide a basis for an understanding of sex by treating animal procreation in a natural way."

Her editorial staff has induced many of the country's top naturalists and wildlife biologists to write for Ranger Rick's eager audience. Ranger Rick's "mother," as Mrs. Farrand has been described, always instructs her authors: "Don't talk down to children. Write clearly, so they can read and understand you, but don't be patronizing. Be entertaining as well as informative. Treat our readers as intelligent young people."

That this formula works is attested by the fact that Ranger Rick gets as many as 900 letters a week—more than the New York Times gets weekly in response to all its editorials and news stories. Children scrawl notes on lined paper to suggest adventures for the wise, cheerful raccoon, to tell him of plants and animals they have observed, or to suggest solutions to environmental problems.

The magazine recently started a feature in which it invites its readers to "finish the story." In reply to the first invitation, young readers sent in a staggering 4,487 story endings—a record response to a single article.

Another editorial rule is that Ranger Rick's magazine must be "visually exciting. . .entertaining as well as educational, because you can't educate a child unless you can hold his attention." Many teachers use its articles, full color pictures and charts as text material. Language specialists have found the magazine a valuable tool in teaching slow learners.

Ranger Rick is not sold on newsstands. Children get the magazine by joining the Ranger Rick nature club, thus affiliating with the nation's largest conservation education organization, the national wildlife federation. For their $7 annual dues they get a membership card, a decal, and ten issues of the magazine.

In the magazine, in addition to photographs, paintings, puzzles, animal adventure stories and jokes, they get timely advice from Ranger Rick.

Records show that many youngsters, once they befriend the raccoon, read his magazine well beyond their 13th birthdays. An index, published annually, makes the back copies a virtual encyclopedia of information on nature. Many parents admit that they, too, are avid readers.

"Where else," asked one father recently, "can you learn that a scallop has 40 eyes, all baby blue; that a sparrow has more bones in its neck than a giraffe; that a porcupine has 30,000 quills; that an armadillo is capable of snorkeling; or how far you should stand from a skunk?" (Ranger Rick recommends 16 feet.)

Most Residents Prefer Single Family Homes

A house, rather than an apartment or condominium, is still the type of home preferred by a large majority of Minnesotans.

Feferred to as a "single family residence" in the housing industry, and "regular house" by laymen, it is the choice of 60 per cent of the adults of the state.

A Minneapolis-based public opinion and market research firm recently polled 1,000 adults throughout the state on their housing preference.

They were asked:

"If you were going to move from this place in the next couple of months, what kind of a place would you like to live in. . .an apartment, a townhouse, a regular house, a condominium apartment, or what?"

State-wide, 60 per cent preferred a regular house, 14 per cent an apartment, five per cent a townhouse and one per cent a condominium. Another eight per cent mentioned some other type of dwelling, such as a lake, country, farm or retirement home. Eleven per cent said they will not move, and one per cent had no opinion.

Attitudes toward a single family house differed by age. Only 35 per cent of those 65 and over expressed that preference, while 74 per cent of those under 35 did so.

Apartments appear to be most popular among people 65 years and over and least popular in the 35-49 year age group. Twenty-six per cent of the 65 and over category said they would like to live in an apartment, compared to only seven per cent of the 35-49 group.

In outstate Minnesota townhouse living barely registered on the preference scale—only one per cent of those polled, compared to five per cent statewide, said if they were to move they would like to live in a townhouse.

No Quorum At Park And Rec Meet Monday

With no quorum present Monday evening at a meeting of the city park and recreation board, no formal action was taken on several questions which had been posed for the public session by the recreational skating association.

Concurrence was given by those board members present to the distribution of skating schedules to local news media and through the public schools. It was also stated that the recreational skating group should have the authority to elect its own officers from within its organization.

At a scheduling committee meeting held last week, scheduling for January, February and March at the new arena, old arena and outdoor rinks at the east side playground, Northrop and Franklin schools was approved. The schedule makes provisions for special events including hockey tournaments and the recreational skating association's ice revue.

Urges Farmers To Preserve Their Freedom

Farmers were urged recently by the immediate past president of the nation's largest general farm organization to rededicate themselves in the bicentennial year "to preserving and renewing the freedoms which have been our heritage for 200 years."

Charles B. Shuman, a Sullivan, Ill., livestock and cash grain farmer who served from 1954 through 1970 as head of the American Farm Bureau federation, spoke in Bloomington at the membership breakfast part of the annual meeting of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

Pointing out that political, economic and religious freedoms are closely linked, Shuman emphasized that one cannot be sacrificed without endangering the others. He coupled his assertion with a warning:

"Economic freedom in America is slowly but surely being destroyed by big government and all that goes with it—inflationary spending, bureaucratic regulations and political intervention in the pricing and marketing of commodities. Freedom to worship and freedom to vote cannot long be protected once freedom of choice in the marketplace has been replaced by socialistic political management of the economy."

Inflation, which Shuman said is "dangerously near the run-away stage," is the cause of the current recession and "the greatest threat" to the nation's economy. Excessive government spending—"too many political programs and panaceas," he said—is inflation's primary cause, adding that the multi-billion dollar federal deficit is "a result of the demands of citizens for benefits they are unwilling to pay for and too many politicians seeking to be elected by catering to these demands."

Most motorists are aware that a tune-up will cut driving costs by increasing miles per gallon. The same effect can be achieved on home heating bills.—Federal Energy Administrators say a furnace tune-up can bring fuel oil savings of 10 per cent.

NCAA Allegations At U of M Found To Be Mostly True

University of Minnesota has found "full or partial substantiation" of 72 allegations from the National Collegiate Athletic association (NCAA) of inappropriate behavior in the university's basketball program between 1971 and 1975.

Stanley B. Kegler, university vice president for institutional planning and relations, explained the investigative process and his findings to the board of regents and later to reporters Friday, December 12.

The investigation began last summer when the university received a 68-page letter from the NCAA alleging 99 specific violations involving 96 individuals and 11 entities and including 13 questions about general information, Kegler said.

Since that time, the university has hired two attorneys who have conducted the investigation and has spent more than $30,000 compiling a 400-page report with 1,400 pages of supplementary material, including tape transcripts and memoranda which will be discussed with the NCAA infractions committee Thursday, December 18 in San Diego, Calif.

In response to reporters' questions, Kegler said there is material in the transcripts which could result in the initiation of investigations against other NCAA-member institutions. He declined to comment on whether other Big Ten schools could be implicated.

There are cases, Kegler said, in which prospective students did not come to the University of Minnesota because they had better offers from other institutions. The implication is that the other school was able to provide what the athlete wanted, he said.

Kegler said that NCAA rules prohibit the university from providing an athlete with anything beyond living expenses, tuition and fees, and books and supplies. Any additional provisions from the university or someone outside the university violate NCAA rules, Kegler said.

He said there were numerous minor violations, but that the major violation involved the providing of air fare to members of a player's family to travel to games. In one case, he said, the value of gifts could exceed $5,000.

The player involved told university investigators that his family had been visited by two attorneys, Kegler said.

"When our investigators arrived we found that attorneys had indeed been there and that they had told the family what to say," Kegler said. "We don't know who sent them but they were there."

Most of the allegations were not so mysterious. They involved gifts from booster clubs to players or payments for air travel home during vacations or for family members to attend games, Kegler said.

He listed some of his findings:

—24 instances of payments of money, 18 of which were under $100 and three of which were over $500. Total money involved in such payments could be between $2,500 and $3,000, Kegler said.

—"Numerous" instances of unwarranted loans of automobiles;

—Unwarranted sale by the athletes of the complimentary tickets they are given to the games. "I quit counting the number of violations of this rule at 20," Kegler said. "I would guess the total number of violations ran into the thousands."

—Free meals to players;

—One instance of free clothing being given to a player;

—Six to seven instances of free lodging;

—An undetermined number of free long-distance telephone calls;

—Five instances of inappropriate summer jobs at athletic summer camps;

—One instance of money being paid to an athlete's mother;

—Three or four years of basketball practices taking place in the presence of a coach outside of the playing season;

—Inappropriate use of money by student hosts when prospective student athletes visited the campus;

—Promises of air transportation for athletes to return home for holidays and at the end of the school year.

Kegler said the university has discovered some 56 infractions, most of which were minor, which were not listed in the NCAA letter.

He said these included 12 to 15 instances of ticket sales, the provision of goods and services, air transportation, passes to restaurants, free meals, one case of $1,500 worth of free dental work, and free lodging.

Kegler said that he found that an assistant coach was receiving funds from a booster organization to augment his salary without the knowledge of the university administration.

Other booster club funds were being used to pay for recruiters who were operating without the university's knowledge, Kegler said. He said the source of most of the funds was outside the university and that very little of the money can be traced back to the intercollegiate athletics program.

"Many of the staff involved over the years in the basketball program have left the university and we are at a loss as to how to deal with it," Kegler said.

Former basketball coach Bill Musselman left the university this fall to coach the professional San Diego Sails team which has since folded.

One of the allegations involved the Gopher hockey program. Kegler said some representatives of a professional hockey team contributed to a fund-raising event for the Williams fund, which is used to develop the sports program and provide athletic scholarships.

The Gopher hockey team may also have violated a Big Ten rule by playing in a facility which is not under the control of the university without first getting a waiver from the Big Ten, Kegler said.

Kegler said that the University and the Big Ten will conduct a joint investigation at the university's request of a number of other basketball allegations once the NCAA investigation and penalties are completed.

Kegler said he and university president C. Peter Magrath have decided which of the possible NCAA penalties would be appealed, but he did not disclose what those were.

Possible penalties could be a reduction in the number of permissible athletic scholarships, prohibition against playing in televised games, suspension from the NCAA, suspension from post-season games, or the declaration of current players as ineligible for conference play.

December 17, 1975
Notice of Hearing

RESOLVED, that whereas the Board of Education of the Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute recognizes that there exists serious problems regarding student parking on properties owned, leased, occupied or operated by Independent School District 564; there fore be it

RESOLVED

1. That the Board of Education will authorize Richard Berry, Associate Director of the Area Vocational Technical Institute to hold a public hearing, pursuant to M.S. 121.212, for purposes of regulating parking on property owned, leased, occupied, or operated by the Board of Education of the Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute. Said meeting will be held on January 5, at 7:00 P.M. in the Board Room of the School District Service Center in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

In accordance with M.S. 121.212, public notice of the meeting will be published and announced at least 15 days prior to, and no more than 45 days in advance of said meeting.

2. That these regulations shall be effective immediately upon adoption following the public hearing.

3. That all following parking regulations shall be enforced according to M.S. 121.212.

4. That all fines and fees collected that are related to violations of parking regulations will be paid directly to the city of Thief River Falls.

5. That Area Vocational Technical Institute student parking is permissible in all areas except where posted.

6. That no student parking will be allowed in the following areas: a. Along the railroad tracks immediately south of Lincoln High School; b. inside the fenced area at the School District Service Center; c. Between the old bus barns, next to or around old Washington Elementary School, or outside the auto mechanics and carpentry shops located at Lincoln High School.

School Dist. 564
Lawrence McDowell, Clerk

Rush-hour expressway drivers should be concerned not only with traffic safety, but also should take measures to protect their hearing ability. Noise level of crowded expressways can frequently reach the hazardous level.

December 17, 1975
Notice of Hearing

RESOLVED that whereas the Board of Education of the Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute recognizes that there exists serious problems regarding student parking on proper[illegible] owned, leased, occupied or operated by Independent School District 564, therefore be it

RESOLVED

1. That the Board of Education will authorize Richard Berry, Associate Director of the Area Vocational Technical Institute to hold a public hearing pursuant to M.S. 121.212, for purposes of regulating parking on property owned, leased, occupied or operated by the Board of Education of the Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute. Said meeting will be held on January 5, at 7:00 P.M. in the Board Room of the School District Service Center in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

In accordance with M.S. 121.212 public notice of the meeting will be published and announced at least 15 days prior to and no more than 45 days in advance of said meeting.

2. That these regulations shall be effective immediately upon adoption following the public hearing.

3. That all following parking regulations shall be enforced according to M.S. 121.212.

4. That all fines and fees collected that are related to violations of parking regulations will be paid directly to the City of Thief River Falls.

5. That Area Vocational Technical Institute student parking is permissible in all areas except where posted.

6. That no student parking will be allowed in the following areas:
a. Along the railroad tracks immediately south of Lincoln High School.
b. Inside the fenced area at the School District Service Center.
c. Between the old bus barns next to or around old Washington Elementary School or outside the auto mechanics and carpentry shops located at Lincoln High School.

School Dist. 564
Lawrence McDowell, Clerk

Rush-hour expressway drivers should be concerned not only with traffic safety, but also should take measures to protect their hearing ability. Noise level of crowded expressways can frequently reach the hazardous level

(Editor's Note: Regene Radniecki, former resident of the Oklee community and a member of the Deer Park 4-H club in Pennington county, is now teaching photography in the communication media department at Bemidji state university. Miss Radniecki won a number of awards in the 4-H photography project. The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Northern Student, BSU student newspaper.)

She likes her friends to call her Reggie and she's on a one year leave from the Minneapolis Tribune.

Regene Radniecki is now adding a year of teaching to her credits. She is currently serving as a BSU faculty member teaching photography with the communication media department.

Radniecki is one of the nine photographers and the first woman in 25 years to be on the Tribune photo staff. Radniecki has won awards on local, state, and national levels as well as having pictures published in several prominent magazines such as Ebony, Newsweek and others.

Her experiences on her jobs have been exciting but not without hazard. She has had the opportunity to meet presidents and people in the news, but has also had to deal with threats, being arrested and physical harm.

Radniecki feels this has enabled her to better teach photo journalism by providing her with the knowledge of what one must know to work for a paper.

Radniecki, commenting on her role as a woman in journalism, said she feels that although there are women in journalism, many times they are relegated to women interest pages and token positions. She feels that many times the harder assignments may be left to a man because as a woman she may be endangered in some situations.

Radniecki feels that to be a photo journalist one must be ready to accept these challenges because it is a profession in which a person must be able to make quick decisions, size up situations, endure physical abuse and be creative and ready to move at a moments notice. Radniecki feels that in many situations a woman can be more effective than a man simply because she is a less imposing figure and much more low key than a man might be.

Once a student at what was then BSC, Radniecki said that Bemidji has really changed and expanded its program from what it was when she attended.

Radniecki's photos are now on display at BSU's Touche' Gallerie in an exhibit entitled "Photojournalism," scheduled to run through Dec. 19 at the Hobson Memorial Union. Hours are from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Plan To Form Action Group On River Floods

Legal organization to study and prevent flooding along the Red Lake river and Red river was discussed Thursday at a meeting of the Red Lake watershed district held at the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Olaf Soine spoke on organization of the group following his attendance at a meeting in East Grand Forks. The proposed organization would prevent flooding though establishment of dams and diking to impound water. Soine also reported on the Burnham Creek watershed, which has been approved for planning under Public Law 566 and is expected to be in the planning stages next year.

Reply was received from the army corps of engineers regarding the district's request for a study on increasing the capacity of the Red Lake river. The reply stated that a resolution of district and local support was needed before any study would be undertaken, and the board decided to give the request further study.

Application by the city of Erskine for work in Lake Cameron to provide swimming and recreational area was recommended for approval. Next meeting of the district will be held Jan. 8, 1976, at the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Holmstrom Is Promoted To VP At Hydra-Mac

Craig V. Holmstrom, 27, has been promoted to vice president of purchasing for Hydra-Mac, Inc., of Thief River Falls.

Holmstrom, a 1970 graduate of Winona state college, Minn., has been employed by Hydra-Mac since 1973 as purchasing manager. He was previously employed by Dave Walters, Inc., of Bemidji.

Craig, his wife Sandra, and their two daughters reside at rural St. Hilaire.

14 Cases Heard In Co. Court

A total of 14 cases were decided during the regular Monday session of the Pennington county court.

Cases brought by the state patrol included: Robert H. Hoard, Poulsbo, Wash., sped 65 miles per hour in a 55 zone, fined $20 with $5 suspended; Harold D. Anderson, Thief River Falls, sped 70 in 55, fined $30 with $10 suspended; Marc E. Halverson, TRF, disobeyed a stop sign, fined $25 with $5 suspended; and driving without lights, fined $10.

Police department cases were; Thomas P. Blazejewski, Newfolden, driving while intoxicated, fined $300 with $50 suspended; Geraldine L. Olson, Middle River, disobeyed a stop sign, fined $25; Roger A. Tunberg, TRF, sped 40 in 30, fined $40 with $20 suspended; and Peter L. Wold, TRF, sped 41 in 30, fined $44;

Also Floyd S. Dalton, TRF, disobeyed a semaphore, fined $25 with $10 suspended; Mark A. Jenkins, Newfolden, sped 42 in 30, fined $24; Rodney O. Hagenbeck, Newfolden, sped 40 in 30, fined $20; and Danny L. Peterson, Middle River, improper turn, fined $25.

Two decided cases brought by the sheriff's department were Ronald S. Kalinoski, TRF, sped 50 in 30, fined $40 and Lief Johnson, Thompson, N.D., driving over the centerline, fined $25.

October TRF Bank Debits Up 35% From 1974

Bank debits in Thief River Falls during October showed an increase of 35 per cent from the same period a year ago, according to statistics released by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis. In dollars, city bank debits volume during October was $49,683,000. In the same month of 1974 the total figure was $36,716,000.

The cumulative January through October total for 1975 was $362,860,000, 13 per cent more than 1974, and the 12 month total through October was $438,607,000, 13 per cent more than the previous year.

For Minnesota the October volume of bank debits for reporting cities increased six per cent from October of last year. Debits for the 12 months through October increased three per cent from the previous 12 month period.

The volume of bank debits reported by the total sample of ninth Federal Reserve district cities for October increased nine per cent from a year ago. The cumulative total for the 12 months through October indicated a six per cent increase from last year.

Bank debits for the most part are checks against depositors' accounts and thus represent payment for goods, services, debts and other costs. They also include all debits against checking accounts of individuals, partnerships and corporations, and of states and political subdivisions. They do not include debits to savings accounts, the accounts of other banks, or the United State government.

Not All Can Use Milk; Some Races Can't Tolerate It

by Kellen C. Thornton
U of M News Service

"Nature's two most nearly perfect foods" have received a lot of criticism lately. Eggs first started taking abuse for their high cholesterol content because cholesterol in the blood has been suggested as a major factor in heart attacks.

Now milk is taking it on the chin, but the problem is not cholesterol, which one can avoid by drinking skimmed milk. The problem is sugar.

Milk contains a type of sugar, called lactose, peculiar to milk. Past age two years, only about one-third of the world's population can digest lactose. The rest react poorly to milk consumption. Therefore, not everybody needs milk. Not even almost everybody.

Milk consists of fat which can be "skimmed" off, protein and the sugar lactose. Lactose contributes about one-third of the calories of whole milk. Lactose is a complex sugar (disaccharide), which the body must break down into the simple sugars (monosaccharides) glucose and galactose. Only then can the sugar move into the blood stream for immediate use or storage.

The process of breaking the lactose apart is known as hydrolysis. Hydrolysis takes place in the small intestine. Lactase, an enzyme technically called beta-D-galactosidase, spits or hydrolyzes the lactose during digestion, soon after a person drinks a glass of milk or eats something cooked with milk, like pudding.

The levels of lactase in an individual vary; hence, tolerance for the milk sugar lactose varies. Near the time an infant is born, say, 40 weeks, the lactase level in the small intestine rises sharply. Somewhere between the ages of two and four, the lactase level drops.

The amount of drop in lactase depends on the racial origin of the individual. Therefore, many people in the world, perhaps most, do not tolerate milk very well. Those who do not handle it well show it by developing diarrhea, stomach cramps and gas soon after ingesting milk. It is questionable whether or not they derive any nourishment at all from milk.

This leads to some serious questions about how milk is advertised to different racial groups in this country as well as how nutritional programs are implemented here and abroad.

Information on lactose intolerance has been around for some time. In March of 1972, two University of Minnesota professors, Irving Gottesman of the psychology department and Leonard Heston of the psychiatry department, organized a conference on lactose and milk intolerance sponsored by the U.S. department of health, education and welfare's office of child development.

Nutritionists, gastroenterologists, biochemists, anthropologists, human geneticists, educators, developmental psychologists and cultural geographers from across the country who are interested in the problem attended the conference and contributed their findings.

Gottesman said that he and Heston had taken an interest in the subject as a result of their research on the evolution of human behavior. As they became more involved with the subject of milk consumption, they realized there was a matter at stake about which more people should be aware.

From the research of other scientists on different races, they concluded that the only people who generally handled milk well (had high lactase levels) were those of Scandinavian and Northwestern European extraction. In non-Caucasian groups, anywhere from 60 to 100 per cent of the people in each group could not tolerate milk after age two. Some of the non-tolerating people are American Indians, Orientals, American Negroes and South Americans.

Gottesman and Heston then formulated a theory describing the racial effect. This theory is a product of their work on the evolution of human behavior.

The custom of drinking milk probably started about 11,000 years ago when some human populations started domesticating milk-producing animals. Somebody probably found that milk agreed with him even though he had been weaned long ago. Maybe it happened during a time of famine. That would be logical if milk generally made everybody but infants sick. So not many people would drink it unless they were starving.

Naturally, in a time of famine, the ability to derive nourishment from milk would be an advantage.

Slowly over the millenia, this slight advantage for the milk-drinkers might have turned things around so that most people who kept cows and goats would also drink their milk.

Genetically, Gottesman and Heston conjecture that the original change toward milk tolerance might have been a gene mutation which resulted in the maintenance of high lactase levels after childhood. If the mutation were to a dominant gene for consuming milk, and if the person in whom the mutation occurred passed that gene along, the offspring who received the gene would also tolerate lactose, and therefore, milk.

This theory fits the data on races which do and do not tolerate lactose. The races historically involved in herding, that is, Scandinavians and Northwestern Europeans and their decendants, digest lactose. Most of the others who did not evolve as herders do not digest lactose beyond infancy.

From the genetic description, it is logical to conclude that persons who are racially mixed have some variation as to their ability to digest lactose. This has been shown to be true in the U.S. Studies on black children show that in large groups some can consume milk just fine. However, the statistics still show that as many as 77 per cent of the black people in the U.S. cannot. Among American Indians, at least 67 per cent cannot drink milk.

Taxpayers Are Urged To Start Thinking Taxes

This year, more than almost any other, it may well pay for taxpayers to "think taxes" now.

Why? Simply because the new tax law has made it possible for millions of Americans to cut their taxes in a variety of ways. But to do so, the law has some new features that can take time to figure out and apply.

And then there's the matter of gathering together records. The new law, in some instances, requires certification to substantiate a deduction. Getting a document now could save a taxpayer considerable time and effort later. Of course, wise taxpayers who itemize their deductions have always checked over their records well before the start of the filing season so that they could have an accurate count of medical, charitable, and other deductions.

Having a complete account of all deductions is particularly important because this year the standard deduction has been increased, possibly making it more advantageous to claim the standard deduction, using the short Form 1040A, than to itemize deductions. The new standard deduction is 16 per cent of adjusted gross income, up to a maximum of $2,600 for those filing joint returns, $2,300 for a single person, and $1,300 for married persons filing separately.

Most taxpayers should take the time to compute their taxes based both on the new standard deduction and on itemizing deductions to determine which method cuts their tax bill more. Once the tax forms arrive, it's much simpler and quicker for the taxpayer to determine whether to itemize or take the standard deduction if he or she took the time beforehand to get a "fix" on itemized deductions.

Two other changes in the law make early record-checking very important this year. The first is the credit for the purchase of a new residence. Generally, the credit is five per cent of the adjusted basis of the new home, to a maximum of $2,000, provided the taxpayer meets certain requirements. Among the qualifications that must be met for the credit is certification by the seller that the purchase price is the lowest price at which the residence was offered for sale since Feb. 28, 1975. Home buyers who are eligible for the credit, but didn't get the certificate when they settled on their new home, should ask their builder for a certificate right away. Without the certificate, the IRS cannot allow the credit.

The other change affects those who sell a home and then buy another to live in. For some time, homeowners could postpone all or part of the tax gain from the sale of their principal residence if they reinvested the money in another home within a specified period of time. The time limit now has been lengthened. But to take full advantage of the liberalized provisions, the homeowner must have at hand complete records on the old home as well as the new.

One other thought: Frequently people change homes because they change jobs. Those who have changed their jobs should check now to be sure they have a W-2 Form from their old employer to include with the W-2 they'll be getting from their new employer.

Gathering records now, not only can help in taking full advantage of tax breaks in the new law, but also in making the most of the old law.

Summer Youth Employment Is Successful

More than 35,000 young Minnesotans found work through the 1975 summer youth employment program, making it one of the most successful on record, Minnesota department of employment services (MDES) Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing announced recently.

From April through September, MDES registered 72,158 young persons for work and made 35,543 job placements. Of these placements, 26,266 were in non-farm jobs and 9,277 were in agricultural work. The majority of job placements were in unsubsidized jobs with private industry.

MDES area offices participated in several summer youth activities including the State youth employment act and the various cooperative job programs of federal agencies, the National alliance of businessmen, the Youth conservation corps and the Comprehensive employment and training act (CETA).

Many MDES area offices established "job squad" or "mini-offices" to help local youth find summer work. These offices were staffed by young persons from the community who developed summer jobs and made job placements for other young people under MDES supervision.

"This year's successful summer program would not have been possible without the cooperation MDES area offices received from private industry; the National alliance of businessmen; state, federal and local government; CETA prime sponsors; and local community action agencies," Cushing said.

Slow down and live.

Sen. Mondale Creates Pres. Primary Bill

Senator Walter F. Mondale (D-Minn.) recently introduced a bill to create a system of regional Presidential primaries which he said would bring a degree of "order, fairness and rationality" to the nation's Presidential nominating process.

"There are some people who believe that there is an accidental genius inherent in our present chaotic nominating process," Mondale said. "There may be something to this notion, but not so much. My own view is that it's often a mindless process from the candidates' prespective, too often a self-defeating one for the parties, and frequently an ineffective one for the nation."

Mondale's bill, which he called "modest in approach and simple in its design," would divide the nation into six regions, each of which would hold its Presidential primaries on one of the six designated Tuesdays between late March and mid-June of Presidential election years. The six election dates, separated from one another by two-week intervals, would be assigned by lot to the six regions by the Federal elections commission five months before the first primary.

"It would still be up to the states to determine whether or not to hold the Presidential primaries," the Senator said, "but, if a state elected to hold one, it must be held on the date assigned to that state's region." He explained that states would retain the right to determine the particular type of primary they wish to have and other matters traditionally left to the states except that "cross-over voting" would be eliminated and states would be prohibited from listing the names of delegate candidates on the primary ballot without indicating which Presidential candidate, if any, he or she is pledged to support.

Finally, the bill provides that each Presidential candidate who intends to receive federal matching funds must agree to have his name entered on the ballot of at least one state primary in each of the six regions.

"Unlike other regional and national primary proposals," Mondale said, "the imposition on traditional state prerogatives is minimal." He explained the bill is an attempt to blend those prerogatives with "requirements which are essential if some degree of order, fairness and rationality is to be brought to the overall process."

Mondale said his bill, if adopted, would eliminate the "disproportionate and unfair advantage" which some states now hold in the nominating process; compress the primary period into a shorter time and conserve the candidate's energies and resources; offer a greater opportunity for public attention to be focused on legitimate regional concerns; strengthen the national convention as the "cornerstone" of the nominating process.

"Perhaps the greatest benefit," he added, "is the degree of order and rationality it will bring to the nominating process. Selecting a nominee for President is, after all, a national process; it deserves a national structure. At present there is no structure whatsoever. There are instead 55 separate structures, each unrelated to the others and often seemingly unrelated to the ostensible goal of selecting the party's best candidate as its nominee."

Mondale emphasized that the regional structure he is proposing is only one element of the nominating process which he believes needs attention. Other elements, he said include party rules, the financing of Presidential campaigns, and the relationship of the candidates to the media. Mondale said his own experience as a Presidential candidate until a year ago persuaded him that the entire process is badly in need of "fundamental and comprehensive review," and an approach "which attempts to consider problems in all of these areas and their relationships to the others."

The Minnesota Democrat called on President Ford to appoint a bipartisan commission "to undertake an in-depth and comprehensive review of every aspect of our nominating process, to evaluate different alternatives, to explore the possibilities of widespread agreement on them, and to report back soon after the 1976 election.

"Nothing may come of such a commission," he added, "but I doubt it. Even if it proves impossible to agree on a new system, it is bound to produce a body of knowledge and experience which will tell us a great deal about what we have now and about how we might improve it. It is worth the effort, in my judgment, because the piecemeal patchwork attempts at reform to date have not corrected the system's most serious shortcomings."

Mondale said he is offering his regional primary proposal today "in the interest of contributing to the national debate" on the entire question. "I can think of no more worthy or appropriate undertaking in our nation's 200th year as we celebrate the blessings of our democratic system than to begin a serious effort to improve one of the most important elements of that system."

HERE ARE SOME PRACTICAL ENERGY AND MONEY-SAVING IDEAS TO HELP YOU MAKE IT THROUGH THE WINTER.

MAINTAIN AN EFFICIENT HOME HEATING SYSTEM. HAVE THE SYSTEM CHECKED ANNUALLY. ALSO, IF YOUR FURNACE USES FILTERS, CHANGE OR CLEAN THEM MONTHLY DURING THE HEATING SEASON.

SAVE HEAT — CLOSE OFF ROOMS THAT ARE NOT IN USE.

A HUMIDIFIER ADDS MUCH NEEDED MOISTURE TO A ROOM IN WINTER, AND IT MAKES YOU FEEL COMFORTABLE AT LOWER TEMPERATURES (SAVING ON FUEL).

KEEP COLD AIR OUT —
1. INSTALL STORM WINDOWS AND DOORS.
2. INSULATE WALLS AND ATTIC.
3. WEATHERSTRIP AND CAULK AROUND DOORS AND WINDOWS.

WHEN INSTALLED ON WINDOWS, REFLECTIVE FILM — CALLED SUNFIGHTER FILM — HELPS TO KEEP HEATING COSTS DOWN. FOR MORE INFORMATION, WRITE ME — C.R.GARDNER, ICI-US, NEW MURPHY RD., WILMINGTON, DE 19897

Safety Tips Are Offered For Holidays

Christmas is for kids. Kids who are nine years old, kids who are 19 and kids who are 90. Everyone cherishes the memories of Christmas.

But carelessness to the danger of fire can spoil those memories, cautions the junior fire marshal program which teaches basic fire safety steps to children in kindergarten through third grade. The program offers these safety tips for the holidays:

—Don't buy a Christmas tree unless you are sure it is fresh. The color should be deep green.

—Shake the tree to make sure the needles do not fall off easily. Cut the trunk off about one inch above the original cut and keep it in water outdoors until it is ready to be decorated.

—Don't place your tree near a fireplace, space heater or other heating unit and don't place it where it blocks the exit from the room.

—Don't buy an artificial tree that does not carry the Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) seal of approval.

—Check your electric lights for frayed wiring or loose connections before you place them on the tree. Never decorate with lighted candles.

—Don't attempt to treat your tree with a fire retardant yourself. But, when possible, buy a tree that has been treated commercially.

—Don't leave the tree lights on when you leave the house or go to bed.

—Don't replace fuses, blown because of the increased use of Christmas lights, with more powerful fuses. Instead, turn off some of the other lights in your home.

—Don't use flammable Christmas decorations and don't place displays with lighted candles near flammable materials. When you buy decorations, check the wrapper to be certain they are non-flammable.

—Don't delay in taking your Christmas tree down when it begins to show signs of drying out. That's the point at which the most recognized sign of Christmas joy becomes a serious fire hazard.

Strandquist Senior Citizens

Only 16 attended our center Dec. 11th.

Roger Iverson came to check on our day to see the movie at school. It was decided to go to the school Friday 19th at one o'clock. After the movie we will return to the center for coffee and Christmas goodies and an exchange of gifts.

There will be no meeting at our center Thursday Dec. 18. Instead come to school on Friday to see the movie and center later. After Friday we will vacation for Christmas so watch papers when we meet again.

Pastor John Hagberg and Glady Renstrom were guests for lunch on Thursday.

It was fun to have Mabel Borsvald with us again. We hope she will come every week now and perhaps take over the reporting for center news again.

We all signed and sent off a get well card to Sophie Borowicz, who is hospitalized in Thief River Falls.

Florence Stennes gave a door prize. A delicious box of home made candy that Anna Brekke won. She treated us all so we shared in the prize. Thank you Florence it was good.

Florence also donated the money for the lunch that the center served.

Makes You Wonder

Following commentary was written by Roderick Turnbull of the Kansas City board of trade and appeared in a recent issue of "Farmland News":

Suppose the tables were turned. Suppose that in the Soviet Union a great public debate had risen over the purchases of grain from the United States. Could you imagine one large group giving the Soviet Commissioner of Agriculture a hard time over the fact that the country had to import to eat, while another group would be raking the government over the coals for not buying more so people could eat better?

Just what direction might the controversy take, if it were permitted?

This subject came up in a casual conversation around cups of coffee at the Kansas City Board of Trade after one member had read a London publication which commented on recent Soviet grain purchases.

The Kansas City grain man noted that the London publication contended the Soviet people were not being told about recent purchases of grain from the United States, Canada and Australia; actually, they hadn't even been told yet about the big purchases in 1972.

As far as is known, the London source had stated, only two public references had been made in the Soviet press and radio about the 1972 purchases. It is no secret among government officials in the Soviet Union, and they are fully aware of what is going on and what they are doing. This would be an obvious conclusion.

However, according to the London information, the general public never has been fully informed. Under such circumstances, the Board of Trade men assumed there would be no discussions around a coffee table in the Soviet hinterlands.

Russia once was a major exporter of wheat. Could citizen Ivan logically ask now, if he were allowed to ask, how come the largest country in the world has to go to capitalistic farmers in the U.S. to get grain for bread and for livestock feed.

Could the Soviet factory worker demand an accounting of his counterpart on the farm as to why he doesn't grow more so that the worker doesn't have to buy high-priced grain from America.

It seemed to the Kansas City grain men that if they were Soviet consumers and allowed to voice an opinion, they'd want to know what was wrong with the Soviet agricultural system. They admitted, of course, that the U.S.S.R. doesn't have farming land and weather conditions the equal of those in the U.S. But the Soviet Union has more land and about a third of its labor force is employed in agriculture compared to 4 or 5 per cent in the United States.

The Soviet purchases of grain this year are not the first. There were, of course, the big sales in 1972, but the Soviets also bought from the United States in the mid-1960's and again in 1971. At the same time, they had been buying annually during the 1960's from Canada and Australia.

Would it be too farfetched to suggest that if the Soviet people were as fully informed as the Americans about the grain transactions, and if they were reading about all the flak in the U.S. over such sales, that they might just say, "Tell the Americans to put the wheat in their bins and go jump in a lake."

Or, it is possible that perhaps an informed Soviet citizenry might actually be saying what a wonderful thing it is that their country has enough gold to sell to get dollars to buy grain for food and livestock feed so that the people can eat better.

To all these suggestions, the grain men could only offer interesting conversation, because they really didn't have any idea about what the ordinary Soviet people were thinking.

But they also wondered, what if the tables were turned in America. Suppose it was the United States that was having to buy grain. What would American consumers say about that?

The U.S. consumer doesn't know what a food shortage is. Prices may rise, but there is no lack of availability, of a great variety of foods. Currently, about 17.4 per cent of America's take-home pay is spent for food, the lowest percentage in the world.

American farmers always produce more than is needed in this country. In most years, they produce enough for all the U.S. and sufficient to export more than any other country in the world. The efficiency of the American farmer—under the price incentive system—is unparalleled. One hour of farm labor— abetted by machinery—produces nearly nine times as much food and other crops as it did just 50 or 60 years ago.

So, suppose the current source of complaint was about U.S. farmers not producing enough and about high import prices. After all, everything is relative. Just what would Americans be saying under different circumstances? Even more significant, suppose they weren't allowed to complain against their government?

Makes you wonder, the fellows around the table agreed.

Not Much Sympathy

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer Journal:

The Senate Appropriations committee in Washington is studying federal compensation after some governmental workers have complained, through their unions, that federal workers are "underpaid".

Perhaps some of the government workers in high inflation, high living cost Washington, D.C. may feel their budgets are tight. But to the average grassroots American workers, the plight of the poor, underpaid government worker is not apt to gain much sympathy.

Not when we hear of congressional secretaries on Capital Hill making $25,000 to $30,000 a year. Not when we consider the listed salary scales, which today go as high as $37,800 a year without including fringe benefits.

For example, personnel with GS-16 through GS-18 ratings have salary tags of $37,800 plus additional taxpayer contribution to his retirement of $2,835. The taxpayer also contributes $234 to the worker's life insurance; $491 to his family health insurance.

Nor does the salary reflect the fact the worker receives 20 days vacation (annual leave) after three years of government service. That's four solid work weeks of vacation with pay. Then there's another 13 workdays which may be taken for sick leave, again with pay. Nor does it include nine recognized federal holidays off with pay.

We could go on and on with many other benefits such as the option to join a government credit union where money can be borrowed at extremely low interest rates.

Let's hope that while the Senate committee is considering the heart-rending pleas of the poor, underpaid government workers in Washington, the good senators will keep in mind the hard working, independent laborers back home who are paying for it all.

Likely Laws

We don't know the origin of the following laws, but they seem to fit a lot of situations with which must of us are familiar:

Parkinson's law—Work expands so as to fill the time available for its completion.

Murphy's law—If anything can go wrong, it will.

McGurk's law—Any improbable event which would create maximum confusion if it did occur . . . will occur.

Weller's law—Nothing is impossible for the man who doesn't have to do it himself.

Finagle's law—Once a job is fouled up, anything done to improve it makes it worse.

Peter's law—In any organization, people tend to rise to the level of incompetency (they're promoted to the point where they can no longer do the job).

Crane's law—There is no such thing as a free lunch.

Myer's law—Completion by a lawyer of any legal task requires, first of all, longevity on the part of the client.

Borrowed Nonsense

A jazz musician attended church one Sunday and upon leaving stopped to see the minister. "Man, that sermon was too much, daddy," he said. "I mean I really flipped—it spaced me out, man."

"I appreciate what I take to be compliments," the pastor replied, "but couldn't you express it in a little more dignified terminology."

"Sorry, pops," said the musician, "but that's the way I am. Like I dug your jive so much I laid a C-note on the cat picking up the bread."

"Far out, man," the minister whistled. "Right on!"

A Chicago printing firm prominently displayed the following sign in its office: "We started in business in 1947 and have been pleasing and displeasing our customers ever since. We have been bawled out, balled up, held up and held down, cussed and discussed, recommended and boycotted, talked to and talked about, burned up and burned out, recessed and depressed, inflated, deflated, stagflated. Quite frankly, the only reason we continue to stay in business is to see what could possibly happen next."

Capitol Close-Ups

Rep. John Corbid

The most important task I have been involved in this fall has been our committee's study of the Stillwater prison. While you have probably heard of the inquiry by the joint Senate-House committee on the management of the Stillwater prison, our committee has been most concerned with the physical problems involved in running an outdated facility.

The corrections department has requested $6.9 million for repairs and remodeling of Stillwater. Major repairs to the heating plant will cost an estimated $1 million. An alternative is a new power plant outside the walls. The cost of the new plant would be approximately $3 million but if we are going to continue indefinite use of Stillwater it may be the most economical choice.

At present we have a potentially dangerous situation with two cell blocks containing approximately 500 prisoners separated by a short hallway and two doors. If the prisoners in one cell block ever gained control of their cell block they could free the others immediately. Part of the remodeling will be for a bullet proof security room and electronic steel gates between these cell blocks.

Also needed are guard towers and a catwalk for the front of the prison. I was told by prison officials that they have had four escapes in the past three years through the front area. Let me assure you that any money spent will be for improving the security and discipline of the prison.

Recently, I enjoyed the opportunity to speak with the Polk County township officers association at their annual meeting in Crookston. I was to speak at the Stephen Lions club earlier the same evening but poor driving conditions prevented me from reaching Stephen from St. Paul in time to speak.

Also last week I spoke to the Oslo Lions club. They had a very good turnout and it was worthwhile to exchange ideas with them. If your club or any group would like to visit about legislation, please feel free to contact me in Oklee, 796-2013, or St. Paul 612-296-4329.

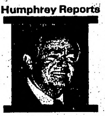
Humphrey Reports To Minnesotans



Most people are now aware that the principal law governing the management of the national economy is known as the Employment Act of 1946. This is a law which commits the United States to a policy of maximum employment, maximum income and maximum productivity.

Because these goals are still unfulfilled, the Joint Economic Committee, which I chair, has undertaken a 30th anniversary review of the Act, to see how its priorities can be adapted to today's troubled economy.

In the course of that review, we are considering ways in which our economic policy can be restructured to achieve full employment without renewed inflation. That is no small task.

Part of that effort includes a nationwide series of field hearings which will take the government directly to the people—to listen to their problems, their solutions and their ideas for change.

Hearings thus far have been held in Chicago, New York and Atlanta. Additional hearings are planned on the West Coast, in Boston and possibly other areas. They are of enormous value for two reasons.

First, we cannot improve the economy if we do not understand it. And many of the traditional ways of understanding it no longer seem to apply.

We have seen in recent months, for example, that budget deficits do not always reduce unemployment, that tight money policies do not always curb inflation and that higher prices do not always result in increased productivity.

So we need to look for new solutions to our new problems, solutions which we must find in the neighborhoods where our citizens live and work, in our cities, towns and rural areas. Therefore, these field hearings are an essential part of this process.

Second, and even more important, the hearings show the government how the recession and inflation affect the American people. They bypass the charts and graphs, the tables and percentages and go directly to the heart of the economy, to business people, farmers, the working men and women in our shops and factories, local leaders, and the unemployed.

We are learning what a terrible toll the recession takes in strained family relations, in mental health problems, in the rising crime rate and in the national spirit.

We are listening and we are learning. With the knowledge that will be gained from these hearings, I am confident that we can come back to Washington and agree on the kind of policies which can put the nation back on its feet, which can restore employment. And I am confident that, in doing so, we can restore our most precious resource—the human spirit.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

Elsworth Bunker, U.S. Envoy to the Panama Canal Zone has decided or was told by someone to speak up for "new negotiations" for Panama. He meant that the natives who do not have any rights or title to this land are to be given new control over this 20-mile wide zone.

Now this land is ours, we have paid for it and have continued to pay the people of Panama ever since. Two members of the Congress on the House Panama subcommittee have refused to go along with Henry Kissinger in his efforts toward what they call a "sell-out" of the Panama Canal. It is peculiar that under both Republican and Democrat administrations, the trend toward our give-away seems the same. The only thing that has stopped it so far has been patriotic Congressmen and others who have protested such actions.

The statement by Mr. Bunker was remarkable, not about giving up our rights, but in the way he said it. He said over a news interview that nothing would be done about these new negotiations until after the elections next fall because the American people wouldn't stand for it.

This public official who was in Vietnam during that horrible debacle has a peculiar attitude. He says in effect that if negotiations were started now the voters would be furious. My question is, "why isn't he furious about it?" By what special intelligence are these men able to say the opposite of what makes sense to the American people?

His following statement was equally peculiar. He said that if we didn't give away the canal in a negotiated manner as demanded by the communist forces, there would be a confrontation. This was the end of his statement as if to say there was no way our country could tolerate a confrontation.

Abraham Lincoln's warnings are still true when he said, "If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of free men, we must live through all time, or die by suicide".

The attitude of defeat which killed us in Vietnam is not what we need. Indonesia enthusiastically welcomed President Ford because they hope he means a different attitude. They know what is meant to face Communist slavery when they threw out President Sukarno. At that time hope for a victory by the West in Vietnam was riding high and on the strength of just an attitude, Indonesia is an anti-communist, pro-West friend and ally instead of what Vietnam is today.

I think it is important to tell the President how we feel about this and we will have to hope he will listen. However uncertain our country's future might seem to be, the greatest danger is our attitude.

Totalitarian powers whether from the left or the right have no chance against what we can do unless we are afraid. The freedoms we have are too powerful to be repressed by any enemy unless we let it be that way. A nation that can worship God in freedom has the potential of strength that is without limit. As we approach Christmas 1975, the reality of faith can be our strength if that is what we want.

Hearing Set On Protective Eye Devices

Public hearing concerning the requirements for approval of eye protective devices for motorcycle operators will be held in the State office building auditorium in St. Paul at 9:30 a.m. on December 29, the Minnesota department of public safety announced recently.

The approval requirements proposed are intended to meet the dictates of Minnesota law which require the department of public safety to provide a list of approved eye protective devices to be used by motorcyclists.

Under the proposed requirements, devices certified by the American association of motor vehicle administrators as meeting the standards of regulation VESC-8 of the vehicle equipment safety commission will be approved for use in Minnesota. In addition, no eye protective device containing tinted lenses will be allowed during other than daylight hours.

Oral or written data concerning the proposed adoption may be presented at the hearing or briefs or statements may be submitted without a hearing appearance. Copies of the proposal may be obtained by writing to the Department of public safety, 210A, highway building, St. Paul, 55155.

Sometimes Christmas has a way of sneaking up on you.
And this year's no different.
Why, there's barely enough time to pull the funny red suit out of mothballs.
Let alone pull off the Christmas shopping.
But a smart Santa knows the one gift that's good for everything from vacations to educations.

Good old U.S. Savings Bonds.
Just think of the advantages: Bargain prices. One-stop shopping. Plus something new for '76. Specially designed Bicentennial engravings different on each denomination.
So don't let Christmas shopping leave you out in the cold.

Take stock in America and slip U.S. Savings Bonds into their stockings.
And let the numbers fall where they may on who's been naughty or nice.

Take stock in America.
200 Christmases at the same location.

State's Banks Extend Billion In Farm Loans

A recent report shows that Minnesota banks have loaned more than $1.084 billion for operating and real estate loans to Minnesota farmers at year-end 1974—a 12 per cent jump over 1973—making banks the single largest source of farm credit in the state, according to John D. Chisholm, Rochester, president of the Minnesota Bankers association (MBA).

Citing the American Bankers association (ABA) 1975 agricultural credit report, Chisholm indicated that Minnesota bankers held $906.0 million in production loans, 69 per cent of all loans in this category, and $177.9 million in farm mortgage loans at year-end 1974.

"At the end of 1974", Chisholm added, "America's banks nationwide had $18.2 billion in farm operating loans outstanding, up 6 per cent from the year before, and $5.9 billion in real estate farm loans outstanding, up 9 per cent during the past 12 months."

Chisholm also said that bankers in Minnesota are conscious of the large capital investments required in agriculture today and are utilizing improved lending programs, correspondent bank services and secondary market resources to help meet the changing credit demands of the state's farmers. Chisholm also noted the efforts of the Minnesota bankers association agricultural and rural development committee's programs which are developed to meet the changing credit demands for Minnesota farmers.

Minnesota Bankers association was recently cited for the "outstanding state program for informing the public about agricultural banking". The award was presented by the American Bankers association at the national agricultural and rural affairs conference held recently at Houston, Texas. This is the third year that the Minnesota Bankers Association has received a major award for its contribution to Minnesota agriculture. Last year, the ABA awarded the Minnesota Bankers association the "outstanding state program for educating bankers on agricultural finance".

This year's award was presented to the Minnesota Bankers association for its workshops on the utilization of the 1972 farm credit act, which allows for alternative sources of farm credit for agriculture and agricultural communities, specifically through the Farmers Home administration.

Chisholm also noted that farmers' equity totaled $438.4 billion nationwide at year-end 1974, increasing $36.7 billion from the end of 1973. Farm expense jumped $7.6 billion to $73.4 billion at the end of 1974, with realized net income from farming dropping $1.7 billion to $27.7 billion during the year, but still second highest income level ever.

Chairman of the MBA agricultural and rural development committee, Charles K. Pederson, Springfield, noted the importance of continuing agricultural educational programs due to the importance of farmers and bankers working closely together to improve farm financial arrangements. According to Pederson, nearly 89 per cent of the banks in Minnesota extend credit to farm people.

In addition, Pederson noted that the number of farms at year-end 1974 totaled 2,830,000—down 14,000 from 1973 and down nearly 1,133,000 from the total in 1960. "With the continuing importance of America's farmers", Pederson noted, "the importance of bankers and farmers working together to resolve credit needs for maximum production is probably more important than ever before."

Minnesota Bankers association is the trade organization representing the Minnesota banking industry.

Grants To Help In Disposal Of Diseased Trees

Grants totaling $251,000 for disposal of trees killed by Dutch Elm and Oak Wilt deseases were announced recently by Jon Wefald, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture.

The state is awarding $230,000 to St. Paul and Minneapolis for a tree disposal center near Pig's Eye lake in St. Paul. The two cities have negotiated a joint powers agreement under which they will own and use the disposal center.

The Wood utilization and disposal center will be operated by the Occupational training center on the flood plain between Pig's Eye lake and the Mississippi river.

Each city will invest $115,000 in the project. With state funds the total cost will be $460,000. Special machinery will cut dead elm and oak trees into wood ships on the site. There will be no disposal of tree materials on the 10-acre site.

Hennepin county has been awarded $21,000 for purchase of equipment to process trees. A state decision on another $156,000 of Hennepin county's request is still pending with the department of agriculture.

Put Some Sparkle In Your Party

Parties and punches just naturally go together. And at holiday times, a colorful red punch served in a brimming bowl can be the center of attraction on your buffet table. Serve the punch with hors d' oeuvres or with sweet tidbits such as petit fours or miniature fruitcakes decorated with red icing poinsettias with centers made from yellow gumdrops.

The punch starts with a base of strong tea which gives body without masking the flavors of the various juices with which it is combined. For a spirited version of the punch, omit the ice cubes in the recipe below and add a bottle of chilled champagne. Either way, the punch will be a sparkling addition to your party.

Sparkling Christmas Punch
(Makes 4 quarts or twenty-two 6 oz. servings)

- 1 quart water
- 6 teabags
- 1 (46 oz.) can fruit juicy-red Hawaiian style punch, chilled
- 1 (18 oz.) can unsweetened pineapple juice, chilled
- 1 (28 oz.) bottle carbonated collins mixer, chilled
- Ice cubes

In medium saucepan, bring water to a full rolling boil. Remove from heat and add teabags. Cover and let stand 5 minutes. Remove teabags. Cool tea to room temperature. In large punch bowl, combine tea, punch and pineapple juice. Slowly stir in collins mixer. Add ice cubes. Ladle into champagne glasses.

Key Factor Of Agriculture Will Increase

Agriculture, a major factor in the nation's development the past 200 years, will "increasingly be the key factor in the continued growth, progress and leadership" for the state and country in the future, Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald said recently.

Minnesota, in terms of gross farm income today is the fifth most important agricultural state. It must, and shall, Wefald said, play "a key role in our pursuit of peace, progress and prosperity" tomorrow. He pledged a continuation of his department's "close working relationship, understanding and importance service roles so much a part of Minnesota's dynamic food and fiber industry."

Various activities and services of the state agricultural department, said Wefald, find the department "responsible in some way for this state's food supply from field to dining table." He said farmers and ranchers, if given a fair return, "can and do generate the new wealth we need to have full production and a balanced federal budget." He attributed today's recession, inflation, "incredible debt expansion" and deficit spending to agriculture's "not usually receiving a fair return for its production."

Wefald said he is optimistic about agriculture's future, largely because farmers are hard working, efficient, resourceful and self-reliant.

House Dairy Bill Agreed To By Senate

Conference committee of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate agreed recently to accept the House version of legislation providing for quarterly adjustments in milk price supports and establishing the supports at no less than 85 per cent of parity.

Minnesota's 7th district congressman Bob Bergland, who served on the conference committee, said that the bill "now represents the view of House members that quarterly adjustments are not enough unless milk price supports are prevented from falling below 85 per cent of parity." The Senate version of the bill did not contain the parity provision.

Bergland also noted that the bill's final version included another House amendment changing the legislation's termination date to March 31, 1978 when farm legislation covering other commodities also expires. "By considering all agricultural legislation at the same time we can consolidate our forces in a united front to gain a fair shake for all farmers."

Bergland said that "the alarming rate at which dairy farmers are going out of business—5,000 in Minnesota alone during the past two years—helped convince Congress that strong legislation is necessary."

"It was an unfortunate and high price to pay for recognition," Bergland concluded. "I hope the lesson has been well learned and Congress does not continue to act only after a crisis has been reached."

BSU Library Has Many Documents Of Historical Value

Preserving Minnesota's heritage has seen a new surge of interest in recent years, from the museum level to the amateur collector. Under the direction of Dr. Arthur Charvat, the North Central Minnesota Regional history research center is successfully tieing the pieces together to unify efforts of all involved.

Everything from old invoices to turn-of-the-century medical books are nearly filling the two Bemidji State university library rooms allotted for that purpose.

"The material we have been given by various concerned individuals is available not only to university students," Charvat points out. "Local historians, children and the general public are free to use our facilities for research purposes."

Seven counties are served by the center, which began in the spring of 1973. Funding came from the Minnesota Resources commission and the National endowment for the humanities. A branch of the Minnesota historical society (MHS), it owes part of its existance to the cooperation of BSU. The project is now one of eight such axis designed to gather and catalog significant historical material on a regional basis.

Looking through the shelves at Bemidji, one finds a cross-section of life dating from the late 1800's. Legislative files of Coya Knutson, Minnesota's first congresswoman, stand near historical information on area churches. Grocery bills from the old Nary School are considered no less important than microfilmed B.I.A. correspondence from the 1870's. Everything has its value and is placed in acid-free, climate controlled boxes.

One of the most interesting donations is an official ledger from the Lake Julia sanitorium. Listings from 1916-1943 give patients' names, family backgrounds, illnesses, and other details.

History also need not refer to days past. Oral taped interviews contain the viewpoints of contemporary officials like Beltrami county sheriff Tom Tolman and Bemidji fire chief Jerry Moen. In contrast, listeners can hear the reminiscences of an earlier era: box factory owner, John Kenfield and the last Beltrami county schools superintendent C.L. Stapleton, to name a few.

Photographs are not actively solicited by the history center, since local county historical societies have more exhibit space. A number are on file, however, illustrating the colorful life of the logging days.

The existing research potential for both students and the public is endless, but organization of the data has proven equally as great.

"This is what takes up the time," Charvat says, pointing to a pile of miscellaneous papers. "All this material comes raw and we ahve to sort and file that worth saving." Anything extraneous is dealt with according to the wishes of the donor—in the wastebasket or returned.

To complete such a formidable task, Charvat enlists the aid of three student interns. Jim Ericson of Silver Bay, Frances Portine of Summit, NJ; and Michael Peterson, Bemidji share the responsibility with him for cataloging papers and actually contacting prospective contributors. Conducting taped interviews, in particular, provides them with valuable job training.

Coordinator for the entire regional center operation across Minnesota is James Fogerty, based with the MHS in St. Paul. One of the reasons for starting such a program, he feels, was to decentralize material.

"The national corporate type collections, we feel, are best located in St. Paul for better public access. The public and private files which are from regional sources, however, will receive more use in out-state Minnesota," comments Fogerty. "Because of space and staff limitations, we previously had no time to track down all the leads. Now we're hopefully not missing as much." The MHS maintains a central index of all resources at the main headquarters.

Fogerty was in Bemidji recently to discuss the arrival of a new addition to the center. Ah-Gwah-Ching (once a tuberculosis sanitorium and now a nursing home near Walker) has consented to store many of its founding documents at BSU. "We expect 300-400 linear feet will be sent here, making this one of the largest single collections in the system," he says, stating the inclusive dates will be 1907-1961.

Because of donations such as this, Minnesota ranks second in the United States for history center number. Wisconsin currently has 13 and Ohio eight. Fogerty partially attributes this fact to an increasing interest in hostory as a whole by saying, "It's grown like wildfire!"

Future MHS plans for the history centers call for involving the community to a greater extent. "In recognition of the bicentennial year, we (MHS) plan to sponsor a traveling exhibit during 1976-77. At the sites of the history centers, we also hope to hold special programs such as genealogy seminars, clinics on taping oral history, and others," he comments.

At the present time, Charvat adds that the center is trying to expand its resources through the continued contributions of individuals. Anyone wishing to donate material or visit the center may contact Charvat at Hagg-Sauer, room 305, Bemidji State university; or phone 218-775-3965.

Accept Manker For Malting And Brewing

Malting barley improvement association has announced that the white aleurone, six-row variety, Manker, has been classified as an acceptable malting and brewing variety for production in Minnesota and North Dakota.

It must be emphasized that approval is subject to acceptance by industry in future commercial production because only limited quantities of barley were available for plant scale tests from the 1973 and 1974 crops and the fact that Manker is the first barley to produce a very high soluble protein in finished malt.

Manker was developed at the University of Minnesota from crosses involving Cree, M2, Vantage, Kindred and Jotun. Manker yields more than Larker and is more resistant to lodging. It is slightly earlier maturing than Larker and has resistance to foliar diseases.

Seed for commercial production of Manker is available for planting in 1976.

Land O' Lakes Distributes $17,329,000

Land O'Lakes will have made cash patronage redemption and revolvement payments of $17,329,000 during 1975. That's $9,179,000 more than was paid last year. Sharing in the payment from their regional farm supply and food marketing cooperative are 825 member-owner local cooperatives and 12,142 direct member-owners.

Included in the total is a recently authorized equity revolvement of $5,710,000 to be paid in mid-December. With this payment all Land O'Lakes patronage equities will have been paid up to 1963.

Authorization was made by the Land O'Lakes board of directors at its November meeting. The board is in control of all Land O'Lakes financial matters and determines the amount and method of distribution of margins in accordance with the cooperative's bylaws.

Other payments made in 1975 were $11,309,000, representing 40 per cent of the cooperative's margins for 1974 which were paid in June, and $310,000 in miscellaneous redemptions, including estate settlements, which were paid throughout the year.

The total is equivalent to 61.3 per cent of Land O'Lakes' distributable margins for 1974 and brings the cooperative's total cash equity redemptions for the last 10 years to nearly $80,000,000.

In announcing the December payment, Land O'Lakes president Ralph Hofstad said, "The Land O'Lakes board of directors is to be commended for its program of sound money management. While patronage and revolvement payments are substantially above those made last year, the cooperative remains in excellent financial condition. Members should feel secure, knowing that they have good stewards caring for their investments in their Land O'Lakes cooperative."

"And most certainly," Hofstad said, "this record speaks well for the patronage support of the membership. It keeps growing and growing. Without this support, Land O'Lakes would not enjoy its enviable reputation as a major supplier of farm in-put products in the upper Midwest and a dependable marketer of quality foods throughout the nation.

"This growing patronage support is also tangible evidence that farmers today wnat and need their supply and marketing cooperatives, even though some dtractors would have us believe that cooperatiges have outlived their usefulness."

Importance Of Political Ed. Stressed

Call to citizen engagement in political education activity was issued recently to those attending the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation's annual meeting in Bloomington.

Seeley G. Lodwick, government relations director for the 2.5 million member family American Farm Bureau federation, spoke to a Political Involvement '76 conference. He said political education activity can be "of the highest calling and of the greatest satisfaction among all our endeavors." He noted that the alternative is "fatigues, aches, cold feet and missed opportunities" as far as the republican form of government is concerned.

To Farm Bureau, Lodwick said, the grassroots policy development and policy education process is the most important and costly in terms of time, energy and money. Political education, he pointed out, is the tool "we can use to implement member-determined directives in the public policy area."

Noting that 1976 is an election year, Lodwick said it will afford farmers, acting as individual citizens, the opportunity "to become familiar with incumbents and candidates for public office, their principles, their philosophies, their platforms and their performance records" as public officeholders or seekers.

Reciprocity In Education Aids Minnesotans

More than 6,000 Minnesota residents are attending public post-secondary institutions in Wisconsin and North Dakota at in-state tuition rates this fall under separate reciprocal agreements between Minnesota and the neighboring states, MHECC executive director Richard C. Hawk told members of the House higher education committee this month.

Hawk said that an estimated 4,200 Minnesota residents are attending Wisconsin institutions, and about 1,900 Minnesota residents are attending North Dakota institutions. Estimates are based on the number of applications approved. An estimated 2,200 Wisconsin residents are attending Minnesota institutions and approximately 850 North Dakota residents are attending Minnesota institutions, Hawk said.

Hawk said that under the Minnesota-North Dakota agreement, which started this fall, 749 out of 996 North Dakota applications approved were for students planning to attend Moorhead state university. Of 2,045 Minnesota applications approved, 841 were for students planning to attend the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, 865 for students planning to attend North Dakota state university in Fargo and 265 planning to attend the state school of science in Wahpeton. Vocational-technical institutes are not included under the Minnesota-North Dakota agreement.

For fiscal 1974 (1973-74 academic year), the first year of the unrestricted Minnesota-Wisconsin agreement, 1,801 Minnesota residents went to Wisconsin institutions, and 904 Wisconsin residents attended Minnesota institutions. Under the balance of payments provision in the agreement, Minnesota paid Wisconsin $1,532,938. But under the related tax reciprocity plan, Wisconsin recently agreed to make a preliminary payment of $5.5 million to Minnesota, resulting in a net flow of just under $4 million to Minnesota.

In fiscal 1975, an estimated 3,300 Minnesota residents attended Wisconsin institutions, and 1,500 Wisconsin residents attended Minnesota institutions. Under the balance of payments, Minnesota would owe Wisconsin an estimated $3,100,000.

When the front page makes you happy

Sunday Luke 18:9-13
Monday Psalms 6:1-4
Tuesday Psalms 32:1-5
Wednesday Psalms 130:1-4
Thursday John 1:6-9
Friday Matthew 11:2-6
Saturday Philippians 4:4-7

He was a retired editor and a wise one. But he was a realist — as a newspaperman must be. One of his sayings became legendary in that busy pressroom:

When the front page makes you happy — it's been a great day!

I'm one who has noticed that the great days seem farther apart. Nor can I blame on my ulcer the headlines that don't make anyone happy. Someone else said: men make the news; reporters only write it.

It's time to give thought to the roots of happiness. After all, what happens every day is simply the fruit of a million vines. Down at the roots is where the fateful choices are made which inevitably bring forth their fruit.

This is a mighty fine newspaper whose service to the community is to tell us what news men have made today. We also have some mighty fine churches. Their service to the community is to mold the faith and character of the men who will make the news tomorrow.

Our churches are working at the roots of happiness!

"Where Your Business Is Appreciated"

1975 Tax Return Changes Are Noted

Liberalized standard deduction, personal exemption credit, housing credit—these are some of the changes on the 1975 tax return that will mean less taxes for the majority of taxpayers.

Take the change in the standard deduction. On last year's return, taxpayers were limited to 15 per cent of adjusted gross income to a maximum of $2,000. This year, it has been increased to 16 per cent with a maximum of $2,600 for a married couple filing jointly, or $2,300 for a single person ($1,300 for a married person filing separately).

Many taxpayers who have always itemized and filed the 1040 form may find it to their advantage to use the simpler Form 1040A this year and take the standard deduction. It's a good idea to work out the tax liability both by itemizing and by taking the standard deduction. While it may take a little longer to go through the process twice, it just may mean saving a considerable amount. Here's an example which shows how it can be to the taxpayers' advantage to use the standard deduction.

Mr. and Mrs. T. have itemized deductions for medical costs, charitable contributions, interest payments, etc., totaling $2,350 on an adjusted gross income of $20,000. While 16 per cent of their adjusted gross income is $3,200 or more than the maximum standard deduction of $2,600, they would still save $250 by filing the short 1040A form and taking the standard deduction. And they might even save themselves the cost of a returns preparer.

In addition to the increase in the standard deduction, another new change for 1975 is the low income allowance which has been raised. This increase is reflected in revised tax tables which now have a ceiling of $15,000. Last year only taxpayers who earned $10,000 or less could use the tables.

Because of the change in the low income allowance, the filing requirements for individuals have also been revised. For example, last year a single taxpayer was required to file a return if earnings were $2,050 or higher; now the filing requirement for a single individual is $2,350. Whether a person is required to file or not, however, if taxes were withheld, a return should be filed to claim any refund which may be due.

Another change for filers is that each taxpayer with a tax liability can claim a $30 credit for each dependent and personal exemption. Keep in mind, though, that this credit does not apply to the exemptions for age or blindness. Therefore, for a married couple with two children, a credit of $120 could be claimed on a joint return. This provision, as most of the others, has been enacted for this year only.

Another credit which may benefit many low income families is the earned income credit. Specifically, it applies to taxpayers with dependents and adjusted gross income (or earned income, if greater) under $8,000. The maximum credit is 10 per cent of a worker's first $4,000 of earned income.

Above $4,000 the credit is reduced by an amount equal to 10 per cent of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. This is how it works.

Mr. and Mrs. A. have adjusted gross income of $6,500. Their earned income credit is $150, computed by subtracting 10 per cent of the amount of income over $4,000 from the maximum credit of $400. Even if Mr. and Mrs. A. had no tax liability, they would receive a check for the $150.

The earned income credit may be claimed by those who have no tax liability if the other conditions are met. So people who may not otherwise be required to file a return should do so to get a check for the earned income credit, even if no income tax had been withheld.

Mention of checks may bring to mind last year's rebate and the onetime special $50 payment to social security recipients. Where do they fit on this year's Federal return? The answer is "nowhere." Neither of those checks are considered income by the IRS and so are not taxable.

There's one more credit to consider: the housing credit. This credit applies only to those taxpayers who bought certain newly constructed homes last year. A home built before March 26, 1975, which had never been occupied, is eligible for the credit. The other conditions which must be met are:

—the house must be a principal residence;

—the residence must be acquired and occupied as a principal residence after Mar. 12, 1975 and before Jan. 1, 1977;

—the taxpayer must enter into a binding purchase contract before Jan. 1, 1976;

—except in the case of self-construction, the taxpayer must attach to their return, certification by the seller that the purchase price is the lowest price at which the residence was offered for sale since Feb. 28, 1975.

An individual who meets all the tests may claim a credit of five per cent of the purchase price, up to a maximum of $2,000.

Another tax break dealing with homeowners is the provision that the seller of an old principal residence now has 18, rather than 12 months, as in the past, to purchase a new principal residence, to defer recognition of a tax gain.

This is a Presidential Election year and with elections coming up, taxpayers should be aware that the maximum tax credit for contributions to candidates for public office has been increased to $25 per taxpayer ($50 for a joint return). Also, the maximum deduction for contributions to candidates has been hiked to $100 ($200 on a joint return).

The IRS is making it easier for taxpayers to file the shorter Form 1040A by automatically sending the 1040A package, complete with instructions, to those taxpayers who took the standard deduction last year but did not use the short form. Taxpayers will receive a tax package through the mail during the first week in January. In the package, taxpayers usually will find everything they need to complete the 1975 return.

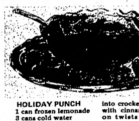
SPIRITED PUNCHES FOR HOLIDAY CHEER

You can put more punch in your parties if you get into the holiday spirit. One way is with punch lines like these.



EGG NOG

6 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 pint heavy cream
1 pint milk
1 pint Four Roses whiskey
1 ounce Myers's Jamaica Rum

Beat separately yolks and whites. Add 1/2 cup sugar to beaten yolks. Beat whites very stiff; add 1/2 cup sugar. Combine whites and yolks. Stir in cream and milk. Add Four Roses and Myers's Jamaica Rum. Stir thoroughly. Serve cold with grated nutmeg. Makes 20 (4-ounce) servings.

LEROUX BRANDY PUNCH
(Made with three delicious Leroux liqueurs)

Juice of 15 lemons
Juice of 4 oranges
1 1/4 pounds powdered sugar
1/2 pint Curacao
1 or 2 jiggers Grenadine
2 quarts Brandy
1 to 2 quarts soda water

Place all ingredients in punch bowl and add large block of ice. Just before serving add soda water. Makes 25 to 30 cups.

HOLIDAY PUNCH

1 can frozen lemonade
3 cans cold water
1/4 cup Leroux Grenadine
6 orange and lemon slices
Cloves
1 fifth Benchmark Bourbon
1 qt. club soda, chilled

Mix water and lemonade. Add Grenadine, fruit slices studded with cloves, and Bourbon. Chill. Pour in club soda just before serving. Makes about 20 servings.

WASSAIL BOWL

1 qt. Seagram's 7 Crown
1 gal. sweet apple cider
2 tbsp. maple syrup (or granulated sugar)
Juice of 3 lemons
Cinnamon sticks, lemon twists or apple slices

Mix cider, syrup and lemon juice over medium heat. At boiling point, lower heat and add 7 Crown. When bubbles start to form, remove from heat and ladle into crockery mugs. Garnish with cinnamon sticks, lemon twists or apple slices. Serves about 15.

RUM PUNCH

1 1/2 fifths Myers's Jamaica Rum
6 ounces pineapple juice
10 ounces orange juice
10 ounces lemon or lime juice
1 1/2 quarts ginger ale or club soda
Lemon or lime slices
Strawberries

Into a large punch bowl place Myers's Jamaica Rum, pineapple juice, orange juice and lemon or lime juice. Let mixture steep 1 hour. Before serving, add ginger ale or club soda. Decorate with lemon or lime slices and strawberries. Place a cake of ice or several trays of ice cubes in the punch and serve. Serves 15 to 20.

You and your friends can have a ball this holiday season, if you have a bowl of these holiday treats.

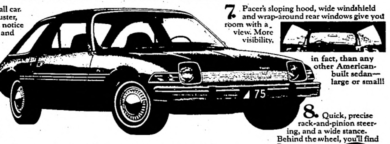
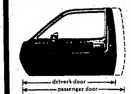
Pacer is here!
The first wide small car.



1. Pacer is the first wide small car. (Wider than Chevelle, Duster, Nova—even Granada!) You'll notice a big difference in room, ride and handling compared with conventional small cars.

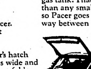
2. Pacer is wide, Pacer is roomy. (In fact, Pacer gives you more leg room, front and rear, than the two-door Torino or Fury!)

3. Super stable wide ride. Pacer's wide stance and isolated suspension give you the ride of a much bigger car.



4. Pacer's got a wide door for the driver. And a 3.6-inch wider door for passengers. You'll find it easier to get in and out of a Pacer. So will your back-seat drivers.

5. Pacer's hatch opens wide and the rear seat folds down. This gives you lots of wide-open cargo space.



6. Pacer's got an economical 6-cylinder engine and a 22-gallon gas tank. That's larger than any small car — so Pacer goes a long way between fill ups.

7. Pacer's sloping hood, wide windshield and wrap-around rear windows give you room with a view. More visibility, in fact, than any other American-built sedan—large or small!

8. Quick, precise rack-and-pinion steering, and a wide stance. Behind the wheel, you'll find Pacer sees and handles like a sports car.

9. Wide, wide coverage. Pacer is backed by all the benefits of the exclusive AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN.

U of M Studies Aspects Of Twins

by Bill Hafling
U of M News Service

Sue's hands were sweating and she "felt funny." Pulling her car quickly off the St. Paul street she told her friend, "Something's happening to my twin sister Sheri in Chicago."

Then it came to her. Sheri, who was about seven months pregnant, was having her baby prematurely. She drove home, called Chicago, and confirmed her "awareness." Sheri had indeed just had a baby.

"Alot of twins think they have a mystical communion—an unusual awareness of one another," observes Professor David Lykken of the departments of psychiatry and psychology at the University of Minnesota.

Head of a major research project at the university which is studying human personality and individual differences, Lykken said stories about extrasensory communication between twins have to be interpreted very carefully. Many instances can be attributed to coincidence, for instance. And people rarely talk about those hundreds of "premonitions," "messages" and so on that do not turn out to be true.

On the other hand, Lykken has observed several events in his lab which make him think there may be something to these stories. One day he was teaching a girl how to take personality tests on a computer while her identical twin sat in a room down the hall taking some other tests.

"Twice, she made some very unique mistakes in using the computer. Each time, I had to re-set the equipment and start things over. She became flustered and apologized for her mistakes, then went ahead," Lykken said.

Later, her twin came in to take the computer tests and made exactly the same mistakes in the same order. "I just watched," Lykken said. "I knew I'd probably have to re-set the computer two times again."

University researchers have come to regard identical twins, in some contexts at least, as "alternate forms of the same individual." Identical twins, referred to technically as "MZ" or monozygotic twins, are those persons who begin from a single egg, which then splits in half to form two individuals before birth. "DZ" or dizygotic twins, commonly known as "fraternal" twins, are individuals born at the same time but who are formed from two separate eggs.

In one study done by Lykken, psychology professor Auke Tellegen and graduate student Karen Thorkelson, brain wave studies of twins were conducted. After comparisons were made on a wide variety of conditions, the researchers concluded that "with respect to EEG spectra" (brain wave patterns) "the MZ twins resembled their co-twins about 96 per cent as much as they resembled themselves."

Lykken said that identical twins are usually quite aware of their nearly complete likeness to one another. He said it is common on self-rating tests for one twin to finish a self rating and then say, when asked to rate the characteristics of the other twin, "But I just did that. We're no different."

DZ twins, on the other hand, are not as alike as researchers had expected them to be on theoretical grounds. Why this is so is somewhat puzzling to them. One possible reason is that DZ twins often try not to be the same.

"We're going to have to study many more hundreds of pairs (of twins) over many years to begin to solve some of the puzzles we've run into," Lykken said.

Same-sex twins, at least 16 years old, who are interested in taking part in the university studies are asked to call Dr. Lykken at 373-5042 or write to box 392 Mayo, university of Minnesota, Minneapolis, 55455.

The researchers also are interested in working with a same-sex brother or sister of the twin pair who is within two years of the same age as the twins.

Not only are the volunteers paid but they enjoy themselves. Lykken said that twins who entered the project when it began in 1970, still keep in touch, often having become friends with the researchers.

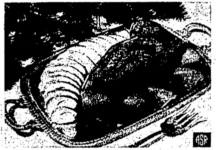
In addition to personality tests, studies of brain waves, and various tests of similarity, all the twins are given basic tests to determine if they are indeed identical or fraternal. Occasionally twins have been found to be identical on tests who did not know it until then.

Among the goals of the project are a better understanding of human genetics, individual differences, personality and temperament as well as some better idea of exactly how much truth there is to such ideas as extrasensory communication between twins.

"Nearly any psychological research becomes more interesting when twins are employed as experimental subjects," Lykken added.

A Holiday To Remember

by Martha Logan



A pre-carved roast turkey breast surrounded with pink pear bells will make a holiday buffet one to remember. For an especially pretty turkey breast for buffet service fill the neck cavity with seasoned mashed potatoes or stuffing. Cover with two or more thicknesses of cheese cloth dipped in melted shortening instead of a tent of foil. For an even golden brown, baste occasionally during roasting to keep the cloth moist. The Swift's Premium Young Turkey Breast is then placed on a rack in an open pan and roasted in a 325°F. oven for about 2½ hours.

After roasting, cool the turkey breast. Remove the rib bones with heavy shears. With a sharp knife cut through the skin on both sides of the breast bone. Lift the entire section of white meat from one side of the turkey breast. Cut the boneless meat across the grain into ¼ inch slices. Place the turkey breast on the serving platter and arrange slices of turkey on one side. Carve the second side as needed.

Pink Pear Bells

Pink pear bells are made with either fresh or canned pear halves that are simmered gently in a carbonated strawberry drink. Heat only until pears are pink. Do not overcook. Drain the pears and cut off the wide end of each pear to resemble a bell. Whole cloves are inserted to form the clappers of the bell.

The new law providing for a tax deduction of up to $1,500.

Retirement plans, once considered luxuries, are now necessities. Recognizing this need, Congress passed the "Pension Reform Act." One of its provisions ends discrimination against 40 million Americans who, until now, were excluded from receiving special tax treatment while saving for their retirement.

If you are one of the estimated 40 million people qualified, you may contribute up to 15% of your compensation — to a maximum of $1,500 a year — and deduct this from your gross income on your IRS Tax Return.

Under this law you can reduce your income tax now, this year, and every year until retirement age, and increase your income for retirement, for life if you choose.

Minn. Net Farm Income Down For '75

Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald said recently a new estimate on cash farm receipts for the first eight months of this year indicates that net farm income in 1975 for Minnesota farmers will be even lower than 1974—when net farm income dropped $543.4 million.

"Minnesota's cash receipts from farm marketings for the January-August period this year are estimated at $2,362,100,000. That is a loss of $559.8 million from the farm marketing receipts for the same period last year.

If this trend continues, it would mean a net loss of more than $1 billion for the two years 1974-1975 from the level of that great year for American agriculture—1973.

"The $559.8 million loss is the biggest experienced by any state in the nation this year. That represents a 19.2 per cent cut in gross farm income. Neighboring North Dakota suffered the next highest loss, $478 million below last year, and that 30.5 per cent cut was the highest rate of loss in the nation.

"This cut in gross farm income is significant in the final impact it will have on net and disposable farm income in the coming year, because the record 1974 drop in net income was experienced in spite of a record high for gross income," Commissioner Wefald pointed out.

Minnesota's drop in cash farm receipts is the result of the 30 per cent loss in 1974 crop production due to the worst weather for any growing season in modern history, and the fact that farm commodity prices this year have fallen to the lowest levels in nearly three years.

"We are a long way from getting out of the economic woods after two years of adverse weather and farm prices. At mid-October Minnesota price averages, this year's total farm grain inventories were worth over three-quarters of one-billion dollars less than the grain would have brought at October 1974 prices.

"Because prices are so bad, farmers are not selling their grain in normal volume. They are selling only in limited quantities necessary to meet current expenses that can no longer be deferred. Current grain market quotations are down sharply from mid-October, by as much as $1 per bushel," Commissioner Wefald added.

The biggest share of Minnesota's loss of farm cash receipts for the first two-thirds of 1975 was for crop marketings. The $1,071,800,000 gross from crops was down $511.3 million or 32.3 per cent below the same period last year.

Minnesota farm receipts from livestock and poultry marketings this year through August totaled $1,290,300,000, down $48.5 million or 3.6 per cent compared to 1974.

Last year's flood, hail, drought and freeze reduction of crop production throughout the upper midwest is graphically reflected in the current cash receipts estimates by the Economic research service of the U.S. department of agriculture.

Combined losses in gross farm income for Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Nebraska, Michigan, Indiana and Missouri for the January-August period this year compared to the same eight months of 1974 total $2,366,700,000, or 99.8 per cent of the net national drop in cash farm receipts.

The other two midwest states, Ohio and Kansas, which escaped most of the adverse crop-destroying weather in 1974, are among the 18 states that reported gains in cash farm receipts this year. Ohio reported the biggest increase in the U.S., $323.6 million higher than cash farm receipts for the same eight months of 1974.

Fifth among all states in total cash receipts from farm marketings during 1974, Minnesota dropped to seventh in the rankings for the first eight months of 1975.

Attorney General
State of Minnesota

"Who's Who in America" is a legitimate reference book containing biographical sketches of outstanding citizens. The book is published by Marquis in Chicago.

Other books with "Who's Who" titles may not be legitimate reference works. The publishers use mailing lists and other means to solicit citizens to submit biographies for a "Who's Who" book. The publishers then make money by selling copies of the book to the citizens listed in it.

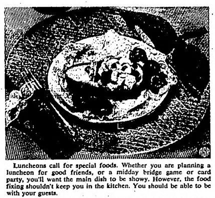
How can you tell the difference between "Who's Who" books that are legitimate reference works and books that are not?

The key factor separating the genuine books from the others is the procedure used to select the citizens whose biographies appear in the book. If you are contacted by a publisher who will not explain the selection process, be alert. If the publisher reveals the sources of "nominations"—for example, school guidance departments, professional groups, 4H clubs, Rotary clubs or Kiwanis clubs—check out one or two and see whether they merely supply membership lists or in fact recommend members.

Many offers for sale of publications that are not genuine include promises of gold-lettered personal copies or wall plaques in addition to the book.

The attorney general's office believes it is consumer fraud to inform citizens that they have been "nominated" without revealing what person or organization did the nominating and that it is also fraud to represent a publication has "historical and scholastic value" if the names of "nominees" come from mailing lists.

If you are tempted to submit your biography to a publication of questionable authenticity or tempted to buy such a book, write the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, 102 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.



Luncheons call for special foods. Whether you are planning a luncheon for good friends, or a midday bridge game or card party, you'll want the main dish to be showy. However, the food fixing shouldn't keep you in the kitchen. You should be able to be with your guests.

This Ham Salad in Avocados is a marvelous luncheon recipe, and one that can be made ahead of time. To prepare several hours in advance make the ham salad, then cut the avocados and rub the cut surfaces with lemon juice. Fill the avocado half-shells with ham salad and place on lettuce lined, tomato garnished plates. Cover each plate with saran and refrigerate. Just before serving sprinkle cashews on top. Serve with hot rolls and coffee. End the meal with chocolate cake or petit fours. The girls will talk about your luncheon for weeks!

Ham Salad In Avocados

3 cups cubed cooked ham
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
2 sweet pickles, sliced
2 green onions, chopped
1½ cups diced celery
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon sweet pickle juice
2 California avocados, halved and seeded
Iceberg lettuce leaves
½ cup cashew nuts
16 cherry tomatoes

Mix ham, eggs, pickles, onions and celery with mayonnaise thinned with pickle juice. Cut avocados in half lengthwise leaving on the peel. Spoon ham salad into avocados on lettuce lined plates. Garnish with cherry tomatoes and sprinkle with cashews. Makes 4 main dish salads.

To Hear Rules For Modifying Road Vehicles

A public hearing concerning the proposed adoption of rules which would govern the alteration or modification of certain vehicles was announced recently by the Minnesota Department of public safety.

The hearing, at which oral or written data may be presented by interested persons or groups, will be held on December 23 at 1 p.m. in room 81 of the State office building located in St. Paul's Capitol complex. Statements or briefs may also be presented without an appearance at the hearing.

The proposed regulations are designed to establish which alterations or modifications will be prohibited under Minnesota law. Among those proposed are the following:

—The road clearance or center of gravity of the vehicles covered by the regulations could not be altered so that any part of the vehicle other than tires or mud flaps is closer to the ground than the lowest point of the wheel rim. The front or rear of the body of the vehicle could not be raised more than two inches from its distance to the ground as manufactured.

Any permitted alteration to road clearance would also have to be accomplished so that brake hoses and fittings would accommodate maximum jounce and rebound. Spacers could not be used to extend springs, and structural parts must not be bent or damaged. All suspension equipment would have to be securely attached.

—Brakes or braking systems of the vehicles covered must not be altered or modified unless the performance of the braking system would still meet or exceed the brake performance requirements of state law. All brake system parts and vacuum hoses would have to be in good condition, not showing severe wear, cracks, breaks, misalignment or deformities.

—Vehicle steering systems could not be altered so that the diameter of the steering wheel is less than 12 inches. Free play in the steering wheel would not exceed established limits set for varying size steering wheels. Free play in the steering linkage could not exceed one-quarter of an inch.

These regulations would not apply to alterations or modifications completed prior to adoption of the regulation nor to vehicles defined as "specially constructed" nor to motorcycles. Trucks altered for specialized service performance are also excluded.

Copies of the proposed rules are available from the Minnesota Department of public safety, 210A highway building, St. Paul, 55155.

When was the last time you sat gazing wistfully at pictures of sunny Italy or the bright lights of Picadilly Circus while cold winter winds curled around the corners of your house?

Yesterday, perhaps?

Stop gazing and start planning. Bemidji State University's ninth annual European tour is now in the planning stages for 24 days of visiting in London, Paris, Lucerne, Zurich, Pisa, Florence, Venice, Innsbruk, Rapalla, Rothenburg, Rudesheim, Cologne and Amsterdam.

That's a lot of sight-seeing in 24 days but Professor Ken Henriques, chairman of Bemidji State's English department, has the tour guide business down to a fine art.

Henriques has developed an itinerary that provides a look at some of the greatest cities and their treasures in Europe.

The tour will depart from Minneapolis June 23 in early afternoon for London. The 2½ days there will include a guided tour of major attractions like the Houses of Parliament and Buckingham Palace and some free time for shopping.

The tour will cross the channel to France and on to Paris where again there will be free time and guided tours of places like The Louvre and Eifel tower.

The rest of the journey will be much the same type of schedule, with the time in each city for on-your-own exploring and a guided tour of historic places.

Other highlights include an evening dinner boat trip on Lake Lucerne, a visit to La Scala Opera in Milan, swimming in the Mediterranean at Rapallo, a look at the Leaning tower in Pisa and a cruise down the Rhine.

The tour returns to London on July 15 and then back to Minneapolis on July 16.

The tour is offered for college credit (six credits) and is open to students and non-students. Henriques said that previous years have found many teachers taking the trip.

Reservations and a $200 deposit are due at Bemidji State University by March 1, 1976. The entire trip costs $999 from Minneapolis per person.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR YOU CAN ASK ABOUT IRA.

What is IRA?
- IRA is an individual retirement account now allowed by the Internal Revenue Service.
- It allows you to deposit money into IRA and receive a tax deduction.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ABOUT IRA
Who Is Eligible?
Everyone who does not have a pension plan.
How Much Can I Deposit?
You can save up to $1,500 or 15% of your earned income, whichever is less, each year. You can save weekly, monthly, or yearly. There is still time to save in 1975 so you can take your tax deductions!
When Can I Take My IRA Retirement?
At age 59½ you can start receiving retirement payments. You MUST start when you reach age 70½.
Are My IRA Retirement Payments Taxable?
Yes, your IRA retirement payment is included in your ordinary income and taxed at the time you receive it. At that time, you will probably be in a lower tax bracket and thus achieve greater savings.
How About the Annual Interest?
The annual interest is not taxed until withdrawn.
What If I Need The Money?
You can withdraw if necessary, but then your account will be taxed as ordinary income. Also, the total amount is subject to a 10% penalty tax.
Can I Borrow Against My IRA?
No. This action is treated the same as an early withdrawal and your money is subject to the same taxation.
What Do I Do To Start My IRA?
We have people ready to serve you right now. They can answer any questions, and help you set up your retirement program.

A good neighbor you can bank on.

More Direct Grain Exports Called For

More direct exports of grain by GTA and other regional grain marketing cooperatives was called for by Upper Midwest farmers attending the annual meeting of the Farmers Union grain terminal association recently in St. Paul.

To do more direct exporting, closer cooperation will be needed by the nation's regional grain marketing cooperatives. GTA delegates voted to support such cooperation by their organization.

In a resolution of support for building a national export cooperative, delegates called for a study on the probable costs, risks and benefits of a national export company, as well as the probable cost of not having such a company.

Effective co-op exporting would require co-op members to commit part of their grain in advance of sale. One such method would be pooling of grain which is being introduced in the southwest hard winter wheat area. Delegates instructed GTA staff to explore practical methods of getting commitment by cooperative members in this area.

George Voth, executive vice president of FAR-MAR-CO, Inc., Hutchinson, Kan., spoke to the delegates on PROMARK; the southwest wheat pool plan. It incorporates the techniques of marketing agreements, pooling and direct cooperative exporting of wheat into a total program to improve returns to producers over the long run.

Senator Hubert Humphrey was the featured speaker at the annual meeting banquet attended by 5,500 persons. Humphrey spoke on the need for a balanced national food and agricultural policy to satisfy the needs of our population, and to help satisfy some of the requirements of a world that continues to face and will for the foreseeable future a very tight food situation. "To put it simply," Humphrey said, "A world food crisis."

Emphasizing the need for such a policy, Humphrey cited a recent survey by Georgetown University which showed that in the last 50 years American farmers have produced below the cost of production in 39 of those years.

More than 2,400 delegates and patrons from 19 states attended the two-day meeting. They represented more than 600 local cooperative elevators, and 119 lumber yards operated by GTA. The Upper Midwest cooperative markets grain directly for its members or through one of several grain and oilseed processing plants and 11 feed manufacturing plants.

Last year GTA had total sales of nearly $1.3 billion from its marketing and processing activities, and its net earnings were $29.2 million.

Cash payments to current patrons, estates of former patrons, and other capital retirements brought total cash paid out to $7.1 million.

GTA President B.J. Malusky, who reported on operations of the past year, said the net margin on each dollar of revenue was two and a third cents, compared with three and two-thirds cents last year and one cent the year before that.

Reporting on several improvements being made to GTA's plants, Malusky said as of last May 31 $34 million in new construction or upgrading was under way.

He warned GTA patrons that co-ops are facing strong attacks against the Capper-Volstead Act.

"That act guaranteed that farmers could cooperate without penalty of violating anti-trust laws as long as they were not unduly enhancing prices," Malusky said. "Not only opponents of co-ops are attacking the act, but also major branches of the federal government."

The Upper Midwest grain marketing and processing cooperative is owned by 150,000 farm families in the Upper Midwest. At their annual local cooperative meetings they elect the delegates who attend the meeting to vote on resolutions and elect directors.

GTA's directors are farmers named by delegates to represent members in the various states served by GTA. Five of the 13 directors were re-elected at the meeting.

Thirty-seven per cent of the grain shipped through GTA originates in North Dakota, 36 per cent in Minnesota, 14 per cent in Montana, 11 per cent in South Dakota, and the remainder from other states. Its Great Plains Supply co. lumber yards are in seven states and GTA feed plants are located in six Midwest and western states.

Snow Dumped On Roads May Cause Mishaps

Shoveling snow from your driveway or sidewalk onto a public road can get you into trouble.

The Minnesota highway department, citing Minnesota Statute 160.27, subdivision 5, Minnesota Laws of 1959, advises that shoveling snow from driveways and sidewalks onto public roads—including streets—may be punishable as a misdemeanor.

Snow dumped onto a roadway creates a real hazard for the motorist, whose evasive action or momentary loss of control can result in a multi-car accident with serious consequences to all concerned. Because the practice is illegal to begin with, the perpetrator—as the prime cause of any accident—may also find himself faced with civil liability lawsuits.

In some parts of the state, snow pushed onto a highway gives rise to the formation of snowdrifts, whose potential for causing accidents may be even greater, Even heavy snowplows are said to have been damaged when hitting compacted and frozen snow so deposited on the highways.

In apprising Minnesotans of the possible consequences of this practice, the Minnesota highway department urges them, as good neighbors and motorists themselves, not to add to the hazards of wintertime driving in this way.

Approve Otter Tail Power Co. Construction

Directors of Otter Tail power company have approved a 1976 construction budget of $18,405,170 according to Albert V. Hartl, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company.

"While our 1976 expenditures are below those of the past few years," Hartl explained, "they represent only a short pause in the general trend toward greatly increased expenditures for the construction of new generation, transmission and distribution facilities."

The company's five-year budget for the years 1976 through 1980 totals $207,035,670. Hartl pointed out that this is $67 million more than in any previous five-year period and far more than the company's total assets in 1975 of $188 million.

In the 1976 budget Coyote I generating unit is scheduled to require $3.2 million. Coyote I, a plant similar to the Big Stone plant in South Dakota, will be built near Beulah, N.D. A 25-megawatt gas turbine peaking plant being built near Jamestown will require $2.4 million in 1976. The Big Stone plant, nearing the end of its construction expenditures, will require only $.3 million in 1976 after dominating the budgets for the past several years.

Another $5.4 million is scheduled to be spent in 1976 for transmission facilities to bring power from the generating stations to consumers and such items as moving lines for road construction and repairing storm damage. Another $4.2 million is earmarked for construction of distribution facilities, installing transformers and the like. Carrying charges, transportation, tools, furniture and other capital items complete the 1976 construction budget.

The five-year budget is dominated by the needs of Coyote I. The plant is scheduled for completion in 1981 and is expected to account for $123.5 million of the $207 million total to be spent in the next five years. Transmission and distribution requirements over the five-year period are $26.5 million and $22 million respectively.

Carrying charges, tools, transportation, office equipment and general plant capital improvements projected for the five-year period round out the $207 million total.

"The accelerating magnitude of Otter Tail's financial needs is the greatest single challenge facing our company," Hartl said.

"While the needs of our customers dictate that we be ready to serve them, we also must satisfy the requirements of the nation's money managers. This requirement is that we continue to be a sound investment through adequate earnings," he concluded.

Need Places On Farms For Student Guests

Farm families are needed to hire and host foreign exchange students under the Minnesota international work-study program for eight months during 1976.

About 60 students from northern European countries, Africa, Australia and New Zealand will be arriving in Minnesota in late March to begin eight months of practical farm work experience followed by an academic quarter at the University of Minnesota.

They will be here under the sponsorship of the office of special programs, University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

Already qualified for farm work, the 21 to 30-year old students have finished high school education. Some have college or technical training. Most of them plan to farm or go into agribusiness eventually in their home countries.

All of them can communicate in English in varying degrees and are eager to improve their communications abilities.

Rural Minnesota families are needed to host the students and hire them for farm work betweeen April 1 and Dec. 1, 1976. The families must need help and be willing to pay $275 to $300 per month plus room and board.

Host farmers must want the student to feel he is a member of the family and be willing to contribute to the student's agricultural and cultural education.

Families wishing to host a student should apply by January 15 to Fred Hoefer, Office of special programs, 405 Coffey hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, 55108.

The Work-study program is designed to give young adults agricultural experience in the U.S., expose them to our agricultural methods and techniques, give them American university experience and help them learn about American rural people and their way of life.

About 900 students have come to Minnesota under the program since it began in 1949.

Small Business Is Saluted In Bicentennial

What started out as a tribute to Minnesota's small businesses and the contribution they make to the State economy has mushroomed into a nationwide Bicentennial program endorsed by the U.S. Small Business administration.

Called "Bicentennial Salute to Small Business," the program was created by the SBA's Minneapolis district advisory council headed by Eugene F. Trumble, president of a Minneapolis public relations firm. Trumble has been working with Paul Jansen and Robert Alm of the Small Business administration staff since early 1975 in developing the program.

The program is a series of one-minute spot radio announcements dramatizing the achievements of individual small business people. "The program is intended to point up the contributions business makes to the American system, and to cast that message in human terms," explained Trumble. "We believe the small business people featured in the program typify one of our nation's important strengths in the will to achieve, the capacity for hard work and the creative genius of the American people."

Banks, Chambers of commerce, and other business and civic organizations throughout the state have been invited to submit names of outstanding small businessmen and women for featuring in the radio spots. According to Alm, 180 nominations were received during the first three months. He also said that 45 radio stations, representing more than half the total number of broadcasters in Minnesota, are carrying the spots on public service time.

When the Minneapolis district office submitted its budget to cover recording fees and tape production, the Washington office recognized national potential for the program. Not only did the Minnesota committee receive its budget request, but the program was adopted for national Bicentennial emphasis by the Small Business administration. At the same time, the Minnesota department of economic development threw its support behind the program as a co-sponsor.

Plans are now afoot to tie the program into the Small Business administration's long-standing "Small Business person of the Year" selection. The Minnesota committee, setting sites high, is hopeful of getting a top national administration official as featured speaker at an awards luncheon next spring. At that event recognition will be given to each of the nominees and participating radio stations. Trumble says the committee is willing to share the spotlight with "big business" by inviting major companies to serve in a sponsorship role to help pick up the tab for the attendance, which is expected to run as high as 1,000 men and women.

Urge Parents To "Police" Child's Toys

Unsafe toy complaints to the Minnesota office of consumer services office are nonexistent so far this year, although some inquiries have been made, announced director Sherry Chenoweth.

"This is not to say, however, that the toy market is now free of items which could harm children, so the same caveats of years past for buying toys still hold," Mrs. Chenoweth said.

With over 5,000 new toys entering the market each year, it is impossible for the consumer services office, or even the U.S. product safety commission, to police each and every toy for safety.

"Parents can do the policing and I hope they do," Mrs. Chenoweth said.

Here are some things to watch for:

—Check over toys you might purchase to determine whether they have sharp or rough edges; potential for pinching injuries or puncture wounds; glass, toxic paint, glue or stuffing; pins or needles; or plastic eyes or other parts easily dislodged which a child might swallow.

—Look over electrical toys carefully to determine that they are safe and ask the salesperson if the toy complies with the 1973 regulation for electrically-operated toys. This regulation specifies maximum temperatures for these toys and requires reliable electrical construction. Electrical toys must now bear warning labels that state they are not recommended for children under a certain age. In the case of toys that contain heating elements, the manufacturer may not indicate that the toy is recommended for children under eight years of age.

—Avoid toys which produce extremely loud noises, such as some toy guns, which can damage hearing. Also avoid propelled objects which might damage eyes.

Consumers interested in information on purchasing toys may call the U.S. consumer product safety commission hotline "Toy Safety Kit" toll-free 800-638-2666.

Study Thought Patterns Of Many Children

Do European children think differently than American children?

University of Minnesota art education professor Thomas Slettenhaugh is working on a project which may provide an answer to this question. The study is called "psychoaesthetics," which means "the use of the mind in creative activity."

In the backyard studio of his Prospect Park home in Minneapolis, Slettehaugh has created ceramic forms which will be used in experiments here and at Cambridge university in England.

Selected children, ages 5 to 15, from both urban and rural areas in both countries will be asked to participate in the experiment. They will be blindfolded, feel the form with their hands and then draw what they feel. Color will also be involved as the children select from five different colors of paper and nine different colors of crayons.

"The experiment will reveal their thinking processes," Slettehaugh said. "It will show the extent of their imaginations.

"The practical significance can be seen as a teaching method in the various areas of study that use problem solving as a stimulus for creative thoughts."

Slettehaugh and his counterpart at Cambridge expect to release their results sometime next year.

State's Milk Production At November Low

Although Minnesota dairy farmers increased their November inventory of milk cows for the first time in that month since 1961, November milk production estimated at 53.57-million gallons was the lowest for that month in 18 years, reports the Minnesota department of agriculture.

November milk production was a modest 1.03-million gallons increase over the previous month, but was 3.18-million gallons or six per cent lower than for November, 1974.

The 890,000 milk cows on Minnesota's production line in November was the largest number since May, 1974, and reflected an increase by 12,000 milk cows from the all-time low of 878,000 last April, May and June.

Minnesota's milk production for the first 11 months of 1975 totals 706.88-million gallons. That is down 35.42 gallons or five per cent below the same period last year.

Average milk production per cow in November was only 60.19 gallons, the lowest for the month since 1969, although it was an increase over the two preceding months. Nationally, average milk production per cow in November was 68.36 gallons or nearly 14 per cent higher than the Minnesota average.

Minnesota's November milk production represented seven per cent of the national total of 759.42-million gallons. United States milk production for the month was two per cent higher than for November, 1974.

GTA's directors are farmers named by delegates to represent members in the various states served by GTA. Five of the 13 directors were re-elected at the meeting.

Thirty-seven per cent of the grain shipped through GTA originates in North Dakota, 36 per cent in Minnesota, 14 per cent in Montana, 11 per cent in South Dakota, and the remainder from other states. Its Great Plains Supply co. lumber yards are in seven states and GTA feed plants are located in six Midwest and western states.

Approve Otter Tail Power Co. Construction

Directors of Otter Tail power company have approved a 1976 construction budget of $18,405,170 according to Albert V. Hartl, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company.

"While our 1976 expenditures are below those of the past few years," Hartl explained, "they represent only a short pause in the general trend toward greatly increased expenditures for the construction of new generation, transmission and distribution facilities."

The company's five-year budget for the years 1976 through 1980 totals $207,035,670. Hartl pointed out that this is $67 million more than in any previous five-year period and far more than the company's total assets in 1975 of $188 million.

In the 1976 budget Coyote I generating unit is scheduled to require $3.2 million. Coyote I, a plant similar to the Big Stone plant in South Dakota, will be built near Beulah, N.D. A 25-megawatt gas turbine peaking plant being built near Jamestown will require $2.4 million in 1976. The Big Stone plant, nearing the end of its construction expenditures, will require only $.3 million in 1976 after dominating the budgets for the past several years.

Another $5.4 million is scheduled to be spent in 1976 for transmission facilities to bring power from the generating stations to consumers and such items as moving lines for road construction and repairing storm damage. Another $4.2 million is earmarked for construction of distribution facilities, installing transformers and the like. Carrying charges, transportation, tools, furniture and other capital items complete the 1976 construction budget.

The five-year budget is dominated by the needs of Coyote I. The plant is scheduled for completion in 1981 and is expected to account for $123.5 million of the $207 million total to be spent in the next five years. Transmission and distribution requirements over the five-year period are $26.5 million and $22 million respectively.

Carrying charges, tools, transportation, office equipment and general plant capital improvements projected for the five-year period round out the $207 million total.

"The accelerating magnitude of Otter Tail's financial needs is the greatest single challenge facing our company," Hartl said.

"While the needs of our customers dictate that we be ready to serve them, we also must satisfy the requirements of the nation's money managers. This requirement is that we continue to be a sound investment through adequate earnings," he concluded.

Need Places On Farms For Student Guests

Farm families are needed to hire and host foreign exchange students under the Minnesota international work-study program for eight months during 1976.

About 60 students from northern European countries, Africa, Australia and New Zealand will be arriving in Minnesota in late March to begin eight months of practical farm work experience followed by an academic quarter at the University of Minnesota.

They will be here under the sponsorhsip of the office of special programs, University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

Already qualified for farm work, the 21 to 30-year old students have finished high school education. Some have college or technical training. Most of them plan to farm or go into agribusiness eventually in their home countries.

All of them can communicate in English in varying degrees and are eager to improve their communications abilities.

Rural Minnesota families are needed to host the students and hire them for farm work betweeen April 1 and Dec. 1, 1976. The families must need help and be willing to pay $275 to $300 per month plus room and board.

Host farmers must want the student to feel he is a member of the family and be willing to contribute to the student's agricultural and cultural education.

Families wishing to host a student should apply by January 15 to Fred Hoefer, Office of special programs, 405 Coffey hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, 55108.

The Work-study program is designed to give young adults agricultural experience in the U.S., expose them to our agricultural methods and techniques, give them American university experience and help them learn about American rural people and their way of life.

About 900 students have come to Minnesota under the program since it began in 1949.

Small Business Is Saluted In Bicentennial

What started out as a tribute to Minnesota's small businesses and the contribution they make to the State economy has mushroomed into a nationwide Bicentennial program endorsed by the U.S. Small Business administration.

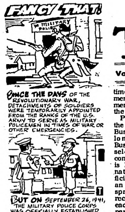
Called "Bicentennial Salute to Small Business," the program was created by the SBA's Minneapolis district advisory council headed by Eugene F. Trumble, president of a Minneapolis public relations firm. Trumble has been working with Paul Jansen and Robert Alm of the Small Business administration staff since early 1975 in developing the program.

The program is a series of one-minute spot radio announcements dramatizing the achievements of individual small business people. "The program is intended to point up the contributions business makes to the American system, and to cast that message in human terms," explained Trumble. "We believe the small business people featured in the program typify one of our nation's important strengths in the will to achieve, the capacity for hard work and the creative genius of the American people."

Banks, Chambers of commerce, and other business and civic organizations throughout the state have been invited to submit names of outstanding small businessmen and women for featuring in the radio spots. According to Alm, 180 nominations were received during the first three months. He also said that 45 radio stations, representing more than half the total number of broadcasters in Minnesota, are carrying the spots on public service time.

When the Minneapolis district office submitted its budget to cover recording fees and tape production, the Washington office recognized national potential for the program. Not only did the Minnesota committee receive its budget request, but the program was adopted for national Bicentennial emphasis by the Small Business administration. At the same time, the Minnesota department of economic development threw its support behind the program as a co-sponsor.

Plans are now affoot to tie the program into the Small Business administration's long-standing "Small Business person of the Year" selection. The Minnesota committee, setting sites high, is hopeful of getting a top national administration official as featured speaker at an awards luncheon next spring. At that event recognition will be given to each of the nominees and participating radio stations. Trumble says the committee is willing to share the spotlight with "big business" by inviting major companies to serve in a sponsorship role to help pick up the tab for the attendance, which is expected to run as high as 1,000 men and women.



SINCE THE DAYS OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR, DETACHMENTS OF SOLDIERS WERE TEMPORARILY APPOINTED FROM THE RANKS OF THE U.S. ARMY TO SERVE AS MILITARY POLICEMEN IN TIMES OF WAR OR OTHER EMERGENCIES.

BUT ON SEPTEMBER 26, 1941, THE MILITARY POLICE CORPS WAS OFFICIALLY ESTABLISHED TO PREVENT CRIME, PROTECT PROPERTY AND GENERALLY MAINTAIN HIGH STANDARDS OF ORDER FOR MEMBERS OF THE ARMY AND THEIR FAMILIES.

Urge Parents To "Police" Child's Toys

Unsafe toy complaints to the Minnesota office of consumer services office are nonexistent so far this year, although some inqurries have been made, announced director Sherry Chenoweth.

"This is not to say, however, that the toy market is now free of items which could harm children, so the same caveats of years past for buying toys still hold," Mrs. Chenoweth said.

With over 5,000 new toys entering the market each year, it is impossible for the consumer services office, or even the U.S. product safety commission, to police each and every toy for safety.

"Parents can do the policing and I hope they do," Mrs. Chenoweth said.

Here are some things to watch for:

—Check over toys you might purchase to determine whether they have sharp or rough edges; potential for pinching injuries or puncture wounds; glass, toxic paint, glue or stuffing; pins or needles; or plastic eyes or other parts easily dislodged which a child might swallow.

—Look over electrical toys carefully to determine that they are safe and ask the salesperson if the toy complies with the 1973 regulation for electrically-operated toys. This regulation specifies maximum temperatures for these toys and requires reliable electrical construction. Electrical toys must now bear warning labels that state they are not recommended for children under a certain age. In the case of toys that contain heating elements, the manufacturer may not indicate that the toy is recommended for children under eight years of age.

—Avoid toys which produce extremely loud noises, such as some toy guns, which can damage hearing. Also avoid propelled objects which might damage eyes.

Consumers interested in information on purchasing toys may call the U.S. consumer product safety commission hotline "Toy Safety Kit" toll-free 800-638-2666.

Study Thought Patterns Of Many Children

Do European children think differently than American children?

University of Minnesota art education professor Thomas Slettenhaugh is working on a project which may provide an answer to this question. The study is called "psychoaesthetics," which means "the use of the mind in creative activity."

In the backyard studio of his Prospect Park home in Minneapolis, Slettehaugh has created ceramic forms which will be used in experiments here and at Cambridge university in England.

Selected children, ages 5 to 15, from both urban and rural areas in both countries will be asked to participate in the experiment. They will be blindfolded, feel the form with their hands and then draw what they feel. Color will also be involved as the children select from five different colors of paper and nine different colors of crayons.

"The experiment will reveal their thinking processes," Slettehaugh said. "It will show the extent of their imaginations.

"The practical significance can be seen as a teaching method in the various areas of study that use problem solving as a stimulus for creative thoughts."

Slettehaugh and his counterpart at Cambridge expect to release their results sometime next year.

State's Milk Production At November Low

Although Minnesota dairy farmers increased their November inventory of milk cows for the first time in that month since 1961, November milk production estimated at 53.57-million gallons was the lowest for that month in 18 years, reports the Minnesota department of agriculture.

November milk production was a modest 1.03-million gallons increase over the previous month, but was 3.18-million gallons or six per cent lower than for November, 1974.

The 890,000 milk cows on Minnesota's production line in November was the largest number since May, 1974, and reflected an increase by 12,000 milk cows from the all-time low of 878,000 last April, May and June.

Minnesota's milk production for the first 11 months of 1975 totals 706.88-million gallons. That is down 35.42 gallons or five per cent below the same period last year.

Average milk production per cow in November was only 60.19 gallons, the lowest for the month since 1969, although it was an increase over the two preceding months. Nationally, average milk production per cow in November was 68.36 gallons or nearly 14 per cent higher than the Minnesota average.

Minnesota's November milk production represented seven per cent of the national total of 759.42-million gallons. United States milk production for the month was two per cent higher than for November, 1974.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

This was supposed to be a year of disaster for the business community versus Washington. Has it been? For the answer to that, let's go back and "review the bidding."

Among the National Chamber's major concerns, when the 94th Congress convened last January, were these issues: Adoption of a comprehensive national evergy policy; implementation of congressional budget control procedures; amendments to the occupational safety and health act; tax "reform" proposals that would worsen our capital formation problem; clean air act amendments that would prohibit economic development in most of the country; federal land use controls that would usurp local authority; lobbying controls that could infringe the right to petition; proposals to create a new consumer "protection" bureaucracy to watch the old consumer protection bureaucracies, and moves to increase the powers of organized labor.

These issues are important to business, but their importance was magnified by the complexion of the 94th Congress.

The last national election resulted in a lopsided Democratic majority. In the House, the lineup was 291 Democrats and 144 Republicans, a Democratic gain of 43 seats. In the Senate, there were 62 Democrats and 37 Republicans, a Democratic gain of four. Another result was a clear gain in the liberal bloc. Add to all this a reported gain of 60 pro-labor votes in the House, and five in the Senate.

We expected a more active Congress. Many freshmen felt they had a mandate to remake the country overnight—and the Congress before lunch. It was in that spirit that they mounted their chargers, swords in hand, and headed for Washington.

Well, let's see what has actually happened this year.

We expected a more active Congress. And were right. The Democratic study group reported that the House has worked more time on legislation in committee and on the floor, and taken more record votes, than any Congress in the past 25 years. The Senate has been similarly active.

Our own record of testimony is further evidence. The National Chamber normally makes statements to congressional committees 45 to 50 times during a full year. By the end of this year, we will have made over 90 such presentations.

We expected Congress to be more pro-labor. And we were right. The unions have lost no major battles. The political action arm of the AFL-CIO, COPE, has evaluated the votes of 59 representatives it supported—people who won marginally. Through May, on about 15 critical matters, those 59 had a pro-union batting average of .920.

We expected Congress to be more liberal. And we were right. Of 22 House votes we have recorded so far, we won only five—and four of these were sustained vetoes where a majority was not needed, just one-third plus one. We had only one floor victory by majority vote.

Of 20 Senate floor votes we have recorded, we are on the winning side on only four, and only two of those required a majority vote.

But in spite of all this, Congress has produced little in the way of major legislation affecting business. The tax rebate and reduction act was a significant measure, but beyond that, not much that is important to business has been enacted.

So, from the business viewpoint, Congress' bark has been worse than its bite. There are several reasons for this situation.

First, there is an absence of real leadership in Congress.

The second reason is the President's use of his veto power.

As of this writing, there have been 12 vetoes, with a few more in prospect. Three have been overridden, five have been sustained, and no overrides have been attempted on the other four.

The third reason we're not hurting yet is simply that many of our problems are still in the congressional pipeline. The potential for harm is still very great.

Inflation is moderating—a little. Unemployment is coming down—slowly. The economy is recovering—gradually.

If we are very careful not to rock the boat, all of these healthy trends will continue, and what we have just been through will seem a remote nightmare in a few years.

But election-year politics can be very damaging to the economy. It is always tempting for politicians to increase government spending and inflate the economy just before an election, letting the bills come due after they are safely re-elected. They will continue to do so until the voters make it plain that the old shell game is not fooling anybody anymore.

Mrs. Daryl Lewis

Recent visitors at the Frank Armstrong home were Richard (Red) Olson and son, Randy, of Fairbanks, Alaska. Richard is the son of the Gordon Olsons, who live Northwest of Viking. The visitors have the honor of having hauled the first barrel of oil out of the new oil field at Proudoe Bay, Alaska, over 1,100 miles to Valdez, Alaka. Unique part of the trip was that it was made by sled pulled by a 21-dog team in temperatures 35 below! They had to more or less depend on the lead dog to pick the trail, averaging 20 miles a day, but covering 50 miles one day when they came upon a packed track. Richard and Randy also had to camp on the trail at nights, finding whatever wind shelter they could behind banks of snow and ice. (reporter's comment—Brrrrr!)

Mrs. Roger Solem and Cynthia were Tuesday evening coffee guests of Mrs. Ardell Wells in Thief River Falls. They also attended the Christmas program at Franklin Middle school, in which Roger Alan Solem was an usher.

Mrs. Ervin Olson and Tricia visited Thursday afternoon at the Gordon Olson home, with early birthday greetings for Jane. Mr. and Mrs. Olson, Tron, Brent and Tricia spent the weekend at the Cliff VeVea home in Bemidji.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe and Jim of Steiner were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Martin Solseng home.

Norman and Kenneth Olson, and Gordon Olson were Sunday forenoon coffee guests at the Glen Olson home.

Mrs. Roy Blomker and Nathan were brief visitors of Mrs. Gene Hanson in Thief River Falls last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd VeVea of Thief River Falls were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Frank Armstrong home.

Mrs. Roger Solem and Roger Alan, and Mrs. Daryl Lewis were late Wednesday afternoon coffee guests of Mrs. Gerald Johnson of rural Rosewood.

Alfred Knutson of Sanders and Dick Hoglo of Thief River Falls were Thursday evening coffee guests at the Marion Hoglo home. Friday Alfred was also a luncheon guest.

Shaun Carlson was a Saturday overnight guest at the Dick Hoglo home in Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Legg and Kay Marie of St. Hilaire were Tuesday visitors at the Ervin Olson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng, Sherry and Shelly were among the pot luck supper guests at the home of Mrs. Tillie Conklin in Thief River Falls.

Good Cheer club Christmas party was held last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ernest Melvie near Viking. Program consisted of singing Christmas carols and readings, after which there was a gift exchange. Present were Mrs. Helen Puppe, Mrs. Edith Dyrdal, Mrs. Lila Martinson, Mrs. Lydia Olson, Mrs. Duane Olson and Steve, Mrs. Don Dyrdal, Mrs. Ervin Olson and Tricia, Mrs. Lilas Klefstad, Mrs. Harold Langaas, Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Mrs. Gordon Olson, Mrs. Roy Blomker and Nathan, Mrs. Sigrid Gribstein, Mrs. Mable Rude, Mrs. Roger Solem, Mrs. Glen Olson, Mrs. Daryl Lewis, and Mrs. Erwin Melvie and Joel. This will be the last club meeting until next spring.

Oak Ridge ALCW met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Nelson. Mrs. Ernest Helgenset was the assisting hostess. Mrs. Daryl Lewis gave devotions and Mrs. Don Dyrdal was Scope lesson leader. Others present besides the above mentioned were Pastor Hofrenning, Mrs. Winton Knutson, Mrs. Duane Vatsaas, Mrs. Martin Solseng, Mrs. Norval Johnson, Mrs. Ray Olson, Mrs. Duane Olson, Mrs. Jens Bach, and Mrs. Olaf Pederson. Next meeting is scheduled for January 8 at the home of Mrs. Don Dyrdal.

Oak Ridge congregation held their annual meeting Friday evening at the church. Election of officers was as follows: Chairman, Irwin Aaseby; secretary, Martin Solseng; treasurer, Leonard Waswick; trustee, Duane Olson; pianist, Mrs. Martin Solseng with Mrs. Leonard Waswick as substitute; Sunday School sup't., Jean Vatsaas, sexton for Oak Ridge, Frank Hible, for Lanstad, Duane Olson; building committee, Eldon Moe, Daryl Lewis, Ray Olson and Duane Vatsaas families; music and worship committee, Eldon Moe, Don Dyrdal and Mrs. Jens Bach; and board of education, David Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Waswick, Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Don Dyrdal. Pot luck lunch was served following the meeting.

This was supposed to be a year of disaster for the business community versus Washington. Has it been? For the answer to that, let's go back and "review the bidding."

Among the National Chamber's major concerns, when the 94th Congress convened last January, were these issues: Adoption of a comprehensive national evergy policy; implementation of congressional budget control procedures; amendments to the occupational safety and health act; tax "reform" proposals that would worsen our capital formation problem; clean air act amendments that would prohibit economic development in most of the country; federal land use controls that would usurp local authority; lobbying controls that could infringe the right to petition; proposals to create a new consumer "protection" bureaucracy to watch the old consumer protection bureaucracies, and moves to increase the powers of organized labor.

These issues are important to business, but their importance was magnified by the complexion of the 94th Congress.

The last national election resulted in a lopsided Democratic majority. In the House, the lineup was 291 Democrats and 144 Republicans, a Democratic gain of 43 seats. In the Senate, there were 62 Democrats and 37 Republicans, a Democratic gain of four. Another result was a clear gain in the liberal bloc. Add to all this a reported gain of 60 pro-labor votes in the House, and five in the Senate.

We expected a more active Congress. Many freshmen felt they had a mandate to remake the country overnight—and the Congress before lunch. It was in that spirit that they mounted their chargers, swords in hand, and headed for Washington.

Well, let's see what has actually happened this year.

We expected a more active Congress. And were right. The Democratic study group reported that the House has worked more time on legislation in committee and on the floor, and taken more record votes, than any Congress in the past 25 years. The Senate has been similarly active.

Our own record of testimony is further evidence. The National Chamber normally makes statements to congressional committees 45 to 50 times during a full year. By the end of this year, we will have made over 90 such presentations.

We expected Congress to be more pro-labor. And we were right. The unions have lost no major battles. The political action arm of the AFL-CIO, COPE, has evaluated the votes of 59 representatives it supported—people who won marginally. Through May, on about 15 critical matters, those 59 had a pro-union batting average of .920.

We expected Congress to be more liberal. And we were right. Of 22 House votes we have recorded so far, we won only five—and four of these were sustained vetoes where a majority was not needed, just one-third plus one. We had only one floor victory by majority vote.

Of 20 Senate floor votes we have recorded, we are on the winning side on only four, and only two of those required a majority vote.

But in spite of all this, Congress has produced little in the way of major legislation affecting business. The tax rebate and reduction act was a significant measure, but beyond that, not much that is important to business has been enacted.

So, from the business viewpoint, Congress' bark has been worse than its bite. There are several reasons for this situation.

First, there is an absence of real leadership in Congress.

The second reason is the President's use of his veto power.

As of this writing, there have been 12 vetoes, with a few more in prospect. Three have been overridden, five have been sustained, and no overrides have been attempted on the other four.

The third reason we're not hurting yet is simply that many of our problems are still in the congressional pipeline. The potential for harm is still very great.

Inflation is moderating—a little. Unemployment is coming down—slowly. The economy is recovering—gradually.

If we are very careful not to rock the boat, all of these healthy trends will continue, and what we have just been through will seem a remote nightmare in a few years.

But election-year politics can be very damaging to the economy. It is always tempting for politicians to increase government spending and inflate the economy just before an election, letting the bills come due after they are safely re-elected. They will continue to do so until the voters make it plain that the old shell game is not fooling anybody anymore.

Fecent visitors at the Frank Armstrong home were Richard (Red) Olson and son, Randy, of Fairbanks, Alaska. Richard is the son of the Gordon Olsons, who live Northwest of Viking. The visitors have the honor of having hauled the first barrel of oil out of the new oil field at Proudoe Bay, Alaska, over 1,100 miles to Valdez, Alaks. Unique part of the trip was that it was made by sled pulled by a 21-dog team in temperatures 35 below! They had to more or less depend on the lead dog to pick the trail, averaging 20 miles a day, but covering 50 miles one day when they came upon a packed track. Richard and Randy also had to camp on the trail at nights, finding whatever wind shelter they could behind banks of snow and ice. (reporter's comment—Brrrrr!)

Mrs. Roger Solem and Cynthia were Tuesday evening coffee guests of Mrs. Ardell Wells in Thief River Falls. They also attended the Christmas program at Franklin Middle school, in which Roger Alan Solem was an usher.

Mrs. Ervin Olson and Tricia visited Thursday afternoon at the Gordon Olson home, with early birthday greetings for Jane. Mr. and Mrs. Olson, Tron, Brent and Tricia spent the weekend at the Cliff VeVea home in Bemidji.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe and Jim of Steiner were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Martin Solseng home.

Norman and Kenneth Olson, and Gordon Olson were Sunday forenoon coffee guests at the Glen Olson home.

Mrs. Roy Blomker and Nathan were brief visitors of Mrs. Gene Hanson in Thief River Falls last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd VeVea of Thief River Falls were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Frank Armstrong home.

Mrs. Roger Solem and Roger Alan, and Mrs. Daryl Lewis were late Wednesday afternoon coffee guests of Mrs. Gerald Johnson of rural Rosewood.

Alfred Knutson of Sanders and Dick Hoglo of Thief River Falls were Thursday evening coffee guests at the Marion Hoglo home. Friday Alfred was also a luncheon guest.

Shaun Carlson was a Saturday overnight guest at the Dick Hoglo home in Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Legg and Kay Marie of St. Hilaire were Tuesday visitors at the Ervin Olson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng, Sherry and Shelly were among the pot luck supper guests at the home of Mrs. Tillie Conklin in Thief River Falls.

Good Cheer club Christmas party was held last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ernest Melvie near Viking. Program consisted of singing Christmas carols and readings, after which there was a gift exchange. Present were Mrs. Helen Puppe, Mrs. Edith Dyrdal, Mrs. Lila Martinson, Mrs. Lydia Olson, Mrs. Duane Olson and Steve, Mrs. Don Dyrdal, Mrs. Ervin Olson and Tricia, Mrs. Lilas Klefstad, Mrs. Harold Langaas, Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Mrs. Gordon Olson, Mrs. Roy Blomker and Nathan, Mrs. Sigrid Gribstein, Mrs. Mable Rude, Mrs. Roger Solem, Mrs. Glen Olson, Mrs. Daryl Lewis, and Mrs. Erwin Melvie and Joel. This will be the last club meeting until next spring.

Oak Ridge ALCW met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Nelson. Mrs. Ernest Helgenset was the assisting hostess. Mrs. Daryl Lewis gave devotions and Mrs. Don Dyrdal was Scope lesson leader. Others present besides the above mentioned were Pastor Hofrenning, Mrs. Winton Knutson, Mrs. Duane Vatsaas, Mrs. Martin Solseng, Mrs. Norval Johnson, Mrs. Ray Olson, Mrs. Duane Olson, Mrs. Jens Bach, and Mrs. Olaf Pederson. Next meeting is scheduled for January 8 at the home of Mrs. Don Dyrdal.

Oak Ridge congregation held their annual meeting Friday evening at the church. Election of officers was as follows: Chairman, Irwin Aaseby; secretary, Martin Solseng; treasurer, Leonard Waswick; trustee, Duane Olson; pianist, Mrs. Martin Solseng with Mrs. Leonard Waswick as substitute; Sunday School sup't., Jean Vatsaas, sexton for Oak Ridge, Frank Hible, for Lanstad, Duane Olson; building committee, Eldon Moe, Daryl Lewis, Ray Olson and Duane Vatsaas families; music and worship committee, Eldon Moe, Don Dyrdal and Mrs. Jens Bach; and board of education, David Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Waswick, Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Don Dyrdal. Pot luck lunch was served following the meeting.

FIRST FLOOR won first place in the Northwestern hospital services Christmas decorating contest. Among first floor items was this nurses' station. The stockings hung in the foreground contained the names of local doctors. The frosted windows and a log cabin on the wall in the background added dimension to the display. Second place in the contest was awarded to the surgery department and third place to the student nurses' display in the cafeteria. Honorable mention went to pediatrics and the day-night unit.

First Hung Jury In Memory Here

Following the first hung jury in this area of the state in the memory of local legal authorities, a new trial has been ordered for Larry Henze of Red Lake Falls on a charge of theft by false pretenses.

Judge Warren Saetre, who presided at the case tried in Pennington county district court, said it was the first time in his memory in 25 years of legal practice and bench service that there has been a hung jury in the Ninth Judicial district. The jury was reportedly deadlocked 6-6 after nine hours of deliberation and declared itself unable to reach a decision.

The case had been tried for two days and went to the jury about 4 p.m. Thursday. Judge Saetre dismissed the jury at 1:30 a.m. Friday when it became apparent that there would be no movement toward reaching a decision.

It was alleged by the prosecution that Henze had filed a false claim of theft of a 1966 model truck-tractor and collected a $7,000 insurance payment. The truck had been left at 59 and 1 Trailer service in April for repair and disappeared from there.

In October a lady in Larimore, N.D., called her county sheriff's office to report that a truck-tractor left at her husband's repair shop in April had not been reclaimed. Henze's name was painted on the truck and the local sheriff's office was contacted. In court testimony, the lady from Larimore identified Henze as one of two men who left the truck at her husband's shop in April.

Judge Saetre said that a new trial would not take place until at least some time in January. A new panel of jurors would have to be drawn if the case is to be tried before the spring court term, he said. It is also possible the case could be carried over to the spring term, at which time a new list of jurors will be drawn as a matter of course.

Lloyd Howick of Thief River Falls was foreman on the jury which included Evelyn Berg, Wayne Bjerken, Albert Cork, Maryanne Law, Anne Hamre, Barry Frolland, Carmen Larson, Gary LaValley, Kermit Kemnitz and Florence Lykken of Thief River Falls and Lester H. Vad of Oklee.

Fire Destroys Interior Of Bakken Home

Fire which started in the basement caused extensive damage to the interior of a house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bakken and their two children on Thursday at 6:40 p.m.

The house, owned by Iver Aaseby, is located at 511 Atlantic av. N. Firemen responded to the call and had a difficult time in extinguishing the blaze which spread rapidly to the first floor of the house, according to Duane Noel, fire chief.

Noel said Bakken told him that a fuse had blown when he plugged in a fan and that when he went to the basement he found it completely in flames. A gas-fired portable heater was being used in the basement to thaw frozen pipes and it is believed the heater may have caused the fire.

Firemen also responded to an earlier call on Thursday evening when gas poured from a ruptured gas tank as two cars involved in an accident were being separated on highway 32 near the Dairy Queen. No fire resulted but the department was called as a precautionary measure.

Another call was responded to at 5:45 a.m. Friday when a heat tape caught fire at the mobile home owned by Ray Gutterud north of Thief River Falls.

Deserted Cars To Be Removed

Due to a large number of unused and apparently abandoned cars on city streets, Thief River Falls police chief Kenneth Froschheiser announced that beginning Friday, these cars will be towed away. Efforts will be made to contact the owners of the cars before removal, the chief said. Removal will be done to facilitate snow clearing.

MR Man Hurt

Lee Carrier, 25, of Middle River was listed in stable condition Monday at Northwestern hospital following a snowmobile accident Saturday in which he struck a hanging steel cable and received heavy lacerations to the right side of his mouth.

For Student Dormitory . . .

Consider Oakland Park Remodeling

Seeking relief from a serious lack of student housing in Thief River Falls, Dr. Alex Easton, president of Northland community college, and Richard Berry, associate director of the area vocational-technical school, asked for and received approval from the Pennington county board of commissioners to explore the feasibility of converting the old Oakland Park nursing home into a low-rent student dormitory. Approval was given to the two men at a board meeting Thursday in the county courthouse.

Although no definite proposal has been offered as yet, Easton and Berry explained that they are pursuing the possibility of offering students classroom credit to participate in the remodeling and maintenance of the structure in order to provide work experience for the students and to defray labor expenses. AVTI carpentry and architectural students would be involved in the remodeling and NCC work-study students would be responsible for certain maintenance duties, such as custodial.

Feasibility of this idea will be among the questions considered when officials from the two schools visit the home between Christmas and New Years day. Other questions include the type and extent of remodeling necessary, the number of students that may be accommodated, and rental costs.

Easton commented that renovation costs would likely be minor because "the building is pretty solid and wouldn't require much remodeling." Necessary changes may include the removal or addition of walls in certain areas, painting, and additional plumbing (particularly for showers), which would be the only service to be contracted for if student labor is used. Berry indicated that the kitchen facilities could be converted into a recreation area.

County auditor C. W. Rodekuhr said the board urged Easton and Berry to complete their study and offer a proposal to the county because of their plan for minimizing remodeling costs and because, unlike other organizations who have expressed interest in occupying the home, the school proposal would encompass the entire building, not just a portion of it.

Easton, who is sure the college lost a number of potential students this year due to a lack of rooms, said that the acquisition of more student housing is critical to the development of the college and the AVTI. Berry, noting the unwillingness of contractors to bid on student dormitories, and the refusal of the state to offer assistance, said "we are really in a bind."

Welfare Fraud Case Is Opened

Two former employees of the Pennington county welfare department have been charged with wrongfully obtaining public assistance—theft—as a result of an investigation conducted by Elton Cummings, research examiner for the county welfare department.

Mrs. Ardis Hanson, formerly food stamp officer, and Mrs. Phyllis Vettleson, quality control officer for 12 northwestern Minnesota counties, made county court appearances Thursday and Friday (respectively) on the charges. Both were scheduled to appear in district court.

At a district court hearing completed late this morning, Mrs. Hanson entered a plea of guilty to the charge and a presentence investigation was ordered. The case against Mrs. Vettleson will be continued as public defender John Roue will forward her defense to another attorney, James Buening of Mahnomen. He is not permitted to represent both defendants.

It is alleged that the two employees were involved in obtaining food stamps with a net value of $1,483 through preparation of false applications for a fictitious party. Case file shows that $293 in cash had been paid for $1,776 in food stamps during a period from July 1, 1974 through May 21, 1975, according to David Olin, Pennington county attorney.

The charge alleges that food stamp applications had been made in the name of Tillie Jorgenson, route 5, Thief River Falls, and listed several family members. Investigation has determined that such a person and family did not exist.

A review of other case files is also being made under Cummings' direction in an attempt to determine other potential cases of fraud. In addition, the county board of commissioners at its November 21 meeting has requested a complete audit of the county's food stamp program by the state department of public welfare

Day-night unit of Northwestern Hospital services was subject of an annual site visit Wednesday and Thursday by representatives of the federal department of health, education and welfare and the state department of public welfare, according to James Kremer, administrative assistant in charge of the unit.

The site visit is made in accordance with provisions under which the hospital receives a federal staffing grant to employ personnel for operation of the day-night unit. The grant, on a declining basis, has two years before expiration and has been in effect for six years.

Heading the site visit team was Doris Lomax, Chicago, Ill., mental health program consultant for Region Five of the department of health education and welfare. Others on the federal team were Howard Sipple, PhD, Evanston, Ill., mental health consultant to Region Five; and Mike Dale, Columbus, Ohio, management consultant to Region Five.

Representing the state department of public welfare were Alan Mathiason, director of community programs; Helen Reardon, RNMS, director of the mental health program division; and Terry Swanson, student intern in the department.

In addition to inspection of facilities and records within the local unit, the site visit team consulted with law enforcement agencies, clergymen, social service department directors, occupational development center staff, Northwestern Mental Health center staff and others in Pennington and surrounding counties. An oral report was given on Thursday morning and a written summary will be provided later.

Mary Parnow Observes Her 90th Birthday

Mrs. Mary Parnow was honored on her 90th birthday on Sunday, December 7, at her Sky Lite apartment in this city. All of her children were present for the occasion.

The day began with Mrs. Parnow and her family attending worship services together at St. John Lutheran church. On the altar was an Eternal Light given in her honor by her children and their families.

At noon a family dinner was served. Centering the table was a cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Henry Hovet of Goodridge. Flowers adding to the festivities were an arrangement from her family, a potted plant from the LWML of St. John Lutheran church, and a dozen roses from her son-in-law Harvey Patten. Mrs. Parnow also received a number of telephone calls from her grandchildren who were unable to be present.

Those present were her daughters: Mrs. Stanley (Ethel) Christianson of California, and Mrs. Harvey (Alice) Patten and her husband of this city; and sons: Carrol Parnow of Hanover Park, Raymond Parnow and his wife and Robert Parnow and his wife and son, Ross of Goodridge.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parnow, Timmy and Jerry of Goodridge, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Parnow of Minnetonka, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parnow of Crookston, Marie Parnow of Petaluma, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. John Kulseth of Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Parnow was the recipient of many gifts and cards.

The liquor industry plans to play a leading role in the forthcoming switchover to the metric system. As early as next March, the familiar quarts and fifths will begin giving way to liters and three quarter liters (33.8 ounces and 25 ounces, respectively). A complete changeover by the industry will be achieved by the end of 1978.

Debbie Jean Resech - Reginal Bruggeman Wed

Debbie Jean Resech and Reginal Lee Bruggeman, both of this city, exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, November 29 at 2 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church.

The bride is the daughter of Audrey Johnson and Mrs. LaVorne Johnson. Parents of the groom are LeRoy Bruggeman and Mrs. Fern Bruggeman.

Rev. Lloyd Berger officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Faye Johnson, a friend. Vocalists were Jessie Boyer, who sang "Follow Me," and Deb and Craig Folkedahl, who sang, "Do I Love You" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her step-father, Audrey Johnson, was attired in a floor-length gown of white silk and satin styled with a high neckline with lace trim. Wide cuffs with pearl buttons complemented her long, sheer sleeves. Creating back interest was a chapel-length satin train. A lace profile headpiece held her finger-tip veil, edged with lace. She carried a cascade of white daisies and red roses.

Vickey Gagner of Mentor was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Connie Resech of this city, a sister of the bride. Bridesmaid was Susan Adair of Minneapolis, a friend. They wore identical blue gowns designed with long sleeves and low V-necklines. To complete their attire, they wore blue hats with blue ribbon streamers flowing down the back. Each carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

Randy Bruggeman of this city attended his twin brother as best man. Groomsman was Greg Johnson, a friend of the couple. Serving as ushers were Rick Johnson of Thief River Falls and Howard Hawkinson of St. Hilaire, also friends of the couple. All the men of the wedding party wore blue, crushed velvet tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floor-length plaid skirt topped by a pink blouse with a high neckline. Her corsage was composed of red roses. The mother of the groom wore a white sleeveless, empire fashioned, floor-length gown, also accented by a corsage of red roses.

Special guests at the ceremony were Jeanette Resech, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson, Mr and Mrs. Peter Thompson, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. Ermenie Bruggeman, grandmother of the groom; and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bruggeman, godparents of the groom; and Beverly Yantes, Michelle and Mark of Brooklyn Park, aunt and cousins of the bride.

A reception followed with Mr. and Mrs. Gary Johnson, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Lykken, uncle and aunt of the groom, as hosts and hostesses. Debbie Bruggeman, sister of the groom, and Julie Johnson and Pat Holthusen, friends of the couple, served the punch.

The four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with red roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom, was cut and served by Vicki Omdahl and Cal Wicklander, friends of the couple. Bonnie Aaseby, a sister of the groom, poured.

Waitresses were Cindy Bruggeman, sister of the groom, and Karen Hruby and Diana Thunder, friends of the couple. At the gift table were Lynette Donarski and Heidi Breigier, friends of the bride.

The couple is at home in this city at 408 South Arnold. The bride is employed by the Kat Haus, and the groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school, is employed by LeRoy Mercel Construction. Photo, Dwight Donarski.

Catholic Women Host Yule Parties At Rest Homes

Angeline Breznay, recording secretary and publicity chairman of Our Lady of Snows court 2023, Catholic Daughters of America, reports that the court has hosted several Christmas parties for senior citizens residing in local rest homes.

The first party was held December 3 at the Kees Rest home. In charge were Ursula Dahl and Mrs. Helen Bruggeman, who visit the home regularly on the first Wednesday of each month, entertaining the residents with games. They led the carol singing with Sister Placid serving as pianist. They also brought baked Christmas goodies and fresh fruit provided by the court. Assisting them in serving the lunch and providing goodies were Frances Oski, Clara Stein, Louise Fisher and Angeline Breznay.

The second party was held December 8 at the Valley home. In charge of that event were Mrs. Ella Dougherty, Mrs. Frances Oski, Mrs. Clara Stein and Mrs. Arbelle Lindquist. They are also in charge of visiting the Home the first Monday of the month, distributing birthday cards to the residents having birthdays during the month. The party began at 2 p.m., with a luncheon, featuring Christmas cookies and fresh fruit for 130 residents. Christmas carols were sung with Sister Placid serving as accompanist. Also present was Rev. Frank Ringwelski. Bringing cookies and assisting with the serving were Mrs. Marie Sherack, Mrs. Ursula Dahl, Mrs. Helen Bruggeman, Mrs. Mary Thompson, Mrs. Margaret Kotaska, Mrs. Kathy Belmont and Mrs. Angeline Breznay. Sending cookies were Mrs. Dolores Johnson, Mrs. Theresa Vanyo and Mrs. Mary Tyler.

The third event was a party at Oakland Park Nursing home on Friday, December 12 for 55 residents. Mrs. Connie Driscoll, who calls regularly at Oakland Park, was in charge. Gifts featuring white socks for the men and boudoir caps for the women, were presented to the residents. Christmas cookies were served to those who were able to assemble in the dining room; and residents confined to their rooms received theirs on their supper tray. Cookies were brought by Connie Driscoll, Louise Fisher and Clara Stein, who also assisted with the serving. In charge of distributing the gifts to the residents confined in their rooms were Angeline Breznay and the staff nurse.

DECORATIONS completed by student nurses in the cafeteria at Northwestern hospital services rated third place in the hospital's Christmas decorating contest this year. A Bicentennial theme was used throughout the building as departments were decorated on a competitive basis. This display on the north wall of the cafeteria is brightly colored and blends a Christmas tree with the wall decorations.

Oakland Park November Events Are Reported

Sunday dinners and the monthly birthday party highlighted the activities at Oakland Park Nursing home during the month of November.

Hosting dinners on successive Sundays and their guests were George Johnson with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Johnson as guests; Jennie Olson with Hilda Borg and Martha Olson of Alvarado as her guests; George Kezar with Riley Kezar of Warroad as guest, Martin Limesand with Pearl Iverson as guest; and Blanche Bruggeman with Mr. and Mrs. Gust Bruggeman as her guests.

The monthly birthday party was hosted by members of the Hannah circle of St. John Lutheran church. The musical program was presented by the third graders with Jean Harger in charge. Serving the cup cakes and coffee to the residents were Alice Patton, Mary Parnow, Janice Semanko, Sally Knutson, Lillian Busse, Gertie Koop and Leona Forsberg. They also served cup cakes and nectar to the children who participated in the program.

Residents observing their birthdays were Nick Urdahl, Leonard Peterson, Martin Limesand, Tilda Vettleson, Esther Thompson and Elmer Olson.

Later in the week, members of the Elizabeth circle of Trinity Lutheran church called at the Home, visited with the residents and served lunch. Members of the circle assisting were Beverly Holmes, Mae Isaacson, Sharon Bergerson, Heidi and Joani Bergerson, Laura Haroldson, LaVaun Haroldson and Helen Horgen. Eileen Rhodegaard served as chairman.

Also visiting with the residents during the month were the first grade children of Knox school. They were accompanied by their teacher, Miss Cathy Nelson.

The residents at the Home were also remembered by the Pioneer girls. They are a group of school girls, grades three through six, from various denominations, that meet regularly at Evangelical Free church for Bible study, crafts and projects. They made Thanksgiving place mats for all the residents at the home.

Also providing place mats for Thanksgiving was Rev. LeRoy Hedman.

Oakland Park also reported that Mrs. Benhard Wold will be assisting Mrs. Mosbeck in presenting Bible studies on Wednesday afternoons.

To Show Final In Series For Handicapped

True acceptance of a disability is difficult to achieve. A disabled person may have to work through several stages—denial, anger, bargaining and depression—before adjusting to the situation and viewing the future with hope.

The final program in the "Ability—Not Disability" series deals with personal acceptance of a handicap and the family relationships that are challenged or strengthened by the process. The program was filmed in the homes of persons who have had to work through these problems in accepting and living with their physical limitations. It was produced by the agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota.

Among the topics in the program are family cooperation and realistic expectations, new roles for handicapped parents, care and activities for young children and delegating responsibilities so the handicapped person doesn't try to do too much.

The segment on acceptance of a handicap and forging family relationships around it will appear at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, on channel 2 or channel 13 on cable.

Chief Promises Enforcement On Drunk Driving

Occasions for drinking during the holidays are endless for some people, states Chief of Police Ken Froschheiser. "We may not win popularity contests with those who can't say 'no thanks' soon enough, but we are determined to see that our drinking and driving laws are strictly and fairly enforced!" he said.

According to the chief, research and study information circulated from the International Association of Chiefs of Police indicates that alcohol is a factor in as many as half of all traffic accidents. The Christmas-New Year round of festivities often includes more alcohol than many can take.

As personal countermeasures to help against overloading at holiday parties, the chief quoted these tips published by the national safety council: Understand alcohol and what it does; be aware of what alcohol does to you; and know your limitations and stay within them.

Chief Froschheiser promises a no-nonsense approach to holiday traffic problems because some folks "can't hold their own."

"Our department will be out with all the manpower we can muster to protect you—and others—from your own dangerous drinking habits!"

Federal Reserve Board figures show that one-fourth of all automobile loans now being made have a 48 month payback period. Assuming a 10 per cent interest rate on a $5,000 loan, such a car buyer pays $542 more than if he paid off the loan in two years.

Mrs. Ida Janda, 81, a former resident of the St. Hilaire community, died December 8 at Omaha, Neb. She was the sister of Miss Helga Kalland of this city.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ida Janda were held Wednesday, December 8, at the Kahler Mortuary with Rev. Kermit Roisen officiating. Interment was in Cedar Dale cemetery.

Pallbearers were Robert Janda, Charles Trumble, Stanley T. Mountford and Stephen T. Mountford.

Mrs. Janda, the former Ida Kalland, was born Feb. 6, 1894 in Tromso, Norway to Henry and Ellen Kalland. She was baptized and confirmed in the Norwegian Lutheran church at St. Hilaire, where she lived for 50 years before moving to Nebraska. While living in St. Hilaire, she taught school for a time and was candidate for county superintendent of schools. She also compiled historical data on schools and churches in Pennington county which she contributed to the historical society. She was president of the All-American Hens Turkey club for many years and also served as secretary of the All-American Bronze Turkey club.

After moving to Nebraska in 1945, she lived at Hastings until a year ago when she became a resident of Papillion Manor.

She was married June 14, 1917 to Wesley J. Janda. He preceded her in death in 1969.

Surviving are a son, Robert W. Janda of Boulder, Colo; three daughters: Mrs. Ronald (Ellen) Faust of Kapuskasing, Ont., Canada, Mrs. Stanley (Geraldine) Mountford of Millard, Neb., and Mrs. Charles (Marion) Trumble of Papillion, Neb., 13 grandchildren, six great-grandsons, and one sister, Miss Helga Kalland of Thief River Falls.

John O. Aune Services Held At Gatzke

Funeral services for John O. Aune, 88, were held Thursday at 2 p.m., at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke. Aune had been in failing health for the past several months and died Saturday afternoon, December 13, at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Robert Amundson officiated at the services. Music was provided by the church choir, who sang two selections, and Mrs. Glen Larson who served as organist. Interment was in the Moose River cemetery with the Collins Funeral home of Middle River in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Floyd Jesme, Dale Newton, Roger Graff, Don Bjerke, Ron Sorvig and Fred Haubrick.

John O. Aune, a son of the late Ole and Ellen Aune, was born March 21, 1887 in Norway. At the age of one year, he immigrated to the United States with his family, settling in Norman county, near Pearly. At the age of 11 years, the family moved to a farm in Rollis township, Marshall county. There he attended school and was baptized and confirmed in the Moose River Lutheran church.

On April 11, 1912, he was united in marriage to Gusta Lian at Gatzke. Following their marriage, the couple farmed in the Gatzke community until 1940, when they moved to St. Paul. In 1959, they came to this city and resided here for several years prior to becoming residents of the Sheltering Oaks Nursing home at Roseau. For the past two years, Aune had been a resident of the Valley Home in Thief River Falls.

He was a lifetime member of the United Lutheran church of Gatzke.

Surviving are four sons: Juel and Glen Aune, both of Gatzke, Olaf of Grygla and Kenneth of Minneapolis; three daughters: Mrs. George (Esther) O'Brien and Mrs. Fred (Mildred) Paulson of Minneapolis and Mrs. Clayton (Marvel) Carlson of Thief River Falls) 27 grandchildren, 30 great-grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Olga McMillan of Naples, Fla., and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his wife, who died in January of 1974, two grandchildren, three sisters and one brother.

With the tax-shelter opportunities in vacation homes greatly diminished, developers have come up with another way of letting such homes pay for themselves—"time-sharing." The owner uses the vacation place one month a year and puts it in a rental pool the rest of the time, to be leased out by a manager who shares in the income.

66 Join Zion Membership At Sunday Service

Sixty-six new members have joined Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls by transfer from other Lutheran congregations and by affirmation of faith.

The 66 new members are: Mr. and Mrs. John Feragen; Mrs. Sheryl Olson and children John and Jason; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kjear and children Roy, Roger and Jason; Mrs. Eldonna Ulrich and children Jackie, Becky and Susan; Mrs. Gordon Beck and children Kristine, Angela, Shana and Nicole; and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Nelson;

Also Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pinkerton and children Jonathan, Jennifer and Molly; Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Tauer and children Nancy, Norma, William, James and Betty; Mrs. Wallace Leander and children Craig, Kent and Jay; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Freeland and children Bethany and Julie;

Also Dianna Kurtz; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Lofberg and children Quincy, Kim and Paul; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shafland and children Jeff and Heidi; Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Hoffard and children Timothy, Tony and Daniel; Mrs. Omer Lian; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter.

"Zion Luteran church has shown a steady growth throughout the years, and in the past six years, about one-fourth of the congregation—a little over 400 people—have been received as new members," states Rev. Lloyd Berger.

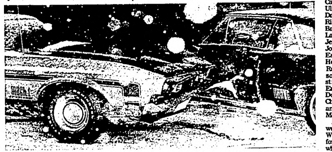
Zion is a member of the American Lutheran church. Its pastors are Rev. Alexander Stoffel and Rev. Berger.

Area Students Gain Provost's List At UMC

Debra Voth and Kent Christensen of Thief River Falls and Catherine Lineberry of Plummer have been named to the provost's list at the University of Minnesota technical college in Crookston for the fall quarter.

To attain the honor, a student must have a cumulative grade point average of 4.0 (A) for 12 or more credits. Only 30 students achieved the 4.0 average during fall quarter.

NO INJURIES resulted but two late model cars were considered a total loss following an accident Thursday at 4:55 p.m. on highway 32 near the Dairy Queen in Thief River Falls. A 1972 model station wagon driven by Mrs. Margaret Saetre of Thief River Falls was traveling south on highway 32. A 1973 model sedan was driven north on highway 32 by Mrs. Arbelle Lindquist of St. Hilaire when the accelerator stuck. Mrs. Lindquist reportedly hit the brakes on her car, causing it to spin into the traffic lane in front of the Saetre car. The Saetre station wagon is shown at left in the above photo. The gas tank on the Lindquist car ruptured as the vehicles were being separated by a tow truck and the fire department was called to hose down the spilled gasoline.



TOTAL ESTIMATED damages of $650 were reported following a two car collision on Fourth street and Atlantic avenue at 5:38 p.m. Friday. A car (right) driven by Gary Lee Holmgren of St. Hilaire, headed east on Fourth street, started to turn left into Atlantic but stopped to allow traffic to clear. Carl Ferber of Thief River Falls, coming from south on Atlantic, attempted to turn right on Fourth, slid on the icy road surface, and struck the left side of the Holmgren car. Damages were estimated at $400 to the Ferber car and $250 to the Holmgren vehicle.

Ben Hagglund, Once Publisher At Holt, Dies

Funeral services are being held today (Monday) at 2:30 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church for Benjamin Clarence Hagglund, 67, who resided at 315 Kneale Avenue south in this city. Hagglund died December 18 at Northwestern hospital in this city after a long illness.

Rev. Roy K. Malde will officate at the services with Mrs. Walter Larson as organist and Mrs. Arnold Hammer as soloist. Belmont Funeral home of this city is in charge of arrangements. Interment will be in the Holt cemetery in the spring.

Active pallbearers will be Robert Horien, Leopold Foldesie, Gotfred Larson, Ron Gerardy, Jon Metusalem and Cliff Dahle.

Honorary pallbearers will be Bill Allison, Dean Shafer, Melvin Grinde, Marvin Sandburg, Francis Zins and Roman Zins.

Ecklund-Holmstrom post 117 of Thief River Falls will be in charge of military rites.

Benjamin C. Hagglund, the son of Charley and Bertha Hagglund, was born in Dugdale on Sept. 11, 1908. He was baptized and later confirmed in the Lutheran faith. When he was five, the family moved to Holt where he attended school and was graduated from the Holt high school at the age of 16. That same year, he became owner-publisher of the Holt Weekly News. Later he was employed as proof-reader for the Miami Post, Miami, Fla., and the Redwood City Tribune, upon his retirement, he and his wife Isabel, moved to this city, where he had since lived. He continued to publish a literary magazine until last year.

Hagglund was a veteran. During World War II, he served with the Army Intelligence in the 746 Tank Battalion, participating for three years in the Normandy invasion and other campaigns in the European Theatre.

In 1938, he married Isabel Kellogg in Miami, Fla. They had no children. Mrs. Hagglund died in 1971.

The following year, he married Mrs. Flora Allison of this city. She survives him, together with a step-daughter, Mrs. Dean (Diane) Shafer of Greenbush, a step-son, Bill Allison of Dallas, Tex., and six step-grandchildren.

Also surviving are three sisters: Mrs. Mabel Bratteli and Mrs. Ida Horien, both of Holt, and Mrs. Orlene Reed of this city; two brothers: Elmer Hagglund of Grande Prairie, Alberta, Canada, and Irvin of Hendersonville, N.C., and a number of nieces and nephews.

His parents, first wife and a brother preceded him in death.

Arthur Olson, 87, Dies Sun.; Services Wed.

Arthur O. Olson, 87, of Thief River Falls died Sunday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Arthur O. Olson will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m., at the Green Funeral chapel with Rev. Roy K. Malde officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home, beginning at 12 noon on Tuesday. A complete obituary will be in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

83 Northland Students Get Scholarships

Lee Sele, Karlstad; David Rundell, Grygla; Bruce Patterson, East Grand Forks; Sandra Dagoberg, Peggy Moen and Rebecca Nelson, Alvarado.

Also Duane Dunrud, Fosston; Scott Hansen and Carol Taylor, Mentor; Craig Ulness, Devils Lake, North Dakota; Laurie Koski, Park River, North Dakota; John Baril and Edward Kees, Red Lake Falls; Jon Hakala and Jeff Kangas, Aurora; Elaine Johnson, Kennedy; Susan Elg, Esther Goethe and Pat Henning, Goodridge; Jean Rustan and Evonne Halvorson, Oklee; Vera Grandstrand, Stephen; Michael Erickson, Plummer; Steven Dostal, Badger; Leesa Christenson, Lake Bronson; and Robin Bursheim, McIntosh.

An advisory committee working in cooperation with Wiebolt selects the students for the various scholarships which are determined on the bases of academic achievement and financial need. The scholarships make possible an educational opportunity by helping students finance some of their educational costs while attending Northland.

Scholarship awards are made during each of the three quarters of each adademic year. Each year in Northland's brief history the total scholarship amount has increased. This year will be no exception.

"The scholarship program provided by area organizations and idividuals is another expression of community support for the college. Northland students, faculty and staff are deeply grateful for this support," states Alex Easton, Northland president.

Welfare Fraud Case Is Opened In Local Court

and the U.S. department of agriculture.

At the county court appearances Thursday and Friday before Judge Larry Jorgenson, both defendants were released on their own recognizance. John Roue of Fosston was appointed as public defender. Since he may represent only one of the defendants, however, it is expected that he will refer the other defendant to another public defender.

It was noted by the county attorney that Mrs. Hanson had resigned from her position with the county welfare department in October. Mrs. Vettleson had been a county food stamp officer until being promoted to the quality control officer position to cover the 12-county area. In this position it was her responsibility to supervise and inspect the individual county food stamp programs in the area, checking 10 per cent of each county's food stamp applications quarterly.

Really Good Show

Our congratulations to David Morken and his Lincoln high school music students for the fine Christmas concert presented on Sunday afternoon and Monday evening. It was a fine performance—fast moving, tastefully done and extremely pleasing to the ear.

We have seen so much good work done by our local students over the years that we have come to expect superlative performances from them on every level. Persons who attended the concerts—and there could have been more, because the auditorium was not filled—were treated to another really good show.

Not only was the quality of music good, the staging and lighting effects added much to the event. Special commendation should also go to the narrators, instrumentalists and to soloist Theresa Schindler. All helped to establish a proper frame of mind for the Christmas season.

The Dollar Reigns

Settlement has been reached in the Roseau school district between the board of education and the district's teachers, but not without a strike by the teachers which brought classes and activities to a halt for several days.

In a suggested editorial sent out by the Minnesota Education association, MEA president Donald C. Hill discusses his views on teacher strikes.

"Students in schools today are different from those in the depression or in the hippie days," he writes. "They come from families that are different. More and more, the responsibilities of a child's growth are left to the environment outside the family. The schools are different. The kids are different. The parents are different. The laws are different. The social structure is different. It is logical, then, that teachers are different.

". . . All the strikes we're having were precipitated by the same basic problem. Teachers resent the attitude of the school board and top administrators toward the role of the teacher. While the money in the contract is the item so often dealt with—and publicized—the real problem is one of respect and principle.

"We're counseled by all that labor history tells us: Never strike over principle. Perhaps this is the real difference between teachers and others in organized labor. I believe that teachers are more likely to strike over principle than over a few dollars."

We are inclined to disagree. While principle may be held up to dignify disagreement, the battle in the trenches generally halts when the dollars st... to flow. It happened in Roseau; it would happen in virtually every other district. Noble as it may be professed to be, principle is compromised for personal benefit.

"If board negotiators are able to break the teachers—disorganize and discredit them—the schools will suffer for a long time. A split, disillusioned, insecure faculty at odds with and subservient to the top administration provides poor climate for the growth of kids," MEA president Hill writes.

Ah, yes, the welfare of the child. Every now and then that seems to creep into consideration of contracts. It even creeps into disputes. For instance, one part of an advertisement placed by Roseau teachers in the Roseau Times-Region stated, "In the event that the school board attempts to keep the school open with substitutes and volunteer staff, we urge you to keep your children home for their own safety and welfare."

High principle? Hardly. When a threat of violence to children is used as part of coercion, the action is not only unprofessional it is entirely unprincipled.

The more teachers hold out for economic advantages—especially through strike action—the less credibility the public can be expected to give statements about principle. When it comes to the question of where the real allegiance lies—to principle or to personal gain—the dollar reigns.

Built-in Self-Destruct

Following editorial appeared in a recent issue of the Wheaton Gazette:

Congressman Bob Bergland has come up with an idea for a new law. The idea has merit. It also has about as much chance of getting passed into law as lutefisk has of becoming our national food.

Bergland says, "Too many federal regulatory agencies have been given unquestioned powers to require reports and enforce unexplained regulations. Let them prove and justify their requirements or go out of business."

With that as a premise, Bergland is co-sponsoring a bill which would abolish nine federal regulatory agencies—unless they can demonstrate to Congress and the President that their activities are in the public's best interest.

The bill calls for the automatic end, next year, of the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Federal Communications Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Maritime Commission, the Consumer Products Safety Commission, the Federal Power Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Security Exchange Commission, and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

In order to remain in existence after next year, each of the above agencies, under Bergland's bill, would have to prove itself to be essential. In addition, his proposal would require that any new agency formed in the future would automatically self-destruct after 15 years of operation.

It's not a bad idea at all. It does seem that most agencies, like most taxes, are self-perpetuating. Once they come into existnece, they never leave us.

The major problem with the bill, of course, is that it would bring about a good deal of back-scratching as a means of keeping support. Those working in all of these agencies do, I presume, rather enjoy having jobs. And they'll do what they can to keep them. One thing they can do, and very probably would do, is cater to Congressmen.

As a matter of fact, they'll probably be doing a good deal of that in the immediate future to make certain that the Bergland bill never does get a good run at being passed.

Accountability in government is a great idea. But it does seem presumptuous to expect nine agencies to begin accounting for themselves when no other agency of the government had done so in the past—particularly the Congress itself which has managed to legislate us into a $400 billion national debt.

But I do wish the Congressman well in his endeavors.

A Familiar Ring

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

It was 45 years ago, in the fall of 1930, that a then young Floyd B. Olson kicked off his campaign for governor in a speech before about 75 interested people in Slayton. Olson went on to win the governorship and attain national prominence before his untimely death.

In beginning his campaign Olson, who was running as the Farmer-Labor candidate, asserted his own political independence. He said he was the tool of no party or group. He and other speakers at the event charged that the party in power, then the Republicans, did not reflect the feeling of their own members and that party control was in the hands of a few kingmakers. So what has happened in the meantime? The Farmer-Labor party lost control and aligned itself with Democrats. The Republicans then lost control to the new DFL and now is seeking to align itself with the "independents"—the same ploy Olson used to gain election nearly half a century ago.

And then there is the charge of "kingmakers" 45 years ago just as there is again today. While there may be a familiar ring to all this, the shoe today is on the other foot. Now the GOP points to the Andersons and Kelms and Colemans making the some kingmaker charge.

Dates and decades change but apparently the art of politics remains roughly the same. The charges are the same with the only major difference being the party and people making them.

Borrowed Nonsense

The fellow managed to get out of Northern Ireland. When he landed at Kennedy International, he was surrounded by dozens of reporters who deluged him with questions. "Look," the travel weary Irishman said, "you fellows take the smallest incident and exaggerate it just to sell a few extra newspapers. It's about time you printed the truth. Northern Ireland is a peaceful country. The Catholics get along with the Protestants, we all get along with the British Army and IRA is really a benevolent organization." The reporters thanked the visitor for straightening them out and one of the newspaperman asked him, "By the way, Sir, what do you do for a living?" "Me?" replied the Irishman, "I'm a tail gunner on a bakery truck!"

Ever wonder why you hang a wreath on your door at Christmas time? This custom dates back to the early Christians who placed wreaths in their windows to show that the Christ Child was welcome in that home.

This season, welcome your holiday guests with festive KRIS KRINGLE WREATHS. Green food coloring and red cinnamon candies make this chewy Christmas treat a colorful accent for the yuletide table. But be sure to keep an eye on your platter of KRIS KRINGLE WREATHS. Someone is sure to hide them under the tree for Kris himself!

KRIS KRINGLE WREATHS

- 2 tablespoons regular margarine or butter
- ½ cup light corn syrup
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon green food coloring
- 3½ cups corn flakes
- Red cinnamon candies

1. Measure margarine, corn syrup, sugar and food coloring into medium-size saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves and mixture boils. Boil 3 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Add corn flakes. Stir until well coated.
2. Using well-buttered ¼ cup dry measure, immediately portion all of mixture onto waxed paper or buttered baking sheet. With buttered fingers, quickly shape each portion to resemble a wreath. Decorate with cinnamon candies. Let stand until firm before serving.

Yield: about 1 dozen Kris Kringle Wreaths

4-H CLUBS

Smiley

The Smiley 4-H club held it's monthly meeting on December 8, 1975 at the Smiley hall. President Debbie Simenson called the meeting to order, and flag pledges were given. Roll call response was: What do you want for Christmas? The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and approved.

Old Business: Handed out this year's records. New Business: We discussed the IFYE Program, a National Exchange Program, and the bicycle workshop. The new activities at the Winter Shows are the Dog Show, Meat Clinic, and Indoor Gardening. The club agreed to have two Share-the-Fun acts and no play this year. The program was provided by Theresa Schindler.

Demonstrations were given by Claudia Simenson on parts of a saddle, and Dana Torkelson on how to make a simple Christmas tree. We had Christmas singing and each family brought a Christmas idea. For recreation, we had a Christmas Party. Lunch was potluck.

To Minnesotans

As Minnesotans are well aware, Canada intends to begin reducing oil exports to the United States next month. And, by 1981, it will cut off all such exports.

This action will affect some 50 refineries located along the border from Washington State to New York. While all of them must locate alternative oil sources, some can do so only with great difficulty. In fact, some 14 or 15 northern tier refineries, including four Minnesota area refineries, have almost no access at all to oil, except through Canada.

Thus, these Canadian-dependent refineries must not only find new oil supplies, but they also must construct transportation facilities to bring new oil to their refineries, a task which will require at least two years.

In recognition of the severity of this situation, the federal energy administration has proposed to allocate Canadian oil on a priority basis to those with the greatest need, a step which Senator Walter Mondale and I have urged for some time.

On December 9 I testified at an FEA hearing on this subject to urge approval of the plan, with several modifications which would give additional help to Minnesota and other hardship states.

I advised FEA officials that if priority allocations of Canadian oil exports were not made to these Canadian-dependent refineries, the northern tier, including Minnesota, faces economic disaster.

And this desperate economic plight would continue until the beginning of 1978, the earliest date when new pipelines to transport oil can be in place.

I am confident that early action will be taken by FEA and the Congress to avert this tragedy.

Final action is expected before Congress adjourns on the public works appropriations bill which includes funds for a number of Minnesota projects. All that remains is to resolve the differences between the House and Senate-passed measures.

We were successful in the Senate in adding $1.115 million, for a total of $3.290 million through Sept. 1, 1976, to complete the demonstration project which would extend the navigation season on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence seaway from eight months and one-half to year-round service.

Also, $258,000 was appropriated by the Senate through next August for study projects at the Duluth-Superior Harbor (navigation), the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area (comprehensive basin survey), and reservoirs at the Mississippi river headwaters (flood control) and Upper Mississippi river small craft locks (navigation).

And $5,305,000 was appropriated by the Senate for nine construction and planning projects in Minnesota, under corps of engineers funding: Beaver Bay harbor (navigation), Big Stone Lake-Wheatstone river (flood control), Knife river harbor (navigation), Lutsen harbor (navigation), Mankato and North Mankato (flood control), Rochester (phase one flood control), Roseau river (flood control), Twin Valley Lake (flood control) and Winona (flood control).

Don't Play Tax Averages.

You have to be able to prove tax deductible expenses no matter how large or small they may be, so there's no future in trying to get by with unsupported claims just because they are below average. On the other hand, don't take fewer deductions than you are entitled to because they seem larger then ordinary.

To our many fiends and a community that cares, we want to say thank you for the many kind words and deeds, through the year 1975. A very Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Season's Greetings...
To The People Who Feed The World

The fertile land lies idle, blanketed by a winter's covering of snow. And the bountiful acres on which you produced corn, soybeans, wheat, potatoes and apples are now your family's playground as you watch the wild animals foraging for food.

The reflections of a job well done can be seen in the silos and grain bins, in the holds of ships leaving for foreign lands and on the grocery shelves of your urban neighbors. In no other sector of society do so few ask for so little and provide for so many.

As we share our food and hospitality over the holidays, your friends at the Land Bank thank you for your contribution and wish you and your family a happy holiday season.

Working Bee Held At Orlan Stolaas Farm Saturday

Hay hauling and calf-pen cleaning was taken care of on Saturday by neighbors, relatives and friends so the Orlan Stolaas family could have a pleasant and happy Christmas holiday. Orlan has been laid up with a back injury for some time and is taking treatments in Thief River Falls and hopes to get feeling better soon. But he has to rest and relax for several months and this is not an easy order for a farmer with all its day to day responsibilities. In later part of June an unusual flood hit this community and most of the crops and hay fields were damaged by heavy water conditions. The Orlan Stolaas' had to find some of their hay for their dairy herd and youngstock elsewhere and this involved great hauling distances. The calfpens also needed cleaning. A neighbor came over with the Mighty Mac and in no time the pens were cleaned and bedded down with straw for the little animals. Those who so willingly came over to help Orlan and Clarice with the work, furnished pot luck dinner lunch and Oklee Elevator funished the buns and sweets and Brooks Cenex Oil Company with Bruce Radniecki furnished fuel to the tractors and trucks used in the hay hauling bee. This took place while Orlan and Clarice were in Thief River Falls for doctors treatment. The following came over at 9:30 Saturday morning to assist in any way possible: Mr. and Mrs. Korydon Chervestad, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Vad and Julie, Mr. and Mrs. Brad Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McGeary, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gustafson, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, Mr. and Mrs. Verner Arveson, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Lundeen, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reinbold, Vincent Lundeen, Clifford Arveson, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Howard, Kenneth Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Peterson, Mrs. Adolph Peterson, Mrs. Fred Lundeen, Mrs. Richard Radniecki, Mrs. Glen Hofstad, Mrs. Ole Hofstad and Ione, Mrs. Lyle Mandt, Mrs. Virgil Radniecki, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Moen, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Gunderson and Brad, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rustan, Gary Lundeen, Tom Radniecki, Jerry Howard of Minneapolis, Mily Rustan, Rudy Rude and James of Thief River Falls, Donald Henrickson, Olaf Stolaas, Omer Nesland, Robert Myrum, Roger Flaten, Mrs. Malcolm Stucy, Gorden Henrickson, Howard Henrickson of Goodridge, Tom Hofstad, Glennie Iverson, Vernon Iverson, Leslie Iverson, Harlon Iverson. Mr. and Mrs. Orlan Stolaas and family wish to thank all of you who so helped in the working bee. It was greatly appreciated and thank you.

Little Shari Lundeen was pleasantly surprised on her fourth birthday Friday afternoon with the following who came to enjoy the afternoon, Mrs. Eddie Larson, Randy, Shelly, Lisa, Mrs. Duane Howard, Stephanie and Derek, Brad Kragness, Mrs. Orlando Chervestad and Julienne Eychanner, Mrs. Dennis Moen and Christy and Nicole, Mrs. Kelly Lundeen, Alison and Adam, Leann Flatgard. Shari's mother served a lovely decorated birthday cake and bar-b-que buns which was enjoyed by the rest of the Richard Rustan family.

Sunday evening company at the Virgil Radniecki home were Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rustan.

Sena Chervestad spent several days visiting with her grandmother and family the Richard Mathesons of Oklee.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunnie Gunderson of Thief River Falls visited at the Orlando Chervestad and Signe Evenson home last Thursday.

Those from here who attended the church Christmas program in Oklee at the Catholic church were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dulka and family and Mrs. Virgil Radniecki and family. Danielle Radniecki and Dulka children were in the program.

We are sorry to hear Mrs. Fernand Mandt is a patient at the Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls. We wish her a speedy recovery. Her sister Therese Radniecki visited with her last week.

On Saturday Mrs. Julian Gunderson and Jamey and Grandma Birdie Gunderson stopped over to visit with Shirley's mother Clara Espland in Oklee.

The following went Christmas caroling Saturday evening and brought good cheer to the homes of Harold Haugens, Signe Evenson, Sena Chervestad, Orlan and Olaf Stolaas, Arthur Gustafson, Ole Hofstads, Jim Duklas. The carollers were Mr. and Mrs. Andy Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hofstad, Mr. and Mrs. Korydon Chervestad, Milan Olson and cousin Jerry Howard of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Jenson of Highlanding.

Mrs. Signe Evenson visited with her friend Sarah Myrum Friday afternoon. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Simon Brieland of Thief River Falls visited with Signe Evenson.

Little Ryan Nelson was pleasantly surprised Thursday evening when the following came over for his birthday: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nelson, Dianne and Cheri, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Korydon Chervestad and Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McGeary and Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad. Carol baked a birthday cake featuring Snoopy, a comic character. Wednesday afternoon the following came over, the grandparents Chervestads, great grandma Signe Evenson, Juliene, Anthony and Elmer Eychanner, Robert and Roger Flaten, Mary Carlson, Mrs. Jacki Reindahl, Lisa and Michelle, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Skinner.

A Christmas church circle meeting was held at the Oklee Catholic church last week with guest speaker Mrs. Sanna Brovold. Mrs. Sanna showed interesting slides on Camp Courage and talked on new group home at Warren for mentally retarded children. Attending from this area were Mrs. Virgil Radniecki, Mrs. Jim Dulka, Mrs. Richard Radniecki. The group decided to give gifts to these children.

Moose Season Gains Support In Minnesota State Legislature

A bill that would allow the department of natural resources (DNR) to open moose seasons for the months of September through December until 1980 got approval from the House subcommittee on conservation during a December mini session hearing.

The bill, HF 1878 (Braun, D-Greenbush), also allowed the setting of seasons for the fisher, a large fur-bearer of the weasel family; but the subcommittee approved an amendment taking the fisher from the bill and keeping it on the protected list.

Roger Holmes, chief of DNR's wildlife section, testified in favor of both proposals but indicated that the fisher provision would endanger the passage of the bill. Attempts to remove the fisher from the protected list have failed in past legislative sessions.

Holms said the moose population, following limited open seasons in 1971, 1973, and this fall, has remained stable at 6,000 to 8,000 animals. He told the lawmakers the first season probably wouldn't begin until 1977 because of a manpower shortage to carry out the program at this time.

Lincoln Hockey B Team Beaten 4-1 Saturday

Aurora-Hoyt Lakes defeated Thief River Falls 4-1 Saturday in junior varsity hockey.

Thief River Falls, out-shot 35-23, received its lone goal from Scott Sabo as the Lincoln record slipped to 3-2-1 for the year.

JOE BROWN, known for his offensive skills, showed his defensive ability on this play as the Northland sophomore blocked a shot by a Bottineau ball player during Saturday's championship game in the Northland Arctic basketball tournament. Northland freshman Dave Caspers watched the action. Northland won the game 100-70 and Brown was named to the all-tournament team.

tempts. Fosston shot a more respectable 41 per cent on 19 of 46. The Prowlers made 10 of 21 free throws and finished with a slight 30-29 rebound edge. Fosston topped the turnover charts 21-15.

Randy Lindfors was the game's high scorer for Fosston as the big 6-5 center scored 23 points. Dan Brinkman added 10 points for the Greyhounds. Jeff Neelan scored 13 and Poole finished with 10 for the Prowlers who slipped to a 2-4 record for the year.

Northland standouts with 19 and 18 points, respectively. Willie Brown pumped in 21 and Green hit 19 for North Hennepin.

Northland shot 47 per cent for the game on a 37-for-78 showing. North Hennepin shot 36 per cent, hitting 32 of 90 tries. Northland made only six of 21 free throw attempts while North Hennepin sank 10 of 19 shots from the line. North Hennepin topped the rebound charts 59-58, with Whitney and Dave Davenport pulling down 10 boards apiece for the Northmen. Northland suffered through 34 turnovers while North Hennipen lost the ball 30 times.

Give Estimates On Metro Area Sports Stadium

State legislators studying sports stadium proposals learned December 8 that building a new football stadium would cost almost $2 million less than remodeling Memorial stadium at the University of Minnesota.

A joint subcommittee heard two reports, one from the Metropolitan sports area commission on building a new stadium at Metropolitan center, and the other from the university of remodeling Memorial stadium. Robert Bruce, of the sports commission staff, told the lawmakers that building a new 65,000-seat football stadium connecting the Met stadium and the Metropolitan sports center (creating a complete sports complex) would cost a minimum of $23 million, a maximum of $28.1 million, with an "expected" cost of $25.6 million. Donald Brown, university assistant vice president, said it would cost $27.9 million to improve Memorial stadium.

Previously, the committee had estimated it would cost about $38 million to build a new stadium and $18.7 million to remodel Memorial stadium.

Bruce encouraged the legislators to consider the addition of a "spectator roof," which would cover spectators but not the field, at a cost of $7.4 million. He said the roof would eliminate the accumulations of rain or snow, substantially reducing "operational and maintenance costs," besides providing "obvious spectator comfort benefits."

Both proposals include the remodeling of Metropolitan stadium for baseball at a cost of about $4 million. The commission estimated this cost at $2.4 to $5.1 million.

Sticks, Pucks Prohibited At Two Ice Rinks

Thief River Falls park and recreation department has announced that the side ice rinks at East Side and at Northrop school have been designated as "no sticks, no pucks," skating rinks.

Attendants at both rinks have been instructed to limit the use of sticks and hockey pucks to the hockey pens only. Violations will be reported to school authorities and the park and recreation department.

The department also issued a reminder that snowmobiles are not allowed on the outdoor ice sheets in the city.

Northland Rated Sixth In Region 13

Northland community college was ranked sixth in the first NJCAA Region 13 coaches' rating poll of the 1975-76 basketball season it was announced last week.

Concordia (Wisc.), Waukesha Tech (Wisc.), Rochester, Normandale and Willmar made up the top five in the initial coaches' vote of the season.

Northland was rated number one in the five-state area Region 13 poll throughout most of the 1974-75 season when the Northmen even achieved a lofty position among the top ten in the nation in the NJCAA national poll enroute to a near-perfect 23-1 season record.

Not many people expected the 1974-75 season to be duplicated this winter by the Northmen after the graduation losses of David Dickey, Burnie Stephens and Ralph Fitts. The absence of Dickey, an NJCAA two-time All-American, was felt most.

Two losses in Northland's first five games cast an early shadow over the Northmen. However, in recent games the Northmen have looked like the Northmen of old, and as coach Chet Engelman put it, "I think we'll have to be reckoned with," when the MJCAA conference play starts after the holidays.

Northland was most impressive in beating the Grand Forks Air Force Base 107-73 December 16 and then stopped a very good North Hennepin team 80-74 in the first round of Northland's Arctic basketball tournament Friday. The Northmen were at their very best in the second half of their 100-70 tournament championship game win over Bottineau Saturday.

Spearheading the Northland attack this season has been sophomore Bill Whitney from Rutherford, N.J.

A spot performer a year ago, Whitney has blossomed into an outstanding ball player this winter. His strong showing to date was climaxed by his most valuable player award winning performance in the Northland Arctic tournament. His 26-point perofrmance in the championship game win over Bottineau was simply a terrific display of basketball. He has become probably the best shooter on the Northland squad this year.

Sophomore Joe Brown is also playing his best basketball for Northland, He finished only a few points behind Whitney in the MVP balloting. And Freshman center Dave Davenport has been most impressive, as well.

It all adds up to another exceptional season of Northland basketball with another MJCAA Northwest Division pennant and an MJCAA state tournament berth waiting on the horizon.

Miscellaneous

+Doug Williams of Thief River Falls, enjoying another super season with the University of North Dakota swimming team, won both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle races and was a member of UND's winning 400-yard medley relay team that set a new school record of 3:53.4 during a recent dual meet against Minnesota power Bemidji State.

+Kent Smith of Thief River Falls and Ken Spaeth of Mahnomen were among 57 University of Nebraska athletes receiving athletic letters with the 1975 Cornhuskers' football team.

+Brian Phelps of Thief River Falls was presented with an athletic letter in cross country at Bemidji State University, one of nine runners selected off the 16-man Beaver squad to win monograms. Steve Taflin of Clearbrook, a Northland community college graduate, was previously named the most valuable runner on the BSU squad.

+A recent 4-2 Grand Rapids high school hockey win over International Falls was only the Indians' second triumph in history over the Bronco skaters. The teams have met 29 times since both started high school hockey in 1949. The only other Grand Rapids win in the series came during the 1971-72 season when the Indians claimed a 5-4 win. However, International Falls gained a 5-1 win over the Indians in the Region Seven finals that season and then picked up a 3-2 win when the two teams met again in the state tournament.

Karlstad Is Double Winner

Prowlers Lose Twice In LHS Christmas Classic

Thief River Falls was a double loser and Karlstad was a double winner over the weekend as Thief River Falls hosted its second annual Christmas basketball classic.

Host Thief River Falls suffered setbacks both nights as the Prowlers fell to Hendrum 63-61 Friday and then lost a 52-42 Saturday decision to Fosston.

Karlstad, meanwhile, won twice as the Rabbits stopped Karlstad 50-42 Friday and handled Hendrum 64-50 Saturday.

Karlstad 50
Fosston 42

Karlstad erased a 33-32 deficit with a productive 18-point fourth quarter to beat Fosston 50-42.

Fosston led 10-9 at the first quarter break before Karlstad went ahead 26-20 at halftime. Fosston battled back to take a narrow 33-32 lead at the third quarter stop but the Rabbits out-scored the Greyhounds 18-9 over the final eight minutes.

The well-balanced Karlstad ball club received 19 points from Lowell Olson and 10 points from Dane Sele. Dan Brinkman paced Fosston with 17 points while Kendall Larson and Randy Lindfors scored 10 points each.

A hot-shooting Hendrum ball club stunned Thief River Falls 63-61 behind the one-two scoring punch of Randy Dyrendahl and Loren Nelson.

Thief River Falls led 16-12 at the end of the first quarter and protected a 32-38 edge at halftime. However, Hendrum jumped out to a 48-42 lead by the time the third quarter came to a close.

Trailing 63-61, Thief River Falls nearly scored the tying bucket in the final seconds, but a short jump shot and a rebound shot bounced off the rim and a final Prowler rebound was lost out of bounds with just two seconds left.

Hendrum won the game with a sensational 64 per cent shooting performance in the second half when the Huskies hit 16 of 25 field goal attempts.

"It was a combination of things," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters, trying to explain Hendrum's hot shooting hand. "Our defense gave them some easy baskets, but other times we played good defense and they still got the shots."

Don Forney scored a game-high 21 points for the Prowlers while Dave Poole added 14 and Jeff Neelan hit 10.

Thief River Falls shot 40 per cent from the field, hitting 27 of 67 attempts Hendrum shot 47 per cent for the game, making 30 of 61 tries. The Prowlers sank seven of 11 free throw opportunities and the Huskies made three of nine gift tosses. Thief River Falls finished with a 39-25 rebound edge, with Neelan pulling down 16 caroms. The Prowlers topped the turnover tables 16-15.

"We hit the boards well, especially the defensive boards," said Peters. "But we got burned because of it. Everybody was concerned about rebounding we forgot to play defense."

Peters explained "the kids took the loss pretty hard. They played hard and they wanted to win pretty bad. We're not giving up, though—players or coaches."

Mike Kuznia and Loel Olson combined for 38 points to carry Karlstad past Hendrum 64-50.

Karlstad controlled the entire ball game as the Rabbits built a 14-8 first quarter lead, maintained a 28-22 halftime advantage and then stretched the margin to 42-30 at the end of the third quarter.

Kuznia, a rugged 6-5 senior center, pumped in 20 points and Olson, a stocky 5-10 junior guard, drilled 18 to pace the Karlstad attack. Three Hendrum scorers reached double figures as Loren Nelson totaled 15 points, Randy Dyrendahl 14 and Jim Scoville 11.

TRF 42

Thief River Falls watched a 21-20 halftime lead disappear during a nightmarish third quarter that netted the Prowlers just three points in a 52-42 loss to Fosston.

Thief River Falls started the game in decent fashion as junior forward Dave Poole tossed in six points to lead the Prowlers to an 11-6 first quarter lead.

Poole dropped in a sweeping hook shot 2:13 into the second quarter as the Prowlers extended their lead to 15-8. And despite a string of 10 straight Fosston points over the next 3:20, Thief River Falls took a 21-20 lead into intermission on the strength of two Don Forney free throws with two seconds remaining.

The roof caved in on Thief River Falls in the third quarter, however, as the Prowlers managed to hit just one of 14 field goal tries and one of two free throws for a grand total of three points. Fosston, while not exactly setting the basketball world on end, did manage to score eight points to take a 28-24 lead into the fourth quarter.

Offensive productions improved on both ends in the final stanza, but Fosston stretched its lead with a bundle of free throws. The Greyhounds made 14 of 25 free throw opportunities in the game after missing both of their two first half gift tosses.

Thef River Falls shot just 29 per cent from the field for the game, making 16 of 55 at-

NCC Wins Third Straight Arctic Tournament Title

It seems some things never change. For the third time in the third annual Arctic invitational basketball tournament, host Northland captured championship honors and North Hennepin was crowned consolation champion as the two-day event came to a close Saturday afternoon.

Northland kept its tournament championship string alive with an impressive 100-70 title game win over Bottineau while North Hennepin maintained its grip on the consolation spot with a high-scoring 107-103 overtime third-place game win over the Grand Forks Air Force Base.

The tournament opened Friday night when Northland decisioned North Hennepin 80-74 and Bottineau grounded the Air Base 76-54.

Northland 100
Bottineau 70

A big second half offensive sparked Northland past Bottineau 100-70.

Bottineau trailed just 44-37 at halftime and pulled even closer when Don Kleven scored five straight points to open the second half to slice the difference to only 44-42 with just 1:16 elapsed.

Northland suddenly took charge, however, and proceeded to out-score Bottineau 24-4 over the next 7:05 enroute to a 68-46 scoreboard bulge. Sophomore Bill Whitney led the fast-breaking Northmen by scoring 12 points in that outburst enroute to winning the tournament's most valuable player award.

"I thought we played a hell of a second half," confirmed Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We started dominating the boards and picking things up off our press."

Whitney pumped in 27 points to lead an otherwise very evenly balanced Northland attack. Preston Curtis, Joe Brown and Dave Davenport all added 12 points for the winners. Kleven scored a game-high 27 points for Bottineau.

Northland shot 48 per cent from the floor, hitting 43 of 90 shots. Bottineau made 29 of 88 tries for 33 per cent. Northland sank 14 of 19 free throws and Bottineau converted 12 of 24 gift tosses.

North Hennepin . . 107
Air Base 103

Grand Forks Air Force Base recovered from an 18-point deficit early in the second half to tie North Hennepin at the end of regulation time, only to lose a 107-103 overtime decision.

North Hennepin enjoyed a seemingly commanding 65-47 lead with 16:25 remaining, but B.J. Branigan of the Air Base sent the game into overtime by picking up a loose ball and making an easy lay-up with 21 seconds left, tying the game 93-93.

The score was still deadlocked at 103-103 before North Hennepin's Woody Rhodes duplicated Branigan's effort with a loose ball lay-up with 29 seconds remaining.

Mike Green of the Norsemen then iced the game with two free throws in the final four seconds.

Three North Hennepin scorers surpassed the 20-point barrier as Willie Brown hit 24, Green 23 and Rhodes 22. Branigan and Scott Williams scored 18 points apiece for the Air Base.

North Hennepin won the game at the free throw line, hitting 25 of 38 gift tosses while the Air Base made three of only four free throw opportunities. The Air Base out-shot North Hennepin from the field by drilling 50 of 106 shots for 47 per cent while the Norsemen made 41 of 100 attempts for 41 per cent.

Bottineau 76
Air Base 54

The result of the tournament opening game matching Bottineau against the Grand Forks Air Force Base was dictated before the game even began when a car carrying three Air Base starters went into a ditch enroute to Thief River Falls.

Playing without the core of their ball club, the Astrojets fell behind quickly as Bottineau out-scored the Air Base 12-2 over a 4:26 stretch to take command early, 14-4 with 7:40 elapsed.

The Air Base was never in contention after succumbing to the initial Bottineau burst. The Lumberjacks enjoyed a comfortable 56-34 halftime cushion.

Remaining members of the Air Base squad did show, but with just five minutes remaining in a one-sided 62-41 ball game.

Bottineau established a tournament defensive record in holding the Air Base to just 54 points. "We're normally a pretty strong defensive team," pointed out Bottineau coach Don Thompson. "We practice defense about 50 per cent of the time in practice."

Bottineau shot 43 per cent from the field, hitting 32 of 75 attempts while the Air Base hit only 25 of 97 tries for a cool 26 per cent. Bottineau made 14 of 19 free throw attempts, with the Air Base hitting four of 11 gift tosses. The Air Base posted a 59-34 rebound advantage and topped the turnover charts 28-24.

Northland 80

Northland outlasted North Hennepin 80-74 in a wild, free-wheeling affair featuring two ball clubs with an abundance of basketball talent.

Northland, after eking out a 39-34 lead in a roughly played first half, stretched its lead to a seemingly comfortable 11-point margin, 67-56 with 8:09 remaining before North Hennepin rallied dramatically to slice the difference to just 73-71 with still 3:01 left.

The Northmen came alive offensively once again at the end, however, as Bill Whitney drove the lane for a bucket, Joe Brown matched a North Hennepin free throw and Bill Gusa scored on a tip-in for a 78-72 lead with 1:10 left.

Mike Green hit a short jumper for North Hennepin with 49 seconds remaining, but two technical fouls on Norseman coach Dave Tjosvold in the waning seconds enabled Northland to run out the clock.

Walter Sparks Plummer Past Sacred Heart 51-45

Dave Walter poured in 32 points Friday to spark undefeated Plummer to a 51-45 high school basketball win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Plummer earned its fourth straight win on the basis of a stifling defense that held Sacred Heart scoreless in the third quarter. The host Eagles led 15-12 at the end of the first quarter and the two teams played to a 26-26 halftime tie.

However, Plummer utilized a smothering full court zone press in the third quarter that completely shut down Sacred Heart on offense to give the Cardinals a 38-26 lead leading into the final eight minutes.

"We came out pretty fired up," said Plummer coach Paul Williams of his team's third period domination. "We pressed and we caused a lot of turnovers with it."

Walter, a senior guard, enjoyed his most productive night of the season and received special praise from Williams. "Walter controlled the whole game," said Williams. "He played the way he's capable of playing. He's a real good shooter."

Plummer shot 45 per cent from the field by making 20 of 44 attempts. The Cardinals sank 11 of 21 free throw chances. Sacred Heart made eight of 14 free throw opportunities. Stan Tvedt pulled down 11 rebounds for the winners.

The Cardinals will not be back in action until Friday and Saturday, January 2 and 3 when Plummer will host a holiday basketball tournament featuring Oklee, Red Lake Falls, Erskine and Plummer.

Newfolden Stops Grygla Cagers By 67-49 Score

Marshall County Central remained unbeaten and Grygla remained winless Friday as the Nordics beat the Eagles 67-49 in a high school basketball game played at Grygla.

The win pushed Newfolden to a 5-0 season record while Grygla suffered its sixth straight loss of the year.

Despite being the big underdog, Grygla played Newfolden tough through three quarters before the Nordics out-scored the Eagles 18-10 in the final eight minutes. Newfolden led 14-8 at the first quarter break, but Grygla stayed within a 31-26 margin at halftime. Newfolden posted a 49-30 third quarter advantage.

"We played better than we have been playing," pointed out Grygla coach Van Swanson. "We eliminated some of our turnover problems and we rebounded well. I was pleased with our overall play. They're a tough team to beat."

Mike Fincher sparked the Newfolden offense with a 24-point performance while teammate Bruce Rokke added 12 points. Gary Satre scored 22 points for Grygla and Dwight Ruud chipped in 14.

"We weren't sharp," admitted Newfolden coach Ron Ueland. "We got beat on the boards 18-16 on our end and that's the first time all year we've been beaten on either end in rebounding."

Newfolden shot 43 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 30 of 70 attempts. Grygla shot at a 39 per cent clip on 18 of 46. Newfolden sank seven of 19 free throw attempts while Grygla made 13 of 23 gift tosses.

Although Newfolden finished with a 42-26 rebound edge, Swanson had special praise for Gordy Moe who pulled down 13 rebounds against the taller Nordics. Fincher hauled in 15 Newfolden rebounds. Newfolden topped the turnover charts 18-16.

Both teams are now idle for the holiday break. Newfolden returns to action Fri., Jan. 2, at Nevis. Grygla will be taking part in a holiday basketball tournament at Goodridge Friday and Saturday, January 2 and 3.

Aurora-Hoyt Lakes Stuns Skaters 8-1

Aurora-Hoyt Lakes capitalized on a lackluster Thief River Falls performance Saturday to take a surprising 8-1 win over the visiting Prowlers.

The Blackhawks skated to a 3-0 first period lead, made it 6-1 in the second period and added a pair of third period goals.

"We were not ready to play hockey," said Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann. "I'm very disappointed in the kids' play and they're disappointed in themselves."

Thief River Falls' lone goal of the night was scored by Doug Dallmann on a Prowler power play just 1:02 into the second period. Jeff Lindquist earned an assist on the play. Aurora-Hoyt Lakes scoring information was not made available.

"We started the game so flat we looked like Twiggy," quipped McGann. "And it seemed the harder we tried, the worse we got. If we played them on another night it might have been a different story."

Aurora-Hoyt Lakes out-shot Thief River Falls 35-23, with Keith Daley replacing starter Terry Sullivan in the Prowler nets midway through the second period. Sullivan stopped 20 shots during his tenture and Daley turned aside 15.

The Blackhawks were whistled for 10 of the game's 14 penalties.

Thief River Falls, carrying a 2-3-1 record for the year, faces a pair of Twin Cities challenges this weekend when the Prowlers host Minneapolis Patrick Henry and Anoka in a pair of 7:30 p.m. games in the sports arena. The Pats will be here Friday and the Tornadoes, coached by former Prowler hockey star Joe Poole, will be in Thief River Falls Saturday.

Host TRF Wins Elks Freshman Cage Tourney

Thief River Falls captured championship honors in the first annual Elks ninth grade invitational basketball tournament played Friday and Saturday in the Lincoln high school gym.

Thief River Falls defeated Warren 46-39 and Fosston knocked off Karlstad 51-31 in Friday's first round games.

Warren beat Karlstad 49-33 for consolation honors and Thief River Falls stopped Fosston 46-38 in the championship game Saturday afternoon.

TRF 46, Warren 39

Thief River Falls jumped out to a 16-4 first quarter lead and cruised to a 46-39 win over Warren.

The Lincoln ball club led 24-15 at halftime and held onto a 33-25 advantage at the third quarter stop.

Jeff Oseid and Wayne Krueger scored 12 points apiece for the winners while Robert Norman pumped in a game-high 19 points for Warren.

Fosston 51, Karlstad 31

Fosston advanced into the championship game with a 51-31 win over Karlstad.

John Carlin tossed in 17 points for the Fosston ball club that led at every quarter break, 10-7, 21-13 and 39-22. Dave Spilde scored 11 points for Karlstad.

Warren 49, Karlstad 33

Mitch Carlson scored a tournament-high 24 points to lead Warren to a 49-33 consolation game win over Karlstad.

Warren led the entire game, owning quarter leads of 13-4, 25-14 and 33-24.

Tom Porter scored 12 points for Karlstad.

TRF 46, Fosston 38

Another strong start propelled Thief River Falls to a 46-38 championship game win over Fosston.

Thief River Falls raced to a 16-6 first quarter lead and was never headed, owning a 23-10 halftime cushion and a 40-20 third quarter advantage.

Jeff Oseid scored 11 points and Bryant Peppin added 10 for the winners. John Carlson was Fosston's high point scorer with eight points.

Warren Handles Goodridge 74-47

Goodridge high school basketball team closed out the 1975 portion of its 1975-76 basketball season without a win Friday as the Huskies lost a 74-47 ball game to District 31 power Warren.

The host Ponies led at every quarter break, 26-10, 39-23 and 57-30.

Daryl Evavold paced a balanced Warren attack with 14 points while John Carlson and Mike Hapka scored 12 points apiece. Rick Easthouse was the game's high scorer for Goodridge with 25 points.

"They're a good all-round ball club," said Goodridge head coach Gary Hamilton of Warren. "They've got good balance and good depth."

Goodridge shot 47 per cent from the floor for the game as the Huskies hit 17 of 36 shots. Goodridge made 13 of 22 free throw attempts while Warren sank 16 of 28 gift tosses.

Easthouse enjoyed a fine all-round game for the Huskies as he complemented his 25 points with 13 rebounds. Randy Nelson added 10 rebounds to the Huskies' total.

Goodridge, winless in six starts this winter, will be idle until the Huskies act as host to a Christmas tournament Friday and Saturday, January 2 and 3. Roseau, Middle River, Grygla and Goodridge will take part in the event.

Unbeaten MCC, Goodridge Girls Clash Tonight

Goodridge and Marshall County Central high school girls' basketball teams continued their winning ways last week to set the stage for tonight's dramatic confrontation between the two undefeated area powers.

Goodridge ripped Oklee 59-10 Thursday while Newfolden picked up a key 27-24 triumph over highly regarded Roseau Friday.

The Huskies and Nordics both sport 6-0 records. They meet tonight (Monday) at 7 p.m. in a first round game of the Grygla holiday basketball tournament. Grygla meets Oklee at 8:30 in the other first round game.

Tonight's losers play in Tuesday's 7 p.m. consolation game while the first round winners advance into Tuesday's 8:30 championship game.

MCC 27, Roseau 24

Marshall County Central passed its stiffest test of the year with a 27-24 win over a very strong Roseau ball club Friday.

The two teams played to a 6-6 first quarter stand-off before Newfolden took a 16-13 halftime lead. The Nordics led 22-19 going into the final stanza.

Diane Anderson and Pam Odberg scored seven points apiece for Newfolden while Roseau's JoAnn Kotta was the game's high scorer with 11 points.

Goodridge 59, Oklee 10

Goodridge continued to look awesome as the Huskies trounced visiting Oklee 59-10.

All 10 Goodridge players scored in the game, paced by a 21-point performance by Georgine Troska.

Goodridge raced to a 23-0 first quarter lead, maintained a 29-6 halftime advantage and led 45-8 at the third quarter break.

Coach Linda Bruggeman's Huskies have out-scored opponents by a whopping 188-30 margin in their last three outings, averaging 62 points per game while giving up but 10 points each night.

Changes Made In Recreation Skate Schedule

Two changes in the skating schedule at the Thief River Falls sports arena have been announced by the recreational skating association. They involve skating time allocation on Monday (tonight) and Friday.

There will be family skating tonight from 6:30 to 9:45 p.m. instead of lessons as previously scheduled. On Friday there will be lessons from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. but a portion of the ice sheet will be available for recreational skating practice while lessons are taking place.

Lesson schedule on Friday begins at 9 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. all pre-school skaters will have lessons; 11 a.m., all kindergarten classes; 11:30 a.m., all adult classes; 12 noon to 1 p.m., intermediate and advanced free style classes, boys and girls; 1:15 to 1:45 p.m., teachers' class; 1:45 to 2:30 p.m., skaters working on badges one through four; and 2:30 to 3 p.m., all pre-stick hockey.

Prowlers Rip Spuds 111-56

Record setting performances by Dan Cork and Tom Bjorkman paced the Lincoln high school swimming team to an easy 111-56 win over Moorhead Tuesday in the Franklin middle school pool.

The win stretched the Prowler dual meet season record to a perfect 4-0 level for the year. Thief River Falls will not be back in action until Mon., Jan. 5, when the Prowlers travel to Detroit Lakes for a 7 p.m. dual meet encounter.

Thief River Falls won nine of 11 events against the overmatched Moorhead squad. Highlighting the victory was Bjorkman's school record setting diving. The young eighth grader accumulated 167.75 points in the event.

Cork was also in the spotlight with a school record 1:01.5 clocking in the 100-yard backstroke.

Mark Storhaug was a double event winner for the Prowlers as he turned in a 2:18.0 effort in the 200-yard individual medley and swam a 1:01.7 in the 100-yard butterfly.

Other individual Prowler winners included Dan Heieren with a 24.3 in the 50-yard freestyle; Eric Thorsgard with a 57.7 in the 100-yard freestyle; and Keith Poissant with a 1:19.7 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Thief River Falls also won both relay races. The Prowler 200-yard medley relay unit of Cork, Storhaug, Kevin Murphy and Poissant won in 1:50.3 while the Prowler 400-yard freestyle foursome of Murphy, Greg Omdahl, Cork and Heieren finished with a 3:38.5.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

December 22, 1975
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
December 9, 1975

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., December 9, 1975.

Members present: Hanson, Christianson, Napiin, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Clair C. Larson, Leonard Skaar and others, representing the Soil Conservation District Board appeared and presented a budget request for 1976. The Conservation program was reviewed briefly. The request was unusually high when compared to previous requests and the County Board felt the matter should be studied further. The request was referred back to the Soil Conservation Board for study. The S.C.S. Board then discussed the possibility of the County participating in the organization of a RC&D Assoc. (Resource Conservation & Development Assoc.) The matter was discussed for some time and the Board asked for more information and took the matter under advisement.

Commissioner Christianson then introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the County of Pennington has determined to participate in the imrpovement of CSAH No. 17 (Pennington Avenue) from First Street South a distance of 1.1 miles to the South City Limits of Thief River Falls by the construction of grading, drainage, storm sewers, concrete curb and gutter and bituminous surfacing; construction plans for which have been prepared by the City Engineer, approved by Pennington County and the State Aid Division of the Minnesota Department of Highways, and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Highways as Agent for the City did on December 2, 1975 receive sealed proposals for construction of said project, and

WHEREAS, the bid of Thorson, Inc. of Bemidji, Minnesota in the amount of $437,187.35 is the lowest and best of ten (10) bids submitted, and

WHEREAS, the City of Thief River Falls did on this date award a contract to Thorson, Inc. subject to concurrence by Pennington County and the Commissioner of Highways,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the County Board of Pennington County does hereby concur is such award, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, in accordance with the conditions of the Co-operative Agreement entered into by the City of Thief River Falls and Pennington County the estimated funds for financing of the project are as follows:

City Funds	$152,617.30
FAU Funds	212,032.48
County Funds	116,256.31

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the County Auditor is hereby authorized and directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the City of Thief River Falls and the Commissioner of Highways.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Napiin and upon vote declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Napiin that the County proceed to apply for a Community Development Grant from HUD for development of a Sanitary Landfill in Pennington County. Public participation is required for such a Grant and the Auditor is hereby directed to provide for Public Hearings to be held in the City of Goodridge in the City Hall on December 29th at 1:30 P.M. and in the City of Thief River Falls in the 1st Floor Meeting Room in the Courthouse on Tuesday, December 30th at 1:30 P.M. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Treasurer Jorgenson visited with the County Board about the new requirements for Tax Statements and other new tax measures mandated by the Legislature. The Legislature has provided for certain procedures and forms to be used but has provided no funds where it is obviously going to require possibly 3 to 4 times more work in just the preparation of the forms. Additional Clerk hire will be necessary in both the offices of the Treasurer and Auditor and the Board agreed to provide needed funds.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Hanson that the designation of the First Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis as a County Depository for County Funds be approved. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Christianson that the sum of $150. be appropriated and paid to the O.E.O. of Oklee to cover expenses of Committee participants. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Christianson that the fee for 'On Sale' Non-Intoxicating Malt Liquor Licenses be $10.00 and the fee for "Off Sale" Licenses shall be $5.00 per year. The following applications for licenses for the year 1976 were approved: Mrs. Lorraine Groven (Highlanding Store), On & Off Licenses; Mrs. Gertrude Carpenter (Numedal Twp.), On & Off Licenses; Clifford M. Olson (Rocksbury Twp.), On & Off Licenses. Motion declared unanimously carried.

The Board received applications for County Liquor Licenses from Clifford M. Olson. Moved by Stenberg second by Napiin that a County Liquor License be granted Clifford M. Olson doing business as Kife's Cafe for the year 1976 for a fee of $1,200.00 per annum. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Copies Of 1976 Fishing Laws Are Available

Copies of the 1976 fishing regulations are being shipped to county auditors and license agents, the department of natural resources announced, and should be available from most sources very shortly.

Officials urged fishermen to study the regulations before venturing onto state lakes and streams.

LINCOLN HIGH school senior Mark Storhaug won two events Thursday to help lead Thief River Falls past Moorhead 111-56 in a dual swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool. Storhaug is shown enroute to a first place finish in the 100-yard butterfly. He also won the 200-yard individual medley as the Prowlers upped their dual meet season record to 4-0.

Crappie Fishing

From our observations we have reached the conclusion that the crappie is the most popular winter fish in Minnesota. This year in Lake Minnetonka the crappie lead the "hit parade". In most of Minnesota's lakes the crappie is doing very well in pleasing the ice fisherman.

The bait, strange as it may seem, is a minnow on a hook, but never use minnows that are more than two inches in length.

The average size of the crappie will vary from one-half to one-pound. However, many two-pounders have been taken and there are reports of three-pounders being taken. The state record in Minnesota is five pounds, caught by Tom Christenson back in 1940. It was taken in the Vermillion river in Dakota county.

Big Walleye

Largest Walleye reported to this column so far this season was caught by Francis Eicher of Buffalo. Eicher was with a party of three fishermen that walked out from Vineland Bay on the west side of Mille Lacs on four inches of good ice. Fishing in 15 feet of water they caught ten walleyes on gold pike jiggers and fathead minnows. Eicher's walleye weighed ten-pounds, eight-ounces. It was 17-½ inches in girth and 31-½ inches in length.

Spearing

Fish spearing season opened December 1. To date no big northern pike have been reported, although some in the ten to 15 pound class are being reported.

Spearing includes northern pike, catfish and whitefish, but no others.

A fisherman must have three licenses tp spear in a dark house. In addition to his angling license, he must have a special spearing license, and another license for the dark house. He cannot spear in a dark house when it is being used for angling.

SFI

Effective November 1, 1975, Gilbert C. Radonski has joined the sport fishing institute as executive secretary. Gil brings to the SFI fifteen years of experience in fisheries research and management. His unique work experience covers the spectrum of state, federal and private industry.

Radonski received his education and training in fish management at the University of Minnesota, graduating in 1960 with a B.S. degree in fish management.

He began his professional career in 1960 as assistant hatchery manager for the U.S. fish and wildlife service at the Inks dam national fish hatchery, Burnet, Texas.

In 1962, he accepted a position with the Wisconsin department of natural resources as a fish manager trainee. Six months later he was promoted to area fish biologist. His duties included lake trout management, studies of the effects of copper and zinc on the incubation and larval stages of the muskellunge, lake and stream surveys, and researching herbicides and fish toxicants.

Advice Offered For Accidents On Frozen Lakes

Minnesota department of natural resources (DNR) has listed several tips for those venturing out on frozen streams and lakes this winter.

Always make sure the ice is safe by inquiring locally. Remember it takes at least four to six inches to support a person and at least eight to twelve inches is necessary for an automobile.

If someone else falls through the ice, resist the urge to run up to the hole to pull the person out. Instead use an extension, such as a rope, branch, small boat or a human chain of rescuers lying on the ice. Seek medical attention immediately.

It is a good idea to wear a life jacket when snowmobiling on frozen lakes or streams.

A person who breaks through the ice should avoid panic. A fall into the water with heavy clothing or a snowmobile suit does not usually mean a quick trip to the bottom. Instead, these items provide flotation by trapping air inside. Even most snowmobile helmets are buoyant.

At the same time, these items also provide some degree of protection against the chilling effects of cold water.

To get back up on the ice again, make sure the ice will support you. Then put both hands flat on the ice, as far apart and as far from the edge as possible, duck below the water and boost yourself out, but don't stand. Instead, roll away from the hole until you feel the ice will hold your walking weight.

December 22, 1975
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
December 9, 1975

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., December 9, 1975.

Members present: Hanson, Christianson, Napiln, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Clair C. Larson, Leonard Skaar and others, representing the Soil Conservation District Board appeared and presented a budget request for 1976. The Conservation program was reviewed briefly. The request was unusually high when compared to previous requests and the County Board felt the matter should be studied further. The request was referred back to the Soil Conservation Board for study. The S.C.S. Board then discussed the possibility of the County participating in the organization of a RC&D Assoc. (Resource Conservation & Development Assoc.) The matter was discussed for some time and the Board asked for more information and took the matter under advisement.

Commissioner Christianson then introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the County of Pennington has determined to participate in the imrpovement of CSAH No. 17 (Pennington Avenue) from First Street South a distance of 1.1 miles to the South City Limits of Thief River Falls by the construction of grading, drainage, storm sewers, concrete curb and gutter and bituminous surfacing; construction plans for which have been prepared by the City Engineer, approved by Pennington County and the State Aid Division of the Minnesota Department of Highways, and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Highways as Agent for the City did on December 2, 1975 receive sealed proposals for construction of said project, and

WHEREAS, the bid of Thorson, Inc. of Bemidji, Minnesota in the amount of $437,187.35 is the lowest and best of ten (10) bids submitted, and

WHEREAS, the City of Thief River Falls did on this date award a contract to Thorson, Inc. subject to concurrence by Pennington County and the Commissioner of Highways,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the County Board of Pennington County does hereby concur in such award, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, in accordance with the conditions of the Co-operative Agreement entered into by the City of Thief River Falls and Pennington County the estimated funds for financing of the project are as follows:

City Funds	$152,617.30
FAU Funds	212,032.48
County Funds	116,256.31

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the County Auditor is hereby authorized and directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the City of Thief River Falls and the Commissioner of Highways.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Napiln and upon vote declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Napiln that the County proceed to apply for a Community Development Grant from HUD for development of a Sanitary Landfill in Pennington County. Public participation is required for such a Grant and the Auditor is hereby directed to provide for Public Hearings to be held in the City of Goodridge in the City Hall on December 29th at 1:30 P.M. and in the City of Thief River Falls in the 1st Floor Meeting Room in the Courthouse on Tuesday, December 30th at 1:30 P.M. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Treasurer Jorgenson visited with the County Board about the new requirements for Tax Statements and other new tax measures mandated by the Legislature. The Legislature has provided for certain procedures and forms to be used but has provided no funds where it is obviously going to require possibly 3 to 4 times more work in just the preparation of the forms. Additional Clerk hire will be necessary in both the offices of the Treasurer and Auditor and the Board agreed to provide needed funds.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Hanson that the designation of the First Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis as a County Depository for County Funds be approved. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Christianson that the sum of $150. be appropriated and paid to the O.E.O. of Oklee to cover expenses of Committee participants. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Christianson that the fee for 'On Sale' Non-Intoxicating Malt Liquor Licenses be $10.00 and the fee for "Off Sale" Licenses shall be $5.00 per year. The following applications for licenses for the year 1976 were approved: Mrs. Lorraine Groven (Highlanding Store), On & Off Licenses; Mrs. Gertrude Carpenter (Numedal Twp.), On & Off Licenses; Clifford M. Olson (Rocksbury Twp.), On & Off Licenses. Motion declared unanimously carried.

The Board received applications for County Liquor Licenses from Clifford M. Olson. Moved by Stenberg second by Napiln that a County Liquor License be granted Clifford M. Olson doing business as Kife's Cafe for the year 1976 for a fee of $1,200.00 per annum. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Copies Of 1976 Fishing Laws Are Available

Copies of the 1976 fishing regulations are being shipped to county auditors and license agents, the department of natural resources announced, and should be available from most sources very shortly.

Officials urged fishermen to study the regulations before venturing onto state lakes and streams.

Crappie Fishing

From our observations we have reached the conclusion that the crappie is the most popular winter fish in Minnesota. This year in Lake Minnetonka the crappie lead the "hit parade". In most of Minnesota's lakes the crappie is doing very well in pleasing the ice fisherman.

The bait, strange as it may seem, is a minnow on a hook, but never use minnows that are more than two inches in length.

The average size of the crappie will vary from one-half to one-pound. However, many two-pounders have been taken and there are reports of three-pounders being taken. The state record in Minnesota is five pounds, caught by Tom Christenson back in 1940. It was taken in the Vermillion river in Dakota county.

Big Walleye

Largest Walleye reported to this column so far this season was caught by Francis Eicher of Buffalo. Eicher was with a party of three fishermen that walked out from Vineland Bay on the west side of Mille Lacs on four inches of good ice. Fishing in 15 feet of water they caught ten walleyes on gold pike jiggers and fathead minnows. Eicher's walleye weighed ten-pounds, eight-ounces. It was 17-½ inches in girth and 31-½ inches in length.

Spearing

Fish spearing season opened December 1. To date no big northern pike have been reported, although some in the ten to 15 pound class are being reported.

Spearing includes northern pike, catfish and whitefish, but no others.

A fisherman must have three licenses tp spear in a dark house. In addition to his angling license, he must have a special spearing license, and another license for the dark house. He cannot spear in a dark house when it is being used for angling.

SFI

Effective November 1, 1975, Gilbert C. Radonski has joined the sport fishing institute as executive secretary. Gil brings to the SFI fifteen years of experience in fisheries research and management. His unique work experience covers the spectrum of state, federal and private industry.

Radonski received his education and training in fish management at the University of Minnesota, graduating in 1960 with a B.S. degree in fish management.

He began his professional career in 1960 as assistant hatchery manager for the U.S. fish and wildlife service at the Inks dam national fish hatchery, Burnet, Texas.

In 1962, he accepted a position with the Wisconsin department of natural resources as a fish manager trainee. Six months later he was promoted to area fish biologist. His duties included lake trout management, studies of the effects of copper and zinc on the incubation and larval stages of the muskellunge, lake and stream surveys, and researching herbicides and fish toxicants.

Advice Offered For Accidents On Frozen Lakes

Minnesota department of natural resources (DNR) has listed several tips for those venturing out on frozen streams and lakes this winter.

Always make sure the ice is safe by inquiring locally. Remember—it takes at least four to six inches to support a person and at least eight to twelve inches is necessary for an automobile.

If someone else falls through the ice, resist the urge to run up to the hole to pull the person out. Instead use an extension, such as a rope, branch, small boat or a human chain of rescuers lying on the ice. Seek medical attention immediately.

It is a good idea to wear a life jacket when snowmobiling on frozen lakes or streams.

A person who breaks through the ice should avoid panic. A fall into the water with heavy clothing or a snowmobile suit does not usually mean a quick trip to the bottom. Instead, these items provide flotation by trapping air inside. Even most snowmobile helmets are buoyant.

At the same time, these items also provide some degree of protection against the chilling effects of cold water.

To get back up on the ice again, make sure the ice will support you. Then put both hands flat on the ice, as far apart and as far from the edge as possible, duck below the water and boost yourself out, but don't stand. Instead, roll away from the hole until you feel the ice will hold your walking weight.

Sugar Beet Board Report Produces New Optimism

Renewed optimism was expressed by members of the board of the Northern Minnesota Sugar Beet Development association at a meeting held Tuesday in Mahnomen, according to Clyde Christensen, Thief River Falls, chairman.

The meeting was held to review the preliminary financial projections prepared by Arthur Anderson and company accounting firm of Minneapolis and to assess their implication on future efforts of the development association. The report was viewed as highly favorable.

"The Arthur Anderson and company report is based on assumptions provided to the accounting firm by our development association board," Christensen said. "The information we provided was obtained for us by the leading firms in the United States on the sugar beet industry and the world sweetener market. Even using the conservative end of the projections made for us, the preliminary indications are very encouraging.

Terry Courneya, secretary of the association who is coordinating board activities, said the past six months have been somewhat frustrating as data was being gathered for a basis upon which the board would be required to make some very critical decisions.

"While the board is not yet in a position to make final decisions on the course of action to be taken," Courneya said following Tuesday's meeting, "They are encouraged to the point of proceeding aggressively toward the establishment of a new sugar beet refinery somewhere between Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls.

With the Arthur Little company projections of a relatively high refined sugar price on the average over the next decade or more, the board members are hopeful of favorable reaction from the major financial institutions with which the association is discussing long-term financing for factory construction, Couneya added.

"Even though there have been some delays in the receipt of information sought through studies ordered by the development board," Courneya said, "we are still very close to our projected timetable. Meetings have

UFO Sighting At Goodridge Tues.

Three Goodridge area girls are still a bit shaken and puzzled today following an experience involving an Unidentified Flying Object (UFO) about 11 p.m. yesterday on highway 1 just east of its intersection with highway 219 south of Goodridge.

Gilda Manderud, 19, her 16-year-old sister Lori and 15-year-old Tammy Johnsrud were returning home from the holiday girls' basketball tournament at Grygla when the incident occurred. Gilda was driving the 1969 model eight-cylinder car and the girls had dropped off a friend at Goodridge just prior to their experience.

In a Times telephone interview this morning, Gilda said she had just turned east on highway 1 when she noticed a light which she at first thought to be a sign ahead of the car. Then the object moved in front of the car, the vehicle's engine stopped, lights went out and it rolled to a stop.

Miss Manderud said the object was orange in color, flat on the top and bottom and round on the sides. She said it glowed brightly and that several flashing yellow lights appeared in the middle of the object which seemed to cover the entire roadway and was estimated to be only 20 to 30 feet in front of the car.

She estimated that the girls watched the object for about five minutes and then noticed a car approaching from the south on the road from Highlanding. The object then began to disappear, the car engine started by itself and the lights came back on. She backed the car to the intersection and the object disappeared. The girls talked to occupants of the other car, who had not seen the object and reportedly did not believe them. She drove home on the Highlanding road rather than proceed east on highway 1.

One person who has no doubts that the girls sighted a UFO is Mead Marquis who also sighted a UFO about 7:15 p.m. on Thanksgiving night about nine miles east of Goodridge. He was driving a new car west on a county road when he saw a glowing red object about half a mile ahead of him and several hundred feet south of the road.

He estimated the object to be about eight feet in diameter. He said it rose about 200 feet in the air, hovered for a few seconds and descended. It rose up again, then settled back to the ground. He stopped his car, turned around to return home and the engine began to stall. The last he saw of the object it was still on the ground. The new car, which had only a few miles on the odometer and had given no previous operating problem, was brought back to the dealer and required extensive tune-up.

Paul Rindahl, who was driving on highway 1 about two miles away, also saw the light at about the same time.

Another Crisis Past . . .

For Nepper Family It Is A Very Special Christmas

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Missy, a furry nine-year-old dog with a bobbed tail that wags all of the rest of her, is glad that Lisa is home for Christmas. So is the rest of the Nepper family at 817 Alice Drive in Thief River Falls. This will be a special Christmas for all of them.

Eleven-year-old Lisa is sure to be the focal point for Christmas at the Neppers when all of her five brothers and sisters will be home for the holiday. She is rapidly recovering from open heart surgery on December 1—performed by the same surgeon who operated on her father at the Variety Heart hospital at the University of Minnesota about a year and one-half ago.

Jim Nepper, Lisa's father, lived only 19 days after his surgery. Other complications—including kidney malfunction which necessitated a kidney transplant after Christmas in 1969 and required frequent hospitalization later—had left him in too weakened condition. The loss hit the family hard. "We're a normally emotional family," Ruth Nepper said of herself and her children. "Last Christmas we didn't do anything Christmasy at home. We splurged and went to a ski resort to just kind of get away from it all. When all the kids got together they had a lot of laughter and good natured fun and I think it was good for everybody."

There is a closeness in the Nepper family which can be felt even by the casual visitor. This year much of the affection is directed toward Lisa, the bright-eyed Mark Twain fifth grader who accepts all the attention philosophically. "I'm afraid I might get a little spoiled," she wrote in a letter to a friend. "I've been hearing that quite a bit lately."

In spite of the severity of her surgery, Lisa was only in the hospital for six days after the operation. But that was long enough for her to make a host of new friends among the hospital staff members. Her friends back home didn't forget her either.

If Christmas was only the receiving of gifts, it came early for Lisa. During her short stay in the hospital she received about 45 gifts and covered one wall with cards from friends and relatives. The response continued after she got home. One day she received from the university hospital a packet of 35 cards which had been received there after her discharge.

"This community is really something," Mrs. Nepper said. "People were great when Nep was in the hospital the last time (an 84-day stretch) and we seemingly had a crisis every week. Arctic Enterprises (Jim's employer) made plane travel available to all of the family to get to Minneapolis to visit him. The church had a prayer day. It seemed like everyone wanted to do something to help. They were the same way now when Lisa had her surgery. Imagine all those thoughts and prayers . . ."

Lisa's heart problem was detected by a local physician who heard a heart murmur during a routine check-up. She was referred to the cardiac clinic held locally under sponsorship of the women's club and then to the University

City Seeks Home Business Criteria

By referring two special use permit requests back to the city planning commission during a regular meeting Tuesday evening in the city auditorium council chambers, the Thief River Falls city council expressed a determination to develop regulations for home businesses in the city.

The council did not propose any specific regulations at the meeting last night, but instead voted 6-1 (Mayor Robert Carlson opposed) to send the requests back to the planning commission for reconsideration of the commissions' earlier recommendation to grant both permit requests. The councilmen are seeking rules and guidelines for the control of businesses in non-commercial zones which would establish criteria for approval of future special use permit requests. Several, if not all, of the councilmen are expected to attend the next planning commission meeting to discuss the matter.

At a December 9 meeting, the council had first considered the planning commission recommendations to grant special use permits to Winfield (Whitey) Olson of 302 Merriam avenue S. and James Kotz of 712 Red Lake boulevard. Olson plans to operate a sporting goods catalog mail order business in his home in partnership with Jack Boyer, Dale Folger and Robert Jury. Kotz is planning

Yule Parties Are Hosted By Catholic Women

Catholic Daughters of America, Ct. 2023, in cooperation with the Trinity Lutheran Golden Years choir and Rev. and Mrs. Harold Peterson, entertained the residents of the Northwestern hospital CNC unit at a Christmas party on Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Rev. Peterson, program chairman, opened the program with prayer after which everyone joined in singing "O Come, All Ye Faithful", accompanied by Mrs. Peterson at the piano.

A number of the residents participated in portraying the Nativity scene. Joining Mary and the Baby Jesus was Joseph, portrayed by Bill Johnson. Two shepherds—Tarkel Ose and Elmer Olson—and three wisemen—John Johnson, Henry Grondahl and Robert Santer—also were in the scene, as the Trinity Golden Years choir sang "What Child Is This?" to continue the Christmas story.

In developing his theme for the meditation, Rev. Peterson had four candles lit symbolizing Prophecy, Promise, Longing and Fulfillment. Five resident ladies, Dagmar Sanden, Mrs. Ailport, Mrs. Carlson, Ellen Knutson and Camille Dostal, wearing silver crowns on their heads, read scripture verses to correspond with the message of each candle.

The group sang "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks", after which Rev. Peterson closed the program with prayer. All residents and guests then joined in singing "Silent Night".

Mrs. Louise Fisher, Mrs. Clara Stein, Mrs. Frances Oski and Mrs. Angeline Breznay, C.D.A. members who regularly visit hospital patients twice a month, were hostesses for the event, serving Christmas cookies and fresh fruit provided by the Court.

Mrs. Ray Rausch, Mrs. Robert Kraemer and Mrs. Eva Lendobeja, members of Catholic Daughters of America who visit Hanson's Rest home every month, treated the 15 residents there on December 10 to fresh fruit and Christmas goodies.

Three Infants Baptized At St. John Lutheran

Three infants were baptized at St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls on December 14. They include Keith Allen Martinson, Brett Michael Peterson and Guy Andrew Drevlow. Rev. Paul Biegner of St. John church administered the sacrament.

Keith Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Martinson. His sponsor was Mrs. Marilyn Myers of Princeton.

Brett Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Peterson. Sponsors were Allen and Sandra Bertilrud of Red Lake Falls.

Guy Andrew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Drevlow. Witnesses were Mary Elizabeth Hunter and Howard Hunter.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

by Ellen M. Spray

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

With misty eyes, this grandmother listened to little voices singing the Christmas story, "In a little stable far across the sea, Was a little baby, Just like you and me. Not a bed or cradle, Not a pillow deep, Just a lonely stable, Was His place to sleep. O, I love the Savior, Who was little then, Who came down from heaven, For the sake of men."

The children, unconcerned that their crowns were tilted to one side and that their capes were crooked, proclaimed the true message of Christmas. As I watched their beaming faces, I thought, "Christmas is for children."

Later in the day, I attended another program with other grandchildren participating. There too, the children sang the age-old song, "I am so glad each Christmas Eve". As they sang, I recalled Christmases of years ago, when I attended six o'clock services on Christmas morning and heard my parents sing the Swedish version of that same song. I also recalled the sky studded with stars as we rode to church in the horse-drawn sleigh, of trying to keep warm under the cold quilts on the way home and the cold house that awaited our return. And I thought, "Christmas is for remembering."

As the voices read, "And they offered Him gifts, gold, frankincense and myrrh," I recalled a sermon heard several years ago when a pastor said, "They gave Him the best they had, not just what was left over after all their personal wants had been satisfied." In a flash I saw the widow I had planned to visit and hadn't, the letter started but never finished, the phone call of encouragement I had planned to make and didn't, and the times I should have spent more time with the lonely, elderly folks who extended their hands in greeting; and I thought, "Christmas is for re-evaluation."

When the little ones walked down the aisle, their little faces beamed as they spied their parents and grandparents in the crowd. Parents in turn, smiled back at their children, forgetting that Johnny had wiggled, that Tom had refused to give his "piece" and that Mary had played with her hair. Love was everywhere. Was "Christmas is for loving" the answer?

Throughout the week, the question, What is Christmas, haunted me. One evening, while visiting with Tiny Grandma, a group of college girls visited the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital. As their carols filled the rooms, I thought of the people who would be facing their "first" Christmas with an empty chair, the family who had lost their home by fire, the ones who had just received the verdict, "There is nothing that can be done," and especially of the grand couple, who are always giving of themselves, who had the misfortune of breaking bones, one day apart. As the carolers' voices faded down the halls, I thought, they had revealed the answer, "Christmas is for sharing."

Arriving home in 25 below zero weather, the sky was clear. In the bright circle around the moon, was a single star, just like the star that guided the wisemen to the manger. Again I seemed to hear the chorus sung by the Sunday school children on Sunday morning at their program. "To God be the glory, great things He hath done, So loved He the world that He gave us His son, Who yielded His life an atonement for sin, And opened the Life-gate that all may go in. Praise the Lord, praise the Lord, Let the earth hear His voice! Praise the Lord, praise the Lord, Let the people rejoice! O come to the Father thru Jesus the Son and give Him the glory, Great things He has done."

I had found the answer. Christmas (not just for December 25, 1975, but for every day) is for Thanksgiving.

Yule Program Given By WCTU At Valley Home

The Alice Mae Stuart Women's Christian Temperance Union met at the Valley Home on December 9, with each member in attendance bringing Christmas breads, lefse and fatigmand for the residents to enjoy for lunch. After the coffee time, the guests and residents gathered in the chapel area of the dining room for a Christmas program.

Various selections of Christmas readings and poetry were presented by members, as well as a number of carols sung by all. The program began with the singing of "Joy to the World" with the accompaniment of Miss Agnes Longren at the piano.

Mrs. Otto Netteland read "Christmas Greetings" and Mrs. Edwin Hanson shared "For Friends" by Norman Vincent Peale and "On Prayer" by Billy Graham. The singing of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" followed.

Agnes Longren then read "The First Gift of Christmas" and "A Christmas Prayer" by Robert Louis Stevenson, after which Mrs. A. F. Berg conducted a time of devotions from Luke 2:1-20, adding a Christmas meditation from "Thy Kingdom Come" by Ludvig Hope.

"O, Little Town of Bethlehem", was sung and Mrs. Olga Larson read "A Christmas Prayer", followed by an article from "Scope" read by Mrs. Hildur Lien entitled "Christmas".

After Mrs. Anna Johnsrud had given the poem "The Secret Place of Prayer", everyone sang "Silent Night" and the program was concluded with spoken prayer and the Lord's Prayer.

Wilcox-Skjerven Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilcox of Newfolden have announced the engagement of their daughter, Julie Marie, to Corey Don Skjerven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Skjerven of Viking.

The bride-to-be is a 1975 graduate of Marshall county central high school in Newfolden, and is attending Northland community college in Thief River Falls.

Skjerven is a 1973 graduate of Marshall county central high school and is employed in this city by Amundgaard's.

A June wedding is being planned.

Orville Jopprus To Note Their 30th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Joppru will be honored at an open house on Sunday in observance of their 30th wedding anniversary.

The open house will be held at their home at 908 North Horace avenue in Thief River Falls. Hours will be from 2 to 4 p.m.

The couple's children are hosting the event and invite all friends and relatives to attend.

Diane Taylor-G. Bulger Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor of St. Hilaire announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to Greg Bulger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bulger of rural Thief River Falls.

Miss Taylor is a 1975 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. Bulger is a 1972 graduate of Lincoln high school. No wedding date has been set.

Mervin Roppes' 25th Anniversary Is Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Roppe of Minneapolis, formerly of Strathcona, were honored by many friends and relatives as they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on November 8.

Hosts and hostesses for the event were the couple's three children and families: Naomi Bliss, her husband Pat, and daughter Martina; Bonnie Roppe and her fiance, Dale Wojtowicz; and Leland Roppe.

An open house was given in the afternoon at their home with approximately 100 guests in attendance.

Mrs. Roppe wore a corsage of yellow and orange roses, while her husband's boutonniere was a yellow carnation centered with a tiny orange rose.

A three-tiered wedding cake centered the candlelit table at the open house. The cake was decorated with orange roses and topped with a silver 25th crown. The cake sat atop a green-tinted water fountain with floating white roses.

The couple's best man, Norman Roppe, was the only attendant present. The other groomsman and two bridesmaids were unable to attend.

A dance followed in the evening at the Knights of Columbus hall in Minneapolis. Two-hundred guests enjoyed the entertainment provided by the Mylan Ruud band of Gatzke and Leland Roppe's band of Minneapolis.

Those in attendance from this area were: Mr. and Mrs. Dale Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Donavan Ruud, Thief River Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leach, Jr., Holt; Mr. and Mrs. George Severts and Darrell, Middle River; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Roppe and Kevin, Strathcona; Mr. and Mrs. Engvold Rud, Greenbush; Mrs. Edwin Lund, Mr. and Mrs. Mylan Ruud, Dwight and Doreen and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rogers, Gatzke; and Mr. and Mrs. Milo Hagen, Grygla.

TRF Students In St. Olaf Music Groups

Two Thief River Falls students are among members of St. Olaf college music groups who are participants in the college's Christmas festival concerts which were video-taped for television broadcast throughout the upper midwest this Christmas season.

Gregory Carter, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Carter, is a member of the St. Olaf college Viking chorus and Anne Saetre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Saetre, is a member of the campus choir.

Techniques for diagnosing fetal defects can help save lives, reports The National Foundation-March of Dimes. In a 1974 MOD survey of some 2,000 women who sought prenatal diagnosis, more than 97 per cent were assured that their children would be born without the defect tested for.

Turn Discarded Kitchen Items Into Feeders

What have old coat hangers, hubcaps, wooden salad bowls, hardware cloth and onion bags got to do with birdwatching?

Such discarded household items—if properly fashioned into feeding stations—may help you attract hundreds of colorful birds to your backyard this winter, according to the current (December-January) issue of "National Wildlife" magazine.

George H. Harrison, field editor of the "National Wildlife" federation publication, reports that with a dozen homemade feeders and a recirculating pool of water he has lured as many as 20 different species and more than 100 birds at a time to the backyard of his Wisconsin home.

And what birds! By placing his feeders at the right locations and stocking them with the proper food, Harrison has hosted and photographed such specimens as downy, hairy and redheaded woodpeckers, brown creepers, crossbills, purple finches and redpolls, he says in his illustrated article.

Suet feeders are the key to attracting some birds that the average householder rarely sees. They can be made from old coat hangers, pulled into a diamond shape, or from onion bags, or from hardware cloth formed into a cylinder shape, with a plastic coffee can lid at the bottom to hold the tallow.

Most birds eat beef suet, according to Harrison's report to "National Wildlife" federation members, but the white tallow in hanging feeders attracts some insect-eating birds, such as woodpeckers, which are not interested in seeds.

Harrison also reports that if you "regard some species as pests, you can discourage English sparrows, blackbirds, grackles, starlings and cowbirds by feeding only sunflower seeds." The problem is this will also discourage juncos and mourning doves. The "undesirable species prefer cracked corn, so if you buy a birdseed mixture that contains no cracked corn, you can tread the middle course," Harrison says. But "if you want to zero in on finches, nuthatches, chickadees, grosbeaks, redpolls and crossbills, stick to 100 per cent sunflower seeds."

With his homemade feeders costing nothing, Harrison says his greatest expense is the seed he buys. But he has cut down his seed bill by shopping around for bargains and buying it in 50 pound bags.

Apartment dwellers, as well as home owners, can maintain feeding stations, the "National Wildlife" article says, but the "ideal setup" is still a backyard patio station, with feeders at different levels and surrounded by trees and shrubs.

Harrison, who stocks some of his feeders in the summer as well as winter, is apparently not discouraged by raids on his station by other animals. In addition to squirrels, he has observed cottontail rabbits, raccoons and opossums at his ground feeders. Remarkably, he is even tolerant of a pair of chipmunks that carried 100 pounds of wild bird mixture to their underground home last fall."

Congress has appropriated funds to let Internal Revenue Service add 1,300 new employees next year. Will this bring a sharp rise in audits? Not likely; that many people were needed just to handle IRS' expanded work load.

James Richards Is Author Of Folk Art Book

James F. Richards Jr., known to a number of Thief River Falls area residents for his work in blasting of wildlife water areas with ammonium nitrate, is co-author with Donald E. Gilbertson of a book on Norwegian folk art.

Entitled "A Treasury of Norwegian Folk Art in America", the book contains many black and white and color photographs of art objects from collections and private ownership. It is believed to be the only book on this subject to ever be published.

Richards is a native of Edina where he played on the Edina hockey team against Thief River Falls some years ago. The book is being sold locally through the Bethany Book store.

Dates Set For Third Annual DWI Seminar

Third annual DWI Counterattack seminar for administrators and instructors for over 40 DWI (Driving While Intoxicated) rehabilitation clinics throughout Minnesota will be held January 21-23 at Arrowwood Lodge in Alexandria, it has been announced.

Sponsoring the seminar will be the Minnesota State automobile association (AAA), which has been very active in recent years in the DWI Counterattack program.

Highlights of the two-day seminar include: organization of a Minnesota DWI association with election of officers and a board of directors; a panel discussion on current problems involving arrest, conviction and sentences of DWI offenders; and a film festival introducing new and informative visual aids for schools and instructors.

In addition to the Minnesota school instructors, county court judges and law enforcement officers, trainees in alcoholism counseling and the general public are invited to attend the seminar.

Registration may be made by contacting James E. Fox, chemical dependency coordinator, West Central community services center, Inc., Willmar.

If the Shoe Fits..

More on good shoe fitting.

As stated last week, the start of a good fit is to have the ball of the foot exactly in the widest part of the shoe. This will assure an excellent inside arch fit with adequate toe room. With an appropriate measuring device, we can measure both heel-to-toe length and also heel-to-ball of the foot length. In most cases the heel-to-ball measurement translated into shoe length will show a larger size. A size 6 heel-to-toe measure may read a 6½ or 7 on the heel-to-ball measure. It is most appropriate to fit with the larger 6½ or 7.

This will also insure a person with weak arches plenty of toe room. A weak arch foot spreads out abnormally when pressure is applied. When we take this heel-to-ball measurement, we shoe fitters have to consider if a person has a long arch-short toe combination, or a short arch-long toe, or any other unique combination. In some cases a person will measure a size 7 heel-to-toe but only a size 6 heel-to ball. In such case, the shoeman should select a last of shoe which has a long 'vamp' for accurate fitting. You can begin to understand the need for training and experience in shoe fitting if the customer is to be properly fitted and avoid foot troubles.

92,683 Minn. Unemployment Active Claims

Minnesotans in active claims status for employment benefits totaled 92,683 for the week ending December 5, an increase of 4,387 over the previous week, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota Department of Employment Services reported recently.

Currently five unemployment programs are in force in Minnesota—the regular program and four supplementary programs.

Initial claims filed under the regular program totaled 8,393 down 462 from the previous week and down 1,019 from the corresponding week a year ago. Total number of active regular claims was 59,774, up 3,841 from the previous week. Initial claims under the four supplementary programs totaled 3,180.

For the week of November 28, the latest for which figures are available, total amount of benefits paid was $3,902,545 including $2,365,532 in regular benefits. Since the first of the year, $164,716,361 in regular benefits has been paid, $70,574,008 more than in the same period last year. Amount paid under all supplementary programs since the first of the year was $68,849,822.

Area Students Gain Dean's List At UMC

Area students who attend the University of Minnesota technical college at Crookston (UMC) who were named to the dean's list for fall quarter include Judy Mosbeck, rural Red Lake Falls, and Paul Solberg, Goodridge.

Students who receive a grade point average of from 3.5 to 3.9 (4.0 is A) and who took 12 or more credits are eligible for the dean's list honor. Of the 930 students enrolled at UMC during fall quarter, 91 were named to the dean's list, representing approximately 10 per cent of the total student body.

USMA Officials Fear Lack Of Women Cadets

When President Ford signed into law the bill admitting women to West Point back in October, only a handful of women had actually written for information about admission to the military academy and less than a dozen had begun the formal paperwork.

Officials there were concerned that not enough women would apply, since it was hoped that as many as 100 women could be admitted with the class of 1980 next July 7th. Only about one in every nine applicants is ultimately accepted.

While there has been a dramatic increase in the pool of female applicants, it is not yet large enough for the admissions process to be as selective for women as it is for men—which by law it has to be.

Nearly 8,000 men and 150 women have already applied for the 1,400 places in the class of 1980, and another 3,000 applications are expected before the end of January deadline.

In addition to meeting all of the other requirements for admission, each cadet candidate must be nominated for the military academy by a congressional or service-related source, a process which requires considerable lead time.

Service-related nominations are available to enlisted soldiers on active, reserve or guard status; dependents of career military personnel and the graduates of high school ROTC programs and certain military schools.

For more information regarding the educational and military opportunities available to yound men and women interested in attending West Point, Major Allen Nichols, a military academy liaison officer, may be contacted at Thief River Falls 681-2918 to answer admissions-related questions.

Enlisted soldiers who are nominated for West Point are eligible for their first taste of cadet life at the U.S. military academy preparatory school at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., which helps them qualify for admission through an intensive program of academics and athletics. USMA Prep will begin admitting women in January.

New Horizons Conference Set At Concordia

Concordia college will host the sixth annual New Horizons conference on January 8-11 in the Knutson center and Memorial auditorium. "Let's Talk About the Holy Spirit" is the theme of the gathering for evangelists, churchmen and the public.

This year, the conference will feature two keynote speakers, Dr. Olaf Hansen of Luther seminary, St. Paul, and the Rev. Robert Turnbull, known as the chaplain of Waikiki Beach.

Special features of the conference will be the presentation of "Lilywoode," a musical drama based on the story by J.R.R. Tolkien. The New Kingsmen, a Christian vocal group, will also perform.

The kick-off event will be on January 7 at 7:30 p.m. The program will be held in conjunction with the Wednesday evening communion service in the Centrum of the Knutson center. Rev. Turnbull will show slides of his ministry at Waikiki Beach, and music will be provided by several musical groups.

The opening session will be held on January 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the Centrum, with presentations by Dr. Hansen and Pastor Turnbull. Conference sessions will continue on Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Memorial auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday, January 10, is Youth Day for area high school students. The morning session will feature Pastor Rollie Martinson, pastor of Hope Lutheran Church in Fargo. Small group discussions in the afternoon will focus on: "How to Witness Effectively," "The Value of Prayer and Praise," "Let's Talk About Love," "Freedom in the Spirit," and "Making Worship Alive." The closing rally on Saturday will be at Trinity Lutheran church of Moorhead at 3 p.m., featuring Pastor Turnbull.

A special campus worship service will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m. in Memorial auditorium. Dr. Hansen will speak, while the Concordia campus pastors will be liturgists.

The public is invited to attend this event and share in the unique learning experience.

City Council Seeks Criteria On Business

a catalog order business for the sale of guns and hunting supplies.

A group of downtown merchants who sell these goods opposed the permit requests, stating that the home businesses present unfair competition to merchants operating in a commercial zone. Since Olson was unable to appear at the Dec. 9 meeting, the council postponed action on both requests to the Dec. 23 meeting.

Last night Olson and Kotz maintained that their businesses would be part-time operations to supplement their income as teachers, and if their volume should indicate expansion is necessary, they would be willing to move into a commercial zone. Both men have said they have received no opposition from neighbors to their plans.

Councilman Ambrose Wysoski stated that it is time the council and planning commission faced the question of just how many businesses would be allowed to operate in neighborhoods, and how these businesses should be regulated. By voting in favor of the motion, the majority of the council agreed.

Council members have stressed that their concern is motivated by a desire for stronger variance requirements and is not governed by the downtown merchants' fear of unfair competition. When Kotz asked how they could make that stipulation "with a straight face" he was strongly rebuked by councilman Roger Worth.

In other matters, the council accepted a recommendation by the liquor committee and resolved that the city shall retain off-sale liquor store manager Bill Peterson and two other full-time employees with highest senority to operate the city off-sale facility on Highway 59. Peterson will have the authority to hire part-time personnel. The action prompted councilman William Penning to resign from the liquor committee. He felt the personnel restriction is too stringent, and would cause more liquor store problems than he would have time to consider.

Also approved were an agreement to add Goodridge and St. Hilaire to the existing Pennington county-Thief River Falls common civil defense organization, a recommendation from utilities superintendent John T. Anderson to promote Donald Laidley to line foreman and adjustment in the salaries of city clerical and secretarial salary schedules by 40 cents per hour on top classifications.

New Optimism Felt By Sugar Beet Board

been set during the next 30 days which will provide the some 335 farmers who comprise the development association membership with some rather firm estimates of their cost and potential returns.

"On the basis of this information, all farmers who have signed up and contributed to the association before the cut-off point last spring will be asked to indicate their firm intention to purchase production contracts before applications from other potential producers are sought. Those who have already signed up will be receiving more complete details of the association's activities through the mail in the next few days."

Courneya noted that the approximately 335 members of the association represent 65,000 acres registered for sugar beet production. Each of the association members paid $100 for membership, and these funds have been used in the gathering of information leading up to the determination of plant feasibility and discussions on long-term financing.

"We are on the brink of some very exciting opportunities for farmers and others in the development association area," Courneya said. The area is generally located between highways 75 and 59 or 32 from Becker and Clay counties on the south into Roseau and Kittson counties on the north.

Developments are expected to come rapidly in the next 30 days as scheduled meetings are held and major decisions are made. The board is dedicated to exerting its best efforts to bring the project to reality, Courneya added.

N.F.O. SALE of beef and cheese products totaled approximately $3,000 last week with 10 per cent of the gross sales contributed to the Minnesota kidney foundation. Buyers braved weather which started at 20 degrees below zero in the morning to make their purchases from the NFO truck parked in the city lot on Knight avenue. Largest purchase of the day was reported to be $300.

Christmas Is Special For Nepper Family

of Minnesota where x-rays were taken. They revealed a congenital defect which had been present since birth—a portion of the aorta which had not been fully developed and therefore deprived the liver, kidneys and lower limbs of a direct blood supply.

Surgery need not have been imminent. It could have waited until next summer after school had been dismissed. In fact, doctors agreed that even if the defect had been known shortly after birth, surgery would not have been likely until about this stage of Lisa's life. But the family decided it would like to have the surgery done before Christmas.

"You learn to think positive about things like this," Ruth said. "It's a shock at first. But if you give yourself time to get things in their proper perspective, you begin to see some blessings in disguise. We could have been worrying about Lisa for years without being able to do anything. Instead, we found out about the defect now and the doctors were able to correct it. I was one thing Nep never had to worry about."

Dr. Bessinger, cardiologist, and Dr. Nicoloff, surgeon, combined in the corrective surgery which lasted from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. December 1. They removed the undeveloped section of the aorta and reconnected the remaining parts. They also removed one of Lisa's ribs. In the evening of the next day (Tuesday) the hospital staff had her out of bed and walking. On Sunday she came home.

"She probably could have gone to school the next day," her mother said, "but with so much flu around I decided to keep her home. But she got to every Christmas concert and party, including her class party." Her teacher, Miss Gloria Swanson, had asked to be kept informed about Lisa's condition, but she was hospitalized with pneumonia at the same time Lisa was in the Minneapolis hospital.

In addition to Ruth and four of the Nepper children, several other people were in Minneapolis when Lisa had her surgery. They were Lisa's uncle Jack Nepper of Omaha (who had donated a kidney for his brother Jim's transplant), Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ness and Mrs. Bob Bergan of Thief River Falls.

Lisa had her stitches removed and her initial check-ups done locally. She is due in Minneapolis for a check-up in March.

But now, like most 11-year-olds, she is looking forward to Christmas eve. Her sister Barb and brother Tom of Minneapolis, sisters Gayle, Sally and Kathy of Thief River Falls and her niece and nephew Kristi and Chad will all be there. It will be the first Christmas together at home for the family in a number of years.

"I guess it takes seven people to raise a person that secure," Ruth says of her youngest daughter, and the role her family has played. Lisa has weathered the storm in high spirits and good humor.

Courage at 817 Alice Drive is more than a word in a movie title or on a book jacket. It's a way of life. For the family that lives there, the Christmas message of the coming of the Gift of Life will be a little clearer and deeper this year.

Merry Christmas!

Aliens In U.S. Required To Report Address

Jay A. Palmer, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization service, St. Paul, stated that the law requires all aliens in the United States, with few exceptions, to report their addresses during the month of January. Diplomats and those persons accredited to certain international organizations are not required to make this report. Forms I-53, the card with which to report, may be obtained from any post office or any office of the Immigration and Naturalization service. After filling it out, place a postage stamp on the reverse of this card and drop the card in any mail box. Parents or guardians of alien children under the age of fourteen are required to submit address reports for such children.

Social security number should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the Immigration and Naturalization service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

Palmer urges all aliens to comply with the reporting requirements as willful failure to do so may lead to serious consequences.

The first successful attempt to treat an unborn child for an often fatal, inherited desease was carried out in 1973 by grantees of The National Foundation-March of Dimes. The child, diagnosed before birth as having a rare metabolic desease, is healthy today.

Enrollment At Northland CC Rises Again

Enrollment figures released by Dennis Bendickson, registrar at Northland community college, reveal interesting enrollment statistics for the 1976 winter quarter at Northland.

Total enrollment including full and part-time students is 525, an increase of 23 students over this year's fall quarter.

In analyzing the total enrollment statistics, Bendickson reports 273 full-time, 186 part-time and 66 non-credit students enrolled in daytime and evening course offerings which includes 308 men and 217 women. Students represent a wide geographic area of 45 Minnesota communities, nine other states and three foreign countries.

Head count enrollment including full and part-time students is 525 with full-time equivalency, the second highest in the history of Northland, set at 352.

Full-time equivalency (F.T.E.) is a most significant figure and is determined by dividing the total number of student credit hours for the quarter by 15 credit hours—and when calculated over a yearly basis (three quarters) it is the basis upon which funding is arrived at by the state legislature for staffing purposes.

In comparing F.T.E. with the winter quarter one year ago, Northland has shown an appreciable increase of 66 F.T.E. or 32 per cent. This increase is attributable to more students taking a larger credit load.

Unused Cars To Be Towed Fri.

To facilitate snow removal, Kenneth Froschheiser, chief of police, announced that all unused and apparently abandoned cars on Thief River Falls streets will be towed away beginning Friday. Efforts will be made to contact the owners of the cars before removal, the chief said.

Happiness Is The Times

Services Held Tuesday For Loren Jung, 52

Funeral services for Loren Jung, 52, of Buena Park, Calif., and formerly of Thief River Falls, were held on Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Green Funeral chapel in Thief River Falls. Jung died on December 18.

Rev. Jonathan Law and Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the services. Mrs. Sherman Idso was organist and soloist. Interment will be in the family plot at Greenwood cemetery. Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Wendell Olson, Wallace Tunberg, Carl Lee, Robert Bredeson, Orvis Oien and Roy Lee.

Loren Jung was born on Jan. 11, 1923 at Thief River Falls to the late Herbert and Edith Koebitz Jung. He graduated from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, attended the University of Minnesota and graduated from the American Institute of Baking in Chicago.

Jung served with the Air Force during World War II, serving in Okinawa. He was united in marriage to Lois Klennert on October 2, 1948 at Thief River Falls. He was associated with the Jung Bakery here until he moved to California in 1952.

Jung was presently employed at the Safeway Stores, Inc., bakery department.

He is survived by his wife, Lois, and one son, Christopher, at home; three daughters: Mrs. Jerry (Judi) Serin of Franklin, N.J.; Mrs. Ron (Patti) Remer of Mesa, Ariz.; and Mrs. Dan (Bobbi) Sumrall of Fullerton, Calif.; two grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Charles (Harriet) Elwen, of Arlington, Va.; and one brother, Victor, of LaMirada, Calif. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

He was preceded in death by his parents and one brother.

Through fiscal year 1975, the federal government has spent a total of $239 billion on benefits programs for veterans of all wars.

A. E. Olson, 81, Once Of TRF, Dies In Ala.

Graveside services for Arthur Emil Olson, 81, formerly of Thief River Falls, were held December 20 at 2:30 p.m. at Jefferson Memorial Gardens East, Garden of the Apostles in Birmingham, Ala. Arthur Olson died of congestive heart failure at the home of his daughter in Birmingham on December 19.

Rev. Bob Archibald officiated at the services.

Arthur Olson was born on May 3, 1894, to Olof R. and Bertha Peterson Olson in Grant county, Minnesota, the eighth of 13 children. He was married to Minnie Augusta Wollin of Stevens county on August 14, 1916. She died in April of 1964.

Olson lived in Thief River Falls from 1929 until 1965. In March, 1965, he married Malina "Nellie" Hanson of both Thief River Falls and Detroit Lakes. She died in April of 1970.

During the early years of his life, Olson farmed in Marshall county, but for the major portion of his life, he did a variety of construction work. Until the last 11 days of his life he lived in Minnesota, although his work took him many places.

He was an avid sportsman, a member of the Eagles Lodge and of Cormorant Lutheran church at Lake Park.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Roy (Mildred) Callahan, and two grandchildren; Michael Callahan and Mrs. Thomas (Kitty) Fant, all of Birmingham. Also, three stepsons: Herbert Hanson of Buena Vista, Calif., and Ernest aand Melvin Hanson, both of Minneapolis.

He was preceded in death by his parents, wives, and all of his brothers and sisters.

Services Today At Holt For Ralph Ness, 92

Funeral services for Ralph Ness, 92, of New Solum township, Marshall county, will be held today at 2 p.m. at Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt. Ness died at Northwestern hospital in this city December 20.

Rev. Duane Alpperspach will officiate at the services. Mrs. Oscar Fosholm will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Orville Larson at the organ. Interment will be in the Holt cemetery, with Green Funeral home in charge of the arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Elmer Korpi, Larry Korpi, Richard Korpi, Orlin Ness, David Ness and Marshall Ness.

Ralph Ness was born on Nov. 23, 1883, in Telemarken, Norway, to the late Tarje and Torbjor Ness. He attended school and grew up in Norway. He came to America in 1902 with his parents and family and settled in New Solum township, Marshall county, in rural Newfolden.

He worked for a time on the railroad and various jobs before he started farming in 1916. On Oct. 24, 1923 he was united in marriage to Letna Taggart at Warren. Since their marriage, they have lived and farmed in New Solum township. Ness served on the District No. 30 school board for several years.

He is survived by his wife, Letha and one son, Thomas, at home. Also, one sister, Mrs. Oscar (Anna) Moline of Superior, Wis., and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, one sister and five brothers.

Arthur Olson, 87, Dies Sun.; Services Today

Funeral services for Arthur O. Olson, 87, a resident of Valley Home in this city for the past several months, were held today at 10 a.m. in the Green Funeral chapel. Olson died at Northwestern hospital in this city on December 21.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home beginning at 12 noon Friday, and at the church for one hour prior to the time of service.

Outlaw Use Of Bald Tires In 40 States

Alabama has become the 40th state to ban bald tires from its highways, the Tire Industry safety council reported recently.

An amendment to the state code, effective Jan. 1, 1976, requires any automobile licensed for use on Alabama highways to have tires with a one sixteenth inch minimum tread depth.

Sale of bald tires or of vehicles equipped with such tires is also prohibited. Violation of the code is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $100.

"Alabama's action is a big step forward in highway safety, because bald and underinflated tires are the ones which get into accidents," said Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr., chairman of the Tire industry safety council.

Indiana university researchers who recently analyzed 1,305 auto accidents found only bald or underinflated tires involved in the 4.2 per cent of mishaps due to all "vehicular factors" including brakes, steering systems, lights and tires.

"Human factors," mainly driver errors, were blamed in 83.2 per cent of the accidents, with the balance due to "environmental factors" such as slick roads.

Enforcement of the tire safety law by the Alabama highway patrol will be during roadside spot checking of motor vehicle equipment and registration. Officers will carry tread depth gauges to check tire conditions. Tires with cuts, snags, bulges, exposed ply or cords or tread separation are also to be considered unsafe.

Laws requiring one-sixteenth inch minimum tire tread depth are now on the books in 39 states and the District of Columbia. California requires a one-thirty second inch minimum.

On Dec. 28, 1942, Capt. Robert O.D. Sullivan completed his 100th flight across the Atlantic becoming the first aviator to do so.

Christmas Holds Host Of Memories

by Ebba Sagmoen

Another Christmas is fast approaching and with it a crowding in of memories. I hope I can set in motion for you a set of memories. We see again the faces of those who have gone to their eternal home; we hear again the voices that have long been stilled. So come with me down memory lane.

Three weeks before Christmas my father must be off to the village to buy the all important item for the Christmas feast. Yes, I am sure you've guessed it—lutefisk! Technically, it wasn't lutefisk yet. In its dried form it looked for all the world like a piece of wood for the fireplace. Then cut into convenient lengths the fish was immersed in a solution of water and wood ashes in a large wooden pail. This step marked the beginning of Christmas preparation.

Then began such an orgy of housecleaning —everything has to be gone over with soap and water and lots of elbow grease. No flipping about with dust mop on highly waxed floor in those days. The twenty-fourth of December really was the busiest of the year both inside and out.

My father always left bundles of grain for the birds and the mangers were piled high with the sweetest hay and the stalls bedded deep with straw. By five o'clock Christmas Eve all work must be done and everyone clean and dressed in our best. Now while the fish and potatoes were put on to boil the family gathered in the large living room and mother read the ever-exciting story of the Christ child's birth. Our favorite was chapter two of St. Luke read to us in the Swedish language. I still love it that way best. Mother also sang beautiful hymns from memory learned at school in the old country.

After a half hour devotion, preparing our hearts for the real keeping of Christmas, we were ready for the evening's feast. After grace was said, we all sat down to the first course of a sweet fruit soup. After the soup course came the long awaited second course of big chunks of flaky lutefisk, rich cream gravy, boiled potatoes, rutabagas, and piles of flat bread or knackebrod.

We ate until we felt we couldn't eat another morsel, but when the rice pudding with its surface delicately browned was placed before us we all managed to find room for it somehow.

Now came the fun of trimming the tree which my father had set up in the living room. How many of you remember the wonderful smell of the candles and the array of lovely colors—red, blue, yellow, pink, green and white—and the little candle holders that clipped onto the branches? And can you ever forget the candles' fragrance as it mingled with that of the pine's aroma? Then onto the tree went the lovely paper flowers of colored crepe and tissue paper which we had spent many evenings in fashioning. We also made paper chains and popcorn strings.

Maybe the trees of that day looked at by moderns would appear rather home made, but I'll never forget the fun and joy we had in getting the trimming ready. On the very top of the tree an angel of the most wondrous stuff. This had come from the store and did we admire the beautifully tinted dress, golden hair, all surrounded by a tinsel frame. In memory I see it so vividly.

I am right now getting nostalgic for the happy carefree days of childhood. How we ever avoided burning the house down with all those fire hazards is more than I know. Then came the wonderful moment of lighting the candles and the glorious thought that we could stay up until the candles burned out. How we wished we could have made them burn ever and ever so long, but all to soon this one, then that one had to be snuffed out until finally the last one flickered and died.

Off to bed we had to go. Not too easy a job for my parents as I remember, but we had to be up early as we must be away to the village for Julotta at six o'clock, and we had about six miles to the village. We really couldn't wait to open our gifts until our return from church so we were up—almost meeting ourselves going to bed—to open those mysterious packages that we had longingly looked at and shaken for the past week.

The morning coffee was now ready and with the fragrance of the Jule kaka no second call for the first breakfast was needed. Now to dress warmly and pile into the sleigh drawn by our fleetest team, and to the music of the sleigh bells we were off.

I wish you could have heard those bells. According to my father, only from the Scandinavian countries could one get bells like that. Just wonder where those bells are now.

The stars and sometimes the moon kept us company on that cold, long ride. We children made a game of finding the brightest star, and thinking maybe that was the one that led the Wisemen to Bethlehem where the Savior was born.

Then another holiday highlight was the children's Christmas program at the church. For weeks we had memorized lengthy citations and, oh, how frightened we were for fear we'd stumble on a line or maybe forget the whole thing. But how proudly we'd walk up the long aisle to the front of the church to say our piece, dressed up in our new clothes, squeaking shoes and all.

Oh yes, we liked to have our shoes squeak as that proclaimed to all that our shoes were brand new. For in those days new shoes and clothes were events in our lives. We dearly loved those programs, and how we cherished the bags of candy, nuts and apples that we all received for being in the program.

I hope no parents are ever too busy to go to their children's performances. My mother and father wouldn't have missed a program of ours for anything in the world.

After New Years there was no further excuse for festivities. We again fell into a normal humdrum of everyday life and to our childish hearts it seemed a hundred years until Christmas came again.

L. Bogestad Re-Elected To Potato Board

Minnesota potato growers have unanimously reelected Larry Bogestad of Donaldson to a second three-year term on the national potato promotion board. He currently is serving on the administrative committee of that board.

Bogestad, 39, has been a commercial potato producer for the past 20 years, and this year raised 400 acres of potatoes. He also is a certified grower of new wheat varieties, and a cooperator in Minnesota's booming sugar beet industry.

He is a past president of the Red River Valley potato growers association and a member of the national potato council.

Minnesota, the seventh ranked state in potato production, has three representatives on the national potato promotion board. Holdover members serving with Bogestad are Cornie Muilenberg of Hollandale for two more years and Ralph Mathew Jr. of Barnesville for one more year.

The election was conducted by the Minnesota department of agriculture.

5.1% Is Nov. Unemployment Rate In Minn.

Minnesota's unemployment rate for November was 5.1 per cent, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota Department of Employment Services reported recently.

This compares with a rate of 4.8 per cent for October and four per cent for November a year ago, he said. The comparable national rate for November was 7.8 per cent.

The number of unemployed in November was 91,700; in October 87,500; and in November a year ago, 72,100.

Nonagricultural wage and salary employment for November was 1,705,700. This compares with 1,723,000 in October and 1,718,000 for November a year ago.

The civilian labor force in November was 1,797,400. In October it was 1,810,500; in November a year ago, 1,790,100.

As of October 31, the number of persons looking for work who were registered with the State employment service was 98,228. New applications for work in November totaled 14,866. The number placed in jobs in November was 4,862.

In November, production workers in manufacturing worked an average of 39.7 hours at $5.25 an hour for average weekly earnings of $208.43. In November of last year, production workers worked an average of 40 hours at $4.81 per hour for average weekly earnings of $192.40.

Filing Of Tax Returns Early Lessens Delay

Taxpayers who file their returns in January or early February can expect any refund due in four to five weeks or roughly half the time late filers will have to wait, C.D. Switzer, IRS district director for Minnesita said.

In urging taxpayers to file early, Switzer said that individuals who delay filing until late March or April—the peak filing time—may have to wait for their refunds as long as eight weeks.

Another advantage to filing early, according to the Minnesota district director, is avoidance of careless errors often made by last-minute filers who are rushed. These errors—which frequently involve incorrect arithmetic, use of the wrong tax table, or failure to sign the return—can further delay processing of the return as well as the refund check.

Switzer said that taxpayers should begin now to gather their records such as receipts or cancelled checks to substantiate itemized medical deductions, charitable contributions, and others. With records in order, Switzer added, the taxpayer can begin to fill out the tax return as soon as the tax package arrives by mail within the next two weeks.

Last year, 1,542,727 taxpayers in Minnesota received refunds amounting to $438,390,741.

In two court trials decided Thursday, Donald M. Barth, St. Hilaire, charged with speeding 51 in 40, was fined $44 with $22 suspended, and Duane E. Hageman, TRF, speeding 43 in 30, was fined $52.

Area Screening Clinics Planned For January

Early and periodic screening clinics for well children from six months to six years old will be held in Warren January 15, Newfolden January 21 and Grygla January 26 to search for early signs of health problems. Possible problems are dicussed with the parents and may be referred to the family physician, crippled children's clinics, speech clinician, or may be followed by the public health nurse.

The examination includes weight and height measurements which are compared to the normal figures for the age, vision and hearing screening, a blood test for iron content, a urine test covering protein, sugar, retonee, bilruhin and blood. Also included is a check of language development, physical and social skills, and a physical examination done by a nurse.

All findings are discussed with the parents and time is allowed to discuss any problems or questions regarding normal development. The child's immunization status is assessed and immunizations are available for minimal cost. In addition, the child's mother fills out a health history and nutrition questionnaire, which are also assessed.

The full cost of $17.60 per child may be adjusted according to family size and income. Medical assistance will pay the cost for eligible families. For an appointment interested persons are invited to contact Viola L. Rud, county nurse, Marshall county public health nursing service, county courthouse, Warren.

On Dec. 16, 1952, the first helicopter squadron was formed in the Air Force's Tactical Air Command.

State Income Tax More Than Twice Average

The state government's income tax take from Minnesotans jumped nearly $29 to an average of $179.06 for each man, woman and child in fiscal 1974 (the 12-month period that began July 1, 1973), the Minnesota Taxpayers association reported today in its annual pocket-size publication: "How Does Minnesota Compare?".

The MTA folder was mailed this week to MTA members, state lawmakers and other state officials, according to Don Paterick, executive director of the association. Its content is compiled from statistics contained in the U.S. department of commerce publication "Governmental Finances in 1973-74".

"In the fiscal 1974 period personal income per capita in Minnesota was $5,422, up $285 or 5.5 per cent from the preceding year," Paterick said. "The increase was substantially less than the national average of $407 or 8.1 per cent.

"In Minnesota, the jump in state income taxes per capita amounted to 10 cents for each dollar of improved personal income per capita. Nationally, state income taxes took less than two per cent of the increase.

"The federal statistics show that in fiscal 1974 the average man, woman and child carried a state income tax load of $81.07—less than half of the Minnesota burden of $179.06."

The MTA folder contains a variety of statistics comparing Minnesota's tax climate with that in the other 49 states.

Minn.-N.D. Milk Order Is Changed

U.S. Department of agriculture (USDA) has made a temporary change for December and January and February in the Minnesota-North Dakota federal milk marketing order.

This change will allow any producer's milk to be moved directly from the farm to unregulated manufacturing outlets and still be priced under the order. Normally, a producer may ship only 50 per cent of his milk directly to such unregulated outlets during this time period—any such shipments of milk over the 50 per cent would be excluded from the market pool. The order now permits unlimited diversions only during the months of March through June.

The request for the change was made to USDA by Land O'Lakes, Inc., a cooperative. The action to suspend the diversion limit was supported by Land O'Lakes, Mid-America diaryman, and the National farmers organization. Collectively, they represent a majority of the dairy farmers in the market order.

Notice of this proposal to suspend was issued by USDA on November 28. USDA's notice of the suspension was carried in the December 19 Federal Register. No views opposing the action were received, according to officials of USDA's agricultural marketing service (AMS).

Copies of the suspension order may be obtained from Market administrator Paul L. Buchanan, 4550 W. 77th St., Room 360, Minneapolis, 55435; or from the Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

FROST HUNG HEAVY on bushes and branches in the Thief River Falls area early this week. Wishers for a white Christmas were somewhat satisfied, although wind on Tuesday blew much of the frost from the trees.

Extensive Damage In Auto Mishaps

Thief River Falls deputy police chief Duane Holland said that a number of incidents have been reported recently where cars and snowmobiles have been crossing the private property of city residents to gain access to the Red Lake river. In some cases, damage has been caused and Holland added that these crossings are strictly illegal. The police department urges that drivers of all vehicles entering the river show respect for their neighbor's property and use only public accesses.

In the first of a number of accidents reported to the department within the last week, William Olson of the city was traveling south on Brooks avenue Tuesday, December 16 at 9:50 p.m. when he struck a parked car facing south owned by Jerry Paulson of the city and pushed it into another parked vehicle facing south owned by James Bass, TRF. Estimated damages were $250 to the Olson car, $1000 to the Paulson vehicle and $50 to the Bass car.

Wednesday, Dec. 17 at 11:23 p.m., Brian Liden of the city was driving north on Main avenue when he slowed to, make a left turn into Ninth street. But Jeffrey Shumway of the city, driving behind him, though Liden was going to make a right turn and attempted to pass on the left, causing the cars to collide. Damages were estimated at $250 to the Liden car, and the Shumway vehicle was totaled. Jeff Joppru and Bobbie Westerlund, passengers in the Shumway car, were treated for cuts.

The same day, Mrs. Rodger Borgen of the city was driving north on Highway 59 at 3 p.m. when she was hit from behind by a truck owned by Trans-Canada Freight of Winnipeg. Damage estimated at $450 to the Borgen car.

In one of four accidents reported Thursday, Gary Flynn of Thief River Falls was traveling west on Third street, when, in front of Elaine's, he was struck from the rear by a car driven by Lyle Gilbertson of the city. Gilbertson left the scene, but his vehicle was later located after a search of the area. Mrs. Gary Flynn received a cut cheek from the collision, which totaled the Gilbertson car and caused and estimated $640 damage to the Flynn vehicle.

At 9:32 a.m. the same day, Charles Marvin of Thief River Falls, driving a vehicle owned by Tony Dorn, Inc., approached the stop sign at Third st. and Atlantic av., was unable to stop on the icy surface and struck the back of a UPS vehicle ahead of him driven by Robert Finch of Brainerd. Damages were estimated at $300 to the Marvin vehicle and $200 to the Finch vehicle.

At 9:50 p.m., Kimberly McDaniels of Roseau was driving east on Eleventh st. and Trent Collins of Thief River Falls was headed south on Elizabeth av. when their cars collided in the intersection, bounced off each other and collided again, causing the Collins car to run over a street sign. Damages were estimated at $50 to the sign and $500 to the Collins car. The McDaniels car was totaled.

Jon Peterson of the city was driving west on Conley av. at 4:15 p.m. when he struck a Forsbergs Inc. vehicle driven by Audrey Johnson of St. Hilaire, who was pulling out of the driveway. Estimated damages were $525 to the Peterson car and $400 to the Forsbergs vehicle.

In one of three accidents reported Friday, Bradley Johnson, TRF, was driving south on Arnold av. S. when he was struck by a car driven by Clair Larson of St. Hilaire, who was making a right turn from Highway 32 into the Valley Home lot. Damages were estimated at $200 to the Johnson car and $30 to the Larson vehicle.

At 9:10 p.m. Randall Dempsey, TRF, was turning south into Main av. after driving west on Third st., and Ordean Nelson of the city was headed east on Third st. when the two vehicles met in the intersection, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Dempsey car (owned by Denzill Kutzer of Fairmont, N.D.) and $200 damage to the Nelson vehicle.

Bruce Walker of the city was attempting a left turn into the Gibsons parking lot at 9:11 p.m. when he was struck from behind by a car driven by Calvin Offerdahl of the city. Damages were estimated at $400 to the Walker vehicle and $200 to the Offerdahl car.

Monday at 3:32 p.m., Mrs. Joe Schlofer of Goodridge was attempting a right turn into LaBree av. from the Fourth st. parking lot and Phil Prichard of the city was attempting a right turn into LaBree av. after driving west on Fourth st. when the two vehicles collided, causing the Schlofer car to strike a car parked on LaBree facing north owned by Elaine Thorstenson of the city. Estimated damages were $400 to the Schlofer car, $100 to the Prichard car (owned by Prichard Bros. Inc.) and $125 to the Thorstenson car.

At 6:54 p.m. the same day, Rebecca Sticker of the city was driving west on First st. and Conrad Skyberg of Grygla was headed north on Conley av. when they met in the intersection, causing estimated damages of $650 to the Stickler car and $350 to the Skyberg car.

In other incidents, Janice Alnes of the city reported Tuesday, Dec. 16 that during the night a bowling ball that had fallen out her car the previous evening was stolen. Her loss was valued at $35. The same day, John T. Anderson of the city reported that the battery had been removed from his car while it was parked in a downtown parking lot between 12:30 and 6:15 p.m.

In one of a number of incidents reported Thursday, Rocky Manning, 19, and Scott Molstad, 20, both of Thief River Falls were apprehended for allegedly taking gas from a pickup at the AVTI Dec. 11.

Aleen Gjernes of the city told police that someone had taken her purse and a billfold belonging to Sue Hegtvedt of the city while they were in the Luvin' Limey. The billfold was found on the river Sunday with the money and ID missing. The case is under investigation. Six residents of Northland Manor reported extension cords for their car tank heaters were taken during the night. Total losses were valued at $50.

Red Owl store apprehended Thomas D. Roisland, 54, of Thief River Falls for allegedly shoplifting a carton of cigarettes valued at $4.90. A vehicle owned by Steve Myers of the city was parked in the Red Owl parking lot between 3 and 10 p.m., when it was struck by an unknown vehicle, causing an estimated $200 damage. Penney's apprehended O. E. Freeman, 48, of Warroad for allegedly taking a jacket valued at $18.

Friday, Woolworths reported that a man had returned an item for cash. Upon checking, the address, phone number and name he gave were discovered not to have existed. Jack Berry, 37, of Lander, Wyoming is being charged with fraud in connection with the case.

In three incidents reported Sunday, Linda Johnson of 303 Maple av. S reported that the Christmas tree lights valued at $5.28 were taken from their home during the night. Arnold Narverud of 426 Maple av. S said that during the night two candle decorations and some strings of Christmas lights were taken from outside his house. The loss was set at $60. Morris Roadfeldt of 446 Maple av. S. reported that a Santa Claus Christmas decoration was taken from outside his home that night. The decoration was later found in the area of LaFave park.

In a correction from the police report submitted to the Times Tuesday, Dec. 16, the department reported that Kenneth Kalsness of the city, driving a vehicle owned by Thomas motors, struck a car driven by Daniel Austad of the city on Dec. 15. It had been originally reported that the Austad car struck the Kalsness vehicle.

Christmas Puppy Needs Protection Against Distemper

There is no mistaking the misery and depression of a pet suffering from distemper. It is one of the most dreaded of all pet infections. Puppies are more susceptible to distemper than older dogs, but the disease can occur in all ages, according to Robert Stear, D.V.M., manager of veterinary services for a major pharmaceutical laboratory.

Symptoms of canine distemper are similar to those of an upper respiratory ailment. You may notice a running nose, flat and dry cough and loss of appetite at first. This will be followed by a high temperature, vomiting, a white crusty material around the eyes, and nose, thirst and diarrhea. If secondary infection sets in, there may be muscular twitching, convulsions or paralysis.

Canine distemper is a highly contagious disease caused by a virus that is carried through the air. It is more common in the colder months, although a pet may contract the disease in any weather. Canine distemper can be picked up by coming in contact with another dog with distemper or from the feet, hands or clothing of the person caring for such an animal. In fact, everything used by the distemper-sick dog may spread infection, including a sneeze or cough from an infected animal or windblown germs from the urine of a pet with distemper.

To prevent distemper, it is important to have your pup vaccinated as soon as it comes into your home and to follow with booster shots at intervals set up by your veterinarian.

Puppies receive what are known as maternal antibodies from their mother's milk. These antibodies temporarily protect the pup from specific diseases which the mother is immune to. If the mother has distemper immunity, for example, she will pass on distemper antibodies. If the antibody level is high enough, it will neutralize the effects of vaccination.

At six weeks of age, the pup's maternal antibodies for distemper begin to subside. Researchers have discovered that human measles virus will protect puppies between six and 12 weeks of age from canine distemper and will be unaffected by the pup's maternal antibodies of distemper. For this reason, the distemper-measles concept for distemper protection has been perfected in a new vaccine which is capable of protecting pups against distemper better than ever before, whether or not maternal antibodies are present. Your veterinarian can give you details about it.

The death rate for distemper is high, and many pets that survive are disabled. Blindness in one or both eyes may result from discharges affecting the cornea. These same discharges sometimes leave the animal deaf or without the sense of smell. Permanent damage to the nervous system may cause chorea (twitching) for the rest of the pet's life.

If there is a case of distemper in your neighborhood, keep away from the house and everyone it it. Even a short visit from a member of the family with the diseased pet could carry the virus to your pet.

If you dog should suffer an attack of distemper, good nursing care will be vital to bring him through. He should be kept quiet and isolated in clean, warm, dry and well-ventilated quarters. Simple foods such as beef broth and coddled egg may be given in small amounts. The distemper patient will have no interest in food, so you may need to spoonfeed him several times a day. Follow your veterinarian's advice about medicines and treatment.

Following recovery, blankets and materials that are not too valuable to discard should be burned. Otherwise, spray disinfect everything the pet has come in contact with, including the backyard and fence posts.

Canine distemper is a dreaded disease that can usually be prevented. Booster shots at prescribed intervals will keep your pet's immunity at a high level so it can resist infection. See your veterinarian. Distemper is much easier to prevent than to treat.

Strandquist Senior Citizens

Friday Dec. 19 was a busy but enjoyable day for the senior citizens. It was their Christmas party and they treated themselves to a chicken and all the trimmings dinner at Helen's cafe here in town.

Twenty senior citizens enjoyed the delicious dinner served at 12:30. We all want to thank Helen and Gerry for the lovely dinner they prepared and served in such home like surroundings.

After dinner we went to the school to see the movie, "Mr. Smith goes to Washington" starring James Stewart. It was long but held our interest to the exciting finish. We want to thank Mr. Roger Iverson for his interest and concern for senior citizens and also to anyone else responsible for the movie which we were invited to see. Also thanks for the good cupcakes and the coffee we enjoyed between reels. We all appreciate the kindness shown us. Thank you.

Then back to our center, where we had more coffee and Christmas goodies and exchanged gifts bringing to a climax the senior citizens activities for another year.

Christmas greetings have been arriving from friends far and near. Thank you for remembering us.

Sarah Wikstrom gave the center $5 as it was her turn to serve lunch this week, we all brought some goodies for Fridays lunch so we shall use the money for lunch at a later date. Thank you, Sarah.

This will be the last Senior citizens news report this year.

LHS Hockey Squad Will Host Twin Cities Teams

Thief River Falls, smarting from an 8-1 loss suffered at Aurora-Hoyt Lakes Saturday, will try to improve upon a 2-3-1 season record this weekend when the Prowlers host a pair of Twin Cities high school hockey teams.

Minneapolis Patrick Henry will visit the sports arena Friday and Anoka will be here Saturday. Games start at 7:30 p.m. each night. Preliminary games will feature a Thief River Falls-Bemidji Bantam A game Friday and a Thief River Falls-Roseau junior varsity game Saturday.

In talking about Henry and Anoka, Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann said, "They're good hockey teams. I don't know if they're region winner caliber, but they are good teams."

Anoka is coached by Joe Poole, a former Prowler hockey star who played center on the 1954 Thief River Falls state championship team. He scored 30 goals and added 18 assists for the Prowlers that year, earning all-state honors.

McGann is contemplating changes in his team's line-up after a disappointing showing at Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, but did not announce the changes this early in the week.

"We just have to come ready to play hockey," said the Prowler coach. "We have to make up our minds to come ready to play from the first puck to the last."

The Lincoln hockey team is the only Thief River Falls athletic squad playing during the holiday break. Seven other Thief River Falls teams will wait until 1976 to play:

+Lincoln swim team returns to action Mon., Jan. 5, when the Prowlers host Detroit Lakes. The Prowlers, 4-0 in dual meets, plan to host the Thief River Falls relays Sat., Jan. 10, and the Thief River Falls invitational Sat., Jan. 17.

+Lincoln boys' basketball team will play at Ada Tues., Jan. 6, before hosting Bemidji Fri., Jan. 9. The Prowlers have lost four straight games for a 2-4 season record.

+Northland community college men's basketball team will return to playing form by taking on a pair of area four-year school junior varsity teams. The Concordia College junior varsity will be here Fri., Jan. 9, and the Moorhead State University JV squad plays at Northland Mon., Jan. 12. The Northmen sport a 6-2 season record.

+Lincoln girls' basketball team, 1-5 for the year, will host Mahnomen Mon., Jan. 5.

+Northland hockey team will open its home season schedule by hosting Hibbing Friday and Saturday, Jan. 9 and 10. The Northmen own a 2-0 season record.

+Lincoln wrestling team will be back on the mats Sat., Jan. 3, in an invitational meet appearance at Grand Rapids. The Prowlers, winless in five dual meet starts, will be at Roseau for a dual meet Fri., Jan. 9.

+In addition to the six teams who will reopen their seasons after the holiday break, the Northland women's basketball team opens its campaign with a Tues., Jan. 13, game at Crookston.

11th '500' Race Offers Richest Rewards Ever

Eleventh edition of the St. Paul winter carnival International "500" snowmobile race between St. Paul and Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, January 19-22 will offer the richest rewards in cross-country snowmobile racing history, said Herb Howe, race director.

Racers will vie for $39,000 in prize money offered by the winter carnival, including a $10,000 first place win. All finishers will receive a cash award.

In addition to carnival's prize money, manufacturers' incentives are the greatest ever offered. Massey-Ferguson is offering the largest reward, totaling $31,500 to drivers of their 340cc stock entry. Matching carnival's $10,000 first place win, Massey-Ferguson will also offer comparably high rewards through the first six places.

Arctic Enterprises is offering $10,000 to a first place winner on an Arctic Cat. John Deere is offering a total of $13,750—a $6,000 first place bonus, and additional cash awards through 10th place.

Total award monies of $95,250 are potentially available to entrants. In addition, there are guaranteed awards of $12,000 in winter carnival's Sno-Tona closed track snowmobile race scheduled for January 31 and February 1, at the Minnesota state fairgrounds, which brings the total of awards available in 1976 winter carnival snowmobile competition to more than $100,000.

Race headquarters in St. Paul will be at the Holiday Inn, 163 St. Anthony. The race start is at Maplewood Mall, a major shopping center on the eastern border of St. Paul.

A warm reception awaits drivers checking in for the start, where the Maplewood Mall merchants association is turning its entire center over to winter recreation, featuring the start of "500" on the grounds immediately adjoining the center. Driver machine check in and storage will be provided in a secured area at the mall prior to the start. St. Paul area residents are encouraged to view the race start and are advised that generous parking facilities are available at Maplewood Mall.

The official start line will be on Beam avenue, with flights of 10 machines leaving at three minute intervals en route to their first overnight stop at Alexandria and race headquarters there at Arrowwood Lodge.

At Alexandria drivers will find a change in the maintenance routine from previous years, with repair time planned for Tuesday morning rather than Monday evening. It will benefit drivers to be able to repair machines during daylight hours, Howe explained, and in addition, equipment stores will be open for needed supplies. Although this will delay the start until 11 a.m. in the morning, the shorter distances between cities this year will still enable drivers to finish before dark. The following days' starts will be at 8:30 a.m.

The Chase hotel at Walker will be headquarters for the second day finish. No repairs will be allowed the second day, a departure from previous races. It will serve as an added endurance test for the machines in the race, and will also help keep speeds reasonable.

The third day finish will be at Thief River Falls. Country Inn is the race headquarters, although other hotel and motel facilities in the Thief River Falls area have also been sold out since late summer.

The finish in Winnipeg the fourth day will feature a Grand Awards banquet at the International Inn, race headquarters there. State of Minnesota officials and a surprise Canadian sports figure will be special guests. Frank Quilici, a "500" race director since its founding in 1966, will be master of ceremonies.

Persons interested in entering the race may receive full details by contacting the St. Paul winter carnival, Metro Square, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55101.

Goodridge Girl Cagers Defeat MCC Monday

Paced by 26 points from Georgine Troska, Goodridge won a battle between two undefeated girls' basketball teams by edging Marshall county central 38-36 in the first round of the Grygla holiday tournament Monday.

The Huskies got off to a hot start by taking a 14-4 first quarter lead, but Newfolden closed the gap to 18-16 at halftime and tied the score at 30 all going into the fourth quarter. Diane Anderson led the Nordics with 12 points.

Bemidji Plans Sled Dog Races January 11-12

Top names in sled dog racing are expected to compete for $5,000 in prize money and trophies January 11 and 12 during the sixth annual Paul Bunyan sled dog races at Bemidji.

The popular event, back after a year's lapse due to the big blizzard of 1975, is offering the largest purse in its history and the second largest of any sled dog races in the state this year. Five classes of races will be featured each day, including junior and novice classes. The race routes will be over the surface of Lake Bemidji, with race lengths varying according to class, ranging from about one mile for juniors to about 16 miles for the open class.

The top names in sled dog racing have committed themselves for the Bemidji race. Two of Alaska's top mushers, Bill Taylor (the 1974 Bemidji winner) and George Attla (another previous Bemidji winner) have registered. Harvey Drake from Fairbanks is also slated to race.

From the lower 48 states, Dr. Roland Lombard, seven-time world sled dog champion from Massachusetts, has registered and will be making his first appearance at Bemidji. Other nationally known racers who have registered include Harris Dunlop from New York and Ozzie Baers from Anoka. Merv Hilpipre of Cedar Falls, Iowa, a perennial Bemidji entry and adopted favorite son, will also be back.

Spectators will have an opportunity to warm up with pancakes and sausages available each of the two mornings at the Bemidji National Guard armory, adjacent to the starting gates on the Lake Bemidji waterfront. Hot dogs, coffee and other refreshments will be available throughout both days at the armory.

The sport of sled dog racing, once almost confined to Alaska, has grown rapidly over the past few years.

Sports Boosters Club Gives Sorvigs California Send-Off

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club said its final good-byes Thursday to Joan and Dave Sorvig, a pair of enthusiastic club members who have opted for the sunny California countryside.

Dave has been serving as club president this year, a position he rightfully earned through exhaustive efforts in promoting club activities. Joan, it seems, was Dave's chief competitor for the "hardest worker" award among club members.

The Sorvig's were presented with a few going-away mementos from the club—certainly nothing big, mind you, but rather the "off beat" variety like a T-shirt proclaiming the virtues of girls' athletics for Joan and a T-shirt with a bib overall design for Dave "so everyone in California will know where he's from."

The emigrants were also presented with a plaque, in the shape of a pig, thanking them for their unselfish efforts in making the annual football Pigskin Preview a resounding success, as well as working with the winter sports warm-up.

To cap the send-off, club member Bob Wurst of Wurst, McDowell and Myster, attorneys at law, drew up an "application to leave Pennington county" for the Sorvig's. It read:

"Application is hereby made to the Star Chamber of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club for permission to leave Pennington county for an indefinite period (by) Joan, Dave Sorvig."

The application was granted upon the following conditions:

(1) Dave must return to check the condition of the turf on Jim Sims' football field at least 12 hours before each game and be on call at all times to check the practice field.

(2) Joan must agree to return to Pennington county and remain here during all of the football and winter sports seasons for the next 10 consecutive years in order to take charge of the Pigskin Preview and the winter sports warm-up. No substitutions will be permitted.

(3) All athlete offspring must be provided with necessary transportation and housing to permit them to participate in Prowler athletics of their choosing.

(4) Both Dave and Joan must agree to accept all collect calls from Prowler and Northland coaches as well as booster club members in good standing for consultation on game strategy and occasional crying jags.

(5) The permission hereby granted is strictly probationary and failure to comply with any of the foregoing conditions will result in immediate extradition to Pennington county.

The application and decision was signed by the Star Chamber of the Thief River Falls Sports Booster club, Merle Carlson, chief Star.

Carlson moves up from his vice-presidency to fill the president's role held by Sorvig. Carlson's first act as club leader was to postpone all club meetings until Thurs., Jan. 8.

Archaeologists Dig Ruins Of Nichoria

by Jeannie Hanson
U of M News Service

It was a small, typical provincial town in south-western Greece, near the water. It occupied two hills and the valley between them. Nearby land was used for farming wheat and barley. The place: Nichoria. The time: about 2200 B.C.

Archaeological excavation and study of this buried ancient town has revealed that people lived there almost continuously from at least 2200 B.C. to 1800 A.D. Tentative evidence, from one Carbon-14 sample, may set the founding of Nichoria as early as 2315 B.C. A few ancient vase fragments also indicate that the earliest Nichorians dealt with even earlier groups living nearby.

The University of Minnesota's Minnesota Messenia expedition, led by classics professor William McDonald, has spent five years excavating parts of the 120 acre site at Nichoria. McDonald's staff of 76, from colleges and universities all over the world, has concentrated on the period from the Middle Bronze Age to the Early Iron Age in Nichoria's history, roughly 2000 B.C. to 750 B.C.

It has not been easy work. More than 70,000 cubic meters of earth and stone have had to be moved, 78,000 kilograms of soil processed for evidence, and 95,000 working hours spent at the site alone. Equipment ranges from fine sieves to hefty shovels to a borrowed helicopter for aerial recognizance.

According to McDonald, Nichoria was selected because it seemed to be a well preserved provincial town with a long history of habitation in later prehistoric times. The expeditionaries discovered an Early Iron Age settlement virtually unique in Greece, where Bronze and Iron Age cultural transitions lay, stratified, in deeper and deeper layers of earth, where the lifestyle of people long-dead, and often buried nearby, could be reconstructed.

The burial areas, with their golden "loot," were not the chief interest of the researchers. "We weren't looking primarily for more beautiful art objects for museum shelves," McDonald said. The goal was to excavate the town itself, to learn what the people did for food, shelter, clothing, tools, containers, weapons and adornment.

To begin with, researchers found that Nichoria was probably not the eastern sub-capital of the kingdom of Pylos in the 13th century B.C., as had been suspected. Scant evidence of written records was found—only a small, ambiguous clay tablet fragment in the "Linear B" language. Linear B is a shorthand script using abbreviated symbols and words and some ideograms, or signs, that picture animals and other objects.

Other evidence was ample. "We probably have the single largest collection of Late Bronze and Early Iron Age animal bones in Greece," McDonald said. These are important clues to the hunting and eating habits of the people, who were mainly farmers and herders.

Other finds include a good series of Late Bronze Age Mycenean pottery and an excellent collection of burnt woods and metals from different periods in the life of the town. Also, "Our collection of stone and bone tools will result in the most detailed comparative study of pre-historic stone tools ever done in Greece," McDonald said. It takes a great deal of evidence of this kind to reconstruct a lifestyle.

The Middle Bronze Age in Greece lasted from about 2200 B.C. to about 1600 B.C. Interesting finds from this period, when Nichoria was a very small village, include delicate bronze tweezers, stone spindle whorls and pottery indicating the beginning trade with Crete.

Late Bronze Age evidence (1600-1100 B.C.) includes human and animal figurines, tripod cooking pots, plain and black—and red—decorated vases, pumice from a massive volcano eruption on the island of Santorini, and an eerie female figurine with hollow eyes dubbed "The Dame of Nichoria" by the researchers.

The Early Iron Age (1100-750 B.C.) period evidence includes, of course, iron tools, pottery with a more geometric design, and hundreds of bones of small animals such as weasels, lizards and door-mice.

Buildings from different eras lie atop each other. So far, researchers have uncovered two houses from the Middle Bronze Age, 20 from the Late Bronze, five from the Early Iron Age and a large Byzantine building with an area for infant burial. One street has been uncovered, running past a bronze-melting workshop.

A tholos tomb, usually for royalty, also was found, although pre-historic robbers had been there first. They had left much, however: an ivory-handled mirror, aber and amethyst beads, bronze arrowheads, gold-covered rivet heads, blue glass rosettes, a hoard of bronze vessels and weapons.

The researchers have put together this evidence to conclude that Nichoria was in flower in the 14th century B.C. when at least 800 people lived in the village.

The average ancient townsperson lived barely 30 years. Males stood about 5 feet 2 inches tall, females were about 5 feet tall. They were predominantly farmers and herders, with domesticated horses and donkeys, but also did some hunting. They ate figs, olives, cheese, barley, wheat, mutton, goats, pork, beef and sometimes dogs.

Nichorians made pots and mud-brick and thatched one-family homes. They knew how to cut gems, spin and weave cloth, make delicate metal jewelry and build heavy stone streets and tombs. They could melt, and possibly smelt, gold, silver, copper and bronze. Their songs, dances and religious beliefs are largely unknown because no urns illustrating ceremonies have been found.

A great deal is still unknown about these ancient people. As the three-year analysis period at the University of Minnesota progresses following the five years of excavation in Greece, more will be discovered about the small town on the hills with the 4000-year history.

Ample Propane Supply Seen For Minnesota

Propane industry is in an excellent position to meet demand this winter, according to national LP gas association president, Bill Jellison.

In Minneapolis for the Minnesota LP gas association winter convention, Jellison attributed the ample supply of propane to light demand for grain drying purposes and a mild autumn.

"Conservation has played a part, too," explained Jellison, who has a relatively small firm in Alliance, Ohio. "In fact, some of my customers have cut their fuel consumption by 10 to 20 per cent."

Jellison went on to say that while agriculture and the defense department have the first allocation of propane, other traditional users will continue to get their share.

The supply of propane is important to Minnesota farmers since 55 per cent of them use the fuel for home and outbuilding heating, drop drying, etc.

Other speakers at the Minnesota LP gas associations convention included John Millhone, director of the Minnesota energy agency, and a representative of the Michigan-Wisconsin pipeline company who spoke on a proposed coal gasification plant for North Dakota. In the keynote address, Gordon Smith, chairman of Galconda corporation, a manufacturer of equipment used in the propane industry, spoke on the subject of federal intervention in business.

Holiday Host Is Responsible For His Guests

In the United States, nearly 95 million men and women—more than two-thirds of our adult population—will toast the holiday season with alcoholic beverages.

Unfortunately, many of these "toasters" will die, report staff members at the Northwestern Mental Health center.

Many will become innocent victims of drivers who had "too much to drink," according to a spokesman of the Northwestern Mental health center, Crookston.

At this time of year, friends and families start planning social gatherings to celebrate a festive and joyous occasion. Regrettably, the traditional holiday party can bring out the very worst in human behavior when there is excessive use of alcohol.

The national institute on alcohol abuse and alcoholism offers some suggestions on how to serve alcoholic drinks in the home.

One way the holiday party-goer can cut down on the risk of overindulgence and drunkenness is to eat adequately-before and while drinking.

Medical tests show that food in the stomach will slow down alcohol's entry into the bloodstream and into the brain. Responsible hosts and hostesses will serve abundant and easily accessible food.

Hosts and hostesses should accept personal responsibility for keeping every guest sober, accident free, and alive. Responsibilities include:

(1) Respecting a guest's decision about alcoholic beverages, especially the decision not to drink, and providing nonalcoholic beverages for those who prefer them.

(2) Serving food with alcoholic beverages.

(3) Providing other social activities as a primary focus when beverage alcohol is served.

(4) Serving drinks of reasonable strengh.

(5) Keeping a party within a reasonable time and consumption limit.

(6) Making contingency plans for intoxication—if it occurs in spite of efforts to prevent it—by assuming responsibility for transportation home or overnight accommodations, if necessary.

As a good host or hostess these are decisions that only you can make.

If you would like more information about alcohol and its effects on the body, write to the National Institute on alcohol abuse and alcoholism, P.O. Box 2345, Rockville, MD 20852 or the Northwestern Mental Health Center, Crookston, 56716, (218-281-3940).

Renewals can be made at the offices of deputy registrars throughout the state or at the license center, 625 north Robert street, St. Paul.

Grangaard Is Chairman For Farm Forum

Donald R. Grangaard, president of First Bank system, has been named General chairman of the 1976 ninth federal district farm forum; a program to encourage an objective discussion of broad problems in agriculture, labor and industry.

The forum, sponsored annually by the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, will be held February 24, in the Leamington hotel. Over 2,000 farmers, legislators, teachers and businessmen are expected to attend this event.

Grangaard became president and chief executive officer and director of First Bank system in 1969. Prior to this, he served as vice president and director of the First National bank of Austin and as vice president of the First National bank of Fairmont. From 1947 to 1950, he was an analyst for FBS credit review department.

Grangaard received his BBA in accounting from the University of North Dakota and his LLB (cum laude) from Mitchell college of law in St. Paul. Among positions he holds are president of the Upper Midwest council, and director of the First National bank of both Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Monkey-Eating Eagle Studied By Area Man

Believe it or not, there's actually something such as a "monkey-eating eagle." Vaughn Rundquist, 31, son of Mrs. Violet Rundquist of Lake Bronson, and his wife, Lorenne have spent the past two years on a satisfying and challenging tour with the Peace Corps on an island in the Philippines studying the bird. "We accomplished more than we ever imagined," Rundquist says.

Rundquist, a biology major at Moorhead state college graduated in 1966. He earned his master's degree in wildlife ecology at the University of Wisconsin in 1969 and received his Ph. D. in fish and wildlife management from Montana state university in 1973.

While at Montana state he met and married Lorenne Cookingham. "Six days after I got my doctorate we were in Manila," Rundquist recalls.

The Rundquists entered the Peace Corps under a special Peace-Corps-Smithsonian Institution program to recruit highly skilled volunteers for specialized work in environmental areas.

The Rundquists assignment was unique, to say the least. The Philippine government asked them to assist in efforts to save the exotic monkey-eating eagle from extinction.

Larger than the American bald eagles, the magestic birds stand three feet high with an eight foot wing span. "There are only about 100 monkey-eating eagles—50 pairs," Rundquist says. "That's the entire world population. They mate for life, as do almost all eagles."

Although the birds are called "monkey-eating" eagles, they will eat any live vertibrate, Rundquist explains. "Snakes, chickens, wild pigs and flying lemurs make up 90 per cent of their diet. It all depends on what's available."

The six-year-old monkey-eating eagle conservation project is sponsored by the parks and wildlife division of the Philippines department of forestry. The first Peace Corps volunteers to join in the preservation effort came to the country in 1972.

The eagles live in an isolated mountain wilderness on the island of Mindanao, one of the largest of the Philippines' 7,100 islands. A law prohibiting the eagles' capture has been in effect for several years. As a result, the Apo Mountain National park acquired seven of the rare birds. Most had been caught illegally and kept in captivity earlier.

During their year at the park, the Rundquists participated in an extensive field study of the monkey-eating eagle. "There were 14 of us on a team. All the team members were involved in the preservation project in some way. In each case, when we went out to observe, we had one of our Philippine counterparts with us. The expeditions usually involved three to seven people," Rundquist says.

Their research covered 1,967,200 hectares, each hectare equaling 2½ acres.

Besides going on field trips, Rundquist also held monthly meetings with project participants. "Each time we had a different agenda. Once we discussed the literature sources pertaining to wildlife, another time we talked about food habit studies," he said.

Their research completed, the Rundquists moved into Davao City, the third largest city in the Philippines. Rundquist settled down to the job of compiling his data into a 100-page proposal recommending that an eagle sanctuary be established in Mindanao. The proposal will be submitted to the development academy of the Philippines.

The proposal now published, the Rundquists returned to the United States last month.

The Rundquists are among 325 Peace Corps volunteers serving the Philippines in a variety of agriculture, health, business, youth and developmental planning programs. Approximately 6,800 Peace Corps volunteers serve in 69 developing nations throughout the world.

Need Planning, Common Sense For Survival

A car stuck on the highway in the middle of a snowstorm is most dangerous if you leave it said state health commissioner Dr. Warren R. Lawson. With common sense and planning surviving in a car is relatively easy and safe.

Stay in the car though; it is a good shelter. But driving snow and sleet can seal the car shut, so try the windows and doors frequently to keep them free.

Unless it's absolutely necessary, don't run the car engine. Exhaust pipes are easily plugged by snow which allows carbon monoxide to seep into the car. If you must run the engine, first check the exhaust pipes and then keep the engine on for only very short periods of time to conserve gasoline. And, keep two windows partly open so fresh air circulates.

Instead, keep warm without fuel. Move around and exercise by clapping your hands, and swinging your arms and legs. Exercise at least ten minutes every time to keep circulation going.

But avoid overexertion which depletes your body's ability to conserve fuel. Trying desperately to free the car could cause not only exhaustion but injury from a slipping car or a falling tool.

And while trying to stay warm don't forget the comfort of cuddling next to others to conserve and share body heat. However, everyone should not rest at the same time.

Keeping a winter survival kit is also a good safety precaution. Include a first aid kit, a bright cloth or signal banner, matches, candles, a flashlight, tissues, food, and a can-opener. And in the trunk keep a sleeping bag, shovel, tow cable or chain, booster cables, a sand-salt mixture, and extra warm clothing.

Make it easy to be found. Keep the dome light on and tie a bright cloth to the antenna.

Most importantly stay calm and think. If you always tell someone before traveling where you're going and when to expect you, someone will look for you when you're missing.

Card of Thanks

Words can never convey the depths of our gratitude toward all the unbelievably wonderful people who have helped in countless ways during the long illness and death of our beloved Ben. You provided rides, kept vigil at his bedside, offered consolation, prayers, flowers, memorials, food and assistance in a hundred ways. Special thanks to Melvin Grindes, Gottred Larsons, John Grundhauses, Gordon Markstroms, Simen Lohlums, Gloria Bugge, Florence Pierce, Marvin Sandburgs, Ron Gerardys, Dr. Van Rooy, the sympathetic nurses at Northwestern hospital, Dr. Skogerboe, Fr. Bernauer, Trinity pastors, Belmont Funeral Home, pallbearers, color guard, soloist, organist, ladies furnishing and serving lunch. How can we thank all who helped in so many ways! Though you did it for us, you did it for Him. May He bless you all.

Card Of Thanks

I wish to express my thanks to the many friends and relatives who gave encouragement to, had faith in, and prayed for me during these past trying months. Special thanks is extended to Cliff Habedank and Wayne Liden of the Piggly Wiggly Store for showing the confidence they had in me. I regret that I was a source of inconvenience.

To those who, though not knowing, but yet believing that there was more to the situation than bare facts revealed, indeed there was. The good medical attention immediately given has indicated rapid progress for me and I am well satisfied.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

December 24, 1975
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
December 18, 1975

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., Thursday, December 18, 1975.

Members present: Hanson, Christianson, Naplin, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Dr. Easton, President of Northland Community College and R. C. Berry, Assoc. Director, Area Vocational Technical College appeared and discussed the possibility of using the old Nursing Home structure for a Dormitory. The Board authorized the College and AVTI to conduct a feasibility study of such an undertaking.

The minutes of the meetings of Nov. 21 and Dec. 9 were read and approved as read.

Interviews were then held with individual County Officers regarding the conduct of the office and the 1976 plan of work as well as the financial matters pertaining to the office.

D. H. Stewart, consulting Engineer in the area of Solid Waste problems appeared and discussed progress in that field and indicated a report would be filed shortly on his findings.

Commissioner Hanson introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, Chapter 301, Laws of 1975 has provided for revised methods of providing compensation for County Commissioners and has repealed the Cost of Living Statute 375.43 which then makes for changes in the operation of the County.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the annual salary of the Commissioners shall be the same as for the year 1975, the sum of $3,813. per annum, effective January 1, 1976, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that per diem payments to Commissioners shall be $15.00 per diem, payable upon presentation of said bill at a regular meeting of the County Board, and payable for those activities requiring the presence of the Commissioners assigned by Committee appointment or by virtue of the Office included in the following: County Extension Committee; Drainage proceedings and Road and Bridge inspections;

Forfeited Tax Sale Proceedings, Classification of Lands and Appraisals; Committee Work of County Board; County Welfare Board and per diems under that jurisdiction as: County Health Board and Human Services Board; County State-Aid Highway Advisory Committee; Jury Selection Committee; County Board of Health; Inter-County Community Council; Joint City-County Law Enforcement Committee; Alcohol & Drug Abuse Committee; N.W. Regional Task Force to study Mental Health needs and Inter-Governmental Committee, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the County Commissioners be reimbursed for necessary expenses incurred as provided by Law.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and declared unanimously carried.

The following bills were read audited and allowed:

ATTEST: C. W. Rodekuhr, County Auditor Ex-Officio, Clerk of the Board.

Glenn Tasa, Chairman
Pennington County Board

Inserting ordinary absorbent cotton into the ear canals does little to protect the user from the possible serious effects of exposure to sound levels. Ear plugs made of soft rubber or similar materials usually offer far greater protection when properly fitted.

HEALTHY NEW YEAR EVERYBODY!

Okay, so it is sort of a corny take-off on Happy New Year. But the fact of the matter is if you are not healthy it is very hard to be happy. And with that thought in mind let's all make just one important, easy to keep New Year's resolution.

That is — Resolve to get an early physical check-up from your physician and then to see him at the first sign of illness without waiting until it gets serious. Futher resolve to follow his advice faithfully and to promptly get the medicine he prescribes for you from the pharmacy of your choice.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

Not much is written about the wise men. We know they came from the east to Jerusalem, following a star. They came bearing gifts, and when the star stopped at Bethlehem, they went in and knelt before a tiny child and offered him their treasure.

Why? Certainly not because it was "the thing to do." Rather, because there burned in them an ancient thirst to find the Christ and worship Him.

Today, as all over the world men foment turbulence and strife, let us seek the Prince of Peace. If each of us, as we celebrate the season, would radiate His presence, His star could light the world with peace!

Your church is the cornerstone of faith. Worship there, and satisfy the longing all men have — to know their God.

A Blessed Christmas

This world of ours is a constantly changing world; one in which the commonplace of today is yesterday's unknown and tomorrow's antiquity. We find ourselves rushing to keep pace and discovering all too often the insecurity that comes with the unfamiliar. We talk of the "good old days" without really recalling anything about them except those things with which we felt comfortable.

How good it is that there are some things which are based on such deeprooted truths that they never change. Among these is the real spirit of Christmas, the Gift of God to mankind in the form of His Son. It is a story which deserves continuous retelling to all who will listen.

As has been our custom in recent years, we publish as our editorial greeting the Biblical Christmas story. The story is told in the words of "The Living Bible", a paraphrased version of the more standard translations:

Luke 2:1-20—About this time Caesar Augustus, the Roman Emperor, decreed that a census should be taken throughout the nation. (This census was taken when Quirinius was governor of Syria.)

Everyone was required to return to his ancestral home for this registration. And because Joseph was a member of the royal line, he had to go to Bethlehem in Judea, King David's ancient home—journeying there from the Galilean village of Nazareth. He took with him Mary, his fiancee, who was obviously pregnant by this time.

And while they were there, the time came for her baby to be born; and she gave birth to her first child, a son. She wrapped him in a blanket and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the village inn.

That night some shepherds were in the field outside the village, guarding their flocks of sheep. Suddenly an angel appeared among them, and the landscape shone bright with the glory of the Lord. They were badly frightened, but the angel reassured them.

"Don't be afraid," he said. "I bring you the most joyful news ever announced, and it is for everyone! The Savior—yes, the Messiah, the Lord—has been born tonight in Bethlehem! How will you recognize him? You will find a baby wrapped in a blanket, lying in a manger!"

Suddenly, the angel was joined by a vast host of others—the armies of heaven—praising God: "Glory to God in the highest heaven," they sang, "and peace on earth for all those pleasing him."

When this great army of angels had returned again to heaven, the shepherds said to each other, "Come on! Let's go to Bethlehem! Let's see this wonderful thing that has happened, which the Lord has told us about."

They ran to the village and found their way to Mary and Joseph. And there was the baby, lying in the manger. The shepherds told everyone what had happened and what the angel had said to them about this child.

All who heard the shepherds' story expressed astonishment, but Mary quietly treasured these things in her heart and often thought about them.

Then the shepherds went back to their fields and flocks, praising God for the visit of the angels, and because they had seen the child, just as the angel had told them.

Reagen Strength

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

The actual strength of Ronald Reagan in his bid for the GOP presidential nomination will begin showing now within the ranks of the Republican party and that sizable bloc of conservative independent voters. They no longer have to feel alone.

With the rather startling Gallup poll results showing Reagan as the top choice of Republican and independent voters, leading president Ford by about eight points at this time, Reagan supporters will feel more comfortable making their attitude known. Until now many of them, some in influential positions and others simply people on the street, were reluctant to be very outspoken in their support. Even in our own area we've discussed the matter with a number who are very quiet in letting their feelings be known. But now, realizing they aren't alone in their desire for a very decided change in the general direction of government, there is no longer any reason to be shy about it.

One thing seems to be emerging quite clearly. Although the task of unseating an incumbent president seeking nomination for another term has always been considered insurmountable, it just might not really be.

Reagan is going to be a force with which to contend at the Republican national convention next summer. In our judgement he will walk into the convention with far more pledged support than most had expected as recently as a couple of weeks ago. The Californian gets to the people through his articulate manner and common approach. They've heard promises of reform before, but Reagan can point to a record of reform that cannot be denied.

There are political inconsistencies in Reagan's past, just as there are in the background of every successful politician. Reagan does not deny these things, he merely leaves one with the impression that only a very stubborn man never changes his mind.

We suspect that in the coming weeks a lot of heretofore very quiet Reagan supporters will begin making their position known. Many of them will probably constitute a surprise to the general public. Ronald Reagan has a closely knit following which will soon make their existence felt and their purposes known.

Our memory and knowledge of history may be faulty, but we cannot recall any incumbent president being denied nomination for a second term if he wanted it. Lyndon Johnson came close, but he had foresight enough to see the handwriting on the wall and quickly stepped aside. But these are changing times and stranger things have happened. After all, who can recall the last time a vice president and a president resigned their offices in mid-term? Anything can happen.

Animal Cruelty

Whether through abuse or neglect, cruelty to animals still exists in our so-called civilized society. One of the most frequently heard incidents in this area is the neglect of horses left in pasture without water, sufficient food or shelter during the severe winter months.

One of our readers recently brought to us a clipping entitled "Prayer of a Horse", for which the author is unknown. Because it may be pertinent at this time of year, we reprint it as follows:

To thee my master,

I offer my prayer. Feed me, water and care for me, and when the day's work is done, provide me with shelter, a clean, dry bed and a stall wide enough for me to lie down in comfort. Talk to me; your voice often means as much as the reins.

Pet me sometimes, that I may serve you more gladly and learn to love you. Do not jerk the reins and do not whip me when going uphill. Never strike, beat, or kick me when I do not understand, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me and, if I fail to do your bidding, see if something is not wrong with my harness or my feet. Examine my teeth when I do not eat.

Do not tie my head in an unnatural position or take away my best defense against flies or mosquitoes by cutting off my tail or limit my range of vision by blinders so that I am frightened by what I cannot see. And finally, O my master, when my youthful strength is gone, do not turn me out to starve or freeze, or sell me to some cruel owner. But do thou my master, take my life in the kindest way and your God will reward you.

You will not consider me irreverent if I ask this in the name of him who was born in a stable.

Borrowed Nonsense

The Russian teacher was questioning his students.

"Who were the first human beings?" he asked.

"Adam and Eve," they replied.

"And what nationality were they?" he asked.

"Russians, of course," they answered.

"Fine, fine," the teacher said. "And how do you know they were Russians?"

"Easy," one student offered. "They had no roof over their heads, no clothes to wear and only one apple for the two of them and they called it paradise."

A teen-age girl has been trying to run away from home for a year. Every time she gets to the front door, the phone rings.

Rejecting a submitted poem entitled "Why Do I Live?", the editor wrote the following note: "We regret we cannot use your poem, but we can answer your question. It is because you mailed the poem to us instead of delivering it in person."

notes from the governor

Wendell R. Anderson

Christmas is a festive season in our state, a time of celebration and rejoicing.

The beauty of our Minnesota winters adds much to the spirit of our Christmases. We have learned to enjoy our snow, and the cold, crisp days that mark the end of December.

But Minnesota's winter weather can also be very dangerous. Particularly at Christmastime, when thousands and thousands of our families are on the highways, it is wise to take the precautions that will prevent Christmas joy from turning into tragedy.

The extra traffic is one of the dangers. It's important to allow plenty of time, to avoid the most congested times whenever possible, to take it easy and observe speed limits and drive with respect for other drivers and the condition of the roads. And drive in the daytime whenever possible, so you can see and be seen and have a better chance to anticipate problems.

It is also vital that your car be in the best working condition for winter driving. That means snow tires, a good battery, an engine that won't stall on the highway, windshield wipers and washers that really work, a car that's been put in shape for Minnesota winters. Be sure your muffler is not defective—exhaust fumes in your car are deadly. A little care in advance can help prevent trouble on the road, and the expense and danger involved in a breakdown in Minnesota's winter.

It's also important to be ready for trouble if it does come. Take along extra warm clothing for every member of your family. Pack a snow shovel as well, and take safety flares along in case you're stalled on the road. Let somebody know your travel plans—what highway you're taking, when you plan to arrive. They may worry if you're a little late, but that little bit of worry can save your life if you have real trouble.

And if you do have trouble, stay with your car until help arrives. Use the standard distress signals—your safety blinkers, a raised hood on your car, a marker on your radio antenna. If you keep your motor running to keep warm, until help comes, be sure the exhaust fumes can't get inside your car.

And remember to use your seat belts. The record is clear—they can protect you from serious injury or death in an accident. And they're just as important for riders, especially children, as they are for the driver.

We all look forward to a beautiful, happy family holiday season. And it's more likely to be that way if every traveling Minnesota family takes a few important safety precautions in advance.

MINNESOTA REPORT

WALTER F. MONDALE

I recently had the privilege of testifying at federal energy administration hearings in Washington in support of the administration's proposed allocation program for the dwindling supplies of Canadian crude. The program, which I hope will soon be implemented, is of vital importance to Minnesotans and to the nation and I would like once again to emphasize in the strongest possible terms my support for this essential program.

As all Minnesotans are aware, Canada is rapidly phasing out its petroleum exports to the United States. Canadian crude exports will fall well beneath 460,000 barrels per day in 1976 and will average less than 250,000 barrels a day in 1977.

At present, Minnesota relies on three in-state refineries and one refinery in Wisconsin for more than half the petroleum products we consume. This includes gasoline for transportation and farm production. It includes residual fuel oil for electrical generation, heavy industry and heating of schools and hospitals. Finally, it includes distillate for home heating, for schools and for light industrial use.

Since fuel oil is often used as a back up for natural gas by industry and public facilites, the natural gas supply outlook has great bearing on the need for other petroleum products. Thus, both distillate and residual fuel oil needs are dramatically increasing as natural gas shortages spread.

Without an allocation program on, or soon after, January 1, our refineries would be forced to cut back their operations. Within a few months, they would close.

As output from these refineries dropped, it might be possible to replace part of our gasoline supplies and a limited portion of distillate needs by increasing the flow on existing product pipelines. But, residual fuel oil—nearly all of which comes from these refineries could not be transported by pipeline. In fact, the products that are most essential would be the very products that would first disappear.

This is why a preferential allocation system is an absolute necessity. It is clearly only an interim solution. We must still work quickly on a permanent alternative to Canadian crude. But, we must have time—the year or two that an allocation program can give us—to arrange for a long-term solution.

Unless the allocation program is in place by January or February at the latest, we are going to be faced with shortages and with serious economic dislocation in a matter of months. We are talking about much more than a regional problem, or the fate of a dozen refineries. The Northern Tier states produce a substantial share of our Nation's raw materials. We are a major grain and dairy supplier. We produce trucks, automobiles, computors and heavy machinery that are vital to the American economy. Each of these major industries is dependent upon petroleum products. Unless FEA's program is adopted, they will all suffer with severe consequences for our national economy.

I am confident that the FEA will not permit that to happen. And I am hopeful that the FEA will move with all possible speed to implement the proposed allocation rules.

Set Fiddlers Contest At BSU Jan. 10

Date for the third annual fiddlers contest at Bemidji state university is fast approaching. People of all ages are expected to fill the Beaux Arts ballroom January 10, vying for the trophies or simply listening to the music.

Jim Miller of Bemidji will defend his title before a traditionally packed house. Previous audiences have reached 900, but due to record blizzard conditions, attendance was estimated at 500 last year. The switch from Memorial hall 100 to the ballroom should provide more comfortable seating for the large crowd anticipated.

Coordinator Felix Spooner says a number of entries have already been received from all over Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, the Dakotas and Canada.

No registration fees are required but all performers will receive a walnut plaque to commemorate their appearance at the 8 p.m. event. First, second and third place champions are presented trophies.

No age limitations are imposed and awards will be given to the oldest and youngest fiddler present.

As in years past, contestants are asked to play two numbers: a waltz and a dance tune of their choice. Trick fiddling and novelty tunes will not be considered by the judges. A maximum of two accompanists is permitted; a house accompanist will be on hand. Winners are selected on the basis of timing, intonation and difficulty of the piece.

Following the contest, there will be an old-time dance with music provided by the fiddlers. The three top fiddlers will be expected to play for the dance and other contestants are also invited to perform. Earmarked for the BSU music scholarship fund, an admission fee for spectators will be collected.

For more information, contact Felix Spooner at the department of music, Bemidji state university; or by calling 218-755-3362.

Informal Winter Entertaining

Cold winter evenings and hot spicy tea are perfect for each other. Make up the dry mix ahead by blending tea and spices with orange flavor Tang instant breakfast drink. At serving time, add boiling water to the mix and make a cup or pitcherful of the smooth, spicy drink.

HOT SPICED TEA

1-1/4 cups (or one 9-oz. jar) orange flavored instant breakfast drink
1/2 cup sugar
1/3 cup instant tea
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
Dash of salt

To prepare Hot Spiced Tea Mix, combine instant breakfast drink, sugar, instant tea, spices, and salt. Store in tightly covered jar. Makes 2 cups mix.

For each serving Hot Spiced Tea, place 1 well-rounded teaspoon of mix in a cup. Add boiling water; stir until dissolved. Serve immediately.

For 1 quart of Hot Spiced Tea, combine 1/3 cup of the mix with 1 quart boiling water in a heatproof pitcher or serving bowl. Serve with lemon wedges, if desired.

TIMES BICENTENNIAL 1776 ★ 1976 FEATURE

(Editor's Note: Following article was among those submitted for the Pennington county historical book and is being published here in the general public interest. As will be done with the historical book, the story is published as submitted with a minimum of editing.)

by Kenneth Olson

Gordon M. Olson was born in Freeborn county, Minn, in 1882. His parents came to this country from Norway by sail boat. He married Lena Mouldenhour in 1908; her parents sailed to this country from Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Olson and family then homesteaded at Genoa, Colorado and later moved back to Hartland.

In March of 1917 they moved, with Dake Ayers and family and Dick Hall and family, by immigrant train to Thief River Falls and settled in Sanders township. They also moved their machinery and cattle with horses and sleds which took two days. The first night they stopped over and fed and milked their cows at the Johnson farm four miles west of Thief River Falls.

The next day they drove the cattle, the balance of the trip of seven miles. After tipping over with the household furniture (a couple of times) everyone felt they had a full day.

Then in March of 1920 the Olson family moved to Norden township, four miles west of Thief River Falls, where the family farmed and raised cattle.

He raised Minnesota No. 13 seed corn and sold it for seed, by picking the best corn and hanging it on the buildings to dry. Then, he shelled it by hand with a small hand sheller and graded it with a hand grader for seed.

On the 200-acre farm there was approximately 90 acres open; the balance was timber which later was cleared by hand and the land broke up.

I recall one Sunday we visited some neighbors. When we got home the bull had got out and had torn the corn down and was enjoying it—but, didn't stay there long!

In 1922 Gordon built a hip roof barn 60x32 feet and in 1935 built a two-story house.

Everytime it would rain, I remember we all would mix cemet by hand and pour floors and stalls and mangers in the barn. We mixed cement for a 14x28 foot hog shed and the walls for a chicken house.

The winter of 1936 was the coldest in history. For six weeks the temperature stayed 40 below and colder.

In 1928 Mrs. Olson passed away, leaving him with the family of eight children to care for, the youngest 1½ years old.

At this time the oldest son Lawrence lived in Los Angeles, Calif. Glen, Kenneth, Norman, Gordon Jr., Donald and Lilas Klefstad all resided in the Thief River Falls community. One daughter, Leona, died in 1917. One son, Chester, died in service in World War II on January 28, 1945 in Germany.

Gordon Olson was a member of the town board in Norden township and a member of the school board of district 135 for many years. It was a small school of 28 to 30 pupils, but, the schoolhouse was small too, only 18x28 feet.

Some pupils had to walk 2½ miles to school; we had one mile. When it was 40 below and a wind it was a long way to walk.

We had an Englishman that would drive his daughter to school with a small horse and cutter. They would pass us along the road, but with six or seven of us hanging on the back of the sled she wouldn't get to school any sooner than us. Of course, we heard plenty bloody language.

In the 20s and 30s we could hear the prairie chicken in the spring drumming with a steady hum all forenoon. In the winter the prairie coyotes were all over. They seem extinct now.

Both farms we moved on in Sanders and Norden townships had a small log house and when we all got tucked away for bed we were stacked like sardines. One Christmas

Snowmobile Mishap Injures Hastings Man

Harvey Virgil Uglem of Hastings was hospitalized in Thief River Falls Friday following a snowmobile accident about 4:40 p.m. between Goodridge and the intersection of highways 1 and 219. He was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

According to the Pennington county sheriff's department which investigated the accident, Uglem was driving a snowmobile south in the ditch along highway 219 when the machine hit a crossing and threw him off. The machine reportedly continued south.

Uglem is reported in satisfactory condition at Northwestern hospital services this morning with a compression fracture of the lower back.

Investigation Continues On Shooting Death

Investigation is continuing this morning into the shooting death of Dwayne Englund, 39, a lifelong resident of the Grygla community. Englund was believed shot accidentally by another person snowmobiling on his farm about eight miles from Grygla late Saturday afternoon, according to the Beltrami county sheriff's department which is completing its investigation this morning.

Funeral services for Dwayne Englund will be held Wednesday at Grace Lutheran church at Grygla with Rev. Bruce Anderson officiating. The body will repose at Green Funeral home in Thief River Falls from Tuesday noon until 11 a.m. Wednesday and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Farm Diking Is Meeting Topic

Diking of farm land by farmers in the Red River valley is a practice under discussion and controversy. The following article is from the Warren Sheaf:

Independent diking by farmers along the Red River of the North was the subject of major interest at a meeting of the Upper Mississippi River Basin Commission in Fargo Monday. Col. Max Noah, head of the St. Paul office of the Army Corps of Engineers, said the diking, done mainly in the area north and south of Oslo, could raise the flood stage crest three feet.

Because of the concern over the change of flood crests by diking, the commission voted to appoint Duane Ekman, Argyle farmer, as a farmer representative to the Red River of the North Task Force, a body of the overall commission.

Major area of concern was from south of Oslo about six miles to about 14 miles north of Oslo, an area in which land adjacent to the Red is abnormally low and the area in which much independent diking has been completed by farmers this fall. Diking was started as a successful emergency measure by farmers during the July flooding on the Red with the quickly thrown up dikes saving many thousands of acres of crop from being flooded.

James Wright, supervisor of flood plain management for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, outlines the 20-mile area of major concern north and south of Oslo.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has issued an order to remove the dikes, but that order was stayed pending study of the effect of the dikes on downstream flooding to the north.

While admitting that his figures on increased water levels caused by the dikes were "back of the envelope estimates", Col. Noah called the situation near Oslo a "hydraulic mess". He said any further diking should be curtailed until "we can take a solid look at this thing".

Some of the concerns he mentioned were increased water velocity due to the dikes, more erosion and higher water levels downstream.

Oslo Mayor Peter Gerszewski told the meeting of the Red River Task Force of the Upper Mississippi River Basin that he believed that the effect in Oslo during last July's

Signs Taken On Snowcat Trails

Thefts and vandalism have made a shambles of marking on the Viking trail snowmobile route, requiring a completely new marking effort within the past week, according to Mike Beito, trail maintenance director for the Pennington county highway department.

"This is the last time this year," Beito said of the recent effort to get the trail marking in good condition. "It's up to the persons who use the trail to help keep the signs in shape and to report the license number on the machine of anyone damaging or taking signs."

Beito said that he had lost about 15 of the metal, reflectorized signs already this year although snow cover has been thin and trail use has been light. Half a dozen of the new 2x4 sign posts which had been installed prior to freeze-up have been broken or twisted off, he added. "And it doesn't go too good to try to put down a post in frozen ground," he said.

Persons who plan to build a bonfire at the shelter area are also advised to bring their own firewood. The pile of wood which Beito had prepared for that purpose was burned right in the pile. The shelter itself has been decorated with wall writing which, he said, would probably make a number of snowmobilers reluctant to bring their wives there.

Beito said he would begin today (Monday) in marking the Agassiz Basin trail which extends northeast of Thief River Falls into Marshall county. Except in wooded areas or places where turns are required, the trail will have marking signs only once a mile.

Anyone seen damaging sign posts or taking signs should be reported to either the county highway engineer's office (681-1221) or Beito himself at 681-1182. Charges will be brought against anyone committing such acts, he said. Removal of the signs and damaging of posts and shelters create unnecessary hazards, detract from the potential enjoyment of trail use and add unnecessarily to cost of trail maintenance.

Most areas where the signs have been taken or damage done are accessible only by snowmobile or on foot, Beito added.

Babson Forecast Gives Insight Into 1976 Year

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., December 24, 1975. In its forecast for 1975 published a year ago, the staff of Babson's Reports envisioned an unfolding scenario far less pessimistic than the general atmosphere prevailing at that time. The primary message then was that the nation's problem for the ensuing 1975 calendar year was a recession and not a devastating depression. This thesis was predicated on the probability that recuperative forces would start to emerge as imbalances in the economy were corrected.

Babson's 1975 forecast also called attention to the various cushions which would play a vital role in lessening the severity of the recessionary forces despite the doom and gloom psychology holding sway as 1974 drew to a close. At the same time, however, the forecast warned against expecting the sort of rapid recovery from setbacks that this nation had experienced over the past 30 years. The causes of this latest recession were particularly deep-rooted and there was no question but that they would be difficult to cure.

1976—Overall Prognosis Is Favorable

Everything considered, however, the staff of Babson's Reports forecasts further economic progress for 1976, even though readers of this column should not expect a return to outright boom conditions. Unwieldy inventories and short-term business and consumer debts have been reduced over the past year or so, but the real stuff needed to spark a protracted upsurge—aggressive business and consumer purchases, plus massive capital expenditures—are simply not on the horizon. As things stand, the first quarter could well be the best part of the year in terms of economic expansion. While the ensuing quarters will tack on additional gains, the size of the year-to-year improvements will diminish as 1976 progresses. But the key is that the trend will be upward throughout the entire year.

GNP—With And Without Inflation

In terms of "current dollar value," the nation's Gross National Product in 1976 should score an advance of some 11 per cent over the 1975 totals that look as though they, in turn, would barely eclipse those of 1974 when final tally is made. While an increase of 11 per cent may seem impressive, the force of upthrust will not be all that great. The broadest year-to-year gain will be seen in the first three months because this quarter is compared with the deepest point of the recession when the rate of inflation was still intolerably high. The moderate and low-key nature of the business uptrend can be better appreciated by projecting the GNP on a constant-dollar basis (1958 as the base period), adjusted to remove the influence of inflation. Babson's Reports projects the "real" GNP for 1976 at four per cent above that for 1975. This upshading is only a bit greater than the basic growth rate of the economy and surely does not merit a "boom" label.

Keep An Eye On Inflation

By and large, 1975 witnessed a fair degree of success in damping the fires of inflation. While this corroder of purchasing power remains uncomfortably high, its impact has been materially reduced in the course of the past 12 months. In early 1976, inflation should be moderately well contained, but with the advent of the spring months upward pressures will again strengthen. As was the case in the past two years, this will be due to cost-push rather than demand-pull factors. The latter, however, could compound the problem somewhat in the middle and latter parts of the year as business makes headway. In the initial months of 1976, inflation will not build a direct proportion to the amplitude of new wage hikes, since the substantial reservoir of under-utilized production capacity in many industries and the cautious buying policies of consumers and businessmen militate against free and unrestricted price markups.

But this barier against inflation will be increasingly difficult to maintain as 1976 proceeds. The cumulative effects of boosts in labor costs, shipping charges, and other operating expenses will gradually offset some of the benefits of higher production and sales, squeezing profit margins to such an extent that only compensating price boosts can alleviate the situation. Also, continuing massive deficits in the federal budget will add potent fuel to inflation, both psychologically and to the degree that such deficits are monetized. We envision inflation averaging some seven per cent in 1976.

Inventories—Less Dominant In 1976

Sudden changes in the policy of business toward inventory holdings in the year ahead will not be the dominating influence on economic activity that they have been in the past two years. The Arab oil embargo created fear of supply shortages and price increases. The ensuing splurge of inventory accumulation served to buoy 1974's business for the better part of the year before it was realized that consumers had altered their spending pattern and that high borrowing costs were negating the cost benefits of stockpiling. The resultant turnabout in policy in favor of retrenchments in inventory holdings and bank loans triggered the sharp slump in industrial activity in late 1974 and early 1975. And, here again, in some segments of the economy businessmen overreacted. So, as signs of a loosening of consumer purse strings were seen, overly deep slashes in inventories had to be corrected. It was this move to replenish stocks of raw materials and finished goods which brought about the unexpectedly early and steep business climb starting in the second quarter of 1975.

Such pronounced swings in business inventories are not likely to be repeated in 1976. There may be some stockpiling early in the year to hedge against the debilitating effects of a possible protracted tie-up of the nation's trucking industry by the Teamsters early next spring, but for the most part labor negotiations during the year ahead do not involve industries which would require intensive strike-hedge inventory accumulation. Moreover, the somewhat more liberal consumer spending pattern is neither deep-rooted nor extensive enough to encourage merchants to load up. The manufacturers and retailers still haunted by memories of the surplus goods of the past 18 months are not anxious for a repeat of that fiasco.

Industrial Production

The last major cyclical uptrend in industrial production peaked in the latter part of 1973. Except for

Store Hours To Change Due To New Year's Day

Thief River Falls stores will close at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, New Year's eve, and remain closed throughout the day on Thursday. The closing hours will also apply to Piggly-Wiggly, Hartz, Northland Foods and Red Owl supermarkets which are normally open evenings.

Downtown retail stores will close at 5:30 p.m. on Friday as regularly scheduled, meaning that there will be no evening store openings this week. The regular schedule of Thursday night openings will resume next week.

Rev. Ose Tells About Madagascar Christmas

(Editor's Note: Rev. Roger Ose is a former resident of Thief River Falls and now serving on the mission field in Madagascar. He has provided the Times with the following story from his experiences there as appropriate for the Christmas season.)

by Roger Ose
Fort Dauphin, Madagascar

People had been coming along the foot paths to the church for quite some time before they started the Petromax kerosene pressure lamp. Although the church was dark, the Malagasy children didn't mind. This was Christmas Eve, and they wanted to share in one of the biggest festivals of the year—the children's program at church.

As they started up the Petromax lantern, it didn't glow just right. Two men adjusted the valve, pumped in more pressure, and did their best to get it to produce a bright flame. Then all of a sudden it worked, and the church was filled with light.

By the time the program started at 7:30 p.m. the bush church was packed with 185 people or more. They cleared a path for the Sunday school children to walk down the center aisle, and all joined in singing, "O Come, All Ye Faithful." One child read Hebrews 1:1-8, that tells about God speaking through his Son. A seven-year-old child led in prayer.

The program was a series of 34 songs, Christmas carols, recitations, Bible readings and the Christmas story acted out. There were different grade levels, and each group had something special they learned for the program. When the program was over, each child got several pieces of candy.

What was different about this program? The leader. He is Pastor Josefa Randriantseheno, a man born in a little Malagasy bush village back in 1896. Although nearly 80 now, he had worked faithfully with the children for weeks, helping them learn their recitations and songs. And that Christmas Eve he did an excellent job of leading the program.

When the Petromax mantle broke at 9:20 p.m., the church went dark. But he pulled a dozen candles out of his pocket. I smiled. He knew what to expect when they had to depend on that Petromax for light. Then he continued to

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Senior, Junior Foresters Hold Yule Activities

Senior and Junior National Catholic Society of Foresters held separate Christmas parties recently.

The senior group held their party at the home of Mrs. Ray Vaudrin. The event began at 6:30 p.m., with a pot-luck dinner. Following the regular meeting, that began at 8 p.m., members exchanged gifts.

The National Catholic Society of Junior Foresters held their annual Christmas program on December 13 at 3 p.m. at St. Bernard's hall.

The Nativity scene was enacted by the members, with Debbie Warmsbecker as Mary; Adam Warmsbecker as Joseph; Ryan Dupree as Baby Jesus; Matt Dupree as the Drummer boy; Julie Vanyo, Jodi Thompson and Christy Holthusen as angels; Robby Vanyo, Jeff Vanyo, Tony Warmsbecker and Mike Warmsbecker as shepherds; and Todd Hoglo, Billy Bjerken and Rick Engelstad as the three kings.

Christmas carols were sung and Santa Claus made his appearance with bags of candy. A festive lunch concluded the party.

The next regular meeting of the NCSF will be held January 20 at 8 p.m. at St. Bernard's hall.

LPN's Observe Christmas At Supper Party

LPN's annual Christmas supper party for members of the Area I Minnesota Licensed Practical Nurses, was held recently at the American Legion club rooms in this city.

A brief business meeting was held with President Marion Holte presiding. Highlighting the event was the awarding of the table centerpiece to Pearl Iverson, whose birthday was that day. Drawing Mrs. Iverson's name for the centerpiece was Yvonne Pederson.

The next meeting of the Area I Licensed Practical Nurses to be held in Thief River Falls will be on February 2 at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Public library meeting room. A guest speaker is planned. All members are encouraged to attend. Prospective members are also welcome.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Physical fitness is many things to many people. It doesn't mean that in order to be fit one must be a star athlete or adhere strictly to a carefully selected diet or in other ways restrict himself.

The Minnesota state medical association defines physical fitness as the general capacity to adapt and respond favorably to physical effort. It points out that the degree of physical fitness depends upon the individuals state of health, constitution, present and previous physical activity.

An individual is physically fit when he is able to meet both the ordinary and the unusual demands of his daily life satisfactorily. Physical fitness and good health go hand in hand. Nearly everyone can have the level of fitness that helps him do his work, enjoy his recreation and still have some reserve.

A periodic health evaluation by a physician aimed at correcting any defects which may exist is essential to fitness. Then, with the physician's assurance that physical activity will be safe, a variety of physical activity of a suitable nature at regular intervals should be planned. Jogging, calisthenics, tennis, badminton, golf, bowling, walking and climbing several flights of steps are all possibilities. Regularity—some physical activity every day—is the key to a successful physical fitness program.

Fitness doesn't stop with physical activity. A balance of caloric intake and output must be maintained. Mental fitness—the ability to cope with anger, fear, frustration—are just as important as being able to run a mile. Social fitness—the ability to meet, work and develop team activities with people and enjoy associations with people—is as vital as physical development programs.

All of these and other factors in daily living help us to become fit, but they are likely to be more effective if they can be built on a sound basis of physical fitness in a person who is medically well.

'U' Education Grads Teach In Australia

by Bill Richardson
U of M News Service

What do Minnesota and the Australian state of Victoria have in common? About 150 teachers.

University of Minnesota College of Education placement personnel have been cooperating since 1972 with a University of California education professor, whose main occupation is finding young American teachers for short-term appointments in teacher-poor Australia.

And she says there "is something about Minnesota kids" that makes them especially desirable for such a mission. Consequently, about 500 of the 3,000 teachers she has dispatched to Australia are from Minnesota, and most of those have studied at the University.

Frank Braun, College of education placement office director, explained that the interest in Australian jobs remains for young graduates because "the job market really hasn't improved . . . We even find people applying who have been out of college for some time but have never found that first teaching job."

Going to Australia for the first crack at teaching is a big step for University graduates, since 85 to 90 per cent of them end up in jobs somewhere in Minnesota, Braun said.

Those who are selected are very satisfied, the program's organizer, Claire Pederson, said. The dry climate is similar to that of the southern United States and temporary residents pay no Australian income tax for the first two years. She estimates that nearly 70 per cent of the Americans remain beyond their initial contracts.

It all started when Pederson recognized the frustration her students faced when they could not find teaching employment. She had spent parts of 1964 and 1965 in Victoria where her husband was on teaching assignment. Then the Australian teacher supply was adequate to handle the school-age population. At the same time, the American teacher supply was finally sufficient after more than a decade of shortages.

By 1972, the situations in both nations had changed.

"The Australian population was increasing rapidly, much as the American population did after the war," she said. "This was especially true of the school-age population group. And, at the same time, America was experiencing its first overabundance of teachers. It wasn't just a surplus of teachers with bachelor's degrees, either, but people with master's and Ph.D.'s and even some with a few years of experience."

She placed a transpacific telephone call to a friend of hers in the Victorian education ministry to ask if the state could use a few secondary teachers.

"Could you send at least 100?" the official asked her.

Since then, she has interviewed tens of thousands of young teachers in 35 states and, in the process, has acquired some definite opinions about their geographic differences.

"I'm not sure why, but the kids from the Midwest seem to adapt more easily, they're less anxious and affected," she asserted.

At first, she recruited only at the University of Minnesota and the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, although she admitted that she was restricted to the two campuses because her budget from Australia encouraged her to visit colleges near friends or relatives. Her husband was born in Hallock, across the river from Grand Forks.

She is also influenced by the help she gets from college placement offices, but Braun points out that not every education student is interested in or suited to teaching in Australia. "We encourage students to seek out new possibilities, including Australia and other foreign countries," Braun said, "But some people just aren't adventurous enough."

Accident-prone car owners sometimes pay damage bills themselves rather than submit insurance claims that would cause their rates to soar or their coverage to be cut off. They cannot then claim a casualty loss on their tax returns; IRS and the courts say that such losses are voluntary, and not deductible.

For the busy homemaker, or hostess in a hurry, nothing could make more sense than an all-in-one dish which is filled with all the ingredients of a many pot 'n pan menu. Energy-wise it's a good idea too, as one pot will conserve a lot of gas or electric burning. Beyond that, the piquant combination of poultry parts, carrots, onions, lima beans, celery, and potatoes—all succulently seasoned by cranberry orange relish and rosé wine—add up to a really delectable recipe.

If you're entertaining, a chafing pot would certainly be elegant to use for buffet serving. For the family, simply prepare each plate, and keep your warm pot on the stove for those calls for seconds. Round out this tasteful fare with a salad of crisp greens and a help-yourself pitcher brimful of cranberry juice cocktail with paper-thin orange slices floating in it.

CRANBERRY-ORANGE CHICKEN IN A POT

(Serves 8)

2 broiler-fryer chickens, about 2 pounds, cut-up
Salt and pepper
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup Ocean Spray cranberry-orange relish (from 14-ounce jar)
2 cans (10½ oz. ea.) condensed chicken broth
1/2 cup rosé wine
16 whole new potatoes, peeled
1 package (10 oz.) frozen lima beans
1 cup sliced celery
1 package (10 oz.) frozen whole carrots
2 tablespoons cornstarch mixed with 2 tablespoons water

Wash chicken and pat dry. Sprinkle pieces with salt and pepper. Brown chicken in butter in a large skillet. Remove pieces as they brown. Add cranberry-orange relish and onions to pan drippings and saute until onions are wilted. Add browned chicken, chicken broth and wine. Simmer for 20 minutes while covered. Add potatoes, and limas. Simmer covered for another 20 minutes. Add celery and carrots. Remove chicken, potatoes and carrots to a platter. Cover; cook 10 minutes. Blend cornstarch mixture into pan drippings. Stir until smooth and thickened. Spoon sauce over chicken and vegetables. Serve garnished with parsley.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

by Ellen M. Spray

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

As I replaced the receiver on the telephone by my bed, I could hear the carolers on the radio singing, "And the angels sang, and the chorus rang, 'twas the birthday of the King."

Christmas, the season of "Peace on Earth," is still here, but already the "Good will towards all men," was fading; or could it be, that that age old greeting doesn't apply to paper boys since they are below the legal age limit?

The woman who called had a legitimate reason for complaining. She had just returned from taking her son on his paper route and she stated, "Paper boys shouldn't be expected to take some of the abuse they receive from some of their customers."

In checking with paper boys, it seems the most numerous complaints they receive are: the papers aren't on time, are torn, wet, or aren't placed in the right place.

With a little cooperation and consideration on both the customers' and the paper boys' part, these problems can be rectified.

Now, let's consider the boys. The majority of them are in their early teens, or younger. Regardless of the weather, they trudge from door to door, carrying a heavy pack of papers. (Those packs are heavy. If you don't believe it, try carrying 30 to 50 Thief River Falls Times, Grand Forks Heralds or Minneapolis papers, for two or three blocks.) Adding to their problems at this time of the year are the heavy clothing and the high boots that they must wear to wade through deep snows over unshoveled walks. In bitterly cold weather, with stiff fingers, they are supposed to fold a large bulky newspaper and slip it into a slot on the door that was originally intended for letters. (Oh, hes, it can be done, as adults coming from warm rooms with warm fingers demonstrate; but would the adult be able to accomplish the same feat after walking six blocks in 27 below zero weather with winds gusting to 30 miles?)

Most paper boys have a large route. They are expected to remember that Mrs. Jones wants her paper placed between the doors on the south side of the house, Mrs. Peterson wants it in her mail box, Mrs. Anderson, who lives in the same house, wants hers placed on the floor in the front porch while her husband wants the boy to come into the porch and place the paper on the table so it doesn't get stepped on if someone comes in.

One mother, who spoke for her son, stated that she couldn't understand all the complaints as in the city where she lived before coming here, paper boys were not expected to place newspapers inside doors or in mail boxes. "If we wanted home delivery, the pater was placed or clung from the sidewalks onto the steps. If we wanted special care we were told to subscribe for mail delivery."

Another woman said, "If the adults were asked to deliver the papers for a year, we would be without home delivery in one month. It is unbelievable the number of times they must call on some people in order to make their collections, some are business people, and they of all people should know that delivering papers is business, one of the first businesses that youth encounter."

Paper boys have their problems too. Next time you're tempted to "blow your cool" because the paper isn't on time, or that it is wet, or torn, or isn't placed just where you'd like to have it, ask yourself the question, "Would I take the job of delivering papers if it were the only job offered me?"

Today's recipe is for appetizers, recommended for year-around serving.

Disease Still Takes Its Toll Of Elm Trees

St. Paul lost 2,682 trees to Dutch Elm disease this year—68 per cent more than the 1,594 trees that died there last year.

European bark beetles brought the deadly Dutch Elm fungus to St. Paul in 1961, and since that time the city has lost 6,454 of its 120,000 elms to the disease.

Tom Karl, city aborist, says that the beetles probably came up the Mississippi on barges, aboard incoming freight trains, and on trucks from other states.

"There's no real barrier to it except our cold," says Karl, "and even that hasn't really stopped the beetles. Dutch Elm has moved all the way to Canada."

If Dutch Elm disease strikes trees near your home, Karl suggests four control measures: (1) trim any dead wood from the trees; (2) remove dead elms promptly; (3) do not store elm logs for firewood; and (4) have a tree firm isolate infected trees with Vapam, a chemical that kills root connections to neighboring trees.

Dutch Elm disease spreads a lot faster with the help of people who insist on storing elm logs for firewood.

"People will cut down a dead elm that's full of beetles and take the logs to their lake cabin up north," says Karl. "Some cut up dead elm trees at their lake place and bring the logs back here for winter firewood. Those logs are loaded with beetles and a stack of elm logs covered with snow is a great place for the beetles to spend the winter.

"Every spring we condemn about 300 backyard wood piles that have European elm bark beetles in them."

More than 16,000 elms died of Dutch Elm disease this year in the seven-county metropolitan area of Minnesota. This is a 63.4 per cent increase over the 9,792 elms lost last year in this area. All but 20 of Minnesota's 87 counties have reported Dutch Elm disease, and the disease has moved north across the Candian border.

If Dutch Elm disease strikes all of the 3,146,000 elms in the metro area, it would cost more than $200 million to cut them down and remove them, Karl says.

Since 1969 St. Paul has spent $1,663,000 to find, treat, and remove infected elm trees. The city's budget for trees this year was $307,000. Karl says next year the budget will be $360,000.

Karl's crews have planted some 7,500 new trees during the past four years to replace dying elms. Most of these were from one and a quarter to two inches in diameter.

Next year, Karl says, "if funding is approved, we hope to plant about 3,000 trees. We are putting all our planting under contract with private tree firms next year. And the trees will be larger ball-and-burlap trees with 2¾ inch trunks.

"About half of the trees we plant are maples, 20 per cent are ash, and the rest are a mixture."

"Last summer," Karl says, "we condemned an elm in a private yard that was over 100 years old and more than 10 feet in circumference. It stood about 75 feet high. The owner hired a tree firm to cut down the tree."

He estimates that it costs about $120 to cut down a tree on a residential boulevard. When a dead elm needs to be cut down in a backyard, Karl said, removal costs can range from $75 to $900.

"It depends on how much work the crew have to do up in the air," he explains. "If the tree extends over a building, the crew sometimes have to lower each branch with a rope after they cut it."

"We have two crews trimming dead branches from elms now to control the disease. When the disease gets to where we are losing 6,000 or 7,000 trees a year, we may switch entirely to removing trees instead of trimming them."

Chemicals are not very effective as a control measure in treating Dutch Elm disease, Karl says. Use of DDT is illegal.

"We have only about two weeks in the spring when spraying will do any good," he explains, "and then we can't spray if the wind is over five miles an hour because the chemical drifts and damages other plants and trees owned by private parties; and we could be liable for damages."

"We're still using the methods we used 20 years ago, because none of the new experimental control methods have turned out to be effective."

Protecting your dollar!

By
Warren Spannaus
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

During the holiday season we are reminded in many ways of the joy of giving. Charitable contributions are very much a part of this. Unfortunately, some unscrupulous operators take advantage of the holiday spirit by soliciting funds for questionable or, in some instances, outright phony charities. When it comes to charities, citizens should exercise some caution before giving.

Here are some procedures you should follow to protect yourself against persons who are out to take advantage of your charitable impulses.

First, the door-to-door solicitor. A knock at the door or a ring of the doorbell may bring you face to face with a person holding a can or a handful of envelopes and asking you to contribute to a particular charity. It's at this point that instead of pulling money out of your pocket or going to get your purse, you should ask very specific questions.

Ask the solicitor to show identification for both himself or herself and the carity. If you've never heard of the charity—be careful of names that are chosen to sound like familiar charities—ask for written information about it and tell the solicitor you will make a contribution after reading the material and checking on the charity.

Whatever you do, don't contribute on the spot to a charity you know nothing about. And don't be fooled by a charity's name or by hard-luck stories told by solicitors. A phony charity will often have an impressive sounding name, and its solicitors will often have heartbreaking stories.

Second, phone solicitors. Phone solicitations often involve the sale of products that are reputedly either made by the handicapped or whose sale benefits the handicapped. You can avoid being cheated by over-the-phone solicitors by not committing yourself to a contribution or the purchase of a product during the first call. If you think the charity might be worthwhile, ask the solicitor to send you information about the organization and how it aids the needy.

If the solicitor claims to be helping a local group—perhaps a civic club, a youth organization or an organization aiding the handicapped—be sure to check with the local organization to see whether such a solicitation has been authorized.

Third, mail solicitation. Again, make certain what you are contributing to before you send a single cent. If you haven't heard of the charity, be suspicious. Sometimes along with the request for a contribution, there is a trinket or some product—a key chain, a pin or something of greater value—that you are told you can keep if you contribute.

The fact of the matter is that under both Minnesota state and federal law if you did not request that the item be sent you, you can consider it a gift. You do not have to contribute to keep it, nor do you have to send it back.

Once again, give, but give only to charities that benefit the needy.

If you have any questions on any charities or charitable organizations, please contact the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, 102 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Offer Prepaid Legal Plan For MN. Teachers

Teachers in four state school districts will participate next year in a pioneering prepaid legal services plan unique to Minnesota sponsored by the Minnesota State bar association (MSBA) and the Minnesota education association (MEA).

Eligible for the experimental program are some 400 teachers in the Brooklyn Center, Mahtomedi, Milaca and Redwood Falls school districts. Participating group members include all teachers under contract who are part of the officially designated bargaining units.

The pilot program, according to MSBA and MEA, is unique in that it combines Bar sponsorship, choice of any participating attorney admitted to practice in the state, endorsement of MEA and a compensation formula based on the usual, customary and reasonable fee of the participating attorney.

The seven-county metro area includes two of the participating districts—Brooklyn Center and Mahtomedi—and some 5,500 of the state's 7,500 attorneys. Any attorney licensed to practice in Minnesota is eligible to participate.

MEA is furnishing to eligible teachers a list of participating attorneys who have signed a participating agreement. MEA will administer the program under provisions of specific benefits developed jointly with MSBA. Minnesota Indemnity, Inc. (MII) will handle claims administration.

Benefits of the program—available also to eligible dependents, including spouse and each unemancipated child under 18 include: Legal consultation, legal office work, court and administrative proceedings, and litigation costs.

Certain coverages are not provided by the plan; for example, payment for business expenses and contingency fee cases. Certain legal advice is limited to participating group members only and not available to other family members; for example, advice in a divorce proceeding.

Sponsors will evaluate the year-long plan and expect that the plan, or a similar benefits structure, will be bargained for by teachers throughout the state during the next negotiations period for the 1977-79 contract period.

If you have dividend-earning life insurance, the insurance company will encourage you to leave the dividends on deposit with them. Before you do, learn what interest they pay on such deposits, and compare with what you can get elsewhere.

UMC And NCC To Co-Sponsor Art Exhibit

Twenty-two paintings, with an estimated total value of almost $50,000, will be on public display at Crookston National bank and Northland college in January. Showing of the canvases by a former Minnesota art teacher, B. J. O. Nordfeldt, has been arranged by the UMC Bicentennial committee.

The exhibition, entitled "B. J. O. Nordfeldt: Seascape, Landscape, and Still Life Paintings", will open in Crookston on January 7, on the main floor and in the meeting room downstairs at Crookston National. After January 17, the exhibit will be moved to the art gallery of Northland community college in Thief River Falls. Northland and UMC are jointly sponsoring the show which closes in Thief River Falls on January 31.

On loan to the University of Minnesota gallery from the estate of the late artist, the exhibition is constituted of five seascapes, nine landscapes and eight still lifes. A number of these original art works, which were made available for the traveling show by Mrs. Nordfeldt, the painter's wife, are for sale at prices ranging from $1,800 to $3,000.

Admission to view the paintings is free and individuals, cultural and school groups are welcome to visit the display site during regular banking hours.

Born in Sweden but raised in this country, Nordfeldt (1875-1955) was an American artist who taught for a time in Minnesota, Utah, and Kansas before settling in New Jersey where he lived during the last 20 years of his life and where most of his best renderings of seaside scenes and still lifes were created. Early in his career he painted in England, Italy, North Africa, and France. He also produced a host of vivid paintings and prints of the Southwestern AAmerican landscape while working in Santa Fe, N.M.

The current exhibition examines three subjects—seascapes, landscapes, and still lifes of nature's bounty—which Nordfeldt continued to paint throughout his career. His style is representational but not highly realistic.

Paintings by Nordfeldt are in the collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Joseph H. Hirshhorn museum and Sculpture garden, the Corcoran gallery of art, the Minneapolis Institute of Art and the Walker Art center.

In Search of The Spirit of '76

What is the meaning of the Bicentennial? The times may be right for a re-dedication of spirit in America, but what if the occasion passes as only a celebration? A common commitment is needed, similar to that of the first Christmas in this nation's history. If those were not the worst of times, neither were they the best.

The "Spirit of '76" barely survived its first season, when the problems confronting our new nation were perhaps more severe than ever.

Nowhere in America is the meaning of that spirit more dramatically present than at the small town of Washington's Crossing, Pennsylvania. State park grounds now preserve the heritage of determination, strength beyond the limits of human endurance, and an allegiance sorely tested.

Here, George Washington and a ragged Continental Army crossed the Delaware River to attack the British at Trenton on Christmas night, 1776, the darkest and single most important night of the American Revolution.

The Declaration of Independence was not yet six months old when Washington brought his retreating troops to a halt on the west bank of the Delaware. Liberty, the lofty ideal that had been committed to paper, was now facing hard-earned fact.

The months from July, to that fateful December night had been nothing short of disastrous. Setbacks were common throughout the autumn of 1776 as poorly trained colonials faced highly skilled Hessian mercenaries.

In three months, Washington had lost about 5,000 men and now commanded a force too small to hold its position against the advancing enemy. With no reinforcements and desertions increasing hourly, he continued to retreat across New Jersey from earlier defeats in New York. On reaching New Brunswick, the General saw his army ranks dwindle. When their enlistments ended on December 1, two regiments demanded release and, almost to a man, left for home. Even more desertions followed, as some of the poorly clothed and fed soldiers joined forces with the British.

Facing probable defeat, Washington began his maneuver of desperation. With little money remaining for food or supplies, he ordered that every boat along the Delaware ferry what remained of his army across the river to Pennsylvania.

Townsfolk gathered at the scene to watch and laugh at the straggling army, but when the British advance guard arrived with colors flying and bands playing, they found neither the ragged Americans nor boats to carry the Redcoats to the opposite shore.

The British settled in at Trenton, apparently waiting for the river to freeze before marching on to Philadelphia and a likely end to a brief war. While the enemy was being elegantly entertained by the Tories, Washington's freezing and starving troops huddled in bushes or under crude shanties.

In England, the war was considered over. In Paris, Benjamin Franklin could not lure French support to an apparently lost cause. And no one was more acutely aware of the hopelessness of it all than Washington himself. He wrote his brother, John Augustus, "No man, I believe, ever had a greater choice of difficulties and less means to extricate himself from them. The game is almost up."

Washington decided to recross the Delaware on Christmas night 1776 and launch a surprise attack on Trenton at dawn. The daring maneuver and subsequent victory changed the course of history forever. A new nation rose from the depths of December and began to gather a momentum that carried it through the remaining long years of war.

At Washington's Crossing, the modern visitor stands in awe before this hallowed birthplace of liberty and the courageous faith that survived those bleak winter days. Across two centuries, it is still a place that rekindles the spirit of America.

Washington's Crossing is one of 16 attractions on the "George Washington Country Heritage Trail," a self-guided tour of the mid-Atlantic states that visits historic sites in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia associated with the life of the First President. Information may be obtained by writing George Washington Country, Box 76, Richmond, Virginia 23201.

LIVING HISTORY—The determined patriotism shown by George Washington and his 2,400 troops at Washington's Crossing Pennsylvania, is dramatized at an annual reenactment of that fateful Christmas night.

HHH Bill On Raising Milk Price Passes

U.S. Senate passed by a voice vote legislation introduced by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey to provide for a quarterly adjustment in the milk support prices paid to farmers "to enable them to keep pace with production costs."

The bill, S. J. Res. 121, as amended by the House of Representatives, also would immediately increase the support level for milk from the present 80 per cent to 85 per cent of parity. It now goes to the President for signature.

"For the past several years, dairy farmers have been caught in one of the highest cost-price squeezes ever encountered," Humphrey told the Senate prior to passage of the bill. "Production costs have skyrocketed, but milk prices have not kept pace.

"During the last two years, five thousand Minnesota dairy farmers have quit. And right now the number of dairy farms in the state is at an all time low."

Blaming the Administration for "contributing to the economic woes of the dairy farmers, Humphrey pointed out that "rather than permitting market forces to operate," it had ordered "repeated expansions of dairy product imports for the express purpose of depressing prices.

"While these actions were not immediately successful," he said, "the ultimate result was the accumulation of inventories of dairy products in this country and a decline in the farm price for milk of almost 25 per cent from March to July of 1974.

"Dairy prices have recovered recently, but producers still are not meeting production costs, and some of the improvement has been due to reduced feed costs. And the outlook at this point is uncertain as to what will happen to feed costs in the future."

In urging final approval of the measure, Humphrey said that "if adequate dairy supplies are to be maintained, it is necessary for us to make this adjustment now—to give dairy farmers assurances through an 85 per cent of parity support level that it will pay them to stay in dairying and to produce our needed dairy supplies."

Coal to Gas

A new process for converting coal to synthetic natural gas has been launched at ERDA's $15-million SYNTHANE coal gasification pilot plant at Bruceton, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

The plant will process 72 tons of coal a day into 1.2 million cubic feet of pipeline quality methane gas, enough to heat 2,100 homes through a hard winter.

Boy Scout Campground Is Rewired

Northern Lights Boy Scout council camp Waubaunaquat buildings and grounds near White Earth have been completely rewired, according to Leonard R. Marti, Grand Forks, council camping co-chairman.

"Electrical wiring at Camp Waubaunaquat was inadequate and to help the Boy Scouts of the Northern Lights council, the I.B.E.W. Local 1426 of Grand Forks agreed to spearhead a drive to secure materials and provide labor to install an underground electrical distribution system for the entire camp and all its buildings," Marti said.

"This was a tremendously big and valuable project and will be a real help to the Northern Lights Boy Scout council. The completed electrical work will make our camp very adequate for many years," Marti continued.

Camp Waubaunaquat is, located about 40 miles northeast of Detroit Lakes and is a large, long-term camp with a lodge and a number of auxiliary buildings. It was built in 1946.

Low Fatality Rate Expected For Holidays

Minnesota motorists will achieve their best traffic fatality record since 1963 unless serious highway crashes exceed last year's performance during the closing days of 1975 including the Christmas and New Year holidays, according to the Minnesota safety council.

The safety council estimates between three and six fatalities in traffic accidents during the Christmas holiday and two to four deaths during the New Year period. Both holidays will cover a span of 78 hours.

Holiday traffic hazards are due to increased travel, increased use of alcohol, longer hours of darkness and the possibility of hazardous road conditions. The safety council recommends the following for a safe holiday:

(1) If you drive, don't drink, or allow one hour to pass for each drink you've had before you take the wheel.

(2) Turn your headlights on at dusk or whenever weather conditions cause reduced visibility.

(3) Adjust your speed according to road conditions even if it requires less than posted speed limits.

(4) Watch out for the other driver and for pedestrians; they might do something unexpected so be prepared.

(5) Be sure that you and your passengers use safety belts; they are your best friend if you are involved in an accident.

The safety council also estimates approximately 300 disabling injuries due to traffic accidents during the Christmas period and 200 for the New Year period.

'Rack Pricing' Of Gasoline Urged In House

A House subcommittee studying gasoline prices heard from a number of speakers during the December mini session favoring "rack price" legislation, which would require suppliers to sell gasoline to all service stations in Minnesota at the same price.

Dixie Diehl, coordinator of the fuel allocation division in the state energy agency, told the lawmakers that the state might see "the beginning of the end of such services as emergency towing, mechanics who are on duty at night and during weekends, and sources of automobile parts open at odd hours."

She said that branded service station operators have to buy from their suppliers and pay "an artificial high price" while independent operators can buy on the open market and get a lower price.

Gary Persian, attorney for Minnesota Service station assn. (MSSA), told the members their service station operators could take down their (Texaco, Standard Oil, etc.) "flag" and get a lower price, but "they would lose their brand name and credit card privileges and might lose their franchise."

Robert Borrett, executive director of the MSSA, said some 150 gasoline stations in the seven-county metro area have closed during the last six months and that "in a few years the consumer will find that the full service station is no longer in existence."

Because of the disparity in what branded operators and independent operators pay for gasoline from the same oil company, Borrett said, some retail prices are lower than the wholesale price the branded dealer pays. He said the branded operator pays about 53.6 cents per gallon for regular gasoline in competition with the independents who sell regular for 49.9 to 52.9 cents per gallon.

Gerald Everett, director of the Northwest petroleum assn., an organization of about 1,500 jobbers, also approved of the concept of "rack pricing", but because of their experience with the Federal Energy Agency, he said they "don't want any more government help."

Bell Works On Final Part Of 1-Party Service

Northwestern Bell is working on the final phase of a $749,000 service improvement program to make the one-party line the basic standard for service in the Thief River Falls exchange.

The program, which will eliminate all eight-party service, was approved by customers here in August of 1973.

"Telephone installers are now visiting homes and business establishments where service modifications are necessary to provide the new, higher standards of service," states Al Bacon, manager. "We expect the new plan to be in operation early next year if everything proceeds on schedule."

Under terms of the plan, Northwestern Bell will provide one-party service at specific rates in the base rate area or most densely populated area and in Zone "A" which extends approximately one mile around the base rate area. In Zone "B", which comprises the rest of the exchange, one and four-party service will be offered.

Region 1 ADA To Hold Annual Meeting In City

In addition, the business meeting will include the election of regional officers. Present regional officers are: Gary Erickson, Greenbush, regional director and regional chairman; Marvin Sistad, Fosston, alternate regional director and vice chairman; Bertrand Thompson, McIntosh, secretary-treasurer.

Counties included in region one are Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

Begin Work On DWI Manual For Schools

Work has begun on a comprehensive DWI school "manual" designed to give instructors and administrators ready access to the most advanced teaching methods, materials, resources and referral procedures available.

Called officially the DWI school project, it is being made possible through an $11,200 cooperative grant from the state department of public safety and the Minnesota state alcohol and drug authority. The grant is being administered through the West Central Community Services center, Inc., Willmar.

According to project coordinator, James Fox of Willmar, there are four primary goals of the DWI school project:

—To develop a curriculum guideline to serve as a basis for DWI school accreditation.

—To incorporate the "system" of schools into a free-standing, non-profit association.

—To produce a newsletter to keep DWI schools apprised of current trends regarding the DWI problem.

—To hold annual training sessions for DWI school administrators and instructors.

To insure that the manual will be truly comprehensive, an editorial advisory committee has been established, drawing together some of the best alcohol and driving experts in the state.

Author of the manual, Kenzie Phelps, hopes to have the project completed by May 1 and accreditations begun by July 1, 1976.

Clinic For Well Children Set At Three Sites

Early and periodic screening clinics will be held in Warren on January 15; Newfolden on January 21 and Grygla on Monday, January 26, according to Viola L. Rud, Marshall County public health nurse.

These clinics are screening clinics for well children from six months to six years. The purpose is to find any health problems before they become serious.

Possible problems are discussed with the parents and may be referred to the family physician, crippled children's clinics, speech clinician, or may be followed by the public health nurse.

The examination includes weight and height measurements which are compared to normal for the age, vision and hearing screening, blood test for iron content, a urine test covering protein, sugar, retonee, bilirubin and blood. Also included is a check up of the child's development in language and physical and social skills, and a physical examination done by a nurse.

All findings are discussed with the parents and time is allowed to discuss any problems or questions regarding normal development. The child's immunization status is assessed and immunizations are available for minimal cost. The child's mother fills out a health history and a nutrition questionnaire, which are assessed also.

Full-cost is $17.60 per child. The fee may be adjusted according to family size and income. Medical assistance will pay the cost for those families eligible.

Palmby Added As Speaker At Farm Forum

Clarence D. Palmby, vice president for public affairs, Continental Grain company has been added to the list of speakers for the 16th annual farmers farm forum, scheduled for Fargo on February 2.

The annual seminar will tackle the subject "Agriculture's Stake in World Markets," and the New Yorker was once assistant secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs as the Soviet Union prepared to purchase massive tonnages of wheat and other feedstuffs in the U.S. market.

With Richard E. Bell, who holds Palmby's former USDA position, the Fargo roundtable will present the two men most competent to explain the USSR grain shortfall and its effect on the U.S. grain market.

Palmby will speak following an appearance by Charles Robinson, under secretary for economic affairs, U.S. department of state and will himself be followed by an address by Bell. The two will present the most complete story of agriculture's role in shaping foreign policy yet to be presented to Upper Midwest wheat producers.

Following these and other addresses, the speakers will engage in a dialogue with the audience, with all events to be held in Fargo's memorial civic auditorium, beginning at 10 a.m.

The annual Forum is cosponsored by the Fargo Chamber of Commerce and the Forum Publishing company and is open to the public.

Senators State School Aids In Need Of Change

A recent Senate Independent-Republican caucus study indicates the present school aid formula for elementary and secondary schools is in serious need of change, two state senators said recently.

Senator Robert Ashbach (Ind-Rep Arden Hills) and Rolf Nelson (Ind-Rep Golden Valley) also recommended that an education study commission—similar to the one which currently oversees the state's retirement programs—be established to provide up-to-date information and recommended changes in school financing.

According to Ashbach, the three-month study of 12 randomly selected school districts showed that most suburban and outstate districts received much lower increases per actual pupil in crucial foundation aid from the state in 1975 than their big-city counterparts: School district selected and 1975 foundation aid increase per actual pupil over 1974 foundation aid for that district includes: Minneapolis, $125.50; St. Paul, $103.68; Mounds View, $34.58; Robbinsdale, $61.59; Richfield, $28.73; North St. Paul-Maplewood, $34.07; Roseville, $47.94; Brewster, $33.61; Chatfield, $86.33; Hawley, $92.85; Frost, $47.52; and Rochester, $48.31.

The senators said that the dollar amounts for nine of the non-city schools surveyed represented increases of between two and 10 per cent over the previous year. One district—Frost in southern Minnesota—received a 21 per cent decrease.

"By contrast, Minneapolis and St. Paul schools received increases of 30 and 16 per cent respectively, plus $4 million to implement their desegregation programs. Minneapolis also was given an additional $14.5 million to construct a post secondary vocational technical institute."

The senators said they were aware that all school districts had received significant percentage increases in categorical aids to be used for such things as special education and transportation. "But, in fact the actual dollars received by most outstate school districts were quite small because the base on which those percentages were figured was extremely low. Also, categorical aid cannot be applied toward many of a school district's major expenses," they said.

The senators also recommended the 1976 Legislature provide that:

(1) Foundation aid be allocated on the number of pupils actually attending a school rather than on the current complicated formula which includes such factors as the number of AFDC families in a district, producing what the senators called "phantom pupil units."

(2) Aid for special education should be based on the cost of the average pupil rather than on the current per cent of instructors' salaries, to better reflect actual expenses such as administration, supplies and special equipment.

The senators said "we recognize Minneapolis and St. Paul have expensive problems other districts don't, but we don't think aid for these extra expenses should be paid by a formula entirely unrelated to education. If a district needs additional money, let's provide it. But it should not be tied to the foundation aid formula so legislators are faced with a 'take or leave it' option.

"The process of allocating dollars does not have to be a complicated mystery," Ashbach said, "Rather, it should be an easily understood plan that will treat all areas of the state equally. I firmly believe this can be done, and that it must be done soon."

The senator added that the study commission should consist of 10 legislators with a small professional staff which would work full time on school finances.

"The state has a similar group at an annual cost of $77,500 to look out for its $2 billion in retirement funds.

Farm Diking Is Subject For Discussions

flooding was closer to 1½ inches.

Duane Ekman, spokesman for a new Red River Flood control organization, said diking presently constructed on both sides of the river would protect 48,500 acres. He said his group represents 200 landowners or renters and farmers on both sides of the river had worked cooperatively in building the dikes and they had found no problems.

"We can't wait any longer without some action," Mr. Ekman said. "These dikes were intended to facilitate immediate economic survival by protecting cropland." He said farmers couldn't wait for any detailed studies or long-range programs. He called the present work "an emergency self-help project".

"First priority is a flood control plan for the whole valley. We need better overall controls than the idea of 'stop the farmers'." He said losses from last summer's flooding ranged from $186 to $190 million. He blames "uncontrolled ditching" for the flood problems which, he said, are manmade.

Vern Fahy, state engineer for North Dakota, said even if farm dikes were beneficial, they were far below Corps standards. He said the farm dike which connected with the Corps dike at Oslo was about 3 feet lower than the federal dike.

Fahy said there was also a lack of information as to exactly where along the river farm dikes were being constructed. He and Col. Noah agreed that no effective assessment of the dikes could be made until information about them was more definite.

"We have a truce right now," Col. Noah said in regard to his suspending action on his order to open the farm dikes. He said if it was apparent that there would be serious flood problems from the dikes he could have them opened "in half a day."

Commission Chairman George Gribenow said it was his hope and that of the commission that with more grass roots input from farmers in the area, the problem would be amicably solved.

The commission touched lightly on the concern of Canadians over waters that will be reaching them faster and at higher stages and velocities. In October the commission had decided that any action taken would be a joint action, affecting North Dakota and Minnesota farmers the same way.

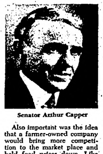
Little Known Farm Law Means A Lot To Consumers

Ever heard of Capper-Volstead? No, they weren't a song-and-dance team, but they were well-known during the vaudeville era—1922 to be exact.

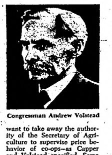
Senator Arthur Capper and Congressman Andrew Volstead were two congressmen who sponsored legislation that resulted in the Capper-Volstead Act of 1922. Their crusade was simple enough—they wanted to give farmers the right to organize their own marketing companies. Their basic idea was to try to put the individual family farmer in a stronger bargaining position—if he was willing to work with others in a special non-profit, self-help organization.

Today, after 52 years, there are about 5,000 farmer marketing cooperatives (involving over 3 million farmer memberships in the U.S.) ranging from small organizations to large food companies. In some cases, the public knows co-ops by such well known brand names as Sunkist, Land 'O Lakes, Welch's, Sun-Maid, Sunsweet, Sue Bee, Ocean Spray, Diamond Walnut and many others.

An important part of Senator Capper's and Representative Volstead's original idea was granting the farmer the option of starting his own cooperative company if he wanted to. This meant that if he didn't like the price offered by a big processor—or for that matter, if he felt the buyer wasn't handling his product in the right way—he could take care of his own marketing.



Senator Arthur Capper



Congressman Andrew Volstead

Also important was the idea that a farmer-owned company would bring more competition to the market place and hold food prices down. Like all politicians, Capper and Volstead were in favor of this!

In 50 years, few people outside the farm community ever knew what a co-op was—that is until illegal campaign contributions put a few co-ops in the news. While there were similar violations by numerous non-co-op companies, the ones by co-ops gave their special type of business a black eye. And in today's world, that means hearings and investigations.

So far, all examinations have given the vast majority of co-ops a clean bill of health. And a re-examination of Capper-Volstead has brought to light the important contribution that farmer cooperatives make, in terms of added competition, improved quality and reasonable prices.

Of course, co-ops still have their detractors: some officials in the Justice Department want to take away the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture to supervise price behavior of co-ops—as Capper and Volstead specified. Some powerful food interests which face co-op competition want co-op activity curtailed—for obvious reasons. But as the debate intensifies over the law that Senator Capper and Representative Volstead gave us, one thing is certain: public apathy over a technical issue of this nature gives the bureaucracy more freedom to do what it wishes without serious opposition.

And yet, most people (even government officials) don't realize that "cooperation" (the way farm people say it) is an important component of our agricultural system—and is doubtless one of the major reasons why Americans enjoy an unrivaled abundance of food at proportionately less cost than any other people in the world.

How important is Capper-Volstead? Not even your Congressman knows.

Rev. Ose Tells Of Christmas In Madagascar

direct the program, holding a candle in one hand, and the song book in the other. The children who had books also held candles. That was even more impressive that the earlier part of the program.

Who is Pastor Josefa? He is an orphan. He was really the first boy that came to the Lutheran boys school in Fort Dauphin. His parents were slaves, and he was an outcast. His mother died shortly after he was born, and the owner cared for him. But the owner was anxious to get rid of him. When he went on a trip, he put the boy in a calf pen, as he had no one at home to look after him.

Although he was three years old, Josefa had not begun to walk yet, and was very small. Because of lack of nourishing foods, his legs were too weak to hold him up. He was often in need of food, and sometimes people would throw raw sweet potatoes into the pen for him. The calves trampled on him, and he has large scars on his head to this day.

Then an elderly Christian couple heard about "Little Josefa", as he was called. They asked the master if they might have him, and the man immediately consented. He was glad to get rid of Josefa. The little boy had a good home for some time, but his foster parents were old, and wanted to return to their tribal village in the inland. When they heard that there was a Christian boys school about to be opened in Fort Dauphin, they brought Little Josefa.

The missionary in charge, Papa Halverson, took him into the school and saw to it that he was well cared for and got a good education. Once when Josefa was very sick, they thought he was about to die. But he recovered. Then Papa Halvorson said, "God must have something special for him to do in this world." That prophecy was true. Today Pastor Josefa is still serving a bush church and farming in the Mahatalaky community north of Fort Dauphin.

As the Christmas Eve program closed, all sang, "I Am So Glad Each Christmas Eve." I thought of how gladness came to this one little boy because the story of Christmas came to Madagascar.

Tilda Forsberg Services Held At Lund Church

Funeral services for Mrs. Tilda (Tillie) Forsberg, 88, of Bagley and formerly of the Gully area, were held Friday, December 19, at the Lund Lutheran church at Gully. Mrs. Forsberg died December 14, at the Bagley Memorial hospital.

Rev. Roger Johnson officiated at the services. Interment will be in the church cemetery in the spring.

Pallbearers were eight grandsons: Wallace and Robert Rutkowski, Gerald, Frank and Bradley Forsberg, Paul and Carl Rydeen and Michael Strande.

Mrs. Forsberg, the former Tilda Tharaldson, was born July 3, 1887 at Fisher to Ole and Martha Tharaldson. As a young child, she moved with her parents to Fosston, where she attended school and was confirmed by Rev. Olav Refstad. On June 2, 1908, she was married to Gust J. Strande at Fosston. They operated a business in Fosston until 1911, when they moved to Gonvick and later to Gully. Her husband died in December of 1917, leaving her with three children, Orin, Esther and Tilford.

On May 20, 1920, she was married at Crookston to Carl J. Forsberg. To this union two children, Kenneth and Wanda, were born. The family lived at Gully until Forsberg's death on April 3, 1960. Since April of 1972, Mrs. Forsberg had resided at the Park View apartments in Bagley.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. Rueben (Wanda) Rydeen of Clearbrook and Mrs. Peter (Esther) Ruthkowski of Gully; a son, Kenneth Forsberg, also of Gully; 12 grandchildren, and 14 great-grandchildren.

In addition to her parents and her husbands, she was preceded in death by two sons: Tilford Strande and Lt. Col. Orin Strande; two brothers: Tom and Oscar Tharaldson, and two sisters: Mrs. Julie Gunderson and Mrs. Bessie Race.

Blanche LaBelle Oklee Resident, Dies On Sun.

Mrs. Blanche Lambert LaBelle, 88, of Oklee died Sunday at St. John's hospital in Red Lake Falls.

Funeral services for Mrs. Blanche LaBelle will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church in Oklee with the Rev. Keough Patnode officiating.

Recitation of the prayers will be held at 8 p.m., Tuesday at the Petterson Funeral home at Oklee where the body will repose after 3 p.m., Tuesday.

A complete obituary will be in a later edition of the Times.

Kittel Sollom Services Held At Newfolden

Kittel Sollom, 91, a longtime resident of the Newfolden community, died Tuesday, December 23rd, at Oakland Park Nursing home where he had lived for the past two years.

Funeral services for Kittel Sollom were held Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden. Rev. Earl Eveland officiated. Mrs. Carrol Lindstrom was the organist; and a trio composed of Mrs. DuWayne Olson, Mrs. Merle Bjornrud and Mrs. Earl Waterworth, sang two selections. Interment was in the Oak Grove cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Michael Sollom, Neilden Vatthauer, Edlyn Vatthauer, Curtis Christensen, Kenton Christensen and Keith Christensen.

Kittel Sollom was born Oct. 15, 1884 in Grand Forks county, North Dakota to Torger and Turi Sollom. At the age of six months, he came to Marshall county with his parents who settled in New Solum township. On April 15, 1924, he was married at Newfolden to Hilda Langlie. The couple lived and farmed in New Solum township, near Newfolden, for many years. Following the death of his wife on March 13, 1957, Sollom continued to live on the farm until selling it in 1964. After disposing of the farm, he lived in the Newfolden area until he became a resident at Oakland Park Nursing home.

He was a member of the Evangelical Free church of Newfolden and had served for many years on the church board. He had also served on the board of Lincoln country school.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. Harold (Marion) Vatthauer of Plummer, Mrs. Clyde (Verna) Christensen of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Harvey (Norma) Anderson of Vensuela, S. Am., and Mrs. John (Elvida) Kastelien of Opland, Ind.; three sons: Harvey Sollom of Apache Junction, Ariz., Elwood of Palos Verdes, Calif., and Adrian of LaMirada, Calif.; 22 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Also one brother, Bertil Sollom of Dillon, Mont.; and four sisters: Gunhild and Olava Sollom, both of Newfolden, Mrs. Carl (Myrtle) Swenson of Thief River Falls and Elvena Johnson of Seattle, Wash.

Raffle F. M. Molinaro, 46, Dies Friday

Raffie Frances Marie Molinaro, 46, a resident of rural Goodridge since 1973, died unexpectedly Friday morning at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Raffie Molinaro will be held in Trinidad, Colo., with the Mullare Funeral home in charge. Belmont Funeral home was in charge of local arrangements.

Raffie Molinaro was born in Janson, Colo., on Aug. 11, 1929 and grew to womanhood in Trinidad. Since 1973, she had lived in Goodridge where she and her husband were engaged in farming.

She is survived by her husband, Park Carey, her mother, Mrs. Annie Quintare, and four brothers and one sister.

Babson Forecast Is Insight Into 1976

a moderate adjustment, factory operations were sustained near that top level for almost a year owing to the scramble for inventories. Finally, however, the stagnation in consumer demand forced a drastic liquidation of surplus stocks during the second half of 1974 and triggered the nosedive in production. In the six months encompassing the final quarter of 1974 and the first quarter of 1975, the economy was battered by an awesome sequence of events: Production curtailments, shortened workweeks, employe layoffs, and plant closings. But since the upturn last May, the Federal Reserve Index of Industrial Production has advanced steadily and somewhat more steeply than was thought likely a year ago.

What with the gathering momentum of the fledgling recovery phase, 1976 makes its debut enjoying a brisk pace of factory operations. While the strength is not evenly spread across the industrial spectrum, the cyclical advance of automobile output and the more positive signs in the long-subdued home building sector are optimistic. Consumer demand for apparel, appliances, and home furnishings is also contributing to the industrial improvement. So even with allowances for possible strike interruptions, it now looks as if 1976 can manifest an overall upward trend, although factory production may not exceed the close-to-three per cent long-term growth rate of the economy. Year-to-year comparisons are likely to be most impressive during the first four months since corresponding 1975 figures were in the cyclical trough of the recession. Thereafter, gains will narrow even as factory operations continue to make progress—ex strikes. This may not seem impressive, but a predominantly upward trend at approximately the rate of the nation's basic growth is surely far more acceptable than the adverse experiences suffered in parts of the past two years.

Business Capital Spending

A more ambitious projection of both the real GNP and industrial production is not warranted at this time since business capital expenditures for the expansion of productive capacity are likely to remain limited. Such spending, particularly when superimposed upon powerful consumer demand and aggressive inventory accumulation, is a prerequisite for a business surge of boom proportions because it takes this type of activity to hike demand sharply for manpower and materials. But there is still a sizable amount of productive potential in American industry either underutilized or idle. Until the impetus of full-scale production is felt and business confidence is again running strong, it is unlikely that budgets for capital investments will be liberalized to any appreciable extent. This may apply especially to 1976 inasmuch as the high level of factory operations will doubtless be reached in the second half when profit margins will feel increasing pressure and the monetary climate may well present a considerably less expansive posture.

True, political overtones will be strong in much of the new year, and there may well be a push for business capital expenditure incentives. Capital spending policies, however, are not likely to anticipate any such favorable legislation but rather to wait and see. The total of capital spending in 1976 may top that of 1975, but the edge should be small and contain a substantial inflationary content. It should be noted, too, that many such outlays will be for compliance with environmental improvement regulations rather than for raising production. So, this aspect of economic activity in 1976 should prove to be more of a sustainer of business than an upthruster.

Corporate Profits

Corporate profits in 1975 did better than had been anticipated because of the unexpectedly sharp and early business recovery and the decline in some raw materials costs. With the prospect of even further advances in business during the new year, corporate profits after taxes could well run 20 per cent above the 1975 levels. Most of the gains are likely to occur early in the year, however, as the bite of costs will tend to deepen as the year proceeds. Profit margins will find it difficult to move up along with the higher level of sales in the second half of the year since the cost squeeze will tighten and interest rates will likely be on the upswing again. The widest year-to-year gains will be chalked up in the early months of 1976 because the comparisons will be made with the recession lows in profits. Also, the business advance will still be in that stage where productivity improvements, increased use of idle facilities, and strict cost controls will help to provide favorable profits. In an effort to speed up the economy as an antidote to the high level of unemployment, it is a reasonable bet that the federal corporate tax structure will be kept as it was in 1975. Any broad sweeps of the threatened tax reform will not take place in 1976 although there are likely to be hikes in levies by some states and municipalities.

Possible Labor Pitfalls

1976 will be a busy year for new labor contract negotiations. In fact, parleys are scheduled to hammer out fresh labor agreements virtually from the beginning through to the very end of the year. Among the talks will be those involving workers in clothing, electrical machinery, construction, and retailing. But the most crucial for the economy as a whole will be in trucking and automotive production. Both these lines have far-reaching effects on the economy, and they are also rated as pattern setters for other bargaining sessions in 1976 and subsequent years.

While some labor observers express hope that depleted war chests of labor groups and flattened pocketbooks of workers because of the recession and inflation may discourage long and bitter walkouts, this is by no means certain. Labor representatives cite the costly spurt in living costs since the last contracts were signed, and they seek not only compensatory wage hikes but also raises in anticipation of further inflation. Demands of union leaders will, moreover, be heightened because of a healthier business climate along with the issuance of good corporate profits reports.

But managements will be mindful of their profit margins and put up sufficient resistance to hold final wage settlements in the six to 10 per cent range. Even though raises will average less than union leaders seek, there will be a persistent push for such costly fringe concessions as health and death insurance, shorter hours with the same pay, more liberal vacations and holidays, and other benefits.

Employment And Personal Income

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate, as a percentage of the total civilian labor force, peaked at 9.2 per cent in mid-May of 1975. Total employment slipped only about three per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis. Both barometers were slow in recovering, which was not unusual in view of the fact that curtailed workweeks are normally lengthened before additions are made to work forces. In 1976, unemployment will continue to ease only grudgingly and will do well to recede to the seven per cent mark by year's end. Employment, on the other hand, can climb to new peak levels even without a sizable public "make work" program. The disparity between the jobless and the employment sectors will be a reflection of the expansion in the total labor force.

With the lengthening of workweeks and the beefing up of staffs as the business advance makes further headway, personal income figures should make good reading in 1976. Wage boosts will also help materially. Overall, personal income could gain as much as 12 per cent over that of 1975, and disposable income should not be far behind.

Consumer And Government Spending

Although inflation was a big factor in turnover totals, consumer demand responded to the betterment in economic conditions and prospects over the past year. With the outlook for business, employment, and personal income enjoying a distinctly healthier tone (except for the threat of labor disruptions), 1976 is expected to see more liberal spending on the part of consumers. In current dollars, consumer expenditures should cross the trillion-dollar mark, but high prices will temper the year-to-year improvement on a unit volume basis. Such a large part of the spending dollar will be gobbled up by hefty allocations for food, shelter, clothing and energy that there will be scant leeway for lower priority segments.

Locked in by inflation and ever-expanding social programs, public spending at all government levels will move higher in 1976. The federal government, particularly, is saddled with prior commitments. Hence, mounting pressures for fiscal responsibility are not likely to do more than pare some appropriations, and force curtailment and postponement of some lavish and low-priority items. Therefore, another huge federal deficit looms for calendar 1976, despite the moderating influence of an increase in tax revenues.

Building And Construction

After a sharp two-year slump during which the seasonally adjusted annual rate of private housing starts tumbled from 2.5 million units to somewhat less than 1 million units, an improvement in mortgage credit supplies spawned an upturn for home building in 1975. But even when the full year's total is tallied, it will be well below the 1972 record and even less than the poorest showing of recent years. Babson's forecasts new housing starts of some 1.3 million units in 1976. Nonresidential construction will also improve steadily, but the gains will not be substantial and will lend business only mild support.

Farm Prospects

1975 was a fine year for agricultural output, but farmers did not fare well in terms of income. High operating costs and the embargo on grain exports held net farm income far below expectations relative to the bumper 1975 crop. There will be a good carryover of key harvests for 1976, although with the worldwide food shortages weather conditions will be crucial in the coming crop year. Better fertilizer supplies and costs, however, augur well for 1976 totals.

Wages and Prices

The expected advance in business for the year ahead will mean gains in pay rates, employment, and the length of the workweek. So, 1976 consumers' earned income should post sizable increases which, in turn, will stimulate consumer confidence and demand.

While price increases have been a matter of deep concern this past year, the impact was far less burdensome than in 1974. Markdowns to spur consumer demand and lower costs for some key raw materials helped restrain the overall price advance. 1976 will not be as fortunate, however, as the business uptrend will inevitably bring a firm-to-higher price pattern. With new wage boosts in labor contracts, there will be added price pressures. Any imperilment of 1976 crops could move prices sharply higher, and lurking in the background also is the threat of new hikes in the price of OPEC oil.

Election Year Considerations

Political campaigns will have a definite effect on the economy during the new year, since all aspirants will focus mainly on economic problems. The Administration will devote most of its attention to alleviating the plight of the jobless as well as the farmers. Of course, the power struggle on the Hill will continue.

Potential Dangers On Foreign Scene

The Administration shows little inclination to cease its quest for detente with the Soviet Union or alter its claim approach to the Middle East. However, success in both objectives will remain in the tenuous category in 1976. The SALT talks have made little progress of late, and civil strife in Lebanon and Angola may impose new strains on Soviet-American relations. Still, Babson's foresees no direct conflict between the superpowers over the year ahead.

In the realm of world trade, the outlook is encouraging. True, gains in imports will likely exceed those in exports. But American business can benefit from the currently stronger dollar, and also from the fact that the domestic rate of inflation is so much lower than that prevailing in many other nations.

Interest Rates—Money Supplies

Because of the worries over unemployment, it is unlikely that the monetary authorities will change their current policy during the better part of 1976. Money and credit will be kept sufficient to meet business needs and to accommodate the Treasury's financings. Once inflationary forces regain the ascendancy, however, the money supply may once again be curtailed as an anti-inflation move.

The Babson staff looks for short-term money rates to hover near present levels in the early part of 1975. With the approach of spring there should be an upswing continuing until late in the year, but the high may not quite reach the 10 per cent level. Since longer-term interest rates have receded only modestly in 1975, they will move up only a trifle in 1976. But with the firming of homebuilding, mortgage money can be expected to move upward and toward the 10 per cent mark.

Stock And Bond Outlook

Some easing of the New York City fiscal crisis in the waning weeks of 1975 made it possible for the stock market to wind up on a constructive note. Hence, the early part of 1976 should enjoy an optimistic climate. Over the year as a whole, however, the heavy labor agenda will keep investors on edge, as will the fear of inflation. With prospects favoring a good—but not a lusty—business year, an upsurge in stock prices vigorous enough to drive the Dow Jones Industrial Average significantly above the 1000 mark is unlikely. For the same reasons—barring an adverse development not now in evidence—the DJIA is not likely to move materially below the 800 level. At this juncture there is a good supply of attractively priced common stocks and convertible securities for investors oriented toward the growth and appreciation of their capital funds. And many of these issues offer reasonably rewarding yields. Investors who require a high income that is also well protected have a substantial selection of bonds and preferred stocks from which to choose. In recent years the emphasis of the investment fraternity has shifted to quality and value, with a healthy measure of income. This attitude is likely to persist in 1976, and individual investors would do well to follow suit.

What's 'Bugging' You?

It's that time of year when millions of Americans with aches and fevers, coughs and sniffles wonder why doctors who can transplant hearts neither can prevent nor cure the common cold. Be assured that doctors have been working on anti-cold vaccines for more than 30 years, but the more they learn, the farther away they seem to be from developing something completely effective.

Doctors first thought that just a handful of different viruses might be responsible for cold miseries. But modern laboratory techniques have unveiled more than 100 bugs which could be the culprits. Some researchers estimate there may be as many as 100 more cold viruses yet undiscovered.

No More Snake Skins

While the development of an anti-cold pill in the near future is considered doubtful, we've come a long way from "cures" which included swallowing a snake skin and wrapping a fresh-off-the-foot sock around the neck.

Doctors first isolated the flu virus in 1933. This enabled them to recognize and then to begin developing immunizations for the bug which hit Asia in 1957, the deadly variant which bit Hong Kong in 1968, and that sinister sister — London flu — which caused an epidemic here the winter of 1971-1972. Worldwide efforts to create vaccines for particular types of flu now apparently have begun to show positive results.

Last winter, although outbreaks were reported in 34 states here, the National Center of Disease Control reported they were not as serious as in previous years. Colds, however, are still catching.

What To Do

Advisors from the Scott Paper Home Service Center

I'M BACK!
COLD GERM

suggest you get into bed at the first sign of a cold. You'll be more comfortable, less likely to develop serious complications, and will not spread your disease to fellow employees and friends. Drink plenty of liquids, eat moderately and when you blow your nose, blow gently. Don't force infection into your sinuses and ear canals.

Since handkerchiefs may be a storehouse of germs, it's wise to use Scotties Facial Tissues for wiping your nose and covering coughs and sneezes. Because they're strong even when wet, the tissues don't fall apart. Then drop them into a paper bag after each use so they needn't be touched again.

It's especially a good idea to send the kids off to school with a supply of the tissues. There's scarcely a child in the country who doesn't catch a cold at least once during the school year.

While handing out advice, here's something else to remember. Don't experiment with pills, nose drops or inhalers left over from past illnesses. Colds are not all alike. If you feel that you need more than an aspirin tablet for those aches and coughs, let your doctor prescribe it for you.

DWI Seminar Set Jan. 21-23 At Alexandria

Third annual DWI counterattack seminar for administrators and instructors for over 40 DWI (Driving while intoxicated) rehabilitation clinics throughout Minnesota will be held January 21-23, 1976, at Arrowwood lodge in Alexandria, it was announced today.

Sponsoring the seminar will be the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA), which has been very active in recent years in the DWI counterattack program.

Highlights of the two-day seminar include: organization of a Minnesota DWI association with election of officers and a board of directors; a panel discussion on current problems involving arrest, conviction and sentences of DWI offenders; and a film festival introducing new and informative visual aids for schools and instructors.

In addition to the Minnesota school instructors, county court judges and law enforcement officers, trainees in alcoholism counseling and the general public are invited to attend the seminar.

Registration may be made by contacting James E. Fox, chemical dependency coordinator, West Central Community Services center, Inc., Willmar.

Wahpeton Beet Plant Tours End Saturday

Tours of the Minn-Dak Farmers Cooperative sugar beet plant, located north of Wahpeton, N.D., will conclude Saturday, January 3. Public tours of the processing facility will resume next October.

With tours winding down, almost 2,000 people have toured the plant since mid-October, according to Patricia Estes, Minn-Dak public relations director.

"This beet sugar processing factory is one of the most modern in the world," she explains.

"The tours have drawn people from all over the world, literally. We've had people from Uruguay, Belgium and Norway, for instance. People in Minnesota and North Dakota have come from some distance to tour the facility. Naturally, people in the immediate area have been very interested. The tours have been popular with business firms, various organizations and school groups."

People wishing to tour the plant may do so during open house hours Friday, January 2 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and on Saturday, January 3 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

"I urge those planning to tour the plant to wear a comfortable pair of shoes or boots and to dress warmly as a portion of the tour is outdoors.

"In closing," Mrs. Estes stressed, "Children under the age of 10 are not allowed on the plant tours." For further information call Pat Estes, (701) 642-8411, Ext. 76.

HHH Approves Anti-Recession Federal Aid

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey recently termed the passage of legislation providing emergency anti-recession aid to financially strained state and local governments "the most significant Congressional initiative ever enacted to help them survive during periods of high unemployment.

"It recognizes that states, counties and cities are major victims of the federal government's mismanagement of the economy and that the federal government has an obligation to help them survive," Humphrey said in a statement from his office.

The anti-recession aid concept was developed by Humphrey through the Joint economic committee and later introduced in the Senate by Senators Humphrey, Edmund Muskie (D-Me.) and William Brock (R-Tenn.) as an amendment to the Public works employment act of 1975, S. 1587.

The final version of this legislation, now entitled the Local public works capital development and investment act of 1975, and containing this amendment, passed the Senate today by a voice vote. It now goes to the White House for the President's signature.

The bill would provide an estimated $1.5 billion from April 1, 1976, through April 1, 1977, to all states and local governments and approximately $19 million to Minnesota governments.

All state and local governments with unemployment rates above six per cent would be eligible for the assistance, which would be distributed on the basis of a formula that takes into account the local unemployment rate and taxes raised by the government. The funds could be utilized to maintain basic services and or to prevent tax increases.

"Anti-recession aid to state and local governments is an integral part of the congressional economic recovery program," Humphrey noted.

"This bill recognizes that any federal efforts to stimulate the economic recovery are doomed to failure if state and local government budgets are not in harmony with federal economic policy.

"The program turns off completely when the national unemployment rate declines to six per cent, long before we reach full utilization of resources and the accompanying upward pressure on prices. Not one dime will be spent after the need for the program has been eliminated."

The Minnesota senator asserted that the fiscal need for the program "is enormous".

"Every day more and more states, counties and cities are confronting massive budget problems," he said. "Many are being forced to enact new taxes. Others are left with no choice but to undertake massive reductions in the levels of services they are providing, just at the time that these services are needed most.

"This meaningful and fiscally sensible proposal to help state and local governments make it through the current recession has strong bipartisan support in the Congress," Humphrey added. "I urge the President to sign this legislation. A veto of it would be a cruel and unnecessary blow to those who already have suffered most severely from federal mismanagement of the economy."

Following is the breakdown of funds Minnesota would receive under the program, beginning in April of 1976, based on current unemployment rates: State of Minnesota, $9.8 million; Anoka county, $190,000; Dakota county, $104,000; Hennepin county, $1.23 million; Minneapolis, $1.41 million; Ramsey county, $497,000; St. Paul, $785,000; St. Louis county, $303,000; Duluth, $254,000; Washington county, $95,000; and all other local government, $4 million.

Concordia To Offer Special Classes In Feb.

F-M Communiversity, a university of the community for continuing education sponsored at Concordia college, will meet on February 1, 8, 15 and 22. Some of the classes will meet from 3 to 5 p.m., and others from 7 to 9 p.m.

The convocation address, "The Nation Yet To Be," will be presented by Dr. James Armstrong, bishop of the Dakotas area of the United Methodist church. Convocation will be at 7 p.m. on February 1 in Concordia's memorial auditorium. The address is open to the public. The Bell choir from the First United Methodist church in Fargo will perform from 6:30 to 7 p.m. that evening.

F-M Communiversity works with CHARIS, Ecumenical center for church and community, in cooperation with Tri-College university and the churches of the Fargo-Moorhead area. Courses are supported by the registrations and gifts from area churches. Generous grants from the Lutheran Brotherhood enable the Communiversity to serve with continuing effectiveness.

1976 course offerings may be obtained and registrations sent to Dr. James Hofrenning, Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn. 56560. Registration deadline is January 23. Course fee is $5 per person ($3 for students). Call 299-3438 (9 a.m.-noon) for further information.

Country Correspondents

As another year of news gathering and reporting comes to a close, it strikes us as an appropriate time to express our appreciation to our rural correspondents for their personal interest and efforts. They exert a lot of effort in relation to their pay and almost without exception share an extreme interest in the people of their respective communities.

Columnist Charles Seip of the Washington (D.C.) Post has some kind words for the rural correspondent when he writes as follows:

"Tired of reading about high-level misbehavior, the maneuvering for advantage in an election that is almost a year off, all the world's troubles and crises?

"Get yourself one of the hundreds of small newspapers that still carry reports of the country correspondents. There you can reassure yourself that people still care about people and that the little things still matter.

"The visiting of friends and relatives, the illnesses and the new offspring, the graduations and the anniversaries, the church suppers and the wakes—all these are grist for the part-time reporters who write, usually at so much per inch of type, about what is going on in the nation's small communities.

"There are thousands of them, and they represent a journalistic tradition as strong and as proud in its way as that of Washington's investigative avenging angels. Their columns are filled with names you never heard of and events totally inconsequential to all but the participants. But they convey a reassuring sense of involvement and caring about the small and pleasant things of life."

Suppose No One Worked

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

Minnesota became the 15th state to borrow Federal funds to pay unemployment claims in a year that has been popularized not by a strong work ethic, but by a dependency on others to take care of the responsibilities.

We have seen New York City on its knees begging money from the Federal (taxpayers') Treasury; and if New York is successful, there will undoubtedly be a number of other major cities standing in line for financial aid. The taxpayers of Minnesota have seen the state Legislature raise the weekly maximum unemployment benefits from $85 per week to 62 per cent of an employee's average weekly salary, or $116, whichever is less.

Not surprisingly, Minnesota's unemployment compensation fund of $95 million as of Jan. 1, 1975, has dwindled down to $16.1 million even after a $24 million Federal loan. The fact is apparent that for many persons, it is far less expensive not to work than it is to be employed, as is hinted by the "unusually high" number of unemployment claims in 1975, according to State Employment Services officials.

Employment Services commissioner Emmet J. Cushing, in the traditional government philosophy of two wrongs make a right, has suggested that the unemployment tax paid by employers be tripled, from a minimum of $55.80 per employee to $149.60.

According to Cushing's calculations, this would increase the unemployment compensation fund from $100 million to $215 million. From the standpoint of a long-range forecast, however, this undue taxation process would only serve to increase the number of persons on unemployment rolls.

Employers are already becoming more reluctant to hire under the possibility of paying unemployment even if an employee voluntarily quits the job. Tripling the minimum unemployment tax to support the persons already on the rolls definitely isn't an incentive to hire more employees.

Government, with its guidelines, has made a mockery of the unemployment compensation program, and in efforts to rectify previous bungling, is drying up the well in trying to extract more taxes from business.

Governmentmusttaketheinitiative to modify unemployment compensation guidelines: to make compensation available to persons who cannot find work rather than to those who will not work.

By leaps and bounds, more persons working in the public sector are dependent on fewer people working in the private sector.

Suppose no one worked?

Kennedy And ABM

Following editorial is from the South Pasadena (Calif.) Review:

If anyone has any doubts about Kennedy's influence in the Senate, he should look at the way Kennedy single-handedly scuttled our only antiballistic missile system. The Soviet Union and the United States agreed to cut the program to one site apiece during last year's conference. Russia has one in Moscow; ours is at Grand Forks, N.D.

Now, thanks to Senator Edward Kennedy, our ABM system will soon be shut down. He tried to get the system dismantled, but after two unsuccessful attempts, he won his point by agreeing to allow the radar system to remain in operation. By a vote of 87 to 7 the Senate passed Kennedy's bill.

In case something goes wrong in the future and we find that our $6 billion ABM system might have insured our security, be sure to remember who masterminded its inactivity. The surpising part is that Kennedy could get such overwhelming support from the Senators, particularly when many of them have individually expressed such dissatisfaction and suspicion of our detente with Russia.

Before returning to this country, Eldridge Cleaver said that when he was in Russia he received the impression that they would be happier if we were eliminated as a country. He stated that he was sure they would take advantage of our every weakness. If this is true, some of the Senators might sleep better if they had risked disappointing Kennedy and voted "no" on the missile shutdown.

By keeping the radar system without the missiles we may not be able to do anything to stop a rocket attack but we'll know it's coming in time to pray—unless we are in school where praying is outlawed.

Legitimate Complaints

A recent publication received at our office carries excerpts from two letters sent to federal officials. The first was addressed to Senator McClellan of Arkansas and the other to David Matthews, secretary of health, education and welfare.

The first letter states the following:

"Too big government is making it practically impossible for small businesses to operate. Federal laws, tax laws, rules, regulations, requirements, guidelines, reports and directives on production, safety, personnel, raw materials used, fuel required, vehicles operated, pension plans, hospitilization policies, minorities employee, sex discrimination, pollution (water, air, noise) ecological considerations and endless reports so complex that the average man cannot even fill them out, are in the mail almost daily.

Regulations in manuals thousands of pages long, dictate how we must perform what used to be simple acts. Unless a company has the resources to employ a safety director, a CPA, an engineer, and has a computer (or service), he cannot abide by the law. The result is that only the major corporation can, or is willing to, meet the standards prescribed by the Federal government. The small, independent company just isn't able to cope."

The letter to the HEW secretary stated the following:

"I am president of a steel mini-mill . . . Since July 1 this plant has been on strike simply because your department has financed the strike against our company. I refer to the fact that these strikers are receiving food stamps. We have heard of incidents where food stamps have been traded for bowling fees and other services. The combined might of the United States Steelworkers strike fund and the unlimited funds of the United States government has kept this strike going for over four months and could well keep it going until they bankrupt our company. The strikers have even refused to come to the negotiating table, and why not, since they can sit home and live off funds supplied by our own company's tax dollars . . .

"I am confident that had the federal government not supported this strike, it would have terminated long ago, and in turn, the federal government would have received taxes from the pay checks of each and every employee as well as the company."

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

While the Christian World stops to wonder about "Peace on Earth", the reality of war and hate and death continues. Lebanon's city of Beirut lies in ruin. In other parts of the world, Russia's armies and war machines continue its interpretation of detente by armed conquest of whatever it thinks possible. Right now the scene is Angola, tomorrow it will be somewhere else. The Russians have Cuba exporting Cuban army regulars to Angola. All this happens when our country is promoting a new state of friendship with Cuba and, of course, as it continues to ship Russia everything from grain to computers.

Many reporters said there would be a blood bath in Angola when it was "liberated" from Portugal. The UN as usual had condemned Portugal as a colonial power, but now is silent about Russia doing the same.

Because of the lack of national interest in foreign affairs, Congress as usual was "out to lunch". Early action with a strong sense of purpose on our part could have been very effective. In my opinion it could have been successful without war. I also believe careful and purposeful action in areas of trade and influencing world opinion could still be valuable.

On the positive side, there are signs that world opinion may change just a little. At the World Assembly of the World Council of Churches (WCC) in Nairobi, Kenya something new happened. Two Russian Orthodox churchmen, Rev. Gleb Yakunin and Rev. Regelson "expressed hope that Christian solidarity would prompt prayers for the oppressed and initiate an international movement for the defense of persecuted Christians." This is a great and momentous breakthrough compared to the attitude of this organization in the past. They charged that the WCC had not raised its "authoritative voice" against religious persecution in the Soviet Union, China and Albania.

The Christian Community in our country has an opportunity and a challenge to make their voice heard. When the Church of Christ is true to its calling, the nations of the world will know the truth and can be blessed by it. This does not produce instant perfection, but the hope for justice and freedom for all people gets that much stronger.

The pure society of science and materialism such as the Soviets have is a showcase of failure. Our western capitalism, based on a Christian concept of the nature of man is a howling success in comparison. The Dec. 22 issue of "US News and World Report" has an article on Private Enterprise in Russia which should make Americans proud and thankful that our growth in the last 200 years has been based on the profit motive. This article shows how the failure of controls has produced a system of free enterprise in Russia that works. The moral of the story is obvious—do we have to vote ourselves into a system as poor as theirs so we can appreciate our present way of life?

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

What would you pick if asked to name our most important resource? Oil? Gold? Land?

All of these resources are important, as are many more of their kind. But I would not name any tangible material as the most important.

The United Negro college fund has a slogan that will give you a clue to my choice: "A mind is a terrible thing to waste."

There is a valuable lesson in that slogan. Any human effort—mental or physical—is a terrible thing to waste, because a lost opportunity is gone forever. Think about that.

A barrel of oil not pumped out of the ground is still there. It can be recovered later. An ounce of gold misused can often be recycled into something else.

But an hour of labor—an hour of productive thought—that does not take place is lost. Permanently. There is no power on earth that can bring it back; there is no way to recover the benefits that might have flowed from that missed opportunity.

Time and the human potential are the two most precious resources. Nothing else comes close.

Market-regulated capitalism has outpaced competing economic systems because it uses these resources more fully and more efficiently than other systems.

But "good" is not "good enough." We are a very long way from perfection in the intelligent use of our human resources. And all of us have a big stake in seeing to it that we come as close to perfection as is humanly possible.

The whole economy suffers from the waste of any resource; it suffers in proportion to the value of the resource and the degree of its misuse. It follows that we all suffer greatly when we waste our human resources. And we gain greatly when we create conditions that encourage all citizens to contribute to the maximum of their ability.

These are the thoughts that came to me last month as I prepared to welcome a luncheon meeting of the National minority purchasing council, in Washington.

The council is an organization of about 500 major business firms whose purpose is to increase the opportunities for minority-owned companies to become suppliers to big corporations.

Since the council's inception three years ago, more than $933 million in goods and services have been purchased from monority suppliers by the council's corporate members. Through its network of 26 affiliated Regional purchasing councils, the council involves businessmen at all levels, giving the corporate sector an important new source of supply from minority entrepreneurs who, in turn, have become valuable members of the economic system.

The National chamber sponsored the first National conference on minority enterprise in 1969. Since then, the program has had our wholehearted support.

We stand for a better society and a more efficient economy. And we back the council because it is helping us all get there.

House Readies Nursing Home Legislation

A joint House-Senate select committee on nursing homes, which has conducted a nursing home inquiry since last summer, is now considering a number of bills to strengthen nursing home regulations.

The committee plans to meet three more times in January to discuss legislation on medical assistance programs and complete its final report of recommendations to present to the legislature January 27, opening day of the '76 session. Legislation the committee is considering includes:

(1) Nursing home recodification—This legislation reorganizes the various laws relating to nursing homes and nursing home administrators and puts them in a separate chapter of Minnesota statutes.

(2) Nursing assistant training—A mandatory training requirement for nursing assistants would take affect after July 1, 1977, if this proposal becomes state law. The bill requires three weeks of formal training in area vocational technical institutes or community colleges for anyone wanting to be a nursing assistant. Nursing homes will reimburse tuition and "necessary expenses" to nursing assistants who complete their training within a six month period prior to their employment. As the bill now stands, the nursing home will be able to claim up to 50 per cent of these costs from the state. However, some legislators questioned whether the nursing homes should have to pay any of the costs. They said the state picks up the bill for other courses at vocational technical schools.

(3) Prohibiting false welfare claims—Nursing homes presenting false welfare claims could get some heavy financial penalties under this proposed legislation which gives the commissioner of welfare the power to stop any further payments of medical assistance to "any vendor of medical care" a court finds guilty of fraud. The bill permits the state to sue for triple damages from medical vendors who falsify welfare claims. It also calls for sworn cost statements from nursing homes and makes it a crime to submit a false cost report.

Also, the welfare department could get access to all records of medical ventors, including patients' records, under this proposal. Some legislators objected to this provision because it might violate the confidentiality of doctor-patient relationships.

(4) Patients' right to sue—This legislation gives nursing home patients the right to sue the owners of a nursing home if they have suffered an injury as the result of the home depriving them of a right or benefit. Some members said this legislation was unnecessary because anyone "can sue anyone at any time." Others felt the bill was a good consumer protection measure and was the only bill directly concerned with the patient.

Also Rep. James Swanson (D-Richfield) said the committee should first determine whether "we are clearly giving these patients the remedies for recourse under present state law" and then go on from there.

(5) Medical assistance investigative unit—This proposal requires the department of welfare to "establish and maintain methods and criteria for identifying situations in which a question of medical assistance fraud, theft, presenting a false claim or representation of a material fact by a vendor of medical care may exist."

(6) Independent nursing home advocate—Nursing home patients would have an advocate under this proposed legislation. The advocate would be in the office of the legislative auditor and would be able to act with the powers of an ombudsman. The advocate would have the authority not only to investigate complaints against nursing homes but also to move against governmental agencies and to inform the public about nursing homes and how to choose one.

(7) Patients rights—This bill adds five more specific patients' rights to the patients bill of rights, already a part of state law. The rights include private communication, knowledge of choices, freedom to make independent decisions, management of financial affairs and freedom from mental, physical and chemical restraints unless a physician orders them.

(8) Restrictions on payments to profit nursing homes—If this proposed legislation becomes law, profit nursing homes will be ineligible to receive payments for patients who are on the state's medical assistance program and, after Jan. 1, 1980, it would prohibit admitting recipients of medical assistance to profit-making homes after Jan. 1, 1980. However, the bill allows the commissioner of public welfare to waive those requirements if "the health or safety of a recipient of medical assistance would be adversely affected by the strict enforcement of either requirement."

Bring Out Your Camera When the Cold Winds Blow

When the north wind speeds its chill across the land, carrying flurries of snow and coating the bare trees with ice, many summer photographers put away their cameras and miss one of the year's most exciting picture-taking seasons.

Despite dull skies and spare landscapes, winter is an ideal time for snapshots. Photos of ruddy-cheeked children in their bright clothing, indoor get-togethers, and winter sports action all make valuable additions to any album and are ideal for mailing to distant friends and relatives. And you just might get more good shots than ever before if you use a few simple techniques suggested by the folks at GAF:

If you use a nonadjustable pocket or 126-size camera to photograph kids sledding down hill, skiers, or ice skaters whipping past, try swinging the camera so that your subject remains in the center of the viewfinder as you take the picture. With this technique you can get dynamic action photos that will make you the envy of your friends.

If you have a 35mm camera, you are in luck, because a high-speed color film such as GAF 500 will let you take pictures on the darkest of overcast days or indoors by daylight coming through the windows. And if you decide to photograph action sports, then the high-speed film often lets you use the fastest shutter speeds to freeze the action.

To capture the texture of snowy landscapes, try photographing around mid-morning or mid-afternoon with the sun to your side or in front of you, aiming your camera low so that you do not include the sun in your picture. The slanting light causes the crystals of snow to cast little shadows that give texture and sparkle.

When the thermometer drops to the 30's or below, keep your camera warm by carrying it under your coat or in your pocket until you are ready to use it. And remember to advance the cold film slowly so that you do not damage it.

If you come directly in from the cold to a warm room, give the camera a chance to warm up slowly before you start taking indoor pictures to avoid having moisture in the air condense on the cold lens. If condensation occurs, gently wipe off the lens with a piece of soft tissue.

Give winter-time picture-taking a try. You may be surprised how many great shots are there for the taking.

State Patrol Offers Winter Driving Tips

Minnesota state patrol troopers, travelling over 13 million miles a year through the worst of weather, experience nearly every road condition possible and accordingly develop some well honed driving practices that the average motorist may do well to take note of.

What keeps them on the road while others may be stalled, stuck or stranded involves a good deal of specialized training in driving techniques combined with common sense, patience and the knowledge that is picked up from those millions of miles of motoring.

While the troopers can't provide the training or hand out common sense and patience, they're more than happy to pass on the following finer points on winter driving.

—Remember that the "slipperiness" of ice varies with the temperature. Tests have proven that ice is at least twice as slippery at 30 degrees as it is at 0 degrees. Keep temperature in mind as a winter driving variable and rate your stopping distance accordingly.

—Keeping a full gas tank will serve three separate and important functions. First of all, it will provide extra weight on the rear drive wheels and thus in most cases give you better traction. Second, it will reduce the amount of air space in the tank and cut down on the possibility of a car-stopping condensation of water from forming. Last, a full gas tank is good insurance should you and your car become stranded in a storm.

Your car is your best shelter in this case, and a full gas tank will insure that you have heat while you wait for help. (If you ever are so unfortunate as to become stranded, run the engine sparingly and make sure that your exhaust system is not plugged by snow and thus venting a deadly flow of carbon monoxide into your vehicle.)

—Be particularly careful when approaching bridge decks. Condensation may form on them during the night leaving them coated with frost or a thin layer of ice while the highway leading to and away from the bridge is bone dry. Lulled by good driving conditions you can find yourself suddenly on very slippery pavement.

—Remember that while snow tires may provide as much as 50 per cent better starting traction in loosely packed snow, they provide no great advantage in stopping. Keep your distance; ice and snow can multiply your stopping distance from three to 10 times. For the really tough going, nothing short of four wheel drive can top reinforced steel tire chains.

—Park your car facing down hill whenever possible and you'll be decreasing the chances of getting stuck before you even get started. Likewise, back your car into your garage at night and you'll be taking advantage of 20 extra feet of dry surface to get started on.

—If an accident appears imminent ahead of you, don't be afraid to take your car off the road and into the ditch. Snow built up along the edge of the highway will many times provide you with a very forgiving "bumper". You may end up stuck from this maneuver, but damage to your car and injury to you and passengers is usually minimal compared to that received from impact with another vehicle.

Truck Weight Change Refund Is Available

Built-in provision of Minnesota's gross weight truck registration law which allows one reduction or change of class per year in the gross weight at which a truck is registered may provide a money saving option to truck owners in the state, the Division of motor vehicles reported recently.

Under the terms of the provision, truck owners who have registered their vehicles at a high gross weight for 1976, either deliberately to carry higher than normal seasonal loads or by reason of misunderstanding the new gross weight registration system, may reduce the operating gross weight of the truck once each year resulting in a pro-rated refund on the tax they paid in the higher weight class. A similar provision also allows for increasing a vehicle's gross weight at any time.

Although designed to fit the needs of truck or fleet owners whose vehicles may be seasonally idled and thus possibly over-taxed during these periods, the clause may well be appreciated by a truck owner who mistakenly registered his vehicle in a weight class far higher than his needs would ever dictate.

The Motor vehicle division reported that some confusion in truck registration has resulted from the state's change to the system of gross weight-based taxation for all trucks, except those classified as urban, and thus a truck owner may have inadvertently registered in a weight class higher than he would need. Taxes for 1976 registration were assigned on the basis of weights on record or by gross weights figured according to a formula of the division. Truck owners were offered the option of selecting (within the limits of the law) the gross weight at which they desire to operate if it were different from the assigned weight. The minimum gross weight for truck registration, established by law, has been set at one and one-half times the vehicle's empty weight, and this minimum will apply in the case of registrants who may now wish to reduce their operating gross weight.

A division spokesman noted, however, that although a refund is provided in the weight reduction clause, it may be a small one, particularly in the lower weight classes.

Since the refund will be pro-rated on a monthly basis and cannot be considered retroactive, it will be based only on the number of months remaining in the registration year, beginning with the first day of the month in which the owner applies for the amendment to the registration. In addition, a $3 fee is charged for changing the gross weight, and this might make the tax saving minimal to owners of smaller trucks.

Regardless of whether a truck owner wishes to reduce his gross weight or increase it (also allowed on a pro-rated basis during the year), he should strongly consider the maximum weight at which he will be operating during the year since penalties for operating overweight have been substantially increased.

$10 Million In Student Loan Bonds Are Sold

Minnesota higher education coordinating commission recently approved the sale of $10 million in revenue bonds to provide funds for the State student loan program.

The sale, to a group co-managed by First National Bank of St. Paul, Banc Northwest and Piper Jaffray & Hopwood, Inc., is expected to assure the availability of loans for the rest of this school year. The net effective interest rate on the five-year notes is 6.215 per cent.

Since the program was authorized by the 1973 Minnesota Legislature, the Commission has conducted three bond sales. In February 1974 the commission sold $29.4 million in revenue bonds, and last August the commission sold an additional $8 million despite unfavorable bond market conditions. The Commission is authorized to sell up to $90 million in bonds.

Under the program any person who is registered or accepted for enrollment at an eligible institution in Minnesota, or a Minnesota resident who is registered or accepted for enrollment at an eligible institution in another state may apply. Students may borrow up to $2500 per academic year. A student may borrow up to a total of $7500 as an undergraduate or $10,000 if he or she is a graduate student. All loans are insured by the federal government.

Approximately 20,000 loans have been committed to students since the start of the program. Proceeds from the first two bond sales are exhausted, however, and the $10 million bond sale will provide funds for an additional 7,000 loans the next four months.

MHECC executive director Richard C. Hawk said that the commission is pursuing several alternatives for the long-range financing of the program. He said he is confident continued funding of the program will be arranged despite the unfavorable market conditions which have made recent bond sales difficult.

Students should see the financial aid officer at the post-secondary institution which they attend for application information on the loan program as well as several other state and federal programs available. High school seniors should discuss sources of financial aid with their high school counselor.

Prowlers Sweep Minneapolis Patrick Henry, Anoka Teams

Thief River Falls, backed by stout goaltending from Terry Sullivan and a patient, well-drilled offense, swept a pair of weekend high school hockey games from Twin Cities opponents Minneapolis Patrick Henry and Anoka in the sports arena.

Coach Bill McGann's Prowlers stopped Patrick Henry 6-2 Friday and then added a 4-1 conquest of Anoka Saturday to boost Thief River Falls' season record to 4-3-1 for the year.

"I feel by winning these two games we've turned the corner," said McGann. "Now we've got some momentum built up going into a lot of important (Region Eight) point games coming up."

McGann had special praise for the work of Sullivan who faced a barrage of 73 shots in the two games. The senior netminder turned back 37 Patrick Henry shots and came up with 34 saves against Anoka. "Terry played well for us," said McGann. "He made some real nice saves when we really needed them."

Part of the reason for the shots-on-goal advantage for both Patrick Henry and Anoka was the Patriots and Tornadoes "dump and chase style hockey," explained McGann. "They both like to dump it in and chase it. They take an awful lot of long slap shots. We try to move the puck around more and set it up for the good shots."

Thief River Falls will be idle until a Tues., Jan. 6, game at Crookston Central. The Prowers won't play at home again until Warroad visits the sports arena Tues., Jan. 13.

TRF Rally Tops Henry By 6-2

Thief River Falls recovered from a sluggish start to overcome Minneapolis Patrick Henry 6-2 Friday.

Prowler senior Jeff Lindquist collected a three goal hat trick to pace the victory, scoring two game-finishing goals in just a one-minute span late in the third period.

First period Patrick Henry goals by Eddie Lind and Matt Bohan supplied the Patriots with a 2-1 edge at the first intermission. Paul Phelps scored the first Prowler goal on an assist from Brad Kosel at 6:05 to gain a 1-1 tie, but Bohan scored just 49 seconds later.

Thief River Falls, however, took command with three unanswered second period goals. Doug Dallmann scored at 2:14 to tie the game 2-2 and Tim Loeffler put the Prowlers ahead just 35 seconds later. Steve Erickson assisted Dallmann while Bill Olson and Mitch Dicken picked up assists on Loeffler's goal.

Lindquist scored his first goal at 12:59 of the second period on assists from Bob Forberg and Erickson.

Lindquist finished the game in grand fashion by scoring at 12:20 and 13:09 of the third period. Kent Ehrenstrom was credited with an assist on the final goal of the game after Lindquist scored on an unassisted breakaway moments earlier.

While Sullivan was kept busy making period saves of 15, 8 and 14, Patrick Henry goalie Tim Baldwin was turning aside 24 Prowler shots.

"The first period was very sluggish," admitted McGann. "We seemed to be holding back, waiting to see what they were going to do. But we caught fire and had a good second and third period."

First Period

Scoring—Henry, Lind unassisted, 3:47. TRF, Phelps assisted by Kosel, 6:05. Henry, Bohan assisted by Orstad, 6:54.

Penalties—TRF, Dallmann, charging, 3:09.

Saves—TRF, Sullivan 15. Henry, Baldwin 7.

Second Period

Scoring—TRF, Dallmann assisted by Erickson, 2:14. TRF, Loeffler assisted by Olson and Dicken, 2:50. TRF, Lindquist assisted by Forberg and Erickson.

Penalties—Henry, Lind, elbowing, 14:29.

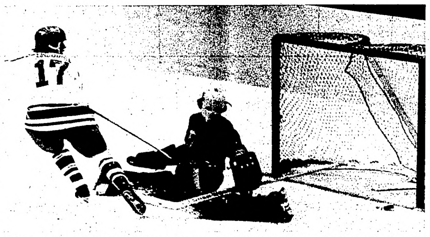
Saves—TRF, Sullivan 8. Henry, Baldwin 10.

Third Period

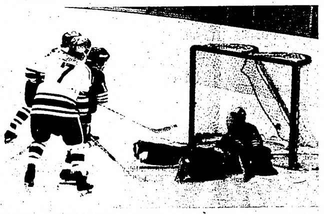
Scoring—TRF, Lindquist unassisted, 12:20. TRF, Lindquist assisted by Ehrenstrom, 13:19.

Penalties—TRF, Dallmann, slashing, 1:54. TRF, Lindquist, elbowing, 2:11. TRF, Olson, holding, 7:17. Henry, Orstad, elbowing, 13:08.

Saves—TRF, Sullivan 14, game total 37. Henry, Baldwin 7, game total 24.



THIEF RIVER FALLS center Jeff Lindquist beat Minneapolis Patrick Henry goalie Tim Baldwin on an unassisted breakaway goal in the third period of Friday night's high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Lindquist scored the goal with 2:40 remaining in the game, then added another goal just one minute later to finish with a three goal hat trick in the Prowlers' 6-2 win.



PROWLER TEAMMATES Jeff Lindquist (background) and Mike Jury combined to beat Minneapolis Patrick Henry goalie Tim Baldwin with just 1:41 remaining in Friday night's high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Lindquist scored the goal on the play and Jury earned an assist as the Prowlers beat the Patriots 6-2.

Snowmobilers Urged To Use Care, Caution

Whether you're new to the sport via a new snowmobile this Christmas or an old hand at the popular mode of mechanized cross-country winter travel, the Minnesota Department of public safety advises that all snowmobilers use care and caution in the operation of the machine, especially when near or crossing roadways.

The advice is well founded, since last winter in Minnesota some 235 accidents were recorded in which a snowmobile was involved in a traffic or roadway connected crash. Ten of those crashes killed a total of 14 people while an additional 139 crashes injured 169 persons. Eighty-six accidents resulted in property damage only.

Statistics from the department indicate that crashes with motor vehicles in traffic accounted for the largest share of deaths and injuries while parked motor vehicles and fixed objects in the roadway also proved hazardous to the snowmobile operators. One pedestrian death was recorded in a snowmobile crash last winter as was one fatality resulting from a collision with a train.

Snowmobiles are regulated in their operation, and, under Minnesota law, may not be operated on a trunk, county state-aid, or county highway in the state. However, a county or a municipality may or may not allow such use on local streets or highways. In no case may a snowmobile be operated at any time within the right of way of any freeway or interstate highway. A good rule of thumb is to stay off all roadways (including the shoulder of the road and the inside bank) unless you are absolutely sure that the area you are traveling in allows such use. Ditches and outside banks are legal and safer areas of travel.

The law also provides that, while traveling at night in the ditch or outside bank of a roadway, snowmobiles must travel on the right hand side of a road, going with the flow of traffic. This provision is to the benefit of motorists who could easily be misled by the presence of headlights approaching on the wrong side of the road at night.

When crossing a highway, snowmobiles must come to a complete stop and yield the right of way to all oncoming traffic which represents an immediate hazard. The crossing must be made at 90 degree angle to the roadway and at a place where there are no obstructions which constitute a hazard. Divided highways may be crossed only at an intersecting street, road or highway. Bridges may be used by snowmobiles provided the machine is operated in the extreme right hand lane and the crossing is made without undue delay.

TRF, Roseau JV Hockey Squads Split Decisions

Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team split a pair of games against Roseau over the weekend to bring its season record to 4-3-1 for the year.

Thief River Falls lost a 3-1 decision at Roseau Friday, but bounced back to take a 7-4 verdict in a Saturday rematch in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Scott Sabo scored the lone Thief River Falls goal Friday tying the game 1-1 in the second period. Roseau won the contest with a pair of third period goals, though.

Gordy Markstrom collected the hat trick in Thief River Falls' Saturday victory. Tom Zieman, Joe Dee, Sheldon Idso and Sabo also scored for the winners.

'75 Deer Season Results Same As Last Year

Results of Minnesota's 1975 deer season were almost a carbon copy of last year, according to figures released this week by the department of natural resources.

About the only significant difference was an apparent drop in the number of hunters.

Wildlife officials said 63,555 deer were taken during this year's firearms season as compared with 64,997 a year ago. About 21 per cent of all hunters managed to bag a deer, nearly identical with the hunting success figure of last season.

Although a final tabulation has not been made on the number of licenses sold this year, preminimary figures indicate that about 300,000 licensed firearms deer hunters were in the woods during November. This is a drop from the 316,301 licenses tallied last year.

Officials said the management objectives of the season were largely achiever.

Minnesota Boasts Mineral Resources

by Mike Finley
U of M Writer

Minnesota has been "hung up" on iron for such a long time that not much thought has been given to the state's other mineral resources, says Matt Walton of the Minnesota geological survey at the University of Minnesota.

After years as an iron-ore state, Minnesota seems to be suddenly bursting with newly discovered mineral resources—copper-nickel, sulfides, even peat bogs—and nobody knows quite what to do about it, Walton said.

It all started back in 1950. Road-building through wilderness land along the Kawishawi river in northestern Minnesota led to the discovery of copper-nickel ore in the area. A flurry of excitement swept through the state at the thought of the riches sitting around waiting to be picked up and cashed in. A preliminary shaft was sunk.

University of Minnesota geologist and former survey director Paul Sims also became interested in the mining camps of Ontario. Some of the world's richest metal sulfide ore deposits—sulfides of gold, silver, zinc, lead and copper—were located in a broad zone leading right ot the Canadian border, where they seemed to stop abruptly.

Soms felt that there was a better-than-average possibility that the geological formations, flaunting international law, didn't stop at the border at all, but stretched on into northern Minnesota. He found that the same rock formations do continue into Minnesota, where they are concealed by glacial drift.

Sims showed that the geology was favorable, but a problem remains: finding ore deposits buried under the hundreds of feet of glacial debris.

Meanwhile, an energy crisis struck the world and the hunt for alternative sources of energy began in earnest. That was when someone noticed, on the vegetation map of the state, that the areas in northern Minnesota, along with healthy patches in the Mille Lacs area, are the color gray.

Gray means peat bogs. Minnesota has more peat bog land than the rest of the country combined. And peat, a popular fuel throughout Europe and other parts of the world, burns. Compared to conventional fuels, peat is reasonably efficient: 13 billion tons of peat—a crude estimate of the state's total peat resources— is the burning equivalent of 6 billion tons of good bituminous coal.

Copper-nickel deposits, metal sulfide ores and an ocean of marketable peat—it all sounds like money in the bank, right? Maybe, maybe not.

Several mining companies have secured land rights in the copper-nickel area. A couple have even gone to the effort of sinking exploratory pits or shafts. Peat investigations are in the planning stages.

Still, Walton said, "I personally don't think mining is imminent. Copper-nickel mining is extremely expensive. Its technology is very heavy and requires a massive investment. I don't think an actual mine is the next step".

"Understand' he said, "environmentalists and community people have spoken up in opposition to further investigation."

"Mineral investigations are necessary if we're to know what we have," Walton said. "Meanwhile, we are also involved in investigating the real environmental impacts of the kinds of mining we're talking about." The people with whom Walton has the least sympathy, he says, are "those who say, 'Omigod, let's stop this before we learn any more about it!' "

"They are betraying a philosophical inconsistency," he said. "If you live in a modern house, drive a car, ride in planes—in short, if you're at all involved in modern civilization—then you are dependent upon the output of the basic metals. And if you say, 'That's right, I just don't want it going on in my back yard,' then you're asking that it be done to somebody else's back yard. The only legitimate critics are the hippies living in subsistence communes. They've removed themselves as consumers, so they can criticize without being hypocritical."

With regard to peat mining, he said, several factors prevent machines from going up there and hauling the peat away to be burned.

"Bogs play an essential role in the state's hydrology. They retain water and smooth out the annual floods in the state. Bogs are an important refuge for all kinds of wildlife. In addition, peat is important as an agricultural tool. It boosts protein content in certain plants and makes an exceptional soil conditioner."

The great advantage to peat, however, is that it is renewable. If it is properly harvested, it will grow back. How much of "our youngest geological resource" is renewable is something nobody knows.

Stripper Wells Add To Flow Of U.S. Oil

When an oilman talks about a stripper, he usually isn't talking about adult entertainment. He's talking about an oil well such as those found in the hills of West Virginia.

The current edition of "Petroleum Today" reports that strippers account for 13 per cent of this country's oil production. Every barrel they produce is a barrel that doesn't have to be imported, the magazine points out. West Virginia, for example, has 13,500 oil wells, all but a handful of them classified as "strippers." A stripper well is officially one which produces 10 barrels or less per day.

In West Virginia, the average daily output of each well is only half a barrel, but together these wells produce 2.4 million barrels of oil a year. There are thousands of strippers in other states, too, according to "Petroleum Today".

The magazine points out that simple economics dictate whether stripper wells are kept in operation.

Hockey School August 1-14 In Detroit Lakes

Canadian professional hockey schools will be at three locations next summer, opening in Detroit Lakes and Austin, for the months of July and August, and then moving north to Winnipeg, Manitoba for August and September.

In addition to the Canadian professional hockey schools regular program, a new beginners learn-to-skate program has been introduced this year. This is conducted during a morning session and is open to boys and girls of all ages, as well as parents, who are interested in learning how to skate or merely require a refresher course. This program is under the direction of professional skating instructors.

The pro-style pre-season training camp, conducted for all ages by the Canadian professional hockey schools, proved to be so popular during the past years that it has been extended to run for three weeks next summer; from August 1-14 in Detroit Lakes, Minnesota and from August 29-September 4 in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

For complete information, phone: (204) 284-6431 or write to: The Canadian Professional Hockey Schools Ltd., Box 487, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada R3C 2J3.

Strong Finish Tips Anoka 4-1

Three straight third period goals broke open a 1-1 game and provided Thief River Falls with a 4-1 Saturday night triumph over Anoka.

Brad Kosel supplied Thief River Falls with an early 1-0 edge by scoring just 32 seconds before the first period expired. Jay Kverno and Doug Dallmann earned assists on the play.

Anoka gained a 1-1 tie, though, when Mike Rose converted a Tornado power play opportunity midway through the second period.

A strong third period start gave the Prowlers' the win when Mike Jury and Kverno scored just 45 seconds apart in the first two minutes of the final stanza.

Jury scored in unassisted fashion just 1:11 into the period and Kverno scored with help from Dallmann and Bill Olson at 1:46.

Jury then finished the game's scoring at 6:42 on assists from Dallmann and Jeff Lindquist.

Sullivan recorded 29 of his 33 saves through the first two periods before the Prowlers out-shot the Tornadoes 11-4 in the third period. Anoka goalie Jeron Drew finished with 26 saves.

"Our first period was slow again," pointed out McGann. "But we had good, strong second and third periods. We felt we were going to break it open, it was just a matter of when."

First Period

Scoring—TRF, Kosel assisted by Kverno and Dallmann, 14:28.

Penalties—Anoka, Wolff, tripping, 4:07.

Saves—TRF, Sullivan 16. Anoka, Drew 7.

Second Period

Scoring—Anoka, Rose assisted by Sorteberg, 7:02.

Penalties—TRF, Kosel, tripping, 5:41. TRF, Dallmann, tripping, 11:35. Anoka, Sorteberg, elbowing, 12:02. TRF, Olson, high stick, 12:02.

Saves—TRF, Sullivan 13. Anoka, Drew 8.

Third Period

Scoring—TRF, Jury unassisted, 1:11. TRF, Kverno assisted by Dallmann and Olson, 1:56. TRF, Jury assisted by Dallmann and Lindquist, 6:42.

Penalties—Anoka, Rose, elbowing, 2:16. Anoka, Sorteberg, hooking, 6:01. Anoka, Rose, interference, 9:29. TRF, Forberg, cross checking, 9:58.

Saves—TRF, Sullivan 4, game total 33. Anoka, Drew 11, game total 26.

Survey Shows Athletes Are Good Students

Students who earn athletic letters at colleges and universities appear to graduate at the same or a higher rate than do nonathletes, according to a recent report of results from a survey conducted by ACT for the national collegiate athletic association (NCAA).

Made public late this past fall, the report is based on information provided by NCAA member institutions responding to a questionnaire designed and administered by ACT. Resulting data were analyzed by ACT and retained in its confidential files.

The report pointed out that the typical university surveyed graduated (over a five year period) 62 per cent of the freshman males who enrolled in 1968. By comparison, those institutions indicated they typically graduated (also over a five year period) 77 per cent of their football lettermen who had enrolled as freshmen in 1968.

"The median graduation rate for lettermen in baseball was 86 per cent, basketball 82 per cent, track and field 85 per cent, and other sports 83 per cent," stated the report. In addition, it was pointed out that junior college athletes who transferred to NCAA institutions in 1969 or 1970 also graduated at a higher percentage than did other male transfers.

Based on data from surveys conducted in six different years since 1957, it was determined that about 60 per cent of all freshman men and women who enter a university earn baccalaureate degrees.

"To my knowledge, this is the first attempt anyone has ever made to determine on a national basis the number of lettermen who earn degrees in comparison to the entire male student body," said James Maxey, assistant vice president and director of ACT research services. "Although our conclusions are tentative, they represent the most factual data available."

Maxey, who directed the project, said the survey also indicates that the 10 most popular majors for those lettermen at the time they entered the colleges and universities as freshmen in 1968 or from junior colleges in 1969 or 1970 were physical education, business and economics, pre-veterinary medicine, engineering, pre-law, education, accounting, biology, math and sociology.

Trapping Issue Discussed In DNR 'Volunteer'

November-December issue of "Volunteer", official publication of the Minnesota department of natural resources, reviews the current arguments being made against trapping by some organizations and individuals, and explains why trapping remains a desirable and necessary tool in wildlife management.

In the magazine article called "Trapping: A Tradition on Trial", DNR wildlife biologist William Longley reports that opposition to trapping surfaced at least as early as 1932.

Today, he said, opponents of trapping are seeking to substitute "instant kill" traps for the conventional steel jawed leg hold trap—if they cannot convince legislators to ban trapping altogether.

Longley cites evidence to show that so-called instant kill traps often do not kill instantly as advertised and are unsuitable for taking fox and coyote.

Food Fads Costly, Perhaps Unhealthy

by Mike Finley
U of M Writer

It has happened to Margaret Doyle more than once. The acquaintance at a party learns that Doyle is a nutritionist and is elated.

"Nutrition is so fascinating! I've read all of Adele Davis's books on the subject!"

Margaret Doyle is polite. She doesn't grimace or get into a fight. "How nice," she says.

Nutritionists have always had this problem. They are scientists and they do research on nutrition and they tend, as a group, to know what they're talking about. So why does the public pay so little attention to them?

Instead, Americans spend millions of dollars every year following the advice of "super-nutritionists" like Adele Davis, Jerome Rodale, Drs. Robert C. Atkins and Irwin Stillman and whatever other food-fad promoters are currently being hawked on supermarket magazine racks.

Food-faddists, Doyle said, just want to be healthy. They want to be thin. They want to be beautiful. They want to live forever. Besides, all those "experts" on the bookracks have been on the "Merv Griffin Show," so they must be telling the truth!

The distressing fact, Doyle said, is that these experts aren't telling the truth. Much of what they say is pure invention and much more of the rest is sloppy or misleading.

"One of the most-often-used techniques is the dramatic anecdote," said Doyle, a professor in the department of food science and nutrition at the University of Minnesota. "Popularizers are always telling little stories about fantastic results: 'My doctor had all but given up hope for me. After one week on the wheat germ diet, however, my eyesight had returned to normal.'

"Adele Davis, in a passage encouraging pregnant women to take lost of vitamin C, relates that all her obstetrician friends whose patients take vitamin C are amazed at how elastic their tissues are. In another chapter she relates the very dramatic story of how 6,000 micrograms of vitamin C actually cured a child of polio."

Such anecdotes make for great reading, Doyle said, but amount to little more than hearsay on the author's part. Food-fad literature abounds with such miracles. One of the more frequently used phrases in such books, she said, is: "Scientists will say differently, but..." Another is: "This proven practice has never been accepted by modern medicine."

Doyle brandishes a report, called "Americans Love Hogwash," by Edward Rynearson, a retired professor from the Mayo clinic at Rochester. In his study, Rynearson went to extraordinary ends to discover how valid were the pronouncements and proofs offered by such super-nutritionists as Davis, Rodale, Carlton Fredericks and Zen macrobiotic diet guru Georges Ohsawa.

Adele Davis, Rynearson wrote, is the bestselling of the super-nutritionists, having such titles as "Let's Eat Right Right To Keep Fit" and "Let's Get Well" to her credit. In one book, "Let's Get Well," Davis listed 2,402 references, of whom 95 per cent, according to her, were professors in medical schools. Rynearson wrote to the more distinguished scientists Davis listed as sources: hardly any had had any correspondence with Davis, most complained that they had been misquoted and several works bore no resemblance to the applications Davis put them to.

Margaret Doyle agrees with Rynearson. Although the recipes in Davis's books are often quite good, and while her writing style never lags, Doyle despairs of the harm her "findings" do to readers.

For instance, Doyle said, Davis wrote that she took half a pound of pills every day, to supplement her diet. Not only are such mega-dosages of vitamins likely to be dangerous, but they're also phenomenally expensive.

"Davis is always there to reassure readers that if they follow certain dietary precautions, they won't ever have to worry about cancer."

Last year, Adele Davis died of cancer.

Jerome Rodale, the great organic gardening enthusiast, had a similar career. Editor and author of many books and magazines, he believed that skyscrapers prevent people from getting needed electricity from the atmosphere. He therefore spent 10-20 minutes a day under a short-wave-emitting transformer, soaking up the runaway electrons. He, too, had a cure for cancer: pumpkin seeds.

He once claimed that he would live to be 100, so long as he wasn't "run down by a sugar-crazed taxi driver." The unfortunate fact, Doyle said, is that Rodale dropped dead one night while boasting on the "Dick Cavett Show."

Perhaps the strangest food fad of all, Doyle said, is the Zen macrobiotic diet propounded by self-styled nutritionist Georges Ohsawa. Ohsawa invented a nutritional system, bearing scant resemblance to any actual Zen practice, in which there are seven kinds of diet, some heavily "yin," some heavily "yang." Ohsawa believes there is no disease that can't be cured by administration of the proper nutritional treatment.

"No illness is more simple to cure than cancer through a return to the most elementary and natural eating and drinking prescribed by Diet No. 7," Ohsawa writes.

Diet No. 7 is also recommended to persons suffering from such "nutritional" disorders as appendicitis, glaucoma and dandruff. Dandruff, in particular, concerns Ohsawa. He describes it as the first step toward mental disease.

Ohsawa discourages aspirin use on the basis that all attempts to assuage pain are small acts of suicide. The macrobiotic diet discourages liquid intake and encourages salty foods—such as miso soup—to the extent that the macrobiotic dieter may be in danger of dehydrating.

Doyle cites these examples not so much because they typify the mainstream of food-faddism, but because they delineate its extremes.

"Food fads have been around for thousands of years. Most of them are very temporary, like the Metrecal fad, which blossomed and then disappeared a few years back. Other so-called fads, like vegetarianism, are thousands of years old.

"Some of them are bad. The Zen macrobiotic diet has yielded at least one example of an overly zealous practitioner coming down with scurvy. Other fads have much to recommend them. You can hardly argue with a diet that advises you to drink eight ounces of orange juice every day."

There is nothing wrong, or unhealthy, about either the natural or the organic foods movement. Doyle herself admits to a preference for whole-grain bread. The importance placed on fiber in both diets is something nutritionists have been talking about for a long time. And there is unquestionably, Doyle said, good reason to worry about additives, fertilizers and pesticides. Many food additives aren't properly tested before being used: she advocates thorough pretesting. As for the pesticides and fertilizers, their effects on the environment need no elaboration here.

But, Doyle said, things are not so simple as natural and organic foods enthusiasts would like. "The natural foods movement would have us believe that our food is no good because our soil has been depleted by agriculture. But if you check with an agronomist, you will be told that the quality of the soil affects yield but not quality of the crop. Thus, a 'depleted' field may not yield many potatoes, but the few potatoes it does yield will be just like every other potato."

Doyle paraphrased Gertrude Stein: "After all, a potato is a potato."

"Furthermore, if you consider our current world food supply, you will probably begin to understand that worldwide famine can't possibly be averted without the efficient use of fertilizers, pesticides, processing and modern storage techniques."

Recent organic gardening claims to the contrary, Doyle doubts that organic agriculture has the capability to feed the world's hungry.

Doyle said that nutritionists face a difficult and perhaps impossible struggle in communicating with the general public about nutrition. The people most likely to be recruited into the ranks of the charlatan super-nutritionists, she said, are the people least likely to be swayed by common sense or the weight of scientific evidence.

TREAT THE TREE TRIMMERS TO SAUSAGE'COT SKILLET

Take the time from the tinsel 'n trimmings to stir up this nice 'n spicy skillet from sausage and nutritious apricots. 'Tis simple! Just simmer cooked sausage links together with chunks of green pepper and canned 'cots in a surprise sweet 'n sour sauce. The surprise? The sauce starts from the syrup the apricots are canned in. Serve bubbly hot with mugs of steaming orange and spice flavored tea! It's the ideal treat for the tree-lighting ceremony.

TREE TRIMMERS SAUSAGE'COT SKILLET

(Makes 6 servings)

- 2 packages (8 ounces each) sausage links
- 2 medium onions, cut in 1/2-inch wedges
- 2 green peppers, cut in small chunks
- 1 can (30 ounces) apricot halves, undrained
- 2/3 cup water
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch

Fry sausages in skillet over low heat for 12 to 15 minutes or until well-browned on all sides; turn frequently. Remove sausages to paper toweling to drain. Sauté onions in drippings until lightly browned; add green peppers and sauté 1 minute longer.

Drain apricots, reserving syrup; add syrup and water to onions and green peppers in skillet. Combine vinegar and cornstarch; stir cornstarch mixture into liquid in skillet. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add browned sausages and drained apricots; simmer just until ingredients are heated. Transfer to chafing dish.

National Guard Takes Lead In Winter Drills

Most Minnesotans have learned to live with the snow and cold of the typical northern winter.

In fact, many gopher state residents actually look forward to the myriad of winter sports now available to the rugged enthusiast—snowmobiling, cross-country and downhill skiing, skating, sledding, etc.

It seems only natural, then, that the Minnesota Army National guard should take the lead among all military services in winter training and cold weather warfare tactics.

And that is just what they have done, according to Major Gerald R. Forslund, a member of the Guard's 47th Infantry division winter operations instructor team.

Forslund visited Fort Sam Houston, Tex., recently to brief the commander and staff of the fifth U.S. army on the techniques and procedures used by the Minnesota National guard in its winter training at Camp Ripley.

"For instance," Forslund said, "the Minnesota Army National guard has developed a way to set up a kitchen tent with a specially modified heater to keep the water from freezing. Now, even during a camp-out in 20 below weather, the troops get three hot meals each day. The Army previously had no way to do this and was very interested in learning more about it."

Camp Ripley, the Minnesota Army National guard training site, located seven miles north of Little Falls, has newly constructed winterized barracks and facilities to house and train 100 combat troops. The troops are outfitted with special cold weather clothing and train on skis and snowshoes while in tactical maneuvers. The hilly wooded terrain lends itself well to test not only the tactical skills of cambat troops, but also the maintenance capability of support troops.

"We plan to expand our barracks construction to allow for training of 200 Guardsmen each two week period," said Brig. Gen. James G. Sieben, Adjutant general of the Minnesota National guard. He said there has been an extensive building program at Camp Ripley over the past few years to accommodate the ever-increasing demand for winter training facilities.

"Camp Ripley is the only site in the entire country capable of training a reinforced combat battalion in winter warfare," Sieben said.

The Minnesota Army National guard has been involved in winter training since 1962 when the National guard bureau initiated a program sending Guardsmen to the Army's Northern warfare training center at Fort Greely, Alaska for individual training. Later, in 1965, the Guard started its own school as well as conducting a ski instructor school.

"Top leaders of the army are recognizing the fact that future wars will not necessarily be fought in warm weather," Sieben said. "The Minnesota army National guard is happy to be able to do its part in preparing all components of the Army in cold weather operations."

Planning Party Transportation Is Advised

When plans are laid for New Years Eve or other holiday celebrations, include transportation in your planning, Minnesota Department of public safety Commissioner Edward G. Novak advised recently.

"It is probably more important to decide who will drive to and from the party than any other aspect of the evening," Novak said.

"If several couples are going to the same function, a plan should be made so that those individuals who are abstainers or light drinkers will do the driving and pick up and deliver the others. In this way, everyone can be reasonably sure that they will arrive safely, and save later arguments and decisions about who should or shouldn't drive home.

"If the party is so composed that it is difficult to pick a driver, arrange well ahead of time for a cab or other transportation. It is too late halfway through the evening to start arranging for rides."

Novak also advised caution in starting out with frosted windows. "Very often," he said, "a group of people will enter a cold car and the windows will frost up before the heater has had a chance to warm up. In this situation, it is a good idea for the driver to start the car ahead of time, turning the window defrosters on high speed immediately. Usually, a five-minute warm-up on a cold night will be sufficient.

"If the car is parked on a public street, bring along an extra key so that the car can be locked while it is warming up, or better yet, stay with the car. An unlocked, idling car is a great temptation for the thief who is looking for just such opportunities."

Know Winter Weather And Prepare For It

Division of emergency services has issued information on understanding winter weather and preparations for dealing with it according to Wes Lane, director of the division of emergency services.

It includes winter home preparation, auto safety winter travel rules, snowmobile safety rules, and an explanation of commonly used winter weather terms.

A blizzard is the most dangerous of all winter storms. Combining cold air, heavy snow and strong winds, it may reduce visibility to only a few yards. A blizzard warning is issued by the weather service when considerable snow, winds up to 35 miles an hour, and temperatures of 20 degrees or lower are expected.

A severe blizzard warning means that a very heavy snowfall is expected, with winds up to 45 miles an hour and temperatures of 10 degrees or lower are expected.

A heavy snow warning usually means an expected snowfall of four inches or more in a 12-hour period, or six inches or more in a 24-hour period. Warnings of snow flurries, snow squalls, or blowing or drifting snow are important mainly because weather visibility may be reduced and roads become slippery.

Freezing rain or drizzle is forecast when rain is expected to freeze as soon as it hits the ground, coating roads with ice.

Sleet is small particles of ice, usually mixed with rain. If enough sleet accumulates on the ground, it will make the roads slippery.

Make sure your car is in good operating condition, properly serviced, and equipped with chains or snow tires.

Make sure the car radio is working—the information it can give you could save your life.

If possible, take another person along with you, or at least have someone know where you are going and when you plan to reach your destination.

Don't be daring. Stop, and turn back, or seek help if conditions become threatening rather than risk becoming stalled or isolated.

Don't panic if stalled or isolated by a storm. Stay in your car. If you are on a well-traveled road, show a trouble signal. Set your directional lights flashing, raise the hood of your car, or hang a cloth from the radio aerial or car window.

Keep an adequate supply of heating fuel on hand for your home. Use it sparingly during a blizzard, in case normal supplies are interrupted. Conserve fuel by closing off some rooms temporarily.

Keep a battery powered radio on hand in case electric power goes off. This will enable you to hear weather forecasts and advice broadcast by local authorities.

Have available: Medicines for family members and a first aid kit, flashlight or lanterns, and canned or sealed foods not requiring refrigeration.

If participating in blizzard rescue operations on a snowmobile, report where you are going to the county or city police. Travel in groups of four to avoid breakdowns during rescue operations.

Carry an emergency fuel supply, an extra drive belt for your machines, spare spark plugs, and a light weight block and tackle with 50 feet of ¼-inch nylon rope.

Keep a compact first aid kit with you. Also include a container of waterproof matches.

"Early winter storms frequently cause mishaps because people are caught unprepared," Lane said. "As winter progresses, people often tend to take chances they would not ordinarily take and do things they would not ordinarily do."

Zoo Horse Show Raises $32,000 For State Zoo

Proceeds totaling $32,000 from the second annual Minnesota aid to the zoo horse show was donated to the Minnesota zoological garden at ceremonies held recently at McQuire's Inn in conjunction with a party honoring hundreds of volunteers whose work made the show a success. This amount is a $7,000 gain over the $25,000 donated to zoo construction from the 1974 show.

The check was presented by Michael Parish, horse show director, and accepted by zoological board chairman Firmin L. Alexander and zoo director Donald D. Bridgwater.

The money will be matched dollar for dollar by the state under legislation that created the new zoo, presently under construction in Apple Valley.

The five-day charity horse show, sponsored by the Minnesota zoological society, featured hunter, jumper and saddlebred horses competing for $25,000 in prize money. There were over 500 entries from 11 states and Canada, and the show was attended by more than 15,000 spectators.

The $32,000 is dedicated toward construction on the Siberian tiger exhibit planned for the new zoo, and for the purchase of the first tigers to occupy the exhibit.

According to Parish, this is the largest indoor horse show for hunter, jumper and saddlebred horses in the upper Midwest.

"Last year, the United Professional Horseman's association (UPHA) voted our show best in the six state area," continued Parish, "and also named it runner-up for national honor show of the year. In 1975, the Tri-State Horseman's association has awarded it best show, and the UPHA has nominated it again for national honors."

Tentative 1976 show date is October 6-10.

Depression Can Be Coped With, Doctor Advises

One of the most common complaints brought to the Northwest mental health center is a feeling of depression, according to Brian Lloyd, M.D. There are many levels of seriousness of this malady.

"Feeling blue" is the least harmful form; the most serious represented by the suicide victim, he said. Other illnesses often have an element of depression as either an underlying or resulting factor.

For example, marriage problems sometime arise when one spouse becomes frustrated in attempting to make his or her partner "happy." Depressed people can only pretend to be happy. Another commonly seen picture is that of a person who starts drinking to excess to blot out personal unhappiness. Unfortunately, our "self reliant" culture often encourages this kind of behavior instead of admitting one has an emotional problem and deserves help.

Symptoms accompanying depression often include restless sleep, disinterest in previously enjoyed activities, irritability, absent-mindedness, loss of sexual interest, and a general feeling that ordinary daily tasks are insurmountable. People who are depressed often begin to feel guilty when they find it difficult to meet their social obligations, or fulfill their role as family members.

Treatments for depression vary depending on how serious the problem is, but basically there are three avenues for treatment. They include activities, medications and counseling.

A balanced program of activities, including work, recreation, and rest, is important. Logically, few people are likely to enjoy life in general if they do not have such a balance. For the depressed person then this is even more important. Medications developed in the last two decades have been shown to have a significant beneficial effect in certain types of cases. Such medicines can be prescribed by any physician. Counseling is available through such people as the clergy, mental health center staff and privately.

The important thing to realize about depression, is that it is very vulnerable to a good program of treatment. Nowadays, a person deserves help to cope with problems such as these, Dr. Lloyd added.

Card of Thanks
With heartfelt gratitude and appreciation I wish to say thank you to all the relatives, friends and neighbors who helped in so many ways during my stay at the hospital while in Thief River Falls and also at St. Luke's in Fargo. Special thanks to Pastor Hotrenning, Dr. Van Rooy, Pearl Iverson, the Numedahl homemakers club and Oak Ridge Ladies aid and for all the visits and gifts of food after my return home. The many prayers, visits, gifts, phone calls and floral offerings and the kindness of the doctors, nurses and staff really expressed the Christmas spirit, even though I was unable to send even one greeting. So now may I say it a little late—Merry Christmas and a Blessed New Year to one and all.

Card of Thanks
My sincere thanks to Dr. Herber, all second floor nurses and nurses aides as well as physical therapy for the wonderful care and help given me while I was a patient in the hospital.
My special thanks to Pastor Wosie for visits and prayers and to all you dear friends, neighbors and relatives for all the beautiful cards, letters and gifts. And I especially want to thank those of you that have been so faithful to come and see me the many times I have had to be in the hospital.
May God richly bless you all.

Order for Hearing on Petition
For Admission of
Will to Probate

State of Minnesota,
County of Pennington-ss.
IN COUNTY COURT
PROBATE DIVISION
IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF Arthur O. Olson, Decedent

IT IS ORDERED that the petition for admission of will to probate filed herein and any objections filed thereto be heard on January 28, 1976, at 2:00 o'clock P.M. by this court in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota. That, if proper, at said time and place a representative will be appointed to administer the estate, who shall collect all assets and file an inventory thereof, pay all legal debts, claims, and taxes, and expenses of administration, and sell such real and personal property as may be necessary and for the best interests of the estate. Upon completion of administration, the representative shall file a final account for allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the court and do all other acts to close the estate.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that creditors of decedent file their claims in this court within sixty (60) days from the date hereof and that said claims be heard on March 26, 1976, at 9:30 o'clock A.M. by this court in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Notice of Mortgage
Foreclosure Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That default has occurred in the conditions of that certain mortgage, dated the 12th day of September, 1968, executed by Norman L. Helle and Jeanette J. Helle, husband and wife, as mortgagors to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Thief River Falls as mortgagee, filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of September, 1968, at 3:00 o'clock P.M., and recorded in Book 108 of Mortgage Records, page 547, the original principal amount secured by said mortgage being $7,000.00; that no action or proceeding has been instituted at law to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, that there is due and claimed to be due upon said mortgage, including interest to date hereof, the sum of Five Thousand Sixty-two and 09-100 DOLLARS, ($5,062.09), and that pursuant to the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed and the tract of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lots Forty-one (41) and Forty-two (42) in Eshelby's Rearrangement of Smiley's addition to Fairfield, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said county at public auction on the 14th day of January, 1976, at 10:00 o'clock A.M., at the front door of the Courthouse in the City of Thief River Falls in said county and state, to pay the debt then secured by said mortgage and taxes, if any, on said premises and the costs and disbursements allowed by law. The time allowed by law for redemption by the mortgagors, their personal representatives or assigns is six months from the date of said sale.

Dated November 28th, 1975.

If your past income tax return is selected by Internal Revenue Service for audit, chances are very good—and getting better—that you'll have to pay additional taxes. 77 per cent of returns audited now result in additional assessments, compared with 57 per cent in 1968. The reason: IRS computers help select returns most likely to produce added tax assessments.

GEOTHERMAL DRILLING Workmen are silhouetted against the 137-foot tower of a conventional drilling rig as the Energy Research and Development Administration's Los Alamos (New Mexico) Scientific Laboratory drills a geothermal well in the Jemez Mountains of northern New Mexico. The rig, capable of going down 15,000 feet, is drilling a 9,600-foot well near a previously excavated bore, and the two will be connected by a hydraulically fractured crack system. Cold water under pressure will be pumped down the first hole and will circulate through hot rock and rise up the second hole. The ERDA Los Alamos hot, dry rock geothermal exploration is seeking to extract energy from hot rock rather than from naturally occurring hot water beneath the earth's surface. QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I would like to help sick and injured veterans by volunteering in a Veterans Administration hospital but I'm not very good with sick people. Is there anything else I can do?

A—There are many volunteer assignments which do not involve direct contact with patients but are important because they allow hospital staff members more time to perform specialized functions. You might work in the pharmacy, a pathology or research laboratory, for example.

Q—Is a veteran attending a business college eligible for tutorial assistance?

A—Yes. A veteran, pursuing a post-secondary program half-time or more at an educational institution, who has a deficiency in a subject which is indispensable to the satisfactory pursuit of an approved program of education, may receive tutorial assistance services. Business colleges are included.

Q—As a veteran's widow, I was drawing Veterans Administration pension until I remarried. Since my second husband died recently, can I get back on the VA pension roll?

A—Yes. Under current law, a formerly eligible widow may regain her pension if the subsequent remarriage ends in death or divorce—provided her income and net worth do not exceed income limitations.

Q—I am a disabled military retiree. I know that in order to get Veterans Administration compensation, I must waive a portion of my retired pay. If I qualify for the $175 VA clothing allowance because my prosthetic device wears out my clothing, will I also have to waive $175 of my retired pay?

A—No. It is not necessary for a veteran in receipt of retirement pay to waive any portion of his retirement pay in order to receive the clothing allowance. However, if he is in receipt of retirement pay and has not elected to receive compensation, a claim will be required each year to establish eligibility for the clothing allowance.

Q—How many volunteers serve in Veterans Administration hospitals?

A—In an average month, more than 106,000. It's as if the entire population of a city larger than Duluth, Minnesota, helped care for veteran-patients.

Q—How can I get the money the Veterans Administration owes me for my husband while I was in school on the GI Bill, and how much time do I have to complete the necessary paperwork?

A—Contact the nearest VA regional office about filing a claim for the money. Claims will be accepted until July 1, 1976.

Q—When I retired, I was awarded a 100 per cent service-connected disability rating by the Veterans Administration. I was single. About two years ago, I married. Shouldn't there be some extra money if a veteran has a wife?

A—Yes. An additional amount of compensation may be payable for a wife, husband, child and a dependent parent when a veteran is entitled to compensation based on disability evaluated as 50 per cent or more disabling. The veteran is responsible for notifying the VA of any change in dependency status.

Q—Why does a big government agency like the Veterans Administration need volunteers?

A—Volunteers have been a part of the VA hospital system since 1946. They contribute to patient morale, keep veterans in touch with the community, and provide helpful social and teaching skills. The VA could use more volunteers in each of its 171 hospitals to supplement the professional care provided patients.

Q—I've been busy raising a family and keeping house since I was discharged from the Air Force in 1956. I've never worked outside my home and have never used my GI Bill. I need to go to work as my husband is out of a job. Will VA counsel me and help me get started on a career?

A—Yes. Contact the nearest Veterans Administration regional office.

Q—I was recently separated from the Army under honorable conditions after 20 months of active duty. Could you tell me how many months of GI Bill education benefits I'll get based on my length of service?

A—With 20 months of honorable active duty a veteran would have 36 months of entitlement. Under limited conditions there may be up to nine additional months of entitlement. Certain courses such as high school or deficiency courses can be paid for but do not count against entitlement.

Q—Is a veteran eligible for the car allowance if he has lost the use of a limb due to a service-connected problem, although he is not rated 100 per cent for his service-connected disabilities?

A—The veteran does not have to be rated 100 per cent in order to be eligible for an automobile grant. If he has lost the use of a limb in a service-connected injury, he meets the eligibility requirements.

Q—If a veteran dies while indebted to the Veterans administration, will the VA withhold the amount of his indebtedness from the widow's benefits?

A—No. The widow is not responsible for the indebtedness of the veteran. It will be determined whether or not the veteran left an estate from which recovery could be made. If he has no estate, the finance officer has the authority to write off the debt as uncollectable, if not in excess of $20,000.

Q—I received a lump sum disability severance pay upon my discharge from service. If I am awarded Veterans Administration compensation for the same disability, will I have to return the severance pay?

A—Regulations require that VA monthly compensation payments be withheld until the amount payable is equal to the amount of severance pay received because of disability. The VA automatically establishes this withholding when compensation is authorized.

Q—I am a World War II veteran who served on active duty in the armed forces from 1942 until 1946. Am I still eligible to use my GI home loan?

A—Yes, the expiration date for all World War II veterans, with basic eligibility, has been removed.

Q—I am a totally disabled veteran over 65 years of age. Is it too late for me to apply for a waiver of government insurance premiums?

A—No. If you became totally disabled before your 65th birthday, and meet other requirements, you may be entitled to a waiver of premiums even though you did not apply for it before your 65th birthday.

Card of Thanks
I would like to say thank you for all the prayers, love and concern expressed by fellow workers, friends and neighbors following my accident. Thanks for all the calls, cards and baked goods and to those who came over to help.
It is really heart-warming and cheering to have friends like you. What a wonderful bunch of people!

Card of Thanks
With heartfelt gratitude and appreciation I wish to say thank you to all the relatives, friends and neighbors who helped in so many ways during my stay at the hospital while in Thief River Falls and also at St. Luke's in Fargo. Special thanks to Pastor Hofrenning, Dr. Van Rooy, Pearl Iverson, the Numedahl homemakers club and Oak Ridge Ladies aid and for all the visits and gifts of food after my return home. The many prayers, visits, gifts, phone calls and floral offerings and the kindness of the doctors, nurses and staff really expressed the Christmas spirit, even though I was unable to send even one greeting. So now may I say it a little late—Merry Christmas and a Blessed New Year to one and all.
Mrs. Frank Hible

Card of Thanks
My sincere thanks to Dr. Herber, all second floor nurses and nurses aides as well as physical therapy for the wonderful care and help given me while I was a patient in the hospital.
My special thanks to Pastor Wosle for visits and prayers and to all you dear friends, neighbors and relatives for all the beautiful cards, letters and gifts. And I especially want to thank those of you that have been so faithful to come and see me the many times I have had to be in the hospital.
May God richly bless you all.

Order for Hearing on Petition For Admission of Will to Probate
State of Minnesota,
County of Pennington-ss.
IN COUNTY COURT
PROBATE DIVISION
IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF Arthur O. Olson, Decedent

IT IS ORDERED that the petition for admission of will to probate filed herein and any objections filed thereto be heard on January 28, 1976, at 2:00 o'clock P.M. by this court in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota. That, if proper, at said time and place a representative will be appointed to administer the estate, who shall collect all assets and file an inventory thereof, pay all legal debts, claims, and taxes, and expenses of administration, and sell such real and personal property as may be necessary and for the best interests of the estate. Upon completion of administration, the representative shall file a final account for allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the court and do all other acts to close the estate.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that creditors of decedent file their claims in this court within sixty (60) days from the date hereof and that said claims be heard on March 26, 1976, at 9:30 o'clock A.M. by this court in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That default has occurred in the conditions of that certain mortgage, dated the 12th day of September, 1968, executed by Norman L. Helle and Jeanette J. Helle, husband and wife, as mortgagors to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Thief River Falls as mortgagee, filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of September, 1968, at 3:00 o'clock P.M., and recorded in Book 108 of Mortgage Records, page 547, the original principal amount secured by said mortgage being $7,000.00; that no action or proceeding has been instituted at law to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, that there is due and claimed to be due upon said mortgage, including interest to date hereof, the sum of Five Thousand Sixty-two and 09-100 DOLLARS, ($5,062.09), and that pursuant to the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed and the tract of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lots Forty-one (41) and Forty-two (42) in Eshelby's Rearrangement of Smiley's addition to Fairfield, according to the recorded plat thereof, will be sold by the sheriff of said county at public auction on the 14th day of January, 1976, at 10:00 o'clock A.M., at the front door of the Courthouse in the City of Thief River Falls in said county and state, to pay the debt then secured by said mortgage and taxes, if any, on said premises and the costs and disbursements allowed by law. The time allowed by law for redemption by the mortgagors, their personal representatives or assigns is six months from the date of said sale.

Dated November 28th, 1975.

If your past income tax return is selected by Internal Revenue Service for audit, chances are very good—and getting better—that you'll have to pay additional taxes. 77 per cent of returns audited now result in additional assessments, compared with 57 per cent in 1968. The reason: IRS computers help select returns most likely to produce added tax assessments.

GEOTHERMAL DRILLING Workmen are silhouetted against the 137-foot tower of a conventional drilling rig as the Energy Research and Development Administration's Los Alamos (New Mexico) Scientific Laboratory drills a geothermal well in the Jemez Mountains of northern New Mexico. The rig, capable of going down 15,000 feet, is drilling a 9,600-foot well near a previously excavated bore, and the two will be connected by a hydraulically fractured crack system. Cold water under pressure will be pumped down the first hole and will circulate through hot rock and rise up the second hole. The ERDA Los Alamos hot, dry rock geothermal exploration is seeking to extract energy from hot rock rather than from naturally occurring hot water beneath the earth's surface. QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I would like to help sick and injured veterans by volunteering in a Veterans Administration hospital but I'm not very good with sick people. Is there anything else I can do?

A—There are many volunteer assignments which do not involve direct contact with patients but are important because they allow hospital staff members more time to perform specialized functions. You might work in the pharmacy, a pathology or research laboratory, for example.

A—Is a veteran attending a business college eligible for tutorial assistance?

A—Yes. A veteran, pursuing a post-secondary program half-time or more at an educational institution, who has a deficiency in a subject which is indispensable to the satisfactory pursuit of an approved program of education, may receive tutorial assistance services. Business colleges are included.

Q—As a veteran's widow, I was drawing Veterans Administration pension until I remarried. Since my second husband died recently, can I get back on the VA pension roll?

A—Yes. Under current law, a formerly eligible widow may regain her pension if the subsequent remarriage ends in death or divorce—provided her income and net worth do not exceed income limitations.

Q—I am a disabled military retiree. I know that in order to get Veterans Administration compensation, I must waive a portion of my retired pay. If I qualify for the $175 VA clothing allowance because my prosthetic device wears out my clothing, will I also have to waive $175 of my retired pay?

A—No. It is not necessary for a veteran in receipt of retirement pay to waive any portion of his retirement pay in order to receive the clothing allowance. However, if he is in receipt of retirement pay and has not elected to receive compensation, a claim will be required each year to establish eligibility for the clothing allowance.

Q—How many volunteers serve in Veterans Administration hospitals?

A—In an average month, more than 106,000. It's as if the entire population of a city larger than Duluth, Minnesota, helped care for veteran-patients.

Q—How can I get the money the Veterans Administration owes me for my husband while I was in school on the GI Bill, and how much time do I have to complete the necessary paperwork?

A—Contact the nearest VA regional office about filing a claim for the money. Claims will be accepted until July 1, 1976.

Q—When I retired, I was awarded a 100 per cent service-connected disability rating by the Veterans Administration. I was single. About two years ago, I married. Shouldn't there be some extra money if a veteran has a wife?

A—Yes. An additional amount of compensation may be payable for a wife, husband, child and a dependent parent when a veteran is entitled to compensation based on disability evaluated as 50 per cent or more disabling. The veteran is responsible for notifying the VA of any change in dependency status.

Q—Why does a big government agency like the Veterans Administration need volunteers?

A—Volunteers have been a part of the VA hospital system since 1946. They contribute to patient morale, keep veterans in touch with the community, and provide helpful social and teaching skills. The VA could use more volunteers in each of its 171 hospitals to supplement the professional care provided patients.

Q—I've been busy raising a family and keeping house since I was discharged from the Air Force in 1956. I've never worked outside my home and have never used my GI Bill. I need to go to work as my husband is out of a job. Will VA counsel me and help me get started on a career?

A—Yes. Contact the nearest Veterans Administration regional office.

Q—I was recently separated from the Army under honorable conditions after 20 months of active duty. Could you tell me how many months of GI Bill education benefits I'll get based on my length of service?

A—With 20 months of honorable active duty a veteran would have 36 months of entitlement. Under limited conditions there may be up to nine additional months of entitlement. Certain courses such as high school or deficiency courses can be paid for but do not count against entitlement.

Q—Is a veteran eligible for the car allowance if he has lost the use of a limb due to a service-connected problem, although he is not rated 100 per cent for his service-connected disabilities?

A—The veteran does not have to be rated 100 per cent in order to be eligible for an automobile grant. If he has lost the use of a limb in a service-connected injury, he meets the eligibility requirements.

Q—If a veteran dies while indebted to the Veterans administration, will the VA withhold the amount of his indebtedness from the widow's benefits?

A—No. The widow is not responsible for the indebtedness of the veteran. It will be determined whether or not the veteran left an estate from which recovery could be made. If he has no estate, the finance officer has the authority to write off the debt as uncollectable, if not in excess of $20,000.

Q—I received a lump sum disability severance pay upon my discharge from service. If I am awarded Veterans Administration compensation for the same disability, will I have to return the severance pay?

A—Regulations require that VA monthly compensation payments be withheld until the amount payable is equal to the amount of severance pay received because of disability. The VA automatically establishes this withholding when compensation is authorized.

Q—I am a World War II veteran who served on active duty in the armed forces from 1942 until 1946. Am I still eligible to use my GI home loan?

A—Yes, the expiration date for all World War II veterans, with basic eligibility, has been removed.

Q—I am a totally disabled veteran over 65 years of age. Is it too late for me to apply for a waiver of government insurance premiums?

A—No. If you became totally disabled before your 65th birthday, and meet other requirements, you may be entitled to a waiver of premiums even though you did not apply for it before your 65th birthday.

Returns Home From Hospital

Mrs. Frank Hible returned home from St. Lukes hospital at Fargo on Friday afternoon where she had been a patient for three weeks and will now be spending the next few weeks at home recuperating. She is extending a word of appreciation for all the cards, letters, gifts and flowers received to all those who visited with her and the telephone calls received while a patient and also for the many other kindnesses.

Warn Holiday Drinkers Of After Effects

If you think that just one more drink is going to make you "the life of the party" this holiday season, you may be in for a big surprise, advises the Committee on alcoholism and other chemical dependencies of the Minnesota state medical association. In fact, "one too many" may have just the opposite effect.

Alcohol is generally a depressant, not a stimulant. The portion of the brain that controls judgment and thoughts is the first to be affected by alcohol. The result may be the impairment of the person's normal ability to remember, to understand, to reason, and to make decisions.

As this area of the brain slows down, the alcohol releases the drinker's inhibitions which usually guard his behavior. At this stage, the drinker, being less inhibited, may be more relaxed and may at first feel unusually free and easy. Meanwhile, the nervous system is being depressed not stimulated with each additional drink.

The brain area that controls muscular coordination is also slowed down with the consumption of alcohol. This might result in the impairment of the drinker's normal ability to do certain physical tasks, to properly coordinate arm and leg movements, to speak clearly or to maintain balance.

The alcohol concentration in the blood will increase if a person consumes ahlcohol faster than his body can oxidize it. His or her reactions become less reliable as the alcohol concentration increases. The ability to reason, to remember, to coordinate the muscles which control the ability to stand, move or drive a motor vehicle are slowed down. In addition, the drinking driver's judgment and normal alertness may be affected. There may also be a feeling of over confidence, carelessness and an increased willingness to take unsafe chances behind the wheel.

The Minnesota physician's group advises anyone drinking alcoholic beferages to wait at least one hour after having a drink before attempting to drive. When time is a factor, a nondrinker should do the driving.

Meanwhile back at the party, if drinking continues, the depressant action will increase; the relaxation gives way to feeling high—then drunkenness.

Finally, the drinker, if he or she continues to drink, will likely pass out . . . end of party!

State Judges To Speak At DWI Seminar

Two state judges will highlight a panel discussion at the Third Annual DWI counterattack seminar being held at Arrowwood Lodge in Alexandria, Minn., January 21-23. The seminar is sponsored by the Minnesota AAA.

Judges Allen R. Markert, St. Paul and Allan D. Buchanan, Willmar, will discuss the DWI problem from the judicial point of view before an audience of statewide DWI school administrators, instructors and chemical dependency counselors.

Appearing on the panel with the judges will be Minnesota State Troopers Fred Peterson, Fergus Falls; Dick Morelan, Paynesville and two attorneys yet to be announced.

The purpose of the panel is to trace the path of the DWI event from arrest, to defense and prosecution, to conviction and sentencing. In this way, it is hoped that rehabilitation people will have a clearer understanding of what happens before a person convicted of DWI enters the classroom.

Propose New School Patrol Flag Rules

Reflectorization of flags used by school safety patrols in the state is to be discussed at a public hearing today held at the state highway building in St. Paul, according to the department of public safety.

The proposed rules would amend existing school safety patrol regulations by allowing school safety patrol flags to be reflectorized at the discretion of the school administrator. However, any reflectorization of flags would have to be accomplished according to uniform specifications.

Copies of the proposal are available from the Department of Public safety, 210A Highway building, St. Paul, 55155.

97,897 Minn. Unemployment Active Claims

Minnesotans in active claims status for unemployment benefits totaled 97,897 for the week ending December 12, an increase of 5,214 over the previous week, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of employment services reported recently.

Currently five unemployment programs are in force in Minnesota—the regular program and four supplementary programs.

Initial claims filed under the regular program totaled 7,408 down 985 from the previous week and down 1,788 from the corresponding week a year ago. Total number of active regular claims was 63,967, up 4,193 from the previous week. Initial claims under the four supplementary programs totaled 2,940.

For the week of December 5, the latest for which figures are avqilable, total amount of benefits paid was $5,009,978 including $3,291,352 in regular benefits. Since the first of the year, $168,007,713 in regular benefits has been paid, $71,813,762 more than in the same period last year. Amount paid under all supplementary programs since the first of the year was $70,881,148.

MMCDC Plans Meetings For Impact Area

First in a series of quarterly community development meetings will be held during the month of January in the six and one-half counties of the Midwest Minnesota Community development corporation (MMCDC) impact area, according to executive director James C. Bingham.

The schedule for this area is as follows: January 15—Eastern Polk county, 7:30 p.m., city hall, Winger; January 22—Red Lake county, 2 p.m., city hall, Red Lake Falls; and January 23—Pennington county, 8 p.m., high school ag room, Goodridge.

Other quarterly meetings will be scheduled for April, July and October of 1976 in other communities of the counties involved. The elected directors from each of the counties will be in charge of these meetings, which will be open to the public.

These sessions will deal with residents' involvement in community and economic development by area, county and the entire SIA.

All MMCDC members, city and county officials, residents and others interested in community development should plan to attend the meeting in their county, Bingham declared.

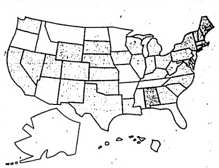
40 States Now Ban Bald Tires



10 TO GO—Alabama has become the fortieth state to ban bald tires, with a one-sixteenth inch minimum tread depth law effective Jan. 1, 1976.

Thirty nine states and the District of Columbia now require a minimum tread depth of 1/16 inch, by law or regulation. One state, California, requires a 1/32 minimum.

States shown in white have no official safeguards against bald tires.

Clarify Donor Designation On Driver License

Since November 1, Minnesota drivers have had the option of having their desire to donate vital organs for transplant after death noted on their driver license.

According to driver license officials, response has been fairly good, with a reasonable number of drivers taking advantage of the option.

However, there are a few misunderstandings which officials would like to clear up.

On those licenses which indicate the holder to be a donor, the word DONOR is printed on the front of the license just over the driver's signature. The explanation of the donor notation appears on the back of all driver licenses, and this confuses some people. Officials explain that the notation on the back is strictly informational, and unless the word DONOR appears on the front, no declaration has been made.

Also, some people are confused about the donor document. The document, which must be filled out completely, signed by the donor and witnessed by two other signatures, must be accompanied by an application for a new, renewal or duplicate driver license, or new or renewal nonqualification certificate (ID card), and the required fee. Only those which are properly completed are acted upon; otherwise, the license or nonqualification certificate is issued without the donor designation and another application and fee would be required later. Those who do not wish to participate in the program need only discard the donor document.

The donor document also explains that under this program no selection can be made of the organs to be donated. When a person opts to become a donor, this means that any vital, transplantable organ may be used.

Once again—unless the word DONOR appears over the signature on the front of the driver license, the person has not chosen to participate in the program.

Wheat Export Expert To Speak At Farm Forum

The man who was in the center of negotiations which led to the controversial Russian purchases of wheat in 1972-73 will address the annual Fargo farm forum to be held February 2, 1976.

He is Richard Bell, assistant secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, a career officer who has been with USDA since 1959.

The USDA official was involved in early Soviet moves to purchase large amounts of wheat, serving the then assistant secretary of agriculture, Clarence Palmby.

Bell is among a lineup of nationally and internationally known agriculture export specialists, chosen as the 16th annual forum addresses the topic, "Agriculture's Stake in World Markets."

Sponsors of the 16th annual farm forum call the general topic of the U.S. farm export market situation the most crucial yet tackled by the seminar, because of its importance to area wheat and feed grain producers.

Since President Ford named Bell to his present post in July, the USDA official has helped direct negotiations leading to the U.S.—USSR five-year grain purchase agreement.

Prior to that time, Bell has been serving as deputy assistant secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, a position to which he was appointed by agriculture secretary Earl Butz in July of 1973.

Bell has served as an analyst on Soviet agriculture and has been posted in Ottawa, Canada and embassies in Belgium and Ireland.

The farm forum, a public discussion seminar open to all, will be held in the Fargo memorial auditorium, beginning at 10 a.m. It is sponsored jointly by the Fargo area Chamber of Commerce and the Forum publishing company.

Rules Set For Reflector Use On Driveways

Minnesota highway department has clarified the regulations concerning the use of reflectors to mark driveway entrances on trunk highways.

The use of such reflectors is allowed only if the following specifications are adhered to: (1) One reflector is allowed on each side of the driveway; (2) colors must be white (colorless) or blue; and (3) neither may be more than three inches in diameter. Installation should normally not be closer than 10 feet from the shoulder. Double-faced reflectors are allowable to permit visibility from both directions.

These regulations are necessary to avoid potential traffic hazards. From a distance, reflectors of a red, yellow or orange color might resemble taillights to a motorist traveling at night or in conditions making for poor visibility. This can cause confusion where a motorist may follow them right off the road thinking he was following another car.

Another reason for the regulation is the standard color code utilized in highway signing. A departure from the code, as might exist if all colors were permitted in these reflectors, would also result in driver confusion. Blue and white are two colors not directly related to the flow of traffic and are likely to cause a minimum of confusion. The different colors and their meanings are as follows:

Red—indicates a stop or prohibition; green—movement permitted, a direction guide; blue—guide sign to motorist services and safety rest areas; yellow—general warning; black and white both indicate a regulation; orange—construction or maintenance work underway; and brown—guide sign to public recreational or cultural areas (state parks, historic sites, etc.)

Marshall Board Cuts County '76 Tax Levy

Marshall county board of commissioners adopted a 1976 county tax levy of $977,362—a $4,178 reduction from the 1975 levy which totaled $981,540.

The overall reduction was made possible by a reduction in welfare fund levies of $52,500, from $280,000 in 1975 to $228,200 in 1976. An increase in state contributions to the welfare department medical assistance programs for all counties lowered Marshall county's share from 21.315 per cent in '75 to 4.32 per cent in the coming year.

The county revenue fund was increased from $339,160 to $398,650. Increases in the tax levy for other funds in the county included $10,000 for road and bridge and $9,000 for the public employees retirement administration fund. The county building fund was left the same at $30,000 and the county park fund was unchanged at $10,000. Commissioners set their annual salaries at $5,700 for 1976, the same as the current year.

Senators Back Tax Reform For Small Business

Senators Walter F. Mondale and Hubert H. Humphrey announced that they are joining Senator Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) in introducing the Small Business estate and gift tax reform act of 1975.

This bill resulted in part from findings at Minneapolis field hearings conducted this August by Senator Humphrey as chairman of the Joint economic committee and Senator Mondale as acting chairman of the Senate select committee on small business.

"In Minneapolis, we learned that the Federal estate and gift tax laws were antiquated in several ways," Mondale and Humphrey said in a statement from their offices.

"Most disturbing, we found that the present laws could force liquidation of small businesses and farms to pay Federal estate tax bills. If this bill is enacted, the necessity to liquidate small businesses and farms to pay estate taxes will be curbed significantly."

Mondale, whom Senator Nelson, chairman of the Senate Select committee on small business designated as a primary sponsor of the bill, said he was "very pleased that the committee bill adopts all of the major provisions of my original bill. It now has broad bipartisan support and I am optimistic that the entire Senate will act favorably on it soon.

A standard exemption of $60,000 was set in 1942 for small business and farms. While prices have risen 224 per cent, the exemption level has held steady.

The bill sponsored by Nelson, Humphrey, and Mondale would change this situation by increasing the exemption level to $80,000 in 1976, $100,000 in 1978, and $120,000 in 1980.

In addition, the bill would raise the life-time gift tax exemption from $30,000 to $60,000. In 1980, an estate would be able to apply the unused portion of the gift tax exemption to the estate's standard exemption. This means that an estate's standard exemption could be as high as $180,000.

The bill also would permit property owners to enter into legally binding covenants that limit the future use of their land. Land then would be valued according to the use established by the covenant filed with the courts.

The necessity to sell a family farm to pay excessive taxes due to nonusevaluation of the land should be eliminated by this section.

Small business owners also would be aided by liberalization of the 10-year deferral payment in the present estate tax laws.

This act relieves the executor of the financial responsibility for paying unpaid estate taxes when the 10-year deferral payment plan is used. Rather, the small business itself would be responsible for payment of unpaid taxes.

"We believe that this law will help to maintain independent ownership of small businesses and farms," Mondale and Humphrey said. "Economic conditions already threaten the viability of these sectors. It is essential, therefore, that Federal estate tax laws not increase the possibility of a further weakening of the independent farmer and business person."

Increase Jan. Food Stamp Allotments

Commissioner Likins of the Minnesota welfare department received notification that effective Jan. 1, 1976, food stamp recipients will be eligible for an increase in benefits from 1.6 to 30 per cent additional coupons, depending on the size of the food stamp household. The increased benefits are a result of regular semi-annual adjustments in coupon allotments based on increased food costs and a recent court suit Rodway -vs- U.S.D.A.

The Rodway -vs- U.S.D.A. suit required the U.S. department of agriculture to establish coupon allotments in amounts sufficient to provide nutritionally adequate diets for all households. For example, under the guidelines released by U.S. department of agriculture, the amount of food stamps a four person household receives will increase from $162 to $166 a month.

In addition, because the net income cutoff level for eligibility will increase from $540 to $553 a month, more people will now be eligible. A nine member household will receive a coupon increase from $300 per month to $336 per month. The net income cut off for this household will increase from $999 per month to $1,120 per month. Increases in coupon allotments and income levels for all other household sizes were made.

Currently, 185,886 Minnesotans are participating in the food stamp program. It is estimated that many others may be eligible, who are not using the program. Both those already participating and new recipients will be affected by the new regulations affecting the food stamp allotments, purchase requirements, and maximum income eligibility standards adopted by the U.S. Department of agriculture, effective January 1. The Food Stamp act requires that coupon allotments be adjusted twice a year, each January 1 and July 1, to reflect changes in food prices.

Food stamps may be used to buy food in authorized stores; to buy seeds or plants to grow food; to pay for congregate meals and home delivered meals for disabled senior citizens if the meal facility is approved by U.S. Department of agriculture to accept food stamps.

The amount a household pays for food stamps is based upon its size, income, resources, and certain allowed deductions. The difference between what a household pays and what it receives is called the coupon bonus. In Minnesota, the average coupon bonus per person is $20.56 per month.

Many Minnesotans may not know that the Food Stamp program is available or that they are eligible. Any person has the legal right to apply. Anyone who meets the eligibility requirements has the right to use food stamps.

Food stamps can have an important role in providing essential nutrition to households in Minnesota. Each county in Minnesota has a food stamp program. For more information about the food stamp program, call the local county welfare or social service department.

Hearing Held On Sanitary Landfill

Details of a Pennington county plan to apply for a HUD grant to finance development of a sanitary landfill site within the county were discussed at a community development hearing Tuesday afternoon in the county courthouse. The hearing, the second of two hearings required by HUD prior to the submission of a pre-application to the Northwest Regional Development Commission January 13, was attended by the county board of commissioners and five other county residents.

County auditor C. W. Rodekuhr reported that the county is seeking a HUD grant to defray the huge expense involved in developing a landfill site. The county will request funds for land acquisition, excavation, and blacktopping of county roads leading to the landfill site to permit access by sanitation department vehicles.

Possible locations for the proposed county landfill have not been selected. City engineer D. H. Stewart, hired by the county as a consultant for this project, was expected to appear at the hearing to present a report listing possible locations, plus a recommendation on the amount of HUD funds to be requested by the County. But apparently the report isn't complete, and Stewart was not present. The engineer did inform the county previously that there are feasible sites in Pennington county.

A proposed site and a specific grant request must be included in the pre-application before it is submitted to HUD (due February 14). If, after examination of the pre-ap, HUD decides the landfill project is worthy of further consideration by the department, it will notify the county by the end of March to submit a full application. According to Rodekuhr and Thief River Falls city planner Terry A. Madson, if HUD shows sufficient interest to accept a complete application, the chances for funds to be eventually granted are very good.

Interest in a county landfill was initiated because of criticism directed toward the present city-county dump site in Marshall county's New Solum township by the state pollution control agency, which considered the dump a threat to underlying ground water tables, and New Solum residents, who have bitterly opposed the presence of the dump in their township.

Although recent tests have indicated that the dump is not as unsafe as was once

FIRST FIRE FATALITY of 1975 in Thief River Falls was recorded Tuesday when Willard Erickson, 61, died of asphyxiation in this cabin in the Horseshoe addition of the city. The fire department was notified of the fire by the local hospital where an ambulance call had been placed about 10 a.m. Firemen assisted the ambulance crew in removing Erickson from the building but he was dead on arrival at the hospital. Dr. E. O. Thorsgard, county coroner, ruled death due to asphyxiation. Fire chief Duane Noel said smoking in bed apparently caused the fire which had burned through a rug and the floor of the cabin. Firemen had to cut through the floor to be sure the fire had been extinguished. Funeral services for Willard Erickson will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. from the Green Funeral chapel with Rev. Frank Armstrong officiating, and interment will be in Greenwood cemetery. The body will repose at the funeral home from Friday noon until time of services on Saturday.

Bible Baptist Church Builds New Building

Bible Baptist church of Thief River Falls is in the midst of a building program with construction now underway on a new church building.

The congregation, presently meeting at the Knox elementary school, held ground breaking on the church property located south of Thief River Falls on County road 62, east of the Seventh-day Adventist property.

At the present time the basement is being poured by the Edson Construction company. Construction of the upper level (the main auditorium) will be taking place this spring with much of the work being done voluntarily by the men of the church.

Bible Baptist church will be meeting in the basement as soon as it is available. Rev. George DeWall is the pastor. He and his family moved here from Minneapolis last February.

Year-End Review Shows Times Area Happenings

File copies of the Thief River Falls Times recalled a number of news items during 1975 that were of significant local interest. The new year was ushered in by an unseasonably warm week in late December, with a high of 30 degrees on December 31.

January

At 5:15 a.m. January 4, two men wearing ski masks entered the service station area of Falls diesel and accosted attendant Neil Nelson with a small calibre revolver. They tied his hands with twine, placed him in a bathroom, and escaped with $250.

James Cuppett, a welding instructor at the area vocational-technical institute and the Northwest vocational center school, was selected Thief River Falls teacher of the year for 1975. Glenn Tasa succeeded Otto Stenberg as chairman of the Pennington county board of commissioners.

Harold Holmes, 22, who threatened his mother and then locked himself in his grandfather's house at the corner of Eighth street and Horace avenue with a handgun, three rifles and two shotguns, surrendered to city police after a five-hour siege January 7.

Approximately six inches of snow were dumped on the Thief River Falls area when the first blizzard in several years descended Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 10, 11 and 12. The weekend storm forced most city residents to stay indoors Saturday, but no major misfortune resulted from the weather. David Thompson of Arctic Cat's professional racing team was critically injured in an accident during the world championship racing derby at Eagle River, Wisconsin. Thompson was thrown from his machine after becoming entangled with another sled and struck by another machine while on the ground. He suffered two broken legs and a cracked vertebrae in his back.

A number of break-ins were reported at Thief River Falls schools during the year. One of the most serious, reported at Lincoln high school January 19, resulted in the loss of $215 cash, $25 worth of candy from a vending machine and $430 in property damage.

Redevelopment of the South-Central area of the city and creation of additional low income and elderly housing were set as initial project priorities for a HUD community development grant application, following a public meeting Jan. 21.

The Northwestern hospital board discussed possible availability of FmHA loan for financing of the new hospital medical office facility, and at a city council meeting, city clerk Gerald Wigness was instructed to prepare pre-application forms for the $2 million loan. The school board approved 1974-75 teacher salaries.

February

Based on a study compiled by Holcomb, Knudson and company, the city council decided that operations cost for a proposed multi-county solid waste management system involving Polk, Marshall, Red Lake, Norman and Pennington counties were not economically feasible, and recommended that the county withdraw from the program.

Statements for $2,592,259.09 in real estate taxes due in Pennington county in 1975 were mailed to county taxpayers. The statements represented an increase of $155,827.15 over the previous year.

Arctic Enterprises reported a profit of $112,000 from continuing operations for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1974.

Despite a request from the city council, who desired that the Pennington avenue (airport road) improvements project be altered to begin in Thief River Falls, the Pennington county board resolved to proceed with its original plans for improving the road. Funding of the city portion of road construction was later made possible through the granting of $212,032 in federal aid urban funds to the city.

Timothy Boesch, 26, of Costa Mesa, Calif. in an appearance before the district court in Warren, pleaded guilty to kidnapping Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hanson of Stephen and taking a small amount of money from them during a forced drive from the Hanson farm to Thief River Falls in January. Boesch was arrested in Thief River Falls.

Cecil Anderson, 28, was selected Pennington county King Agassiz for 1975 by the county selection committee.

Indications of interest in producing 25,000 acres of sugar beets annually were received from approximately 300 area persons attending a sugar beet information meeting held in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Tom Porter, 17, of Thief River Falls captured the first annual Arctic challenge cup at the states-Dominion snowmobile races held in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Betty Walton became the first woman to be elected president of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce.

An early morning fire on the David Hildebrand farm six miles east and two and one-half miles north of Thief River Falls caused the loss of a hog farrowing house and approximately 123 pigs.

POSTAL RATE HIKE which went into effect at 12:01 a.m. today will result in the use of new stamps, postal cards and stamped envelopes. Three of the 13-cent stamp styles are shown above with samples of the stamped envelope and postal card. If the $2.99 price on the stamp book at right looks like a bargain rate, try multiplying 23 by 13.

Post Office Ready For Rate Increase

Thief River Falls post office is ready for the postal rate increase which officially went into effect at 12:01 a.m. today after delay in the court, according to Art Buringrud, postmaster. The increase affects virtually all types of mail from first class through parcel post.

Under the new rate structure, the rate for first class mail will increase from 10 cents to 13 cents for the first ounce with an addition cost of 11 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof over one ounce. Postal cards will increase from eight to nine cents.

Postmaster Buringrud said that air mail for letters is being eliminated because all first class mail weighing 13 ounces or less is being sent by available air carriers at the present time. Air rates will apply only to parcel post or heavy letter parcels which would be shipped by surface mail unless an air designation is made and corresponding fee paid.

In addition to supplies of 13-cent stamps for letter mail and nine-cent stamps for post cards, the local post office has received its supply of 13-cent stamps in rolls and book forms. It has also received 24-cent stamps (for two-ounce letters) and 11-cent stamps for adding to the 13-cent stamps on letters weighing over one ounce.

Quite a number of the new stamps were being sold on Tuesday as news media spread word that the rate increase was going into effect. Postal authorities expected, however, that some mailing of first class letters at 10 cents would occur after the deadline. It can either be forwarded postage due or returned to the sender for additional postage.

Postmaster Buringrud was informed of the rate increase in a Telex message dated December 29 from William F. Bolger, deputy postmaster general. It noted that "New temporary postal rates will go into effect at 12:01 a.m. local time December 31.

"This follows action by the U.S. court of appeals for the District of Columbia circuit which granted a postal services motion to stay a lower court's order prohibiting the service from raising rates.

"The new temporary rates, which had previously been announced for December 28, will be 13 cents for a first class letter, plus previously announced rate increases for other classes of mail as spelled out in postal bulletin . . ."

While the increased rates will be felt directly by all users of the mail, increases in other classes of postage affecting newspapers, magazines and circulars will also be reflected in increased

Beltrami County Shooting Aired

Investigation remains open by the Beltrami county sheriff's department into the shooting death of Dwayne England of rural Grygla late Saturday afternoon. Funeral services for Englund, 39, were scheduled for 2 p.m. today at Grace Lutheran church in Grygla.

According to the Beltrami county sheriff's department, Englund was struck in the chest with a bullet fired by Dean Wilkens, 23, while snowmobiling about three-quarters of a mile from his farm home. The Englund farm is located about seven miles south of Grygla and just east of the Marshall and Beltrami county line in Lee township of Beltrami county.

Englund and his brother-in-law, Clayton Omlid, were snowmobiling in a southerly direction on separate machines. Wilkens was snowmobiling north and hunting for fox. He reportedly saw a wolf and fired at it twice with a 30-06 caliber rifle equipped with scope. The second shot is believed to be the one which struck Englund. It was reported that Wilkens was about 400 yeards from Englund and Omlid when he fired the two shots.

When he came upon Englund and Omlid and discovered what had happened, Wilkens rushed by snowmobile to the nearby Englund farm home to call for assistance. In returning to the shooting scene at a high rate of speed, he lost control of his snowmobile and it crashed, with Wilkens receiving a severe back injury. He was hospitalized at Bemidji and later transferred to the Red Lake Indian agency hospital at Red Lake.

The Beltrami county sheriff's department said that Englund and Wilkins were neighbors and that Wilkins lived inside the boundary of the Red Lake Indian reservation. The shooting incident

David Parnows Of Alaska Are Feted While Here

Several family gatherings were held during Christmas week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. David Parnow of Anchorage, Alaska, who spent the holidays in this area. They arrived here on Sunday, December 21, when they were met at the Walfred Arvidson home in rural Eagle Bend by Parnow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Parnow. All were guests at a dinner at the Arvidson home before leaving Eagle Bend. Sunday evening, the two couples were supper guests at the Richard Parnow home.

Tuesday evening, the Raymond Parnows hosted a supper in honor of their son and his wife, Dianne. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Delaine Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Peterson and Cindy and Esther Lindquist of Thief River Falls, Minnie Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parnow, Tim and Jerry and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Swanson, Sheri and Shelly. Later in the evening Dianne showed slides of Alaska, the Alaskian pipe line and of her tour to Korea, Hong Kong, Tailand, Malaysia and Japan.

Christmas Eve, the David Parnows, the Raymond Parnows and Mary Parnow were supper guests at the Harvey Patton home in this city.

On Christmas day, the Raymond Parnows hosted a dinner with the David Parnows, the Richard Parnows, Tim and Jerry, the Robert Parnows and Ross, the Harvey Pattens, Mary Parnow and Minnie Johnson as guests. Dianne again showed the slides of Alaska and of her tour to the Far East. Afternoon coffee featured a cake baked and decorated for the occasion by Mrs. Richard Parnow.

The following day, the David Parnows were dinner guests at the Ronald Engelstad home.

In the evening, they were again honor guests at a supper at the Raymond Parnow home. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grimley, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Grimley, Jim and Desera, all of Moorhead, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kjelvik and Keith of Sacramento, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Grimley, Marty, Pam and Sandy of Glynden, Minnie Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parnow and sons. Mrs. Richard Parnow assisted with the serving. The evening concluded with another showing of the slides.

The following day, the Raymond Parnows, accompanied by the David Parnows, left for Eagle Bend where David and his wife remained to spend a week with her folks.

Daley And Reierson Vows Exchanged Here

Miss Karen Daley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daley of Thief River Falls, and Ron Reierson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Reierson of this city, exchanged marriage vows recently at the United Methodist church in this city.

Rev. Jonathan Law officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Frank Harger was the organist, Kristi Hendrickson, a friend of the bride, served as pianist, and Marie Roadfeldt, a friend of the couple, was flautist, playing "Colour My World." Soloist was Greg Herling, brother-in-law of the bride. He sang "The Lord's Prayer," and "If."

For the ceremony, a basket of assorted fall flowers and ferns graced the center altar. Candelabra with greenery and blue ribbons formed the chancel setting, and hurricane lamps marked the aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a floor-length gown of imported crystalline with a molded bodice of Venise lace. Matching lace formed the cap and cuffs of the sheer Camelot sleeves and edged the full skirt that flowed from the natural waistline. Creating back interest was a lace edged watteau train attached at the shoulders. A Juliet headpiece with lace and seed pearl trim held her triple tiered veil of bridal sheer, edged with Venice lace, corresponding with the lace that trimmed her gown. The bride's only jewelry was a diamond pendant, her gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses, light blue mums and babies' breath.

Karen Koop and Brenda Laidley, friends of the bride, were personal attendants.

Maid of honor was Linda Daley of Minneapolis, a sister of the bride. Other attendants were Mrs. Greg (Sue) Herling, sister of the bride, Debbie Reierson, sister of the groom, and Jodi Kemnitz, friend of the bride. They wore blue floor-length gowns with white lace trim on the bodice and cuffs. A wide ruffle edged the bottom of their skirts. To complement their gowns, they wore blue picture hats trimmed with a cluster of flowers corresponding to the assortment of mums, daisies and babies' breath which they carried in their baskets. Their bracelets, featuring two small hearts, were gifts from the bride.

Flower girls were Kristy and Valerie Herling, nieces of the bride. They wore white, floor-length gowns styled with baby doll sleeves trimmed with lace. A small cluster of flowers trimmed their old-fashioned bonnets.

Ring bearer was Bradley Olson, a cousin of the groom.

Richard Reierson of Roseau attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Roger Reierson, brother of the groom, Keith Daley, brother of the bride, and Jeff Roadfeldt, a friend of the groom. Serving as ushers were Steven Daley of Marshall, brother of the bride, Jeff and Mike Olson, cousins of the groom, and Scott Stewart, a friend of the groom. The men of the wedding party wore white tuxedos with triple mum boutonnieres. The groom's attire was a light blue tuxedo complemented by a boutonniere featuring three white roses.

The mother of the bride wore a pink knit sleeveless dress topped by a matching jacket. The mother of the groom wore a floor-length gown of apricot chiffon. Their identical corsages were of mixed autumn flowers corresponding with the flowers carried by the bridesmaids.

Special guests were Mrs. Rose Froseth, grandmother of the groom, and Joe Antonine, godfather of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride hosted a reception in the church parlors for approximately 350 relatives and friends. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Christianson, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Erling Olson, uncle and aunt of the groom.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered, all white wedding cake supported by Grecian pillars, accented by suspended wedding bells. Surrounding the flowing fountain with blue water that graced the bottom tier, were white daisies and ferns. Ceramic figurines topped the cake. Mrs. Alice Hurt and Mrs. Garnett Reierson cut and served the cake as Mrs. June Stroh and Mrs. Ardith Mehus poured. All are aunts of the couple.

Mary Daley, a sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests as Mike and Gail Fitzgerald, friends of the couple, served the punch. Waitresses were Mary Hurt, cousin of the bride, Paula Penning, Kathy Bottem, Kathy Charlson and Sue Goddard, friends of the bride. Arlene Wold and Janet Williams arranged the gifts.

Following the reception, relatives and friends gathered at the Golf Club for a private reception.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Grand Forks, Moorhead and Bemidji, the bride wore a rust colored blazer and slacks ensemble with a knit top.

The couple is now at home in this city at 107 North Duluth. The bride is employed by First Federal Savings and Loan, and the groom by Home Lumber company. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school. Photo, Lund Photography of Roseau.

Jana Lee Miller Notes Third Birthday

Jana Lee Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller of Thief River Falls, celebrated her third birthday on Tuesday evening, December 23, at a supper hosted at her home by her parents. A birthday cake, baked and decorated by Jana's mother, centered the table.

Guests were Jana's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Esther Miller, her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leander Berberich of Brooks together with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Pittman, Loren, Lorray and Lana of St. Hilaire, Mr. and Mrs. Don Harbott and Mickey and Arlene Berberich of Thief River Falls, Betty, Connie and Rita Berberich of Bemidji, John and Janet Berberich of Brooks and Jana's sister, Renee.

Afternoon guests were Mrs. Kenny Beito, Becky and Benji.

Many gifts and cards were presented to Jana Lee to mark the occasion.

R. Holmstroms 30th Anniversary Is Observed

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Holmstrom of rural Newfolden were guests of honor at a recent open house at Our Savior's Lutheran church in this city. The event was in observance of the couple's 30th wedding anniversary. Approximately 125 relatives and friends attended the celebration.

Serving as hosts and hostesses were the couple's six children and their families: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley (Sharon) Bring, Jeffrey and Michael of Strandquist, Mr. and Mrs. James (Susan) Pederson of Newfolden, Mr. and Mrs. Gary (Janet) Hook and Brian of St. Paul, and Steve, Barbara and Karen Holmstrom of Newfolden.

Honor guests were Holmstrom's mother, Mrs. Agda Holmstrom of Newfolden, and the couple's attendants: Mrs. Donald (Florence) Lykken of Thief River Falls and Sam Jarshaw of Drayton, N.D.

Unable to be present were the other members of the original wedding party: Mrs. Curtis (Dallas) Marti of Minnetonka, Wallace Holmstrom of St. Paul and Mrs. Eugene (Mavis) Hanson of Phoenix, Ariz.

Also unable to attend, but sending special greetings, were Rev. and Mrs. Silas Erickson of Everett, Wash. Rev. Erickson was the officiating clergyman at the couple's wedding that took place Nov. 11, 1945 at the Rindahl Lutheran church, rural Newfolden.

Baskets of fall colored strawflowers graced the tables for the reception. Rev. Eugene Enderlein, pastor of Our Saviors parish, gave the table prayer. Presiding at the guest book were Barbara Holmstrom and Tom Molskness. At the punch bowl were Karen Holmstrom, Cindy Bruggeman and Ann Lykken.

The four-tiered anniversary cake, decorated with orange and peach colored roses and topped with a 30th anniversary symbol, was cut and served by Mrs. Arthur Holmstrom of St. Paul and Mrs. James Jarshaw of Newfolden, sisters-in-law of the couple. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Ferne Bruggeman of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Pearl Boe of Viking, sisters of Mrs. Holmstrom. Waitresses were Penny and Pam Myers, nieces of the couple.

Serving the reception were members of the Rindahl and Our Saviors Ladies aids.

CNC Volunteers Sing Christmas Carols At NW

Eight regular CNC Volunteers gathered at Northwestern hospital on Tuesday, December 23, and sang Christmas carols to the residents on both floors of the Convalescent and Nursing Care unit.

Following the caroling, Oscar Elshaug and Mrs. Pat Temple joined the group for coffee and cookies. During the brief business meeting, Elshaug informed the group that the file on residents will soon be available. He stated that the information in the file will help the volunteers relate to the residents.

Volunteers attending were Mrs. Evelyn Wold, coordinator, Mrs. Angeline Breznay, secretary, Inga Trontvet, Mrs. Margaret Race, Mrs. Iris Furuseth, Mrs. Caroline Bedard, Mrs. Gertrude Hanson and Mrs. Arnold Berg. Guests were Ben Wold and Mrs. Delbert Erickson.

New Stamps Issued For New Rates

Nine-cent Freedom to assemble stamp is one of several issued in connection with new postage rates which went into effect today. The nine-cent stamp meets the rate to be used in mailing postcards.

The Freedom to assemble stamp is in the new Americana series of regular stamps. Stamps in the series have a common design and feature subjects related to the history and culture of the United States.

Three-cent Francis Parkman regular stamp was reissued in coil form on November 4, also in connection with the new rates of postage.

The stamp, in sheet form, was first issued on Sept. 16, 1967 at Boston, Mass. The coil form was issued at Pendleton, Ore., which is near the Oregon Trail, an often described subject in Parkman's best-remembered book "The California and Oregon Trail". The nineteenth century historian was named to the Hall of fame in 1915. The designer of the stamp based the likeness on a portrait in a 1904 publication, "Francis Parkman", by H. D. Sedgwick.

Still more stamps are set to be issued during the Bicentennial year. A strip of three commemorative stamps with the theme "Spirit of 76' will be the first U.S. postal service stamp issue during the year. The stamps will be placed on sale tomorrow, during the Tournament of Roses parade.

The strip of stamps is based upon the famous painting by Archibald M. Willard which depicts a Revolutionary War, fife and drum trio. The three stamps in the strip form a design entity.

Country Inn was selected as the name for a new 47-unit motel constructed on the southeast edge of Thief River Falls. The name was selected from more than 1,000 entries in a contest to select a name for the new business.

March

Terry A. Madson of Wayzata was hired as the city's first community development director (city planner).

Forsberg's Inc. began construction of a new 40,000 square foot manufacturing plant in the Thief River Falls industrial park.

A derailed freight car one-half mile north of Thief River Falls March 18 blocked the main track and disrupted all northbound Soo line traffic for 10 hours.

Mrs. Thomas (Myrnell) Brusegaard was selected as the first young careerist in the history of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club.

Indications that a $2 million loan at five per cent interest for the Northwestern hospital medical office building project would be approved was received from the state division of the Farmers Home administration.

Five Thief River Falls juveniles were arrested and charged with armed robbery and the theft of about $50 following a theft at the Highlanding store.

April

Pennington county's senior citizen bus transportation program began full time operation April 1, allowing local residents 60 years and older an opportunity for travel in Thief River Falls and communities outside the immediate area.

Financing was obtained for an 81-unit Best Western motel in Thief River Falls. Coult mortgage corporation of St. Paul announced placement of the first mortgage financing for the motel for Arctic Inn, Inc.

Clyde Christensen, chairman of the sugar beet task force, said the group received an indication that farmers would be interested in providing over 40,000 acres for beet production.

David M. Olin, Pennington county attorney, requested and received an order from district judge Harley G. Swenson dismissing a charge of wrongfully obtaining welfare assistance against Dennis Carpenter of Thief River Falls. Carpenter agreed to refund $2,097 received in food stamps and medical assistance to the county social services center.

Thief River Falls United Way allocated $44,915 to 28 different services and agencies, according to Art Heinze, executive secretary.

By a margin of over three to one, city voters approved sale of general obligation revenue bonds in the amount of $2 million for construction of the new medical office building addition to the hospital. A total of 1,183 voted in favor and 359 were opposed.

On April 22, Thief River Falls submitted a request to HUD for community development grant funds totaling $300,000 for redevelopment in the south-central area of the city and to improve the condition of existing housing stock.

Approximately 4,000 persons attended the annual Penn-Ro-Shall district scout exposition held in the city sports arena.

A majority of approximately 40 city residents with homes in the vicinity of 812 Kendall avenue south attended a city council meeting to object to the use of that address for establishment of a juvenile training center foster home.

Les Ihle, lifetime resident of Thief River Falls and founder of the Ihle insurance agency, died at his home in the city.

Five Lincoln high school students—Tom Nelson, Sue Goddard, Connie Aaseby, Scott Bornholdt and Jerry Sandahl—were selected Outstanding Teenagers of America.

May

The Times reported the fate of 11 Vietnamese students at Northland community college, who were left stranded in the United States when South Viet Nam fell to the communists.

Nine members of the Thief River Falls Rotary club were honored for more than 25 years of membership at the 50th anniversary banquet of the club.

Incumbents Harry Sjulson and Kenneth Murphy were re-elected to the Thief River Falls board of education by wide margins. American Legion and auxiliary awards for outstanding senior boy and girl in the 1975 Lincoln high school graduating class were presented to David Jeffrey Houfek and Shelly Ann Langlie.

June

Approximately 300 people gathered at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls to recognize L. B. Hartz' 50 years in the food business.

First Northwestern bank dropped its proposal to construct a new bank in the parking lot area of Floyd B. Olson park after it encountered substantial resistance from many community residents.

Only the house and granery were saved when fire gutted the Eugene Rondorf farm.

Grygla high school held its first commencement exercises, with a total of 31 students graduating. An audience of approximately 850 people was in attendance.

Arctic Enterprises reported a loss of $2,787,000, or 91 cents per share for the year ending March 31, compared with a loss of $3,225,000 or $1.06 per share for the preceding year. Officials representing Northwestern hospital and Thief River Falls met to discuss possible future action after bids on the medical office building project totaled nearly half a million dollars above the bonding authorized by voters in a special city election.

Ground breaking ceremonies were held for the new law enforcement center to be constructed at the corner of Main avenue and First street.

Union workers at Arctic Enterprises accepted a negotiated contract for 1975-76 during a meeting of the union and company with Robert Gomsrud, commissioner with the federal mediation and conciliation service. Union members had rejected an earlier company offer and voted to strike, but intervention by the federal service delayed the strike action pending the meeting.

Official opening of the Michigan Artrain in Thief River Falls took place when Mrs. Wendell Anderson, wife of the governor of Minnesota, cut the ribbon to open the Artrain exhibit.

High winds and possible tornadoes at the end of the month caused considerable damage in Thief River Falls, including an incident at the airport when a possible funnel cloud caused two planes to break free from their moorings and collide.

Six Accidents Result In Property Damage

One car was totaled and an estimated $2,700 damage was reported on other cars in six accidents reported to the Thief River Falls police department during the last week.

In one of two accidents reported December 23, Glenn Sampson of Thief River Falls was driving west on Cartway drive and Shirley Johnson of the city was headed south on Oak avenue at 10:47 p.m. when their cars collided in the intersection. Estimated damages were $250 to the Sampson vehicle, owned by Tireland Inc., and $150 to the Johnson car.

At 10:47 p.m., Charles Freden of the city was attempting to turn south onto Kendall avenue after driving west on Taft street when, due to ice on the road, he slid into a tree on the lot of Ronald Larson, 347 Kendall Av. N. Damage to the car was estimated at $400.

Wednesday, Dec. 24 at 3 p.m. Rosalie Mozinski of the city was driving south on highway 59 when she stopped and waited to turn left into Northland Foods and was struck by a car attempting to pass on the right hand side and driven by Mary Lane of the city. Both drivers were treated and released at Northwestern hospital. Damages were estimated at $400 to the Lane car and $50 to the Mozinski vehicle.

At 4:16 p.m. the same day, Steven Michalson of the city was driving south on Horace Av. when he was struck by a car pulling out of the VFW parking lot and driven by Howard Rux of Anoka. Damages were estimated at $450 to each car.

Two more accidents were reported Saturday. Dean Swanson, TRF, was traveling south on Highway 59 by the Northland Foods exit at 1:13 p.m. when he stopped for a vehicle in front of him that was making a left turn off the highway and was struck from behind by a car driven by Janice Bosak of the city. Damages were estimated at $175 to the Swanson car and $75 to the Bosak vehicle (owned by Campus Ministry).

At 8:03 p.m., Ernest Olson of the city had stopped for the stop sign at First street and Horace avenue and then proceded across First to the Holiday gas station when he was struck by a vehicle driven by Kenneth Leiran of Minneapolis. Damages were estimated at $300 to the Olson car, and the Leiran car was totaled.

In other incidents, Donald Rinowski of Northland Manor told police on Wednesday, Dec. 24 that during the afternoon a Remington rifle, gun case and some food items were taken from his room.

In one of two incidents reported Friday, Emery Lee of the city said that at approximately 11:09 a.m. a money bag was taken from his pickup parked on the 100 block of Main avenue north.

Mrs. Robert Kuznia reported that at about 3 p.m. her nine-year-old son Jason was walking home from downtown when he was stopped by a young boy and girl who held his arms and took his money. Later a male juvenile, 13 and a female juvenile, 12, were apprehended.

On Saturday, Wallace Heaton of the city reported his car taken from the city arena between 7 and 9:15 p.m. The car was recovered Sunday at 412 Duluth avenue north, where it had been reportedly parked between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. the previous night.

A patrolling officer reported Sunday that some fish houses had been tipped over on the river. The tipped houses belonged to Dan Linder, Larry Leader and C. R. Davidson. A fish house owned by Harvey Tauer had a hole measuring three feet by 18 inches.

In one of two Sunday incidents, Marvin Manning of the city reported that during the weekend his shop had been entered and a JLO engine, twin carb manifold and carbs valued at a total of $185 were taken. Tim Olson of the city said that during the night half a tank of gas valued at $6 was taken from his pickup.

Post Holidays Let-Down Can Be Dangerous

Now that the holidays are nearly over, many drivers are inclined to let down and ride out the rest of the winter, according to Chief of Police Ken Froschheiser.

That's a dangerous attitude, the chief pointed out, because the worst of winter is probably just ahead. We can't afford to let our guard down now.

To help drivers cope more effectively with what might be ahead, winterwise, Chief Froschheiser cited several facts from test reports of the national safety council's committee on winter driving hazards:

Glare ice is treacherous. On such a surface, stopping distances stretch out to nine times the normal distance on dry pavement. Put in other terms, a driver who can bring his car to a stop from 60 miles an hour in about 180 feet on dry pavement would have to be driving as slow as 22 miles an hour on ice to stop his car in that same 180 feet!

"The driver who makes an error in judgment," the chief pointed out, "finds himself headed for a rear-end collision or off the road."

As additional tips, he listed suggestions from the International association of chiefs of police for avoiding skid-crashes when pavements are slippery.

—Get the feel of the road by trying your brakes lightly away from traffic. You'll skid twice as far when the temperature is 30 degrees than when the temperature is down around zero.

—Reduce your speed.

—Follow cars ahead at a much longer distance.

—Plan maneuvers far ahead. Avoid sudden changes in direction.

—Keep your windshield and windows clear. Replace streaking wiper blades that have gone dead from exposure to sun, wind, ice and oily film.

—Use the proper traction aids. Snow tires are made for snow; they give little or no advantage over regular tires for stopping on ice.

—For deep snow and glare ice conditions, use reinforced tire chains.

The chief recalled that he has had some questions about the use of tire chains with radial tires. He cited tests by the United States auto club that show that tire chains can be used with radial tires without concern for sidewall damage.

In these tests, chains were driven at a sustained speed of 35 miles an hour on dry, bare pavement without any sidewall or tread gouging on any of the radials tested, even after 150 miles of this unusual punishment.

Chief Froschheiser concluded with this comment: "These tips will help you 'winter-wise' your judgment. There's no better way to keep your name off a police accident report than to use good judgment—no matter what kind of weather's still ahead of us!"

Visitor To Area Tells About Life In Ireland

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Political and religious strife in Ireland is probably as bad as it is reported in the American press and there is hope but little likelihood that the problem can ever be solved. These are the views of James Brown, 29, a native of Ireland who has returned for visits several times in the last few years. Brown is currently attending Oak Hills Bible institute at Bemidji and has been spending the Christmas and New Year holidays with the Evert Langelett family in Thief River Falls. Langelett and Brown worked together in a mission organization known as Operation Mobilization in Belgium and India.

When Brown decided he wanted a break from his work with the mission effort in Asia and Europe, he came to the United States. It was through his contact with Langelett that he came to this area and has spent approximately a year at Oak Hills. He is presently in his last quarter there.

Brown attended high school and three years of technical school in Belfast, capital of the British controlled northern six counties of Ireland. Now a mechanical engineer, he worked with the interdenominational mission group in India for three years and Europe for four years. When he completes his training at Oak Hills he intends to return to an assignment with Operation Mobilization.

Speaking to the Thief River Falls Rotary club Monday noon, Brown reviewed approximately 500 years of history providing the background for the present situation of hatred and violence in Ireland. It is a complicated story of British intervention in the affairs of Ireland under monarchs of various religious and political motivations. Prejudices have become deeply ingrained in the people and religious and political efforts have become inseparable.

Brown's father lives in Dublin and two brothers and a married sister live in Belfast where the residents have learned to live with the terrorism, retaliation and bombings as a way of life. Two of his sisters have moved to Canada and another to New Zealand because of the violence in their homeland. Brown also has a sister in England and a brother in New Zealand.

The last time he visited in Belfast, Brown found signs of a worsening situation. Security checks were more frequent and thorough and searches were commonly conducted in the downtown area by British soldiers. The central area of Belfast was closed to vehicles because they had been too often rigged with bombs and left to explode in the downtown area. The fear of bombing is the major fear of the people who live there. Cars parked in certain parking areas must be occupied. Presumption is that an unoccupied car contains a bomb and it is destroyed by police or army.

Wheelbarrows filled with cement for barricades are now being replaced with more permanent concrete installation. Speed breakers—raised areas in the roadway which make it impossible to drive a vehicle at a high rate of speed—have been placed in a number of areas subject to being bombed from passing cars. Store owners have grown tired of replacing glass shattered by explosions and have boarded up the windows of their stores.

People who work in the downtown area have learned where to go for cover in the event of trouble and what routes to take out of the central areas if trouble erupts elsewhere. People are growing increasingly suspicious of one another even within their own religious and political groups.

Most violence recently has been between the British peace keeping forces and the Iris Republican army (IRA), Brown said. He was advised to be alert for trouble in the downtown area whenever there were no British soldiers in the area. By the same token, he was also advised not to stand next to any of them because of sniper activity.

Political and religious separation in the country is between the Catholics and Protestants, with the latter including Presbyterians, Methodists and members of the Church of Ireland. In small businesses, Protestant employers hire only Protestant workers and Catholic businessmen have only Catholic employees. In large companies, work squads are generally segregated by religious designation.

A Catholic who goes into a Protestant neighborhood is inviting attack, and the same applies to a Protestant in an area which is predominantly Catholic. Neighborhoods are separated and most residents are familiar. Strangers are immediately suspect.

Brown found out when visiting his brother a year ago that people who were strangers to him knew who he was and what he was doing in the area. "They knew more about me than I knew about myself," he said.

In the six northern counties of Ireland where the economic wealth and population is centered, the British soldiers are the main law enforcement body. They have no power of arrest, however, but work together with the Irish police.

In the southern 26 counties the people are poorer, law enforcement is accomplished by the Irish army (not to be confused with the outlaw IRA) and by national police. Violence in the southern counties is considerably less than in the north.

Brown said there are no firearms sales allowed in the northern six counties but that anyone who wants a handgun could probably get one. The penalties are high, however. A person with an expended shell in his possession faces six months to a year in prison. (The rationale is that if a person has an expended shell he probably fired it.) Possession of an unloaded firearm can bring a 10-year sentence. Anyone seen carrying a firearm can be shot on sight by the British army or the Irish police.

In spite of the penalties and the stringent controls, however, shootings take place almost daily and guns reach the hands of those who want them.

People who live in the strife torn area believe that the situation will improve, Brown said. Personally, he fails to see how it can. If there are concessions made to the Catholic element which has been advocating change, the Protestants will rise up and take to the streets, he said. If concessions are not made, the Catholics will rebel. It appears to be a problem without a solution.

Brown said he knew of a man whose car had been forced off the road by a police vehicle and overturned. The driver was a Protestant and he had two Catholic passengers. The man lost his court case because the Catholic passengers were afraid to testify, fearing retaliation for assisting a Protestant. In spite of the trouble and violence and the apparent lack of hope for a solution, Brown said he would return to Ireland if he intended to settle down in one place. "But I'm not ready to settle down yet," he said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Readers:

I would like to tell you about an experience that happened to me and a cousin of mine recently. We were on our way back home from Grand Forks, when we happened to hit an ice patch and we headed straight for the ditch. I ran through the snow in the ditch and up on the highway to try and get help. I flagged down three or four cars, but no one cared to stop.

We were lucky enough to find the neighbors right across the road home, so we ran over there to see if I could find any kind of help. We were so nervous and shook up we didn't think of locking all the car doors, not sitting in the middle of a deep ditch.

Meanwhile, while the lady was calling all over for help, I walked across the highway to get our purses out of the car. I didn't have enough hands to carry everything, so I left things just as they were. We weren't planning on anything like this happening to us, so that's why we had everything with us in the car.

While we were waiting for the wrecker to come pull us out, I noticed a car had stopped on the highway and someone had a flashlight and was walking up and down the ditch. The lady told us not to get more upset about it because it was probably someone just checking to see if anyone was hurt, so I thought nothing of it. It wasn't until after the wrecker pulled us out of the ditch that we noticed everything was gone.

All I can say is that the people that stole all our personal belongings, I hope your mind is never at rest and that you have the guiltiest conscience ever for the rest of your life. I hope whoever it was reads this article and let me ask you this question: If we would have been badly hurt or dead, would you still have stooped this low to take everything we had out of the car?

Also, why would anyone want to steal something that has so much personal value and meaning to someone else? They probably have no personal meaning to them, except probably for selling. This has been a great loss to us. Let this be a lesson to everyone; no matter where you are, even if at the bottom of a ditch, be sure you lock everything up also, always expect the unexpected.

If anyone has any information concerning this instance or has been sold anything lately, would you please contact us at 681-5944 or 681-1675. This means a great deal to us!

Denae Stromlund and Terri Anderson

North Central Swim Times Posted

Fergus Falls has replaced Thief River Falls as the top rated North Central Section swimming team after nearly everyone tabbed the Prowlers the team to beat in pre-season forecasts.

In a recent vote among coaches from the 24 North Central Section schools, Fergus Falls was rated first, followed by St. Cloud Apollo, Willmar and Thief River Falls.

The rest of the top ten included Hutchinson, Brainerd, St. Cloud Tech, Alexandria, Cambridge and Monticello and Fosston who are tied for tenth. It should be pointed out, however, that not all coaches responded to the poll.

Thief River Falls swimmers are ranked among North Central Sectional leaders in every event according to the first section report of the season.

Mark Storhaug is the highest ranked Thief River Falls swimmer in sectional time comparisons. Storhaug has been clocked in 2:16.0 in the 200-yard individual medley and in 5:19.7 for the 500-yard freestyle. His times are the second best among North Central swimmers in both events.

Mark Deutschman of Fergus Falls has a 2:14.2 200-yard individual medley to his credit and Dave Monkman of Brainerd has turned in a 5:18.7 500-yard freestyle to rank ahead of Storhaug.

Thief River Falls' 400-yard freestyle relay team also ranks second in the section with a 3:38.7 time, just a fraction behind Fergus Falls' 3:38.5.

The North Central Section appears to be evenly balanced this winter with top times spread among several schools. Willmar swimmers boast the fastest times in three events while Brainerd and Fergus Falls swimmers top two events. Otherwise, no other team has more than one event pace setter.

Other Prowler swimmers ranked among the top 20 North Central times include Storhaug, fourth, 100-yard butterfly; Dan Heieren, fourth, 100-yard freestyle; 200-yard medley relay team, fifth; Dan Cork, sixth, 200-yard freestyle; Greg Omdahl, sixth, 100-yard freestyle, and seventh (tie), 50-yard freestyle; Jeff Carter, seventh, 100-yard breaststroke, and 14th (tie), 500-yard freestyle, and 17th, 200-yard individual medley; Dave Beito, 11th, 500-yard freestyle; Kevin Murphy, 14th 100-yard backstroke; and Dave Giauque, 20th, 500-yard freestyle.

Fans will have an opportunity to watch coach John Kopari's strong swim team in action Sat., Jan. 10, when the Prowlers host the Thief River Falls relays.

New League Rejects Spuds, Seek Otters

New athletic conference featuring Little Falls, Brainerd, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech, Alexandria and Willmar rejected a membership bid by Moorhead, it was reported by Ralph Anderson, sports editor at Detroit Lakes.

However, current Northwest Conference member Fergus Falls is desired as an additional conference member by the six schools.

The Otters are not leaving the NWAC at this time, though, said Fergus Falls superintendent Richard Baker who said Fergus Falls had a slight interest in such an affiliation "two or three years ago," but the school board was unsure of what route to take at this time. He said he was "certain" Fergus Falls did not wish to become a member of the new league.

Two other potential members for the new conference, Elk River and Cambridge, have decided to wait a year or two before deciding whether to join.

16 Teams, Including Los Angeles!

TRF To Host Arctic Pee-Wee, Bantam Hockey Tournament

Thief River Falls will be the host this week to the third annual Arctic Pee-Wee A and Bantam A hockey tournament.

Sixteen teams, including a sextet from Los Angeles, Calif. will take part in the three-day event scheduled to be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Pee-Wee portion of the tournament will be played in the old arena and will feature Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, St. Paul Shoppond Gang, Ely, Crookston, Moorhead, Minneapolis South and Irondale.

Bantam action will take place in the sports arena and will include Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, Los Angeles, Irondale, Warroad, St. Paul Como Gophers, East Grand Forks and Crookston.

Games in both age brackets will be played throughout Friday and Saturday. The Pee-Wee championship game will be played at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The Bantam title game will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The tournament will be a two-division round-robin event. Each age group will have a National and American division. The top team in each division will play for championship honors, with the second place divisional finishers meeting for third place.

The Pee-Wee divisional arrangements will find Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, St. Paul Shoppond Gang and Ely in the National Division and Crookston, Moorhead, Minneapolis South and Irondale in the American Division.

Bantam divisional set-ups place Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, Los Angeles and Irondale in the National Division and Warroad, St. Paul Como Gophers, East Grand Forks and Crookston in the American Division.

Each team will play the other three teams within their division. The team with the best won-lost record will be declared division winner and will advance into the championship game. First place ties will be broken by results against each other, total goals, goals against or a coin flip—in that order.

16 TRF Drivers To Race In 500

Some 16 Thief River Falls drivers will be among a field of nearly 350 snowmobilers who will take part in the 1976 St. Paul winter carnival International 500 snowmobile race later this month, it was announced by race officials.

This year's prestigious event is scheduled to be run January 19-22.

The list of Thief River Falls drivers entered in the upcoming 500 as of December 26 includes Duane Lillevold, Ken Halvorson, Dave Shetler, Jerome Lund, Roger Gage, Roger Cymbaluk, Donn Eide, Richard Porter, Bill Benedict, Marvin Ode, Brian Espeseth, Len Hewes, Dave Thompson, Larry Coltom, Charlie Lofton and Kurt Muzzy.

Ode won the race in 1974.

In addition to the Thief River Falls drivers, Garfield Boman and Doug Dehnert of St. Hilaire will swell to 18 the number of Pennington county racers in the starting line-up.

An expected field of 350 snowmobiles will depart from Maplewood Mall on St. Paul's east side Mon., Jan. 19, to kick off the 11th anniversary of the race. Four days later, January 22, drivers will arrive in Winnipeg after overnight stops at Alexandria, Walker and Thief River Falls. The Thief River Falls layover will be Wed., Jan. 21. Five Canadian provinces and 14 states will be represented by the drivers ranging in age from 18 to 64 years.

Drivers will be competing for a purse of $39,000. First place will be worth $10,000, second place is $5,000, third $3,000, fourth $2,000, fifth $1,500, sixth $1,250, seventh $1,000, eighth $800, ninth $700 and tenth $600. Additional awards will be presented through 20th place and all finishers will share in $4,000 to be divided equally among qualified finishers.

TEAM ARCTIC snowmobile race driver Larry Coltom received congratulations from Lowell Swenson, chairman of the board of Arctic Enterprises Inc., following his victorious weekend racing performance at Alexandria. Coltom won three races and was the event's top point driver to earn the prestigious Hetteen Cup. Coltom was presented with the 17-foot Silverline inboard-outboard boat with a 140-horsepower mercury engine for his top point production performance, along with the enormous Hetteen Cup itself. He three first place cups sit atop the boat. He also picked up $6,000 in prize money.

Larry Coltom Wins Hetteen Cup At Alexandria Snowmobile Races

Team Arctic snowmobile race driver Larry Coltom of Thief River Falls enjoyed his most successful weekend of his racing career Saturday and Sunday when he won the Edgar Hetteen Cup as the top point driver in the three supermod classes of the Dayco holiday spectacular snowmobile races at Alexandria.

Coltum enjoyed a sensational weekend performance that netted the veteran driver three first place finishes, good for $6,000 in prize money. His high point production also earned him a 17-foot Silverline inboard-outboard boat equipped with a 140-horsepower Mercury engine, along with the prestigious Hetteen Cup itself, named after Arctic Cat founder Edgar Hetteen, and the Dayco holiday cup. He'll also pick up several contingency prizes for his efforts.

Coltom was a first place finisher in the SnoPro I 250 class, the SnoPro III 440 class and the SnoPro 440 X class on his Arctic Cat machines.

"It was my biggest day ever," confirmed Coltom. "The prize money was there. We had prepared for it through the end of last winter and I guess we were prepared a little more than anybody else."

Larry Coltom

Coltom's first weekend win came Saturday when he breezed to an easy victory in the 250 race. Teammate Bob Elsner led most of the race before blowing a belt. Coltom took the lead on the final lap and coasted to victory. Elsner finished third.

Sunday's wins in the 440 and 440 X races weren't nearly as easy, however. Coltom won both races in the final lap.

Coltom ran second nearly the entire race enroute to his 440 win before overtaking the leader on the 14th and final lap. "I followed him for 14 laps," described Coltom. "I stayed within shooting distance until he made a mistake. Then I took over."

Geared for speeds between 85 and 90 per hour on the straightaway, Coltom's 440 X machine reached those speeds when he raced to a first place finish in dramatic fashion in the event's final race Sunday. The Arctic Cat pro took over first place on the home straightaway.

Despite his success, Coltom did run into problems in the SnoPro 340 class where he failed to qualify for the Sunday finals. "I had some handling problems," he pointed out. "We're given four sleds, and it's pretty hard to keep everything up on all of them."

Brad Hulings of Edinboro, Pa. finished second to Coltom in the overall point standings, winning the mod stock 250 and 440 races on Mercury machines.

"This has been my best season so far," offered Coltom. "I've had wins every time out. But, I can't expect it to continue forever," he warned.

Coltom said his goal now is to win the world championship snowmobile race at Eagle River, Wisc., a prestigious event regarded as THE championship of snowmobile racing. The event is scheduled January 17-18. "I almost have to try for it," he quipped.

Next scheduled stop for the Team Arctic race crew will be this weekend, January 3 and 4, at Peterbourgh, Ont.

Plummer, Goodridge To Host Holiday Basketball Events

Plummer and Goodridge will be host sites this week for a pair of area holiday high school basketball tournaments.

Red Lake Falls, Oklee, Erskine and Plummer will take part in the fourth annual Red Lake county basketball tournament Friday and Saturday in the Pershing high school gym at Plummer.

First round games Friday in the rotating event, hosted last year by Red Lake Falls, will find Erskine meeting Red Lake Falls at 7 p.m. while Oklee goes against host Plummer at 8:45.

Saturday's finals will feature Friday night losers in the 7 p.m. consolation game and Friday's winners in the 8:45 championship contest.

Grygla, Roseau, Middle River and Goodridge will be featured in the annual Goodridge holiday basketball tournament scheduled to be played Friday and Saturday.

First round Friday games will send Roseau against Middle River at 7 p.m. while area rivals Goodridge and Grygla tangle at 8:30. Adding even more spice to the Goodridge-Grygla rivalry will be the fact that both ball clubs are looking for their first wins of the year after losing their first six games.

Friday's losers meet in Saturday's 7 p.m. consolation game while Friday winners clash in Saturday's 8:30 championship contest.

Another area basketball team also resumes its 1975-76 schedule this week as unbeaten Marshall County Central travels to Nevis for a Friday night game. The Nordics sport a perfect 5-0 record.

Snowmobile Safety Course Again Offered

Minnesota snowmobile safety course will again be sponsored in Thief River Falls by the Pennington county sportsmen club, according to Irving Swanson, project chairman. Classroom instruction and driving skill tests will be included.

Class sessions will be held for approximately two hours each evening beginning at 7 p.m. on Monday, January 5, and Wednesday, January 7. The driving test will be given at 1 p.m. Sunday, January 11, in the area of the Eighth street bridge in Thief River Falls.

Fee for the course is $2 and should be paid at the first class session. Registration cards will be available at local schools.

Swanson said the snowmobile safety course certificate is required for persons who will be 12 years of age by March 1, 1976, through age 18, in order to operate a snowmobile on state or federal lands, public waterways or crussing public highways.

Wrestlers Will Open 1976 For Lincoln Teams

Lincoln high school athletic teams, for the most part inactive during a current two-week holiday break, will start returning to action this weekend.

Coach Ed Krystosek's wrestling team will be the first Lincoln squad to begin the 1976 portion of its 1975-76 season when the Prowlers take part in invitational meet at Grand Rapids Saturday. The Prowler matmen are winless in five dual meet starts this winter and have competed in one other invitational meet—the Sioux invitational at Grand Forks back on December 6.

Activity picks up considerably next week, beginning with a pair of early week contests involving the Prowler swim team and girls' basketball team Monday.

Thief River Falls, 4-0 in dual meet competition, travels to Detroit Lakes for a 7 p.m. dual swim meet Monday. Coach John Kopari's Prowlers opened the season with a 106-59 win over the Lakers in Thief River Falls. Lincoln girls' basketball team will try to improve upon a 1-5 season record when the Prowlers, coached by Judy Charlebois, host Mahnomen in a 7:30 p.m. game Monday. Junior varsity action will start at 5:45 p.m.

The Lincoln hockey and boys' basketball teams will be on the road Tues., Jan. 6, when the hockey team travels to Crookston and the basketball squad visits Ada.

WINTER ICE fishing on the Red Lake river near the eighth street bridge proved to be a highly enjoyable event for Clarence Amiot and his seven-year-old son Bryan Monday when the two Thief River Falls fishermen landed a pair of prize size walleye to go along with several smaller fish. Clarence caught a 6½ pounder while Bryan came up with a fourpounder.

Winter Fishing

Ray Haggberg at Isle on Lake Mille Lacs and Paul Fahlin at Lake Minnetonka both say that the fishing so far this winter is the best they have ever seen.

When Mille Lacs and Minnetonka are producing it is a cinch that most lakes in the state are doing the same.

Fine fishing in Lake Mille Lacs found Steve Wayne of Minneapolis registering a walleye weighing nine pounds, three ounces. He caught it on a golden shiner. Many walleyes weighing over five pounds have been caught recently. Gene Hedman and his party of three had a string of 15 walleyes fishing out of Garrison in 22 feet of water. They weighed from a pound and one-half to five pounds.

Floyd Torguson at Lake Minnewaska at Glenwood says that crapple and walleye fishing has been very good with the best yet to come.

Father-Son

Waino Paavola at New York Mills sends a father and son story:

Last week Pat Doll of Perham, speared a northern weighing 12 pounds in Rush Lake. The next day his son, Pete, tried the same spot on Rush Lake and speared a northern weighing 17 pounds.

Sled Dog Races

Sixth annual Paul Bunyan sled dog races will be held on Lake Bemidji on January 11 and 12. The top names in sled dog racing will compete for $5,000 in prize money. The event is back after a year's lapse due to the big blizzard of 1975.

Five classes of races will be featured each day including junior and novice classes. Races will vary in length from about one mile for juniors to 16 miles for the open class.

Two of Alaska's top mushers, Bill Taylor, the 1974 winner, and George Attla have registered. Harvey Drake from Fairbanks is also expected to enter. Dr. Roland Lombard, seven-time world sled dog champion from Massachusetts will make his first appearance at Bemidji. Other noted racers entered are Harris Donlop of New York and Ozzie Baers of Anoka.

The sport of sled dog racing, once almost confined to Alaska, has grown rapidly the past few years, gaining national publicity and prominence. The Bemidji race and the one the following weekend at Ely are recognized as two of the top events in the nation for this sport.

Goodridge Girls Rolling Toward Unbeaten Year

Goodridge high school girls' basketball team has stamped itself as a favorite for Region Eight A championship honors this winter by opening the 1975-76 season with eight straight wins.

Coach Linda Bruggeman's Goodridge ball club continued its winning ways in the recent Grygla Christmas tournament where the Huskies shaded previously undefeated Newfolden 38-36 and edged rival Grygla 27-24 in the championship game.

Grygla stopped Oklee 44-27 in the tournament's other first round game and Newfolden crushed Oklee 46-6 in the consolation contest.

The area girls' basketball schedule resumes Monday when Grygla hosts Warroad and Plummer travels to Fisher. Three games on tap for Thurs., Jan. 8, will find Newfolden hosting Strandquist, Plummer entertains East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Grygla travels to Roseau. Goodridge is idle until a Thurs., Jan. 15, contest against Plummer.

Goodridge 38, MCC 36

The long awaited match-up between unbeaten northwestern Minnesota powers Goodridge and Marshall County Central proved to be a dandy as the Huskies pulled out a 38-36 win to open the Grygla tournament.

Goodridge gained early control in the rollercoaster contest with a 14-4 first quarter bulge. Newfolden came right back, however, to out-score Goodridge 12-4 in the second period to trail only 18-16 at halftime. The two teams played to a 30-30 draw at the third quarter break.

High scoring Georgine Troska pumped in 26 points for Goodridge while Diane Anderson scored 12 for Newfolden.

Grygla 44, Oklee 27

Grygla advanced into its own tournament championship game with an easy 44-27 win over Oklee.

The host Eagles jumped out to a 26-4 halftime lead and led 34-8 in the third quarter before surrendering 19 fourth quarter points to the Bobcats.

Connie Sistad scored 12 points for Grygla while Oklee's Anita Hanson took game high scoring honors with 13 points.

MCC 46, Oklee 6

Marshall County Central got back into winning fashion in a hurry with a one-sided 46-6 consolation game rout of Oklee.

Newfolden led 19-2 at the first quarter stop, 27-4 at halftime and 40-6 by the end of the third quarter before holding the Bobcats scoreless over the final eight minutes.

Diane Anderson scored 14 points for Newfolden, now 7-1 for the year. Anita Hanson scored four points for Oklee.

Goodridge 27, Grygla 24

Heavily favored Goodridge nearly fell from the unbeaten ranks when Grygla pushed the Huskies before losing 27-24 in the tournament championship game.

The inspired Eagles played Goodridge to a 4-4 first quarter stand-off, trailed only 10-8 at halftime and were behind by just a single point, 16-15, heading into the final quarter.

Georgine Troska scored 12 points for Goodridge while Connie Sistad hit 11 points for Grygla.

Goodridge is 8-0 for the year while Grygla slipped to 4-4.

On December 1, 1779, Washington led his Continental Army into winter quarters at Morristown, N.J., where record cold caused far more suffering than had been endured two winters before at Valley Forge.

LEGAL NOTICE

December 31, 1975
December 22, 1975
PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS SCHOOL DISTRICT
Ind. School District No. 564
December 22, 1975

Dr. William Corliss, Superintendent of Thief River Falls Public Schools, today announced its amended policy for (free and reduced-price meals, free milk) for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

FAMILY-SIZE AND INCOME SCALE FOR REDUCED PRICE MEALS.

This is the income scale used by Superintendent of Schools to determine eligibility for reduced-price meals during the 1975-76 school year.

Family Size	Income
1	$ 5,040
2	6,420
3	8,200
4	9,770
5	11,210
6	12,650
7	13,970
8	15,280
9	16,460
10	17,640
11	18,820
12	20,000
Each additional family member	1,180

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for (free or reduced-price meals or free milk). In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are available at the principal's office at each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy the Food Supervisor will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request orally or in writing to Dr. Milton Hoff, Principal of Franklin Middle School, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Each school and the office of the School District Service Center has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

May Borrow Factual Film Of Mass. Fire

Civic groups may borrow a new documentary motion picture, "Conflagration", about an October 1973 fire that consumed 18 city blocks in Chelsea, Mass., from the division of emergency services, Wes Lane, director of the division, announced recently.

The 28-minute color film shows the heroic efforts of an army of 700 firemen from 69 communities who joined the firefighters under the century old tradition of mutual assistance. Together they battled 40 mph winds and fire that destroyed one-fourth of the city of Chelsea before being brought under control.

"The film," Lane said, "can be borrowed from the State division of emergency services, B5-State Capitol, St. Paul, MN. 55155."

Nursing Course Offered At EGF Area Vo-Tech

Nursing assistant and orderly class will be offered at the East Grand Forks area vocational technical institute, beginning Monday, according to Orley D. Gunderson, assistant director.

The seven week program is offered in cooperation with regional hospitals, the UND Medical center Rehabilitation hospital, area nursing centers, and is endorsed by the Agassiz health planning council. Students have two weeks experience in a hospital or nursing home.

Completion of the program qualifies persons for part-time and full-time employment as nursing assistants and orderlies in hospitals and nursing homes.

A geriatric assistant class is also scheduled to begin in January. The adult education class will be offered dependent upon enrollment and will meet three nights weekly for six weeks. Graduates will have the skills to obtain employment in nursing homes, long term care facilities and in private homes caring for the elderly or younger persons with physical limitations.

Applications and further information can be obtained by writing or calling the East Grand Forks AVTI, East Grand Forks, (218) 773-3441.

LAWCON Funds Eliminated For Fiscal 1977

According to information received by the Minnesota department of natural resources, the federal office of management and budget has eliminated all land and water conservation fund programs for fiscal year 1977.

The move is part of the administration's goal of reducing federal expenditures by $28 billion.

Minnesota commissioner of natural resources Robert Herbst was in Washington December 11 to brief the state's congressional delegation on recent resource developments, including those requiring some assistance at the federal level. The cut-off of LAWCON funds was among the matters discussed.

Herbst said the cancellation comes at a particularly bad time for Minnesota. The state has just embarked on a $20 million program involving federal grants to assist in acquiring privately owned property within state park boundaries and to purchase other recreational lands.

"With land prices escalating 15 to 20 per cent each year," said Herbst, "the delay means increased costs of acquisition."

He said that many municipalities and counties that have been expecting LAWCON funds to assist recreational development will also have to change their plans.

Herbst said he expects the administration will justify the move by citing supposed large amounts of federal money currently available for federal grants, but he said that these funds are already requested.

You can't live in the past

Nostalgia is "in" these days . . . especially at the beginning of a New Year.

Everywhere you turn there are reminders of the Roaring Twenties or the Fabulous Fifties. Old-car buffs abound, and fashions reflect the fads of long-ago decades. Music from World War II is played, and television plots center around the depression days of the Thirties. It's all a lot of fun — if you don't take it seriously.

Trouble is, we can't live in the past . . . not this past year, or any other. Bills have to be paid, chores completed, obligations met, and each person has to contribute something to his world or he is wasting his time.

A Christian is able to face life like it is — today! He can meet his obligations to himself and to society with confidence and faith — and he can strengthen that faith each Sunday, by going to church . . . knowing always that the Lord is waiting for him there.

Who Loses Games?

It has been interesting this year to note the number of complaints made in the professional football league conferences about the bad calls made by officials which cost a team a victory. The most recent and notable in this area is a 50-yard pass completion which effectively knocked the Minnesota Vikings out of super bowl contention.

If one would take to heart everything he reads or hears, the consensus would seem to be that NFL officials are collectively inept and that, although well paid for their work, are not doing the job they get paid to do. Apparently, that means they are paid to be perfect and anything less than perfection is totally unacceptable.

There is no question that decisions by officials play a vital role in professional football just as they do in all phases of sports. If there wasn't a need for a third party decision in sports, officials would not be included as part of the game.

Even with the benefit of instant replay and repeated play-back of film, Sunday's controversial pass completion does not clearly show whether or not pass interference by the offensive pass receiver did occur. What is clear, however, is that this one decision should not have been the deciding factor if the Viking had performed as perfectly as they expected the officials to perform.

A quarterback who gets well paid for hitting his receivers overthrew potential touchdown "bombs" not once but at least three times. A placekicker who gets paid for kicking the ball through the uprights—and for nothing else—missed his only field goal attempt; that's 100 per cent imperfection in that phase of the game. Receivers who get paid for catching the ball dropped it. Runners who get paid for advancing the ball upfield didn't. Blockers who get paid for clearing the path for runners wouldn't. And for that matter, coaches who get paid for finding weaknesses in the opposition couldn't and who get paid for selecting game plans which work didn't.

It is disappointing, of course, to have the judgment call by an official go the opposite way you believe it should. But you can't pick all the apples in the orchard without expecting to find a worm or two. You can't, as the saying goes, win 'em all.

It is also an interesting fact that most often those who complain the loudest and most dramatically about an official's decision are those who somehow created the situation which led to that decision.

We recall this from earlier umpiring days in what was then the Northern Minny independent baseball league. The pitcher who compalined the most about ball or strike calls was the one who had the greatest difficulty in hitting the strike zone. The shortstop who bobbled the ground ball he should have fielded cleanly was most perturbed about a safe call at first base. The batter who was most vocal about called strikes was the most likely to swing at a bad pitch. Similarly, the football defensive back who goes for a fake and trips over his own twisted feet is the first to claim interference.

A recent clipping came to our attention from a column written by Tom McEewen, sports editor of the Tampa, Fla., Tribune. It told the written thoughts of a little league umpire who was hospitalized after being struck by a thrown bat and died of a brain concussion the next day.

The umpire, Donald Jensen, wrote that he umpired the games on weekends for fun and because ". . . I feel that deep down I am providing a fair chance for all kids to play the game without disagreements and arguments."

He noted how he tried hard to do a perfect job but admitted it is possible to make a mistake. And he recalled how parents and players had been heard to complain about the "lousy call" that they maintained had lost the game.

"A parent or adult leader who permits the younger player to blame his failures on an umpire, regardless of the quality of that umpire, is doing the worst kind of injustice to that youngster," Jensen wrote. "Rather than learning responsibility, such an attitude is fostering an improper outlook toward the ideals of the game itself. This irresponsibility is bound to carry over to future years."

He also told of a young pitcher who pantomined his displeasure at any call on a borderline pitch that was not in his favor and yelled at his own players they made a mistake. The manager watched this display for two innings before taking the young fellow aside.

"Listen, son," he lectured, "it is time you make a decision. You can be an umpire, an actor or a pitcher, but you can only be one at a time when you are playing for me. Right now, it is your job to pitch, and you are basically doing a lousy job. Leave the acting to the actor, the umpiring to the umpires, or you won't do any pitching here. Now, what is it to be?"

The youngster finished the game and afterwards followed the umpire to his car, apologized, thanked him for umpiring and admitted he had learned a lesson he wouldn't forget.

Whether in little league, elementary or high school programs, college or professional athletics, officials do their best and strive for perfection. Almost without exception their performance is superlative to that of the players in the contest. We would do well to remember that.

Educated Hunters?

Editor Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review is an avid hunter and fisherman and fearful—like many of the rest of us—about the future of our recreational pursuits. Following are Ken's comments on a new proposal out of the state's department of natural resources:

Is it possible to make hunters better sportsmen?

Charles Wechsler of the Department of Natural Resources bureau of information and education is coordinating a statewide effort in that direction. The DNR is looking for instructors and "students" to participate in a pilot project designed to make hunters better sportsmen.

Unlike the firearms safety training program, this is aimed as the adult hunter. Emphasis will be on hunting ethics, hunter-land-owner relations and awareness of hunting regulations. Wechsler believes that many adults are simply not aware of the consequences of some of their actions while in the field.

"We know that we can't reach the hard-core violator or vandal," Wechsler says. "But we should be able to educate the average decent hunter who makes mistakes primarily through lack of awareness. Hunting has been getting a lot of bad press lately, and some of it is due to the irresponsible acts of a minority of hunters."

We don't fully agree with Wechsler's contention that educating the "average decent hunter" will improve the situation. It isn't the average, decent man who is a menace in the woods. It is the comparative handful of unprincipled slobs who attract widespread attention with their callous disregard for the principles others strive to follow. How do you get them in a classroom?

But it is certainly a step in the right direction to call for a program of educating hunters in sportsmanship. The average hunter must work to reform the occasional clod he meets in the woods or in the field. And the better educated and more experienced the hunter, the more chance he will have of helping with this difficult task.

The hunter may be headed for the endangered species list. Tremendous pressure is continually being aimed against the sport. There are 25 organizations today with fulltime representatives in Washington, D.C., with the outspoken primary aim of eliminating hunting. They are solidly-organized, well-funded and backed by sizable memberships. Virtually every anti-hunting group can report soaring membership and rising income. They have money, and they're flexing muscle.

A course in good manners for hunters can do no harm, and it may help.

Max Malmquist, a teacher at Anoka-Ramsey Community college and an ardent angler and hunter, has written the text and test for the course of 12 classroom hours. It will be taught to groups of 30 at ten different locations in the state. Hunters who wish to participate as instructors or students may contact Wechsler at the DNR, telephone 612-296-3336.

We may be fast approaching the day when it will be necessary for a hunting license purchaser to prove that he is aware of regulations, understands the rights of others and knows the rules of good sportsmanship. All who love to hunt must share in efforts to curtail bad conduct which further distorts the image of the hunter. This course could be an important first step in that direction.

Borrowed Nonsense

The cowboy came flying out of the saloon and in a spectacular lunge over the hitching post, landed in the street.

"What's the matter, fella?" asked an amused onlooker. "You get kicked out?"

"Nope," groaned the battered cowhand, "but I sure would like to know who moved my horse."

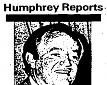
1965—10 YEARS AGO

Building permits issued in Thief River Falls during 1965 nearly doubled the 1964 total, with $1,335,250 worth of permits being issued. —Reflecting the additional volume caused by the merger with Karlstad Cooperative Creamery in 1964, Thief River Falls Cooperative Creamery association showed an increase in virtually every deaprtment in 1965, with sales or gross returns totaling $1,176,794, an increase of $152,652 over the 1964 figure.

The Veterans administration hired 1,207 handicapped persons in 1974. This represented 17.5 per cent of the total federal number of handicapped hires for the year.

Humphrey Reports



To Minnesotans

A review by my staff of federal advisory commission budgets and work activities resulted in an alarming conclusion. It appears that some commissions spend a great deal of money, generating no reports and rarely holding meetings.

For example, in Fiscal Year 1974, advisory committees to federal departments and agencies spent nearly $600,000. No reports were issued and only nine closed meetings were held.

A department of defense task force on the modernization of defense department specifications, standards and directives spent 210,000 tax dollars in 1974, a year in which it issued no reports and held two closed meetings.

But defense department advisory committees are not the only ones whose activities should be closely scrutinized. A general services administration advisory committee for the protection of archives and records centers managed to spend $60,000 in 1974, while apparently doing nothing. It issued no reports and held no meetings that year.

Other advisory committees that deserve serious scrutiny include the tea tasters commission, the panel on sun burn treatment, the women's advisory committee on aviation, the committee on the review of laxatives, and the dance advisory committee.

Surely, our nation would be no worse off without them.

At the present time, there are 1,341 federal advisory commissions with over 23,000 members, thousands of staff, and an annual budget in excess of $42 million.

As the facts I have cited indicate, the time certainly has arrived to review this mass of commissions that may or may not serve useful purposes.

Therefore, I have asked the comptroller general of the United States to provide a detailed audit of the activities and expenditures of the 100 federal advisory commissions with the largest budgets and to make a general review of all federal advisory commissions and their impact and effectiveness.

There is enough serious business for the taxpayers to finance that they need not be saddled with the payrolls of frivolous advisory commissions which advise no one and do absolutely nothing.

This will conclude my weekly reports until Congress reconvenes in January. I hope they are helpful in keeping you abreast of actions taken at the federal level. And now, my good friends, I wish you a Happy New Year. If I can be of help, write or call my offices in Minneapolis, Mankato or Washington.

notes from the governor

Wendell R. Anderson

It's cold again in Minnesota, with several more months of winter still before us. This is a time when every Minnesota family can find ample evidence of the increased cost of energy just by looking at the heating bill.

Utility companies and government agencies join in emphasizing the important cost and energy savings that can come through home insulation. And an insulated home is also more comfortable to live in.

Many Minnesotans have already taken steps to improve the heat-containing capacity of their homes. But some of our people, especially senior citizens and others with low incomes, haven't been able to afford the investment in major home insulation.

This year, the state and federal governments are cooperating in a special federally funded effort to reach those families. For homeowners who qualify under the income guidelines of the federal Community Services Administration, financial help up to $350 is now available for home insulation, reinsulation, caulking, weatherstripping, window repair, and furnace or heating unit repair. The help is provided through provision of materials and labor, not through direct financial grants.

The program is operated through the 26 Community Action agencies located across outstate Minnesota. Federal funds of $884,000 are being supplemented by contributions from the local agencies as well as individuals.

With 63 per cent of homes in rural Minnesota built before 1940, and older homes most likely to be inadquately insluated or winterized, this program can be of great help. Our state Office of Economic Opportunity estimates that approximately 3,000 Minnesota families can have warmer, energy-saving homes under this program.

Your local Community Action Agency office can help you determine whether you are eligible for this special assistance. If you don't know where to apply, write or call Mr. Arnie Boyum, Program Coordinator, State Office of Economic Opportunity, 404 Metro Square Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101, or call (612) 296-5645.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Panek, Steven and Susan of Mavie were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. K. M. Russell. Mrs. Russell also enjoyed a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Russell, in Washington via telephone during the holidays.

Angela Diane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lund, received the Sacrament of Baptism during morning services at the Redeemer Lutheran church Sunday. Following the services the Lunds entertained for dinner Angela's sponsors, Debra Wedger and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Marshall, all of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe and Jimmy, Aaron Marshall, Mrs. Charles Lund Sr. of Greenbush, Mrs. Marshall's mother, Mrs. Asta Ryan of Crookston, and Mrs. Lund's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Moses of California, who arrived at the Lund home December 26 to spend several days.

Weekend house guests at the Robert Rausch home were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin May of Brainerd, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoks of St. Cloud, and Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Banks, Michael, Kathy, and Tim of Coon Rapids. Sunday afternoon they all helped Melissa Rausch celebrate her fourth birthday. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rausch, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Diederich and Beth of Willmar, David Diederich and girl friend Bonnie of Minneapolis and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Lubitz and Marie.

Christmas Day dinner guests at the Raymond Rausch home were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rausch, Monica, Wayne and Melissa, John Rausch and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Lubitz and Marie.
